Both Hornet victories were made on foreign ice. At Hershey, Tony Hemmerling rapped home their first goal early in the second period. Bill Gooden evened the count for Bears on a fast breakaway five minutes later. However only 30 seconds later, Doc Prentice put Pittsburgh in the lead on a fast-clicking play set up by Bob Gracie and Bob Walton. Wendell Jamieson and Gracie accounted for the two other tallies.

Walton started the scoring at Providence in the first period last night but Reds' Bill Whittet tied the score in the middle frame. Bill Hudson gave Reds a lead in the final frame, but the count was evened three minutes later by Hemmerling. Dede Klein made Hornets' winning tally just 35 seconds before the final whistle on a spectacular pass from player-coach Max Kaminsky.

In the Cleveland-Indianapolis contest, Tony Buckovich gave Caps a one-goal lead on the first period. Jack Hewson made it 2-0 in the third after a scoreless, but hard-fought second period. Leo Gaspirini drove home Barons' only tally with just nine seconds to go.

TORONTO, Nov. 6 — (CP). — Batten don the hatches, the storm has broken. In answer to that latest literature on the hockey Hall of Fame, issued by Capt. Jim Sutherland in Kingston, Ont., comes a blast from "Gee" Ahern in the Halifax Herald calculated to shiver the genial captain's timbers fore and aft:

Branding work as "a desperate effort" to justify selection of Kingston as site of the Fame Hall, "Gee" replies: "As all good Canadians know, ice hockey originated in Halifax many years before there was a Kingston." Furthermore, he will have nothing to do with the claim hockey started in England about 1813 or previously as "bandy."

The Halifax writer goes on to say that after the war a "real hockey Hall of Fame" will be established in Halifax. Soon, he adds ominously, "when the president of a great university is ready, an announcement will be made that will halt Captain Sutherland and his Kingston pals."

Untouchables?

Bill (Ottawa Journal) Westwick wonders if the players in the Quebec Senior Hockey League will be "untouchables" now that the league has determined to go its own way without the loving sanction of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and its affiliates. The National Hockey League has close agreement with the C.A.H.A., and if the amateur body says to keep hands off the Outlaws, the pros may have to string along. And with the current shortage of good players, that would be a hardship.

Incidentally:

The Toronto Maple Leafs (baseball edition) has made arrangements for the second annual professional-amateur all-star game in Toronto next summer. The game last summer was so successful, that the professionals probably will make their helping hand gesture to the district amateurs a regular thing... The Maritimes aren't concerned about the C.A.H.A.'s opposition to Eastern teams importing Western hockey players, but they would have been very hot about it a few years ago, comments Bill (Moncton Transcript) Hutchinson. Back in the early 1930's Moncton Hawks imported nearly an entire team from Manitoba, and went on to annex the Allan Cup in 1934 and 1935.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

H. A. Campbell of Windsor was re-elected president of the Ontario Basketball Association at its annual meeting in Toronto Saturday. Other officers re-elected Ed Dixon of St. Catharines, 1st vice-president, and Wilson Marks of Toronto, 2nd vice-president. Myles Leeson of Merritton was elected secretary, succeeding Laurie Irwin of Toronto.

Jack Allen, manager of Dave Castilloux of Montreal, Canadian lightweight and welterweight champion, said last night that Eddie Quinn, Montreal fight manager, had made an offer to have Bobby Gunther of Detroit fight Castilloux in Montreal Nov. 14. Allen is withholding any decision until after tonight's fight here between Castilloux and Joey Peralta, Mexican lightweight king.

New Record

New York closed its scheduled 181-day racing program Saturday at Jamaica with a $3,541,167 betting day, a world's record for a seven-event program. It wiped out the previous record of $3,461,406 set at the same park only a week before. The crowd of 36,512 established another record by pouring $189,116 into the daily double pool.

Three and possibly four senior "A" clubs will start their season Nov. 27, with the schedule to be announced later, it was decided at an executive meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association at Toronto Saturday. Definite starters are Toronto Staffords, Hamilton and St. Catharines, Ont.

The O.H.A. accepted Toronto Staffords as the new club in the senior "A" group for the 1944-45 season. New clubs accepted in the junior "B" division are Hastings, Campbellford, Woodstock, St. Andrew's College, Stratford, Alvinston, Watford, Forest, Glencoe and Petrolia. The 55th annual meeting of the O.H.A. will be held in Toronto Nov. 25.

Henry Armstrong, years past his great prime, still can hit. He proved it Saturday at Portland, Ore., by knocking out Mike Belloise of New York in the fourth heat of their scheduled 10-round bout. After taking the first three rounds with ease, little perpetual motion ended the battle with a smashing left hook to Belloise's chin.

St. Louis Browns reported yesterday that three of their players, including one member of the 1944 American League champions, have been inducted into the armed forces since the end of the season.

They are Al Zarilla, hard-hitting but erratic left fielder; Paul Dean, younger member of the famous "Me 'n Paul" duo who won fame with the Cardinals and who this season pitched for Little Rock; and Bill Seinsoth, a pitcher recalled from Toledo just before the season ended.

Boston Loses At Toronto; Beats Hawks

By ERIC SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Coach Hap Day's league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs left no doubts in the minds of hockey fans they intend to make a strong bid for the National Hockey League championship by handing Boston Bruins a 7-2 defeat Saturday night on home ice. The victory was their fourth without a loss this season.

Montreal Canadiens, Stanley Cup champions, snagged a double victory from Jack Adams' Detroit Red Wings, winning 3-2 at home on Saturday and by an identical score on Detroit ice Sunday, to move ahead of Wings into second place, two points back of Toronto.

To top the week-end hostilities, the Bruins played hosts to Chicago Black Hawks Sunday and in doing so scored a 6-3 triumph, their first in four starts this season.

Playing before a crowd of 13,580 Toronto held the upper hand most of the way in ther contest with Bruins. Mel (Sudden Death) Hill, making his debut on home ice, scored two goals for the Leafs and Dave (Sweeney) Schriner continued his hot pace by counting once and assisting in another. Ted Kennedy, Lorne Carr, Bob Davidson and Pete Backor got the others. Ken Smith and Bill Jennings scored Boston's only goals, both in the last period.

Montreal had to fight hard for both their victories. In the first match they breezed into a 2-0 lead early in the opening period on goals by Maurice Richard and Dutch Hiller, before veteran Syd Howe counted for the Red Wings. Then Steve Wochy netted the only goal of the second period to deadlock the count. With eight minutes to go in the final stanza Toe Blake found the mark after a passing attack with Leo Lamoureux and Butch Bouchard.

Canadiens Win

Canadiens had to come from behind to win Sunday. Modere (Mud) Bruneteau and veteran Syd Howe got goals for Detroit in the first period. Then Buddy O'Connor scored Montreal's first counter after stealing the puck from Bill Quackenbush midway through the second.

In the third session, Blake bounced a 30-foot shot from a difficult angle off Howe's pads into the Detroit net to tie the game and less than two minutes from time, with a tie almost assured, Murphy Chamberlain hooked a short pass from the side around Goalie Connie Dion.

At Chicago a capacity crowd of 16,707 watched the first line of Cowley-Jennings-Cain click for five of the six goals. Cain netted three and Cowley, two, with Jennings getting an assist on one. Norm Calladine got the other marker.

Lude Check, Fido Purpur and Harvey Fraser counted for Chicago. The Bruins led almost from the outset and skated at a lightning pace all the way. They led 3-1 at the end of the first period and held a 4-2 margin going into the last.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 — (AP) — Grant Pollock of Clinton, Ill., offers a prospectus of an amphibious postwar winter sports program which embraces ski running, toboggan and bobsled racing and snow polo — which he describes as a game played on bobsleds going down a race track at full speed. . . . Obviously Mr. Pollock has only the foggiest idea of modern bobsled racing and his program, as outlined, would leave few survivors. But in it he has one idea worth following up. . . . That is that snow sports, just becoming popular in the United States when the car came along, offer a big field in which employment can be created for returning soldiers. . . . A lot of those boys will need healthful work—the United States Golf Association has recognized that in its plan to employ wounded veterans on golf courses—and that's just what they can get clearing rocky hillsides in summer and digging city folks out of snowdrifts in winter.

Monday Matinee

When Chattanooga Joe Engel broached the subject of moving his Southern Association franchise to Miami to the league directors, he waited until they were together then entered the room lugging a large potted palm and a bag of oranges. . . . Lieut. Alf Vanderbilt, who left hoss racing for the Navy, has been assigned to Hollywood as advisor on a picture about P-T boats. . . . Alfredo Do Oro, 82-year-old Cuban billard whiz, has been sent to hospital with a serious injury as a result of being hit by a car.

Hamilton Cats Upset Balmy Beach In Ontario Football Union Game

(By The Canadian Press)

Joe Krol, the outstanding halfback in Canadian football this season, was cast in a familiar role Saturday as he accounted for all nine points scored by Hamilton Wildcats in a 9-8 victory over Toronto Balmy Beach in the final scheduled game in the Ontario Rugby Football Union this season.

The victory gave the Wildcats first place in the final Union standing with five wins and one defeat for a two-point margin over Beaches, who won four games and lost two. The two teams meet again in Hamilton next Saturday in the opening game of a home-and-home points-to-count series for the Union championship.

The Ontario Armed Services Football League schedule wound up with a single game in Toronto where Camp Borden R.C.A.F. Hurricanes defeated Toronto Navy Bulldogs, 17-13, in a contest featured by an 80-yard touchdown run by Sgt. Doug Pyzer of Hurricanes and a touchdown by OS. Tom Ford of Navy on the last play of the game.

The defeat left Navy in second place in the final league standings, only one point behind Hagersville R.C.A.F. Bombers who were not scheduled but went to London, Ont., for an exhibition game and snapped the undefeated record of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs with a 29-18 triumph. Hagersville and Navy meet in Toronto next Saturday in a sudden-death game for the league title.

The 25-year-old Krol rested in the third quarter and when he returned to the field his team trailed by six points. He promptly kicked a single and then set up a touchdown play with three forward passes which put the ball on the Beach 15-yard line. From there he went over for the major score. It was not converted but he got the winning point on another single.

Piled Up 7

Beaches scored seven points during Krol's absence. Ross (Red) McKelvey provided six with a brilliant 75-yard touchdown run from his own 35-yard line where he caught a punt. He converted the score himself.

Wildcats, 1943 Dominion champions, held a 2-1 lead at half time on two first quarter singles by Krol. Earl Selkirk kicked two singles for Beaches, one in the second quarter and another in the third.

Camp Borden took over an early lead in the Toronto game with five points in the first quarter, three on a field goal by LAC. Bobby Porter and two singles by Sgt. Fred Kijek. Navy overcame that lead in the second quarter when LS. Annis Stukus scored a touchdown and converted it himself. AB. Royal Copeland set up the scoring play with a 50-yard forward pass to LS. Al Upper on the Camp Borden six-yard line.

Kijek threw a touchdown pass to LAC. Joe Phelan early in the third quarter and converted it himself to put Camp Borden back into the lead. Stukus kicked a single on an onside kick play.

Douglas Avenue Buys Ambulance In Memory Of Ptpr. Kenneth Nice

Wishing to honor one of the boys on the street who won't be coming back, the residents on Douglas avenue, Saturday afternoon, subscribed $4,250 in bonds for the purchase of an ambulance in memory of Paratrooper Kenneth Nice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nice, 581 Douglas avenue, who died in France, August 9, while serving with the Toronto Scottish.

This is the first time that this has been done in Ontario, and it is a grateful tribute by his neighbours for what a young boy did, that they might continue to enjoy their freedom. It is all the more remarkable, because everyone on the street had already supported the Victory Loan through the payroll section.

While the 48th Highlanders A-11 Machine Gun Band of Camp Borden, paraded up and down the street for half an hour, playing the stirring regimental tunes of the three units, Toronto Scottish, 48th Highlanders and the paratroopers, in which Ptpr. Nice had served, canvassers made the rounds, and got a wonderful reception. At the conclusion, the Band lined up outside the Nice home and played "O Canada", 'God Save the King" and "The Last Post".

Buys First Bond

When Mr. Nice gave permission for the canvass in his son's name he also started off the subscription list by buying a bond, although he had already purchased one through the Fire Hall and his wife had made her contribution through Genelco, where she is employed. Other neighbours and friends followed his lead enthusiastically.

One man told the canvasser that he had already purchased more bonds than he could afford at the factory, but he signed up for another, and as the canvasser was leaving, he said: "Let me know how you get along. If you don't get enough for the ambulance, you come back and I'll find the money for another."

Another canvasser got a 'phone call at noon, Sunday, from a woman on Douglas avenue. She wanted to know if the street had reached their objective, and when told it had, she said she had decided to double her subscription. The returns are not yet complete, because several canvassers have call backs to make.

Help Others

When the Nice family were approached about the idea, they agreed willingly, saying that it couldn't help their boy, but it might help someone else's, in the grim struggle which lies ahead.

A letter was sent out from Gordon Matthews, chairman of the Victory Loan for Peterborough County, telling the Douglas avenue people that one of the neighbour had suggested this as a memorial to the boy who grew up in their section. The cost of a field ambulance is $3,500, and it was hoped that they would be willing to buy a bond to that end.

There were 45 houses canvassed, 87 names secured and 33 sales made up to early Saturday evening. In the past, canvassers have never sold more than $900, because the wage earners were buying through the other section.

Paratrooper Nice, who went overseas in 1942, died the day after he was wounded in Normandy, during some heavy fighting. He is one of the few paratroopers from Peterborough to have been killed. A brother, Pte. Allen Nice, is also serving overseas.

Would Extend Facilities For Child Camps

TORONTO, Nov. 6—A 10-year program to ensure that every Ontario child of suitable age gets at least one month in camp during the summer season, is the objective of the Provincial Government, Dana Porter, Minister of Planning and Development, said Saturday.

Addressing the Victoria Alumni Association at the Royal York, Mr. Porter said that there are camp facilities for only 40,000 of the 50,000 children of camp age in Ontario. As an initial step toward remedying this situation, it might be possible to double present camp facilities by increasing the camp term of some children and extending facilities so that additional children may have these advantages, he said.

The Government was also exploring the possibility of using many camps and training schools established by the army and air force for children's camps, Mr. Porter disclosed. Equipment such as tents, blankets and cooking utensils might be oftained from War Assets Corp. Ltd., he said.

All Classes to Benefit

"Some of the existing children's camps are for youngsters whose parents can afford to pay," said the Minister. "Most of them, however, are camps for children whose parents cannot afford to pay the costs involved. They are carried on entirely on a voluntary basis. It will not be an easy matter to increase these facilities quickly.

"Great care must be taken in the choosing of personnel to take charge. We must look at the problem as we look at other problems of planning, over the next 10 years. By the end of 10 years we should be in a position so that every child of camp age should be entitled to at least one month in camp during the summer holiday season. As you will see, this is an objective which will have to be reached by gradual stages. It must not be hurried, yet we must not lose sight of the ultimate goal.

"We have been studying the possibilities of taking steps to reach this objective," continued Mr. Porter. "We have been in consultation with associations representing the existing children's camps in Ontario. We must rely heavily upon the advice that may be given as the result of their experience. As far as possible we intend to work with and through existing organizatinos. We must always remember that as long as the war continues personnel is difficult to obtain and materials and other facilities are almost non-existent. The main, broad lines of our planning must be for the postwar years."

There were two aspects of rehabilitation, one being the provision for re-establishing war veterans in civilian life, and the other the provision that can be made for the children of those men, Mr. Porter said. In addition to the responsibility for education, it was becoming more and more apparent that the Government must become directly concerned with the supervision of children after school hours and their activities during the summer holiday season.

"Children's camps are institutions which deserve great expansion and encouragement on the part of the Government," declared the Minister. "They are of immense value, not only because they provide a means of building up health, but because they improve discipline, build up health and resourcefulness, and create a love and regard for this country."

Conscription Issue National Problem

REGINA, Nov. 6—(CP)—Senator W. McL. Robertson of Halifax, president of the National Liberal Federation, said in an interview here last night the conscription issue which arose in the Dominion cabinet was not the problem of one political party, but the nation's problem. It would be settled by the people of the nation, he said.

"The war effort of Canada is not the affair of one political party. It has been the concentrated effort of all Canadians, he said.

"The conscription issue is not a political issue," he said. The real political issue is who is best suited to direct the affairs of the country in the post-war years."

"VALOUR"

Two hundred miles from land, under the Arctic's midnight sun, Flight Sergeant Sydney Cole, wireless gunner aboard an RCAF flying boat, spotted a German submarine, on surface, five miles away.

Cole, a rookie, reported to his pilot, Flight-Lieutenant David Hornell of Mimico, Ont., who abandoned his homeward patrol and instantly dove to attack.

Two days earlier Hornell had been told that two flying boats of his own type had been shot down by a U boat. He knew that this enemy had more guns, bigger guns and more accurate guns, than any airplane. An unequal battle. Yet Hornell tore in.

At 500 yards, flak and four inch shells raked and punctured the flying boat. The starboard engine was crippled and set ablaze. Flames ate away the fabric on the starboard wing and elevator. Holes bigger than a man's head were torn in the fuselage. The crew choked in dense smoke.

With the help of Co-Pilot Bernard Denomy of Chatham, Ont., Hornell kept his blazing half-a-plane on course. His gunners, from their smoke-filled blisters, tumbled some Nazi sailors into the sea, but a kill could only be made by depth charges dropped accurately, from close in.

As Hornell crossed that 500 yard gap his starboard engine fell into the sea. His pattern of depth charges followed, in perfect straddle, from apple tree height.

As the U boat's shell collapsed, then blew into hundreds of pieces, the flying boat crashed into mountainous waves and bounced 150 feet. A second bounce of 50 feet split the fuel tanks and blue flames fanned across the foaming sea.

The larger of two rubber dinghies exploded from the heat and eight fliers were faced with the task of crowding into another, meant only to carry five men.

David Hornell, captain of the craft, and at 34 oldest man in her crew, joined Co-Pilot Denomy and Navigator S. E. Matheson of Nelson, B.C. in clinging to the side while the other five squatted in the rubber doughnut.

As Hornell could have abandoned an unequal fight now he could have taken shelter. He refused. What's more he stripped off his trousers, bound their ends, and made them into a bailing pail.

This was the Subarctic, June 24th, 1944, where seas are rough and icily cold.

After two hours everyone knew survival was impossible for the men in the water. All must somehow get into that yellow blob of rubber. To do this, emergency rations, fresh water, oars, helmets and every scrap that could be thrown overboard, was ditched. Even then two of the eight had to trail their feet in the frigid sea.

The storm mounted. Waves grew from 12 to 20 to 40 feet. A crested comber upset the little boat and with it went David Hornell's bailing trousers. The eight shivering castaways righted their little craft and wearily slumped aboard.

Soon Sergeant Fernand St. Laurent of Father Point, Que., began to nod, in swoons, through exposure. His seven buddies rubbed his wet body with all their diminishing strength, while speaking pep talks about rescue. St. Laurent died and, within an hour, Sergeant D. C. Scott of Almonte, Ont., perished in the same way. Both bodies were committed to the sea with the prayers of men who wondered who would be next.

An aircraft of the air-sea rescue service, flying out of the Shetland Islands, spotted the drifters and swooped low with flashed words of encouragement but Hornell and his crew knew what the score was.

They were 200 miles from land. The sea was too rough for any plane to make a safe landing, let alone a rescue take-off.

A boat would have to pick them up and 21 shivering hours were to pass before that boat came in view.

When she did, five men raised a welcoming cheer. Then they noticed that one had not made a sound. That man was their captain. Without complaint, without so much as a whispered farewell, Flight-Lieutenant David Hornell had slid into the silence. He, together with navigator Matheson and Gunners I. J. Bodnoff (Ottawa) and Graham Campbell (Vancouver) were tenderly lifted aboard the rescue vessel while Co-Pilot Denomy and Gunner Sydney Cole climbed aboard with their own strength.

Sailors at once gave Hornell the benefit of their first aid training, but, after five hours, everyone knew that David Hornell, like St. Laurent and Scott, had paid for victory with his life.

All survivors were decorated, while Flight-Lieutenant David Hornell was posthumously awarded the highest medal within the gift of a grateful empire; The Victoria Cross.

In his citation was the declaration that this brave officer could, with clear conscience, have rejected a battle where the odds were heavily against him.

He chose to fight, though it cost him his life.

Here is a story to read and remember . . . Here is a record of Canadian valour, fortitude and sacrifice that will fill your heart with pride and gratefulness . . . Here is a stern and stirring reminder that while brave men fight to the limit—we must all of us lend to the limit! Brave deeds must be backed by dollars . . . by INVESTMENT IN VICTORY . . . by BUYING MORE VICTORY BONDS!

Sarnia Welcomes Arena Delegates From Peterboro

In the midst of their Seventh Victory Loan campaign, of which they had 81 per cent in their grasp Friday, a group of Sarnia citizens heard the story Thursday night of Peterborough's Memorial Centre funding, up to the present, as told by J. A. Jebson and Arthur Lewis.

Mr. Lewis is chairman of the Kinsmen Club, whose dinner last winter focused local hopes and decisions into action eventually under the leadership of Mr. Jebson.

The memorial idea as a sports and health centre has been appealing to Sarnia, and their promoters invited Peterborough to take the story to them as inspiration and guidance.

The following news account from the Sarnia Observer of Saturday is a review of the Peterborough men's visit:

"Mayor W. C. Hipple, who expects to appoint the other members of the memorial centre foundation committee next week, hinted Saturday that there is a strong possibility that Athletic Park will be selected as the site of the proposed building.

Praise Enthusiasm.

"His Worship saw the Peterborough men responsible for a similar project in their city off on a train yesterday. Both of them, J. A. Jebson, general chairman of the campaign which raised $205,000 toward the cost of the war memorial and recreational centre planned, and Arthur Lewis, president of the Peterborough Kinsmen Club, expressed the opinion that the park would be the ideal site.

"They asserted that they only wished their city had such a splendid, central location to be secured without cost to the municipality. Both also told the mayor that the Thursday evening meeting here was much better attended and more enthusiastic than the gathering which launched the campaign in Peterborough. They were confident that the success they had achieved at home could be duplicted here by a well-planned drive for the necessary finances.

Will Name Four.

"Mayor Hipple proposed to name outstanding representatives of industry, business, service clubs and women's organizations to the temporary committee which will draft a tenative program. The members of this group probably will head the subcommittee which will take charge of the financial campaign. the selection of the site, arrangements for the construction and the publicity in connection with the entire project.

"The names of his appointees will be made known through the press, probably about the end of next week, if not earlier.

Sgt. Jim Mann Dies Overseas

A former employee of the Peterborough Lock Company, Sgt. James Mann, who has been serving overseas three years with the Royal Canadian Engineers, died October 29, as the result of an accident.

SGT. JAMES MANN

His wife, formerly Genevieve Foster, lives at 226 Woodbine avenue, and he is also survived by two small children, Donna, age 4 years and Bobby age 2½ years. His mother, Mrs. S. Mann, a brother Kenneth overseas in the same unit, and a brother Art, formerly overseas and now discharged because of lowered medical category, survive in addition to six sisters: Mrs. Charles Clarke, Mrs. J. French and Mrs. Melville Chapman, Peterborough; Mrs. Mabel Henry, Lakefield; and Mrs. Pearl Cut, Buffalo and Mrs. Edna Austin, Lindsay.

At one time, Sgt. Mann worked at the C.G.E. and was manager of the Maple Leaf Girl's Softball team.

Men Healthier

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 — (AP). — Men on the average lost two days less of war work in 1943 from illness or injury than did women, the office of War Information reported today. The average man was away from industry 11 days for such reasons, the average woman 13 days, the O.W.I. said.

BROTHERS IN FORCES—Two sons of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Longhurst, 516 Aylmer street, have seen considerable action. Tpr. Lockie Longhurst (Left) accompanied a tank unit to Sicily and has been in Italy since that time. He enlisted in 1940. Sto. 1 Gerald Longhurst (Right) is aboard H.M.C.S. St. John, which has been credited with sinking a U-boat. Prior to enlisting in March, 1943, he worked at Genelco.

Co-operative Effort Is Required For Effective Post-War Planning

Particular emphasis was placed on the question of the right of the citizens of Peterborough to participate in post-war planning at a meeting of the Allied Labor Council held on Friday evening.

The matter arose from the fact that City Council has so far not taken the steps considered necessary to implement a reasonable request made by the United Electrical Workers' Union in August of this year and which request was further supplemented by a letter from the Labor Council.

During the discussion on this point of making every attempt to have a co-operative community effort in planning for jobs for everyone—present citizens and returning servicemen, it was felt that an attitude of "everything will turn out for the best if let alone" was being adopted in various circles in the city and that such an attitude has no place after victory is accomplished on the battlefield by our servicemen. It has taken the united effort of every citizen through Victory Loans, to which the workers of Peterborough had subscribed wholeheartedly, production of materials and recruitment into the armed services. If this all-out co-operation had netted such satisfactory results during the war, then such co-operation should be extended into the post-war preiod. No one group has a monopoly of ideas on how to improve our community and therefore this Council subscribed openly to the necessity of calling all groups and associations of the city together to co-operatively plan for the future.

Committee Named.

The Council named S. J. Rowe to head a committee which would have representation from every affiliated local of the Labor Council. Mr. Rowe was also named to attend a meeting of the committee of the County Council, who were considering the building of a bridge at Chemong Lake as a post-war measure.

The Labor Council also heard a report from A. E. Borland, who had been named to the City Council's Hospital Committee Questions were raised as the proportioning of the cost of the addition to the hospital. These questions will be placed before the next meeting of the Hospital Committee by the Council's representative.

An invitation was extended to all members of the City Council as well as unions and citizens to attend the showing of the film on UNRRA on Thursday evening at the Paragon Hall. It was pointed out that considerable benefit from knowledge of this project could accrue to Peterborough, in that the plans called for great expenditures of money to assist the war-weary and devastated countries in both food and equipment for which our city was well placed to participate, thus providing a basis for many jobs and employment for our citizens.

Street lighting in the Wartime Housing area came up for some criticism resulting from the turning off of the lights in those areas in the mornings at a time very inconvenient to the residents.

F. J. Gandy, president of the Council, was authorized to interview authorities of the Wartime Housing in regard to the matter and report back to Council.

W. S. Johnson, who had been named to the Site Committee of the Community Health Centre, was asked to make a report to the next meeting of the Council on the progress of this project.

"Lend To The End, Then Spend" Best Slogan In Victory Loan Contest For Students

Seventh Victory Loan Bonds to the tune of approximately $5,000 were sold Saturday evening, at the big entertainment show and dance held at the Summer Gardens, in the interests of Peterborough's Victory Loan campaign. More than 2,400 people jammed the dance floor during the evening, the largest attendance in the history of the arena.

Mart Kenney and his Western Gentlemen were in charge of providing dance music, and entertainment was in the hands of Bert Pearl, of CBC "Happy Gang" fame. During the program, requests for songs were played if accompanied by a pledge for a Victory Bond, and when the request was received, a jeep went out to the houses to pick up the applications. Three Jeeps were used, through the courtesy of Lieut.-Col. James Turnbull, Officer Commanding the Training Centre.

A review of the heavy fighting at Ortona, in Italy, where Canadian troops made history, was given by Captain H. R. Long, of Port Hope. Prizes for the recent Victory Bond slogan contest were awarded during the evening. The first prize winner of Class One, open to all high school girls and boys, was won by Margaret Amyotte, of St. Peter's High School, for her slogan, Bond Bomb Berlin."

In Class Two, open to grades six to nine in all public and separate schools, Betty McCausland, of grade seven, Central School, was the winner, for her slogan, "Serve Your Country Before Yourself." Esther Brown was awarded the prize in class three, open to all public and separate schools, grades one to five. Her slogan was "Lend to the End, Then Spend." A grand prize was awarded Esther Brown, as her slogan was chosen as the winning one from the three classes.

Sales of tickets to the program were under the direction of the Beta Sigma Phi sorority.

WITH ANTI-TANK UNIT—Tpr. Fergus A. Moher, whose wife lives at 131 Stewart street, is serving overseas with an anti-tank battery. Prior to enlisting in April, 1944, he worked at the C.G.E. He is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Moher. He formerly lived on Carlisle avenue.

Personal Gifts Assist Robomb Victims

Robot or flying bombs still continue to cause havoc and distress in Britain, and those who saw one of these awful instruments of destruction on the market square last Friday night, were able to judge just how terrible it must be to have such an implement of destruction coming their way, and to some extent the amount of havoc they would cause where they landed.

On last Friday a letter reached this city after a bare seven days in transit, naturally telling how recently it had been written, in which the writer broke off in the middle to hurry to a shelter because of the danger from missiles of this type, the approach of which had been signalized by the usual alerts as they are called in the British Isles.

This happened in a place that is 108 miles north of London, demonstrating that not only the great metropolis itself and nearby southeastern Britain was menaced, but also a much more wider area than this was also getting a share in the trouble being showered on the civilian population by this devastating type of warfare.

A Friend Indeed

Misfortune that maims, kills or destroys one's possessions which are not self inflicted, always awakes a cord of sympathy in the hearts of friends or neighbors, and even people who may be deemed of only a passing acquaintance, and they who rise to the occasion with assistance that helps to assuage the grief or replace the material losses thus suffered, may surely be termed real friends indeed.

This appellation of "A Friend" takes on an added significance when the help thus given happens to be for people whom one has not, nor has very little likelihood of ever seeing, for there is very definite evidence that the person so actuated has what in common parlance is termed "a real heart of sympathy" for those that are in trouble.

With the added objective of also giving cheer to British boys and girls for Christmas, today a fine personal gift of $25.00 is listed in the receipts for the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund as coming from "A Friend," and another nice personal gift for $10.00 accompanies it, which gave the writer considerable encouragement when being handed to him by the donor on the street.

After putting every ounce of energy possible into this particular war effort on behalf of the residents of this city and district for close to four years as a contribution in their name to this worthy cause, it is only natural that it should become part of one's daily existence, and when the prospect of keeping it going on a daily basis as has been done so far, looks as though it may fail in that particular, one can hardly fail but feel some concern.

So when contributions come like this latter mentioned one out of a clear blue sky so to speak, they very much renew the faith in the goodness of humanity which first of all was responsible for the fund being started, and particularly now with the big objective for Christmas to assist those who have suffered so much through through the misfortunes of war.

$844,100 Needed In Final Week Of Victory Loan

Beginning this morning the third and final week of the Seventh Victory Loan campaign, Peterborough, city and county was in the drivers seat with 81.7 per cent of their objective at the two-thirds stage of the time schedule of 66.6 per cent.

Saturday's subscriptions, reported from headquarters, amounted to $295,150, boosting the Peterborough total for twelve days to $3,755,900. Subtract that from the $4,600,0000 minimum objective, and the difference.—$844,100 is actually this third week's job. And it is going to fall on the city and county general canvassing, because Special Names has reached 102. per cent of their objective and are presumably just about wound up, and payroll savings division has climbed to 93.6 per cent.

The county general canvass for twelve days was 63.8 per cent and city general 61.3 per cent, both behind the time average of 66.6 per cent. The ultimate success of the campaign has got to be won in that broad area, the unorganized people in the city, villages and townships of Peterborough who have money on hand or in sight with which to invest in Victory Bonds.

Saturday Selling

The details of Saturday's investing were: Special names, $125,000; city general canvass $78,100; rural canvass $51,650; payroll savings $40,400.

With six days to go until Saturday night, the city canvass has to raise $648,350 and the county $226,650.

The answer will gradually appear in the day to day results.

In the rural divisional standing, two of the townships are in sight of their quotas. the Northerners, Harvey, Burleigh, Anstruther and Chandos, at 95.2 per cent and North Monaghan 93.8 per cent.

The percentage procession continues as: Havelock in third place with 72.9; Otonabee fourth 68.9; Dummer 68.1; Lakefield 67.8; Belmont -Methuen 65.2; Norwood 58.2; Smith 49.3; Douro 48.7; Asphodel 46.1; Ennismore 34.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lynch and the late James Lynch, Weller street, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Scollard and the late Patrick John Scollard, Reid street.

Given in marriage by her brother, John Lynch, the bride was gowned in floor-length white satin. She wore a full-length white net veil, and carried red roses. BANCROFT, Nov. 6 — (ENS). — James Vance, now in his 91st year, rates among the oldest residents of Bancroft to-day. His parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. James Vince, Sr., came from Ireland to the United States to settle, where James Vance, Jr., was born May 4, 1854, but his father not liking the States, moved to Tyendinega Township, County of Hastings and later to Ormsby, 16 miles south of Bancroft.

The late Mr. Vance being of a venturesome natured moved later with his wife and family to Bancroft, but then known as York River, where he located on a property just west of the present village of Bancroft adjacent to Highway 28. Heavy forests covered the whole area, and the pioneer had to make a clearing to build his log cabin, which became the homestead for the family until their present dwelling was erected some 40 years ago.

Nothing but hard work lay ahead of the Vance family in trying to eke out a living. Gradually each year more land was cleared in order to grow feed and food. Beaver hay had to be cut and drawn to feed the stock before there was tilled land to grow grains. Wolves and bears roamed the farm at will, and it was common for the family to hear the wolves howling around their home many nights in the earlier days. There was only one other home in the district when Mr. Vance, Sr., moved here, it being situated across the York River and occupied by Mrs. Doyle of Maynooth.

Mr. and Mrs. James Vance, Sr., after completing their pioneer days in establishing a home for the younger generation, died, and were buried in the old Methodist cemetery at the rear of the present St. Paul's United Church, Bancroft, which building Mr. Vance helped to erect as well as the small church which was built prior to the present structure. School facilities in his boyhood days were inadequate to give the children much learning. The school he attended was built in that area now used as a street up to the Orange Hall.

Used Oxen.

Very few of the farmers had horses in those days and oxen and steers were the common mode of travel. Supplies were cached in from Madoc to Ormsby by horse and thence to Bancroft by oxen until the railroad was built into Bancroft some 46 years ago.

Mr. Vance has been married twice, his first wife, Wealthy Walker, died in the year 1900, to which union two boys were born, Robert and the late Harry Vance. Henry and his mother died in 1900 during the dread diphtheria scourge which swept the country at that time. Mr. Vance later married Christina MacGillvery, and they had one daughter and three sons, Pearl (Mrs. Neil Martin) of Toronto, Jack and Hugh of Bancroft, Harold of Pontiac, Michigan.

Since the time of World War I., Mr. and Mrs. James Vance have operated their small farm alone. Jack and Harold were veterans of the last war. Mr. Vance was a great lover of outdoor life and spent many of his earlier days trapping, hunting and fishing, and in fact, still enjoys a good fish. He has had little sickness during his long life, but lost the sight of one eye when he was 81 years of age, when he underwent an operation for cataract.

Mr. and Mrs. Vance took off their own harvest this year without help and both are active workers about their farm. They are members of St. Paul's United Church at Bancroft, and Mrs. Vance is president of the Women's Association of the church. Despite Mrs. Vance's 70 years of age, she still carries out her household duties, taking care of seven boarders besides themselves.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, November 7

THIS DAY may be notable for a heightened incentive to forge ahead, at high tempo and with indomitable will, to reach desired goals, in which exceptional initiative, enterprise and determination are potent. However there is definite danger that such aggressive and strenuous methods may be defeated by an impulsive and tempestuous urge to excess and overreaching the mark. This critical situation may be aggravated by opposition from high places, or from conflicts in private as well as community or public associations. There may be temptation to win out by strife, turbulence or an overt abridgement of rules and regulations. For success and great promise keep calm, collected, reserved.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year of exceptional promise and definite achievement in the direction of cherished objectives, but an excess of zeal highly stimulated emotions, impulses and mentality, may prove dangerous and disastrous. Rigid antagonism or conflicts may arise from power sources, with a tendency to aggravate the "will to win" beyond reason and by employment of strenuous, passionate and reckless tactics. Forces and faculties may be keyed to genuine success, but demand moderation, sane judgment and a balanced conservation of impulses, emotions and energies. New ways and means with novelty, originality, and ingenuity should promote bold objectives.

A child born on this day should have much force, energy, audacity and ingenuity, but opposition, over enthusiasm and arrogance may prove its undoing.

Nervy Customer

WINDSOR, Nov. 6—(CP). —"Well, of all the nerve!" scowled a clerk in a downtown department store, glowering after a man leaving. The clerk had helped him try on half a dozen coats until he found one that was a perfect fit. Then, said the clerk, he turned on his heel and said, "Thanks. That's all I wanted to know; I am going to order my coat through a mail order house."

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

WAR HAS ITS BRIGHTER SIDE

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — For thirteen years I lived with a nagging husband who made our home a place of torment. He is now in the service and for almost a year and a half, I have enjoyed a heavenly peace and have regained a good portion of my self-confidence. The children are different children since the nagging has been removed and everyone comments on the progress they are making.

I have written to my husband on the average of twice a month to let him know that the children are well, not that I think he cares, for he refused to provide for them in any way after he left. I have a good job, but do not know how long I shall be able to hold it after the war and, if I do lose it, whether I shall be able to care for the children in the future. In the meantime I am enjoying my freedom from a tyrant ruler.

A WIFE.

Husbands Relieved Too

ANSWER—Well, it is comforting to learn that the war has a silver lining, even if it is only in patches. But you are not the only one for whom it is providing a respite from afflictions almost too great to be borne and who are relieved from their tormentors, at least, for the duration.

Many a man who has had his nerves worn to a frazzle, and his spirit crushed by a nagging wife has gone rejoicing into the army, feeling that he would rather be sniped at by the Japs than stabbed continually by his wife's tongue.

And many a disgruntled couple, bored with each other and fed up with domesticity, who have been on the verge of divorce, have laid their problems on the knees of the god of war and decided to wait and let separation clarify their feelings toward each other.

And in many cases good will come out of evil. Many a husband and wife will see each other clearer from a distance than they do when they are so close together that they only see each other's faults. She will realize that under John's fussy little ways there is really nobility of character and a sense of duty that made him toil to support a family that made no return in appreciation. He will realize that even if Mary was a poor cook, she was a darn good sport who took the hardships of marriage without whining.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am 29 and living at home. Have been engaged for six years to a man who is now 32. He lives with his mother, one brother and one sister. We love each other very dearly, but he feels that he cannot, in fairness, leave his home to marry. Even though I love him, of late I have come to realize that we are only drifting while life in hurrying by. He does not want us to break up, yet offers no solution to the problem.

What do you think I should do?

MARTY.

ANSWER — If a man has the family martyr complex, there is no possible way of curing him of it. He always will put his family ahead of his wife and feel that she should be glad to sacrifice herself to his people. And there is no happiness in life for her.

Granted that your fiance has a duty to support his mother, he certainly has none to support his brother and sister. They should get out and work and take care of themselves.

My advice to you is to have a showdown with your man and call time on him. If he still thinks his family more important than you, give him the air.

DEAR MISS DIX — I have a friend, a married woman with two small children. Her husband has been serving overseas for a long time. One night she and some other women met some soldiers who invited them out and she has been going to dances occasionally with them. Now her in-laws claim that she is an unfit mother and threaten to take her children away from her, although she has never neglected them once. They also threaten to tell her husband.

Can her children be taken from her and her husband obtain a divorce because she has indulged in this innocent amusement?

A WORRIED FRIEND.

ANSWER — Before her children could be taken from her, it would have to be established that she had neglected them. Also, her husband would have to have proof of her infidelity before he could get a divorce.

But in these times a woman whose husband is in the army has not only to be good but also to look good to outsiders, and it seems to me your friend is foolish to risk so much for so little pleasure.

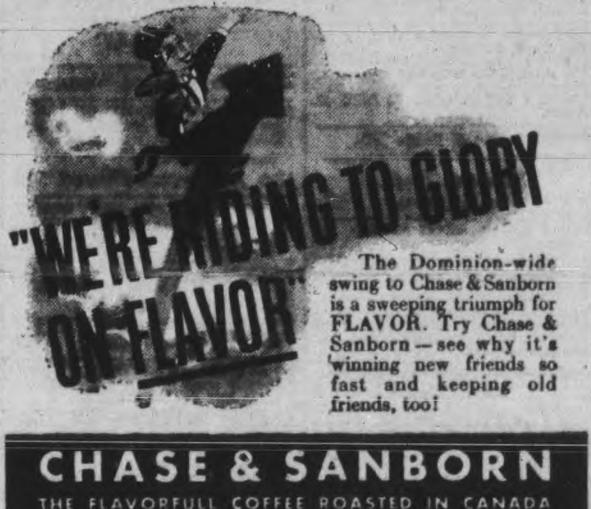
No One Program

TORONTO, Nov. 6—(CP).—Dr. J. G. Althouse, chief director of education for Ontario, said Saturday the Department of Education did not believe it could devise one program "which will apply with equal effectiveness in every part of this diversified province." He said staffs of rural schools must study local conditions, requirements and attitudes to discover what was best fitted for their communities.



George Street Church Has 109th Anniversary

With the presence of so many sects in the province today, the need for ministers to be real teachers of God has never been greater, Rev. Dr. James Semple told a large congregation at the evening service of the 109th anniversary of George Street United Church Sunday. Dr. Semple, who commenced his ministry at the church with the anniversary messages in the morning and evening, described these sects as "religious tramps".

"The Christian Church" was the theme for the morning sermon, and in the evening, "The Christian Minister" was Dr. Semple's topic. Outlining to the congregation the characteristics of what he considers an ideal minister, he said that a minister today must be manly, intellectually awake, and an expert in spiritual things. The ideal minister must think straight, speak fearlessly, and wait for the world to catch up, instead of lagging behind times, he said.

If a minister is not aware of Homer, Socrates, Aristotle and other immortal men of the past, then, Dr. Semple said, he is not qualified to be a minister in the 20th century. Telling of an incident in which a clergyman he knew was described by a resident of the town as a "perfect leader" of the Ladies' Aid, Dr. Semple told the congregation that no minister is truly great, unless he is great in his manner. He must talk with his congregation, laugh with them and play with them; he must be a manly man, the new minister said.

Must Study

He must be a teaching minister, one who will take time to study and present subjects of great interest. He must take in the interests of all, and forget none of the congregation. "My ideal minister", he said, "must take time to be alone with God".

Fellowship in his heart for little children and young people, a place in his heart for the sick, and shut-ins, and a willingness to sacrifice are other characteristics Dr. Semple declared his ideal minister must have.

"There is no lovelier thing in the life of a man than evangelism", he said. "My ideal minister . . . must be an evangelist". What kind of an evangelist? Dr. Semple asked. "He must be creative, aggressive, positive, wise, and sympathetic, with an unhesitating boldness, he said.

Dr. Semple's sermon was a powerfully-delivered resume of the Christian minister, and his place in the community. In conclusion, he said, "I sincerely hope ths' my ministry in George Street United Church will justify at least some of the things I've said tonight!"

During the service, Miss Grace Pyffe, A.T.C.M., of Toronto and Hamilton radio concerts, sang two solos, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings", by Liddle, and "Come Unto Me", by Handel. The church choir, under the direction of C. Renaud, sang "How Beautiful Upon The Mountains", by Harker, including solos by Mrs. D. Jackman and Mrs. M. Parker.

Rev. Dr. J. R. R. Cooper, who has been supplying at George Street United Church for the past two months, conducted the call to worship, and pronounced the benediction.

Loan Show Rehearsal Planned At Drill Hall

Promising amateur performers from any of the 23 payroll-deducting industries in Peterborough are invited to be present at the Drill Hall in the Training Centre Tuesday evening, when a rehearsal performance will be held in preparation for the big Victory Loan amateur show Thursday evening. Stage fright or any other reasons against appearing as an amateur should be abandoned, as much of the country's talent in acting, singing and dancing, has been found originally on the stages of amateur contests.

The drill hall is being used through the courtesy of Lieut.-Col. James Turnbull, officer commanding the Centre, and the audience Tuesday will be made up of men from the armed forces.

Under the direction of El Jones, commercial manager of radio station CHEX, and organizer of the Victory Loan amateur shows, the acts will be whipped into shape for the big contest Thursday evening, when a large audience is already assured, and cash awards totalling $100 are being offered.

To get into the running for cash awards at the Thursday night show, all amateurs from any of the 23 payroll-deducting industries, are requested to come to the rehearsal Tuesday evening.

Charged with throwing glass on a city street in a manner likely to be injurious to tires, Pte. Allan Villeburn was fined $7.50 and $2.50 costs when he pleaded guilty to the charge before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning.

Chief Constable John Thompson told the court that several soldiers had been creating a disturbance at Brock and Chambers streets Saturday night and when Constable John Morrow appeared on the scene Villeburn had thrown a beer bottle down Chambers street, spreading the broken glass over the roadway.

Pte. James Graham, member of the R.C.A.M.C. stationed at Camp Borden, pleaded guilty to a charge of having forged a cheque on the London East branch of the Bank of Toronto for $20, and was remanded until Friday for sentence.

Italian Cooperates With Allies Dream Of A Lifetime Comes True

By DOUG HOW
Canadian Press War Correspondent

CESANTICO, Italy, Nov. 6 — (CP). — Silvio Ricci went to work at the municipal building here in Cesantico the other day. He reported in his shabby farmer's clothes, a diminutive five-foot Italian with a wife and daughter.

There is a considerable story behind Silvio Ricci and his new job. It involves 10 Canadian artillerymen, the advance of the British 8th Army, his own courage and a lot of other things. This is it:

From the time he was a boy Silvio wanted to work at the impressive municipal building. The stroke of destiny that started Silvio on his way was launched originally by a Canadian artillery brigadier. The Canadians had rolled their tanks and infantry into the Lombardy Plains, had found that their flat, close lowlands made the job of forward observation artillery officers virtually impossible.

The brigadier, a Kingston, Ont., professional soldier who is No. 1 gunner in the corps, decided to send two parties behind the German lines with wireless sets to report on enemy targets.

Hid for Hours

Under Capts. Sid Turner of Toronto, and R. W. Chard of Edmonton, 10 Canadian and two Italian liaison officers were put ashore on the Adriatic coast one September night. Finding themselves in the midst of a German gun area, they hid for hours the first day near a main highway thronged with traffic. It was there that Silvio Ricci found them.

He said every Italian knew they were there and the Germans were bound to know shortly. He would take them to his own home in the village. Over the most dangerous part of their journey Ricci carried their equipment. When they reached his house he took them to the attic. For the next eight days they lived there.

They could see nothing themselves. But every day Ricci went out around the village and the countryside. He told them locations of enemy guns, traffic, billets.

Finally the Canadians decided to return. Ricci went out to Recce the best route to the beach. With his information they set out and half-swam, half-stumbled through the pounding Adriatic in to their own lines.

When the Germans pulled back beyond Silvio Ricci's home days later the Canadians looked him up. They asked him what they could do to reward him.

Silvio Ricci told them about the municipal building and his ambition. They looked at his home and promised it would be repaired. The two Italian liaison officers recommended him for an Italian medal.

But the moment of supreme reward befell Silvio Ricci the second he set his farmer's boots on the steps leading up to the municipal building of Cesenatico. Against that, all other honors paled.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Boy Scouts' Association will be held in Hooper's Palm Rooms on the evening of Wednesday November 8 at 7.45 p.m. This is the time when every Scout Group in the city should have its annual reports on hand and also see that the members of the Group committees are there to submit these reports. This meeting is open to the general public, and those who are interested in the movement are cordially invited to attend. Notices of the agenda have been mailed to all officers and members.

Scouting in Britain

In spite of the shortage of Scout leaders, Scout membership in Great Britain has made great gains during the war. There are now 148,593 Wolf Cubs, 208,790 Boy Scouts, 6,036 Rover Scouts, and over 20,000 Scoutmasters and Cubmasters in the United Kingdom. Good going.

Send Seeds to Britain

Here is an objective for you. Canadian Boy Scouts will once again conduct a drive to send hundreds of pounds of garden seeds to the Boy Scouts of Britain for use in their victory gardens of 1945. What are we in Peterborough going to do for our part.

St. John's

The Cub Pack:—Ticket relay and name the trees were the two games played during the evening as the Pack went ahead toward another night of fun. The highlight of the evening was the investiture of Bobby Martyn into the Council Circle. With the flickering lights of the candles at the base of the totem pole, Bobby made his Cub Promise and was conducted to his Six as a tenderpad. During the evening Doug Laird passed Leap Frog and David Bacon completed his first Star tests when he passed skipping. Michael Craig prepared himself for investiture by completing his tenderpad tests. Seconders were appointed to the following Sixes, Jack Church to the Grey Six, George Nickson to the Black, Harold Valois to the Brown, George Franks to the Red and John Biddie to the White. Any badges earned during the next few weeks will be presented at the Parents' Night being held on November 24. Tickets for this affair are now on sale and can be obtained from any Cub or Scout.

St. Luke's Cubs

The shadows of the Jungle lay deep around the Council Rock as Jack Bertram led the Pack in the opening Grand Howl. Shortly afterwards the Old Wolf was inspecting Fur, Fangs and Paws to see that the Cubs were living up to the code of the lairs. Game of Flag test, was followed with instruction on knots and their uses. In the arrangement of the Sixes Hewitt Hamilton was promoted to Sixer of the Blue Six and Bobby Harvey Seconder of the Red. A new Song was practiced and another chapter of Peter the Cub enjoyed.

We were happy to welcome Darrell Lipsett as a new Chum into the Pack. Hewitt Hamilton led the closing Grand Howl.

The Cubs will meet this week on Tuesday night as usual, this week there will be an investiture at 7 p.m.

spread through unhappy Germany.

The proud and handsome city of Budapest, with its population of more than 1,000,000, has been one of Hitler's greatest assets. It is the hopper through which Hungary and much of the rest of the agriculturally rich Balkans have poured their grain and other supplies into a Reich which couldn't feed itself. It's the greatest railway centre on that part of Europe, and also is one of the chief ports on the Danube which carries cargoes from the Black Sea clear into Germany.

Great Milling Centre.

Moreover Budapest is one of the world's great milling centres, and Hitler has depended heavily on its flour to feed his people—a mighty item in maintaining the morale of a nation. The city also has many war industries that have been a godsend to the Nazi dictator as his home factories have disappeared under the avalanche of Allied bombing.

The impending loss of Hungary will deprive Hitler of a satellite which, next to Italy, is the most important European ally he has had for it has been the key to his control of the Balkans. But while this will represent a great military victory for the United Nations, it undoubtedly will be a mixed blessing since it will saddle them with another serious political problems.

There are a great many Hungarian Nazis. Thus, just as the Allies will have the great educational task of eradicating Nazism from Germany and Fascism from Italy, so will they have to eliminate the Hitlerian creed from Hungary.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

GET STARTED RIGHT

IF YOU misunderstand the command of "hayfoot, strawfoot," and begin with the wrong one, you may never get in step. A bad start can lick you in many phases of life, including the playing for many a contract in bridge. Estimating your assets as soon as you see the lead and the dummy, figuring out what you have to do, and what you have with which to do it, you should never overlook the factor of entries to your own hand or the dummy. If there seems to be a shortage of them, your only chance to correct the situation may be by throwing a high honor from one hand or the other on the very first trick.

North: ♠ K 9 4 ♥ J 9 7 ♦ 7 6 5 2 ♣ 10 8 3

West: ♠ Q J 10 ♥ Q 8 5 4 2 ♦ 10 4 ♣ Q 9 4

East: ♠ 6 5 3 2 ♥ A 3 ♦ K 9 3 ♣ J 7 6 2

South: ♠ A 8 7 ♥ K 10 6 ♦ A Q J 8 ♣ A K 5

(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

West led his heart 4, and the declarer counted up tricks. He saw two certain in spades, one in hearts and two in clubs—a total of five in those suits—and realized he could get his total of nine by picking up four in diamonds by means of successful finessing.

So, following habit, he played low from the dummy, the 7, watched East play the A and then put on his 6. By the play of that 6 his contract was beaten, but he didn't know it yet because he had failed to check up on the number of entries he might need into the dummy.

East returned the heart 3, the 10 forcing the Q, and the heart 2 came back to the K. Now the spade K made an entry to the dummy to try the diamond finesse, the Q, which worked successfully. Realizing then that it was too bad he couldn't get into the dummy to finesse again, he saw his only chance was to find that the K was doubleton, so it would now drop. He tried for that by laying down the A, but East still had the K guarded, and he was licked. Mere foresight of playing his heart K on the A at the first trick would have built a second entry to dummy for a second diamond finesse.

Lost Legion Is Free Once More Wants To Fight With Allies

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press War Correspondent

LUXEMBURG, Nov. 6.—(CP). — After four years of beating, starvation and abuse at German hands some of the lost legion are men again.

The lost legion is made up of men, dragged from their homes in Russia, Poland, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Lithuania, Greece and other conquered countries. For four years they've been taken through Europe and forced to work in labor gangs, mines, factories and in building fortifications.

They were taken from their homes for slave labor, but also to prevent them from producing a new generation that would grow up to oppose Nazism.

A few hundred of these men are stationed in a former convent in Luxemburg. The liberation of France, Belgium and Luxemburg has made them free men again, and now all want to get into uniform and fight in the army of their own country.

5,000 Escaped

A small dark young man was one of Tito's Partisans, who had been captured and flung into a concentration camp. From there he was taken to slave in an iron mine near Lille, France. They lived and worked like animals, he said. When Cherbourg fell, they were evacuated into the interior in trucks, but more than 3,000 escaped into north-eastern France and Luxemburg.

Pro-Allied Luxemburg citizens gave them some food but for the most part they lived on what they could find, chiefly potatoes stolen from fields. When Luxemburg fell they presented themselves to the Americans.

"And now my only wish is to go home and fight once more for Tito," he concluded.

Another serious faced boy told how he had been taken from his home in Warsaw to work in military installations in Serbia. Later he worked in gold mines in Yugoslavia.

"We worked hard, we ate little," he said. "Our food was sauerkraut and water. We were beaten three times every day with clubs or whips. Like many of the men he believed part of the ill-treatment was to make them sterile.

Neighbors Honor Mulligan Family

LIFFORD LINE, Nov. 6—(ENS) — A large gathering from the Fleetwood and Lifford community gathered at the Lifford Community Hall Thursday evening, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Mulligan and son Vern, who have moved to Bethany after taking over the bakery business there some months ago.

The early part of the evening was spent in playing several games of progressive euchre.

The guests of honor were then invited to occupy prominent seats at the front of the hall. Lawrence Staples read an address of appreciation and several male members of the committee made the presentation of a combination book case and writing desk with a matching chair and an electric lamp. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

The Mulligan family are retaining their farm property, which they will use chiefly for ranching purposes.

Cardinal Visits Wounded Men

By MAURICE DESJARDINS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE FIRST CANADIAN ARMY, Nov. 6 — (CP Cable). — Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve devoted Saturday to visiting R.C.A.F. personnel in the Canadian Army sector after spending most of Friday amongst army troops and in two Canadian general hospitals. He is expected to return to Britain shortly.

At the cathedral in Gent (Ghent) yesterday he said mass for Canadian reinforcement troops whom he addressed in French and English. Later he talked with Pierre Dupuy, Charge d'Affaires of the Canadian Embassy in Brussels, who came to Gent to attend the mass.

During his hospital visits, the Cardinal talked to almost every one of the sick or wounded men and for each he had a word of cheer.

Thursday evening he was guest of honor at an anniversary party organized by the Canadian Army and R.C.A.F. chaplains on the occasion of his 61st birthday. The food consisted of army rations prepared by Belgian chefs and the 1st Canadian Army added champagne from captured German stocks.

In a brief speech, Cardinal Villeneuve recalled his meetings with the Pope last month saying "Somehow I felt more at ease with Pope Pius XII. than with Pius XI., whom I also have met. After all, Pius XI. was the one who made me a cardinal, but you will admit I helped my felow-cardinals make Pius XII. the Pope."

Rivalry Brings U.S. Electors Early To Polls

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(CP)—Long before dawn tomorrow in some remote communities the first of a hoped-for 50,000,000 Americans will cast their ballots to elect a president of the United States.

There is keen rivalry between many small communities to be the first in the country to complete polling and in not a few villages the custom is to vote shortly after midnight, rounding up all registered voters to get the vote completed and announced before dawn. The result is that the time of officially opening the polls varies widely throughout the country with New England communities, on Eastern Daylight Time, usually being the first to complete the vote.

Crerar Holds Many War Decorations

OTTAWA, Nov. 6 — (CP) — Lt.-Gen. Crerar, Commander of the First Canadian Army, may well finish the war as the most decorated Canadian.

In the First Great War he won the Distinguished Service Order and the Military Cross for gallantry and in the present conflict has been made a Commander of the Bath, the highest Order which may be granted a Canadian as knighthoods may not be accepted under present Government policy.

Last month the high Polish Order of Military Virtue was awarded Gen. Crerar, who has a large contingent of Polish troops under his command. If other nations whose troops serve under him present similar honors he eventually will wear Belgian, Czech, Dutch, French and United States decorations as well.

Wage Rates Across Canada Increase Almost 10 Points

OTTAWA, Nov. 7—(CP).—The general index number for wage rates in the 12 chief lines of industrial employment in Canada rose 9.9 points to 139.5 during 1943 from 126.9 in 1942, the Labor Department announced today. The 1943 figure showed an increase of 33.8 points over the 105.7 mark set in 1939. The index is calculated on the basis that 100 represents the average wage level for the 1935 - 1939 period.

Figures for the war years were given as follows: 1939, 105.7; 1940, 109.4; 1941, 120.3; 1942, 126.6, and 1943, 139.5.

Increases in wage rates from 1939 to 1943 in the various lines of employment were as follows:

Occupational Group	1939	1943
Building trades	103.3	128.8
Metal trades	104.7	132.8
Printing trades	101.9	116.0
Electrical railways	102.7	133.5
Steam railways	105.0	131.5
Coal mining	102.9	128.5
Common factory labor	105.9	149.0
Miscellaneous factory trades	106.0	142.4
Logging & saw-milling	110.5	152.9
Metal mining	102.8	125.3
Steamships	110.0	147.0
Laundries	101.7	131.2
Telephones	103.1	127.3
General average (weighted)	105.7	139.5

A statement also explained that these index numbers relate only to wage rates, including cost of living being paid for normal working hours Overtime rates and actual earnings of employees do not enter into the compilation.

It was noted that although general wages rates rose from 105.7 to 139.5 points, or about 32 per cent., from 1939 to 1943, the adjusted cost-of-living index showed an increase of only 18.1 per cent. over the same period.

Hun Newspapers Ask Questions

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 — The German newspaper Hamburger Fremdenblatt yesterday asked, in view of increasing desertions from the German Volkssturm, whether it should not be assumed "that our nation is completed finished."

A Bayreuth paper asked whether the creation of the Volkssturm is not "an admission that our reserves are approaching exhaustion," the BBC also said.

Both broadcasts, reported by the BBC, were recorded by CBS.

Canadian Army Gets Message

OTTAWA, Nov. 7.— (CP).— Defence Minister McNaughton last night told a Canadian Legion meeting he was sending to the men of the Canadian army overseas, which he once led as commander a message pledging that "we will maintain our just part in the great Allied effort to bring the enemy to final defeat."

Through all the long months since I had to leave you I have followed your progress with the deepest interest. Your performance on the field of battle has been magnificent and all at home in Canada have thrilled with pride in your gallantry and your mastery of arms.

In a steady succession of hard-fought actions, in Italy and North-west Europe, you have driven the enemy before you in disorder and you have played your full part in bringing victory nearer.

Your great successes have given the deepest satisfaction and from my heart I congratulate you all.

Now, I have been called again to a position of responsibility in your affairs. It is my concern to see to it that you will have the support you need; and we will maintain our just part in the great Allied effort to bring the enemy to final defeat. It is my concern to watch over your every interest now; and

Flying Robombs Batter England

LONDON, Nov. 7 — (CP). — The sky over the English east coast was lit up during the night by a tremendous barrage of anti-aircraft fire and exploding robots as the Germans flung flying bombs in from the North Sea for the third night in a row.

With the loss of their Channel robot roosts, the Germans have switched almost entirely now to launching the flying bombs from aircraft over the North Sea.

Bitter Fight See-Saws Near Hurtgen

British Take Over More Of Walcheren Island

LONDON, Nov. 7—(CP).—Mopping-up in Western Holland where German troops withdrawing before the 1st Canadian and British 2nd Armies managed to destroy most of the bridge and ferry facilities for crossing the Maas (Meuse) River continued today against scattered pockets of Germans still left around the bridge approaches and on flooded Walcheren Island in the Schelue estuary.

Hand-to-hand fighting increased in intensity in the Hurtgen Forest area southeast of Aachen, where American infantry, closely supported by swarms of planes, struggled to hold their gains against successive and powerful German counter-blows.

An enemy thrust west of Hurtgen itself was thrown back, but another knocked the Americans out of Vossenack temporarily. The reaction was swift, and U.S. 1st Army troops surged half-way back through the town, where they are fighting a heavy formation of German tanks and infantry.

Veere Captured.

Veere, last coastal town on Walcheren, was taken by British troops, and Middelburg in the island's centre was captured, the Allied communique reported, although field dispatches indicated the island's chief city was entered by British forces without a surrender from its German garrison. There still were enemy hideouts elsewhere in the flooded interior, but virtually the entire island was in Allied hands.

In Eastern Holland, where British and American troops have been retaking slowly the positions they lost to a sudden and powerful German counter-thrust west of Venlo, the action had subsided temporarily at least into desultory artillery duelling.

West of Schmidt, the Americans advanced slowly in the face of stubborn opposition. But despite the ferocity of Allied air attacks, which blanketed the German positions with bombs, strafing fire and fire-bombs, Schmidt itself, seized last week by the Americans but retaken by the enemy, was still in German hands. Schmidt is 15 miles south-east of Aachen.

In the entire area the Americans are striving to fight clear of the Hurtgen Forest and on to the Cologne Plain.

On American sectors of the west front between Aachen and the Swiss border, American and French troops continued to press their attacks forward to new gains. The village of Herbeller was taken east of Luneville, and several towns and villages fell to the Allied troops of the 6th army group in the Baccarat sector. The communique reported the cap-

Record Blitz In Third Day

LONDON, Nov.. 7—(CP)—Massed formations of Allied bombers headed toward Germany again today, following an R.A.F. night bombing of Coblenz. It thus appeared the record aerial assault on Hitler's fortress was being carried into the fourth consecutive day.

Lancasters and Halifaxes doused three railroad yards in the Rhine city behind the United States 1st and 3rd Army fronts. R.A.F. Mosquitos stung Gelsenkirchen, the Ruhr's fifth largest city.

Going out after 4,000 Allied planes dumped 8,000 tons on the Reich in daylight yesterday, R.A.F. pilots were told they would fly through solid overcast to the Rhine but if they arrived over Coblenz at the right moment they would have 10 minutes good visibility. The bombers hit the spot on the dot, saturated their targets and headed for home before the German defences could hit their stride.

The Mosquitos over Gelsenkirchen found huge fires still burning from the bombs dropped by 700 R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavies yesterday afternoon the city's heaviest attack of the war.

From all night operations 15 aircraft were reported missing. Five German planes were destroyed during the night. Twelve, including six jet-powered fighters, were knocked down in daylight yesterday.

War Loan Nears Billion Mark 4 Days To Go

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 (CP)—Canada's Seventh Victory Loan total neared the $1,000,000,000 mark today in the third and final week of the campaign which has an objective of $1,300,000,000. Yesterday's purchases of $72,559,900 gave a cumulative total of $974,454,900.

An analysis of results to date shows that with 72 per cent of the canvassing time elapsed only 66 per cent of the sixth loan total—$1,400,-000,000—has been raised.

Individuals yesterday purchased $32,414,000 in bonds bringing their total to $329,732,400, which is approximately 68 per cent of the individual purchasers in the previous loan.

"The figures indicate a need for an intensive canvass in the final few days," a loan official said. "There are always delayed sales reported. These increase the total which we announced immediately after the official close of the loan. We must be reasonably close to the

Reds Seeking To Surround Capital City

Refugees Clogging Highways Fleeing Budapest

LONDON, Nov. 7 (AP) — Red Army troops battled strongly-reinforced Nazi forces in the outskirts of Budapest today, spurred by Marshal Stalin's pronouncement that Hungary would soon be out of the war.

In an order of the day issued on this 27th anniversary of the Soviet Revolution, Stalin declared the Red Army and its western Allies "have taken up the jumping-off positions for the decisive offensive against the vital centres of Germany" and that "we now stand on the eve of complete victory."

Russian columns were fighting within two miles south of the big enemy-operated Ferihegy airdrome in Budapest's outskirts, apparently seeking to coil around the eastern part of the city.

In a proclamation preceding the order of the day, Stalin asserted the defeat of Hungary would signify the "complete isolation of Hitlerite Germany, and early catastrophe will follow inevitably."

The regular midnight Soviet communique broadcast from Moscow contained only two sentences: "There were no essential changes on the fronts. During Nov. 5 our troops on all fronts disabled or destroyed 16 tanks."

In a dawn-to-dusk attack yesterday Soviet bombers hammered the enemy's defence belt and communications at the rear of the Hungarian capital. Budapest reports coming via Turkey said there was no intention of declaring the city on the Danube an open one.

Berlin broadcasts declared conditions in side Budapest were turbulent, with refugees fleeing from the city in increasing numbers "seriously hampering" military traffic in the streets and on roads to the north-west.

The Paris radio reported this morning that Hungarian workers had gone on strike in Budapest and occupied the Manfred Weiss armament works.

Results Of U. S. Election May Be Known At Midnight

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 — (CP). — United States voters trooped to the polls today in the first wartime election since 1864 to choose between prolonging the 12-year-old Democrat-Roosevelt regime or the establishment of a Republican administration headed by Thomas E. Dewey, 42-year-old governor of New York.

That was the major choice facing the electors since the two leaders are virtually in accord on the major issues of war and organization for peace.

But the voters had the memory of eight weeks of vigorous campaigning in which proponents of both major parties resorted to all the strategems of partisan debate to win their favor.

Few United States election campaigns have been filled with so much ridicule and vituperation as the one now concluded and if the burden of it was on the Republican side it was natural since it is the third straight election in which they have attempted to defeat the precedent-smashing Roosevelt regime.

Appeal to Voters

Last night President Roosevelt made an election-eve radio talk from his Hyde Park, N.Y., home where he said he and his family were thinking about "our own sons — all of them far away from home — and of our neighbors' sons and of the sons of our friends."

(The President's four sons are all in the United States armed forces.)

He said the men overseas were thinking about the election and depending upon the people at home to retain the same system and kind of government for which they were fighting.

The President said he was not making a partisan speech because that part of the campaign ended Saturday. He appealed to his listeners to get out and vote for their choice so that the decision would be a true Democratic expression of the people's will.

Charges Incompetence

Gov. Dewey also made a last-minute radio speech to the nation and again he used the argument of Saturday night in his speech here in Madison Square Garden, that administration incompetence had delayed the conquest of Germany.

The Republican candidate said today's election might prove "the most fateful in our history," and discussed the argument that the government should not be changed at this critical moment in the country's history.

To argue that a change of administration should not be made in time of crisis was "the opposite of a free system of government," Gov. Dewey said.

Eastern polls opened at six o'clock and the far western polls will not be closed until 17 hours later eastern time.

But even then the result may be in doubt if the voting is close because upwards of 3,000,000 overseas votes may be in the hands of various state secretaries and in some states the time of receiving these votes extends into December.

However the pollsters indicate a fourth term for Roosevelt is possible by such a decisive vote that the result will be independent of the overseas balloting.

In that event the decision may be known before midnight.

Ralston Ignores Cabinet Crisis In Rotary Speech

MONTREAL, Nov. 7 (CP)—Col. J. L. Ralston, in his first public speech since he resigned as Defence Minister, today described his recent battlefront tour and said "the problems of supply and reinforcements . . . have been extremely difficult," but ignored the cabinet crisis which saw him succeeded by Gen. McNaughton.

He did not elaborate on his reference to reinforcements, the subject which precipitated the cabinet crisis.

In a speech prepared for delivery at a luncheon of the Rotary Club of which he is a member, Col. Ralston paid tribute to Canadian fighting men, spoke of their hopes and aspirations, pictured his visit to the graves of fallen warriors and described the fighting.

It was a Remembrance Day meeting and taking this as his theme, Col. Ralston spoke of ground hard won and victory paid for in casualties.

Speaking of the difficulties facing the troops overseas, Col. Ralston said miracles had been worked. "In England I saw men in hospital who had been wounded only 36 hours before on the Leopold Canal."

Huns Are Tough

He had talked to the wounded.

"Don't try to tell those men in hospital that the Boché is licked. They have had experience. They know that he fights harder and more stubbornly than ever. That is why they are in hospital, in a plaster cast or with a face burned to a crisp or with a leg or an arm—or both—missing.

"Don't talk to these men about the Boche reeling back, as I saw it in a news dispatch a few days ago," he said. "They know from experience that the Boche does not reel back. They know he fights more desperately than ever to keep off and delay great operations which must yet be undertaken before we can hope to finish the the war.

"Don't talk to these men about the war being over. They know there is bitter fighting ahead."

At another point he referred to the fighting in Italy and said: "It has taken five weeks since I was there to advance the line 18 miles."

He had visited the graves of men who had fallen in this war, "the men who lived and fought—the men who fought and died—in order that the world might know the joy of peace, an our own land grow in strength of heart and mind and hand and purpose, for the sake of all the children of men. That's what these men believed in. To us comes the terrific challenge to make that belief come true."

McNaughton Shows No Liking For Conscription

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 — (CP). — Defence Minister McNaughton last night appeared before his "old comrades" of the Ottawa command of the Canadian Legion, reiterated his belief in voluntary service in the overseas army, heard their noisy protests and smiled his appreciation as they closed the evening by giving him three cheers and a tiger. The veterans, hundreds strong, made the exhibit cases in the Victoria Museum halls rock with their applause — and their shouts of "No" when they did not agree with parts of his speech.

Wearing a Legion badge which had just been presented to him following his election 18 months ago as a life member, the former commander of the Canadian Army overseas announced:

That only the voluntary service method would provide the necessary reinforcements in time;

That the fit home defence army men must be taken from civilian jobs and "trained as soldiers," freed of abuse to which they have been subject and encouraged "to accept the honorable obligation of service overseas";

Wants New Deal.

That he was confident "new conditions and new background" would mean the problem would disappear, for the home defence men would be given "a new deal";

That arrangements are being made to grant leave to men of "very long service overseas" and he hoped some of them will be home for Christmas;

That "fair play" will be given the men overseas who feel the 70,000 men in the home defence army are a danger to their prospects of remunerative employment after demobilization. The overseas men would have fair play in this regard even if it meant delaying the demobilization of draftees who did not volunteer for overseas service.

The issue of reinforcements for overseas remained a prime subject of discussion in Ottawa during the day, as it has for six days since the resignation of Hon. J. L. Ralston as Minister of National Defence following differences of opinion within the Cabinet on conscription for overseas.

Other developments were:

1. The Dominion Council of the Canadian Legion asked for conscription for overseas.
2. Col. Ralston said he had been

Voting Heavy Across U.S.A.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—An unprecedented early and heavy turnout swamped polling places across the United States today, indicating a possible record of 50,000,-000.

Stirred by the country's first wartime election since 1864, voters began lining up to cast their ballots even before the polls opened.

The first hours were orderly despite the warm feeling between some partisans of Franklin D. Roosevelt, 62-year-old third termer Democrat in the White House, and Governor Thomas E. Dewey, 42, bidding for a first term as Republican.

New York city voting officials reported 25 per cent of the vote in by 9:30 a.m., and at most polling places 50 to 60 were standing in line.

Watch Returns

You can do your own expert guessing as you listen to the election returns tonight. Unless the Roosevelt-Dewey race is very close, the vote trends in certain key states and cities will help you figure which way the wind is blowing. Election statisticians say: Watch the returns from the big cities as particularly important indicators.

Many observers assume President Roosevelt will carry New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit and other large cities. They say, however, that he will probably need big majorities in those cities to win such important states as New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and Michigan.

Those five are rated "crucial areas" because they have a total electoral vote of 154—more than half the 266 electoral votes needed to win.

Stalin Regards Japs As Threat

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7—(AP)—Marshal Stalin's frank discussion of Japan as an aggressor nation brought renewed speculation today that at the strategic moment the Soviet Union will make available some of its resources to the Allies of the Pacific-Asiatic war.

This might range all the way from the use of bases to full participation. But that help will be forthcoming has long been assumed by informed persons here and Mr. Stalin's direct reference to the Pacific enemy was interpreted in that light.

There is no evidence in any quarters that Mr. Stalin has communicated his plans regarding Japan to Washington and London. But Allied authorities, and particularly those in Washington, hope no action will be taken prematurely.

For in some respects Russia's position in northeast Asia is even more vulnerable than Japan's. Her territories in the maritime provinces and Kamchatka peninsula apparent-

Hun Aegean Fleet Almost Wiped Out

ALLIED MEDITERRANEAN HEADQUARTERS, Nov. 7 — (CP. Reuter). — The Germans lost more than 100,000 tons of shipping in the battle for control of the Aegean Sea which the Allies have won.

An official statement on the operations said that what little remained of the German navy in that area was so weak and demoralized that the Allied navies moved in the Aegean today with the same freedom with which they patrolled the whole Mediterranean.

A year ago it was estimated that the German effective tonnage in major shipping in these waters was more than 110,000 tons.

The statement added that thousands of Germans on the Aegean islands are now cut off following the German withdrawal from Greece.

U.S. Superforts Over Tokyo

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7 — (AP) —American Superfortress planes were over Tokyo and the heavily industrialized Kanto area to-day for the third time within a week, the Tokyo radio reported. No bombs were dropped.

The same broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said 40 more of the big bombers on Sunday raided Iwo in the Volcano Islands, 750 miles south of Tokyo.

The radio said two of them flew over the main Japanese Honshu Island's Kanto region for an hour "for reconnaissance purposes."

Japanese propagandists warned the Superfortresses would return in force to bomb Tokyo and other sections of the Kanto area which roughly covers the eastern half of Honshu.

American sources have not confirmed any of the three reported reconnaissance flights.

Nazis Blamed For Murder

Churchill Pays Tribute To Lord Moyne

LONDON, Nov. 7—(CP).—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today "very searching inquiries" would be made into the assassination yesterday of Lord Moyne, British Minister resident at Cairo.

Parliament and the country, Mr Churchill said, had suffered a "very heavy loss" in the death of Lord Moyne.

Mr. Churchill said Lord Moyne had devoted himself this year to a solution of the Zionist problem, and declared the Jews in Palestine "had rarely lost a better or more well-informed friend."

Following Mr. Churchill's remarks, Lord Strabolgi, president of a newly-formed league to promote Dominion status for Palestine, said in an interview: "It is far more probable to my mind that Lord Moyne was murdered by Nazi agents."

Meanwhile, A. Abrahams said in a statement on behalf of the London Jews: "The new Zionist organization emphatically condemns this act of terrorism which has been reported as committed by Jews and is resolved to do all in its power to bring Jewish youths back to the realization that only by the employment of political instruments of discussion, negotiation and public enlightenment can the legitimate Jewish claim of Jewish statehood be attained."

Casualties Over 2 Millions

Nazi Losses Greatest In France

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP)—Germany has suffered at least 2,044,090 casualties in the last half year, official statements from the eastern, western and southern fronts disclosed today. Actual enemy losses may be a great deal higher.

Official Allied sources listed these German casualties between May and November:

Russia	790,000
Western Front	1,060,090
Italy	194,000
Total	2,044,090

Premier Stalin announced last night that 790,000 Germans were killed or captured in the summer offensive in White Russia and in "the battle of the south." He made no estimate of German wounded and it was not clear whether the 790,000 included all sectors of the 1,800 mile Russian front.

In September, the Soviet information bureau announced that 1,185,-476 enemy troops had been killed or captured between June 23 and Aug. 31, and 10 weeks of severe fighting have elapsed since then.

Lord Strathmore Queen's Father Dies At Age 89

LONDON, Nov. 7 — (CP). — The Earl of Strathmore, 89, father of Queen Elizabeth, died at 6 a.m. to-day at Glamis Castle, his home in Forfarshire, Scotland.

Lord Strathmore had been ill for about a month. His condition took a serious turn last week-end and he was reported dangerously ill last night.

Although he had been in failing health for some time the critical turn in his condition came unexpectedly. News of his death was conveyed to the Queen early to-day.

The 14th Earl of Strathmore and Kinghorne, whose daughter, Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, became the first commoner Queen of England since Henry VIII. married Katharine Parr in the 16th century, was of a retiring nature, and had preferred living amid the heath-clad Scottish hills to court life in London.

"We have never aspired to court circles," he said in 1923 when his daughter married the then Duke of York. He described the match as "a marriage of love" between "an angelic girl" and "a fine fellow and a clean Englishman."

Sir Claude George Bowes-Lyon succeeded to the title of Lord Strathmore in 1904. He came of a family which long had played a major part in Scotland's history, tracing his descent from the Lady of Glamis, a daughter of Robert II. of Scotland.

At Glamis Castle

His ancestral home, Glamis Castle, also had survived much stormy Scottish history. Although the present building dates largely from the 17th century, much of the medieval stronghold, where—it is related in chronicles upon which Shakespeare based his play—Macbeth murdered Duncan and seized his throne, still stands.

The Earl was said to have been happiest clad in rough, country tweeds, overseeing work on his 24,700-acre estate.

He had served for a time as a lieutenant in the 2nd Life Guards and afterwards as honorary colonel of the 4th and 5th Battalions (Territorials) of the Black Watch.

For 32 years he was Lord-Lieutenant of Angus, and held the Order of Knight of the Thistle.

He was the only commoner holding knighthood in the Orders of the Garter and the Bath.

In 1882 he married Nina Cavendish-Bentinck, a member of the family of the Duke of Portland. She predeceased him some years ago.

Lord Strathmore's death brought the second bereavement to the Royal family in less than a fortnight. The court was due Thursday to go out of mourning for the death of Princess Beatrice, great-aunt of King George and last surviving child of Queen Victoria.

Lord Moyne Dies From Bullet Wounds

CAIRO, Nov. 7 — (AP).—Jewish terrorists assassinated Lord Moyne, British Resident Minister in the Middle East, yesterday, officials said to-day.

Their motive was not known. Lord Moyne's duties were concerned almost exclusively with relations between Great Britain and Egypt and did not cover other problems in the Middle East.

King Farouk visited the hospital before Lord Moyne died. Funeral arrangements have not been completed, but a state funeral probably will be held. Lord Moyne was 64.

Lord Moyne was shot rown as he alighted from his residence here, and died in an army hospital. His chauffeur as killed instantly.

National Polls Favor Roosevelt

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 — (AP). — Four country-wide polls give President Roosevelt a slight lead as American voters prepare to decide between him and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to-day, but all agree that the Presidential race is likely to be too close to try to pick a winner.

A fifth poll conducted in 28 counties of 15 States by Emil Hurja, associate publisher of Pathfinder Magazine, gives the edge to Mr. Dewey.

Here are the results reported by the nation-wide polls, all of which accompanied them with the qualification that several factors, including the service vote, could change the picture in a number of "pivotal states."

Gallup—51.5 per cent of civilian vote for Roosevelt; 18 states with 165 electoral votes sure for Roosevelt, 10 with 85 electoral votes sure for Dewey, 20 with 281 in doubt. Total, giving doubtful States to candidate with slight edge: Roosevelt, 292 electoral votes, Dewey 239. (It takes 266 to win.)

Fortune Magazine— 53.6 per cent of civilian popular vote for Roosevelt on basis of "attitude questions" 52.5 per cent for him in secret ballot poll.

Crossley — 52 per cent of Major Harty vote for Roosevelt, with attempt made to estimate trend of service vote. (Actual polling of servicemen and women is prohibited by Federal law.) Roosevelt 354 electoral votes to Dewey's 17 if present slight indications in pivotal States are borne out.

Newsweek Magazine — 249 electoral votes for Roosevelt, 247 for Dewey, Pennsylvania's 36 undecided, on basis of reports from 118 political writers.

The Crossley and Newsweek findings were released last week, Fortune's Sunday, and Gallup's yesterday.

Polish Forces Gain Near Forli

ROME, Nov. 7 — (CP). — Polish troops of the British 8th Army operating south of Forli near the Adriatic coast, have captured several important hill features and taken the villages of San Martino and Marsignano after stiff fighting, an Allied communique said to-day.

Among hills captured by the Poles were Monte Maggiore and Monte Tosta.

Enemy resistance was more stubborn in the Vosges Mountains west of Gerardmer, but there also advances were made. The communique reported also that "in the Maritime Alps we have made gains at several points, and now hold the high ground along the Italian frontier."

All of these ground operations had close air support. While heavy bombers continued the tremendous blows against Germany's heart which have shattered all records for sustained aerial bombardment in the last four days, medium bombers and fighters went after close-in targets of enemy troop formations and communications.

Fighter-bombers and rocket-firing fighters attacked rail and supply lines behind the German positions all through Holland and the Rhineland, as well as fuel and ammunition dumps at Duren, tank and infantry columns in the Hurtgen area, and other military targets at Eutphen, Julich and north-east of Gelsenkirchen.

pressed for an explanation of his resignation, but felt responsibility for informing the public belonged primarily to Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

3. The Prime Minister's office announced that he will make a broadcast on Wednesday and it was expected he would deal with reinforcements.

Just before Gen. McNaughton addressed the Ottawa Command of the Canadian Legion it passed by a standing vote a motion accepting the Dominion Council's call for conscription for overseas.

Warm Welcome

The new defence minister was warmly welcomed. His audience heard him in silence as he bespoke his appreciation for the work of the Legion and other veterans' organizations.

He then reviewed the progress of Allied armies in Europe. To pass the fortified German lines, the Allies must turn to practice of siege warfare of the most intense character and above all else there must be guns and shells "in lavish quantities." He appealed to all women who could do so to assist the production of shells and contribute to the saving of soldiers' lives.

Then he went on to repeat several paragraphs of a speech he made at Arnprior, Ont., yesterday in which he said the question of adequate reinforcements for overseas units must be answered promptly.

"'Two methods of solution are open, either of which we might take,' he quoted.

"'One is to continue the voluntary system for services overseas. The other is to resort to compulsion'."

Interruptions

"Absolutely, absolutely" said one shouting veteran, as the chairman, J. B. Halpenny, called for order.

Gen. McNaughton said there had been honest differences of opinion as to the respective merits of the two systems, and members of the audience called: "Take the right one."

The minister said he was convinced the best hope lay in the "maintenance of our long traditions of voluntary service."

"Not a bit," "political expediency," were among the shouted comments on this remark.

"What about the poor fellows over there four years?" asked one interrupter.

Gen. McNaughton said figures of reinforcements now available showed Canada could count on some short period yet before there was danger of the situation becoming acute.

"How long! how long!" interruptors called.

The minister continued that he was confident that now the need is known "our men and women will come forward to serve."

"The women will," one veteran called.

Gen. McNaughton said he hoped the public of Canada would give the men overseas every support and encouragement.

"Will you?" several men shouted.

"What about Mackenzie King?—Get the Boy Scouts."

"I earnestly plead with you—you who are veterans in past wars who know—to accept the assurance that I give that there is no other way to correct this situation to be in time to be of use," said Gen. McNaughton.

"No! No!" came the reply from interrupters.

Interfering

The minister discussed the civilian jobs undertaken by some of the men in the home defence army. He did not think such work, while of national importance, should be done by soldiers to the prejudice of their proceeding overseas.

"I find that many of these men have been able to obtain remuneration on a scale which is quite fantastic and I do not wonder that those who seek their personal advantage and who have their chance to make large sums in cash would fail to come forward to volunteer for service overseas," he continued.

Cheers came when he said he had issued instructions that no more men are to be supplied for civilian jobs and that any men now out who are fit for military duty are to be recalled as soon as possible.

"What will Mackenzie King think of that?" a veteran called.

The interests of the men overseas would be protected in respect to jobs.

Gen. McNaughton closed his address by quoting a message he had sent to all ranks of the Canadian Army overseas, stating it was his concern to "see that you will have the support you need; and we will maintain our just part in the great Allied effort to bring the enemy to final defeat."

The minister then faced questions.

The first was whether the voluntary service policy he set forth was popular in the eight English-speaking provinces.

Not Influenced

"I have never been one who rested the decision on great matters on the question of popularity," Gen. McNaughton replied.

"Hear, hear," the audience cried.

In the fall of 1939 he had resigned himself to not seeing service in the field, Gen. McNaughton said. But he had been called to duty.

He recalled that after the First Great War he had been told by Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, Canadian Corps Commander, to study the basis of forces of the future. Since that time he had never ceased to study these problems.

He had seen what voluntary effort could do and if it had not been for voluntary effort there would not have been an army worthy of the name. He thought of the years when everything that was done to maintain any army was condemned and "we were driven underground so we did not know what to do to have something to oppose an enemy."

He said he knew what a voluntary effort could do. Popularity had nothing to do with his attitude; his decision rested on the merit of the case. The organization of the army had been based on advice he gave the government in 1939.

The meeting applauded loudly when the minister made his vigorous replies, and continued to assure the audience that he did not object to the inquiries.

The meeting over, a long line of veterans, many of them men who had served with him, waited to shake hands with the minister.

"The best residential property in Peterborough was Norman Hatton's rating of the family estate, fronting Charlotte street west, the expropriation of which by Wartime Housing Limited in 1942 was involved in an Exchequer Court action before Mr. Justice J. Honorable Mr. Justice Thorson is president of the Exchequer Court of Canada.

Determination of the value of 27.3 acres expropriated by Wartime Housing Limited, a Crown company, in 1942 has been referred to the court. The Crown, technically as plaintiff, is represented by W. F. Huycke, K.C., and the members of the Hatton family, as defendants, are represented by T. J. Carley, K.C. It is understood that the Crown alleges they offered $23,000 for the property on which the group of temporary houses have been built, and that the owners rejected that amount.

The defendants are the children of the late Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hatton; three sons, Walford M., Norman C., and David Hatton; two daughters, Miss Margery C. Hatton, and Mrs. Nora C. Lawrie; and one daughter-in-law, Mrs. Dorothy Garden Hatton, widow of Edwin Robert Hatton, who died in December, 1933.

The Hatton estate was originally owned by James Campbell, his grandfather, Norman C. Hatton testified as first witness examined by Mr. Carley. The estate was known as "Walkerfield" and the family residence, "Walkerfield House." Mr. Campbell died in 1886, bequeathing the entire property to his daughter, Ella Margaret Campbell, wife of George W. Hatton, K.C. She died in October 1921 without a will.

Mr. Hatton said his mother had sold in 1913 an easterly ten acres of the estate, bounded by Charlotte street, Monaghan Road, Weller street and Albertus avenue for $25,000. That part is now entirely built up, but when expropriated in August 1942 there were two or three lots unoccupied.

Houses erected in that area cost from $6,000 to $8,000. Some exceeded $10,000, Mr. Hatton said.

Values of the property prior to 1942 were indicated by the following sales from the estate on Weller street: D. V. Ketcheson, two lots, each of 50 feet frontage; 1934; paid $900 for both. Herbert I. Bradburn, two lots in 1937; $800 or $850 for both. H. L. Garner, one lot, 1940; $550. John Madden, one lot, 1938; $500. John Cameron, $500 a lot for two lots. Cecil Wolff, $500 for one lot. Dr. Dobson, three lots, $1,100. J. D. Carlisle, 125 feet frontage, $1,600. John Sinclair, $500.

Henry T. Hickey in 1930 paid $900 for a lot on Gilmour street extended, 75 feet frontage, for $900.

Now In City

When the ten acre parcel was sold in 1913 for $25,000, the western boundary of the city was Monaghan Road. Since then that section has been attached to the city.

The present "Walkerfield House" was built in 1905, Mr. Hatton said. It consists of eleven rooms and attic and was expropriated in good repair.

"It was insured for $15,000, but I thought it was undervalued," witness said. "The Wartime houses were built up to 60 feet from the front verandah, and there were noisy parties and barking dogs. I don't think any one would want to buy it now as a residential property because it was in close proximity to the Wartime houses. If any one had offered us $10,000 for it since expropriation we would have jumped at it."

Offered $100,000.

Mr. Hatton stated that in 1928 the family was offered $100,000 for the whole estate. Mr. Huycke objected to that evidence, but His Lordship accepted it subject to the objection.

Mr. Hatton said the offer, as he understood it, was made by a man named Meharry, whose first name he thought was William. It was said at that time Meharry had become a millionaire, and was engaged in the realty business in New York, but thought of coming back to Peterborough.

"The offer was not acceptable to my father."

In the ten acres at Charlotte and Monaghan Road sold to the Hamilton Realty Company there were 64 lots. On that basis he estimated the expropriated land as providing 160 to 164 lots of 50 feet frontage. Witness said, "We had just decided to ask $700 to $750 for them and had several inquiries just before Wartime Housing came along.

Mr. Hatton said he had not considered the value of the property on the basis of that potential division into lots. Instead, he would have preferred sale at $3,000 an acre. That would provide six lots to the acre. The area expropriated was 27.3 acres. At a value of $3,000 an acre the total was computed at $81,000.

Poorer Property.

Witness recalled that ten acres sold in 1913 for $25,000 was not so good a property as the land west of Walkerfield House, now occupied by Wartime houses.

Mr. Hatton said the property value of Walkerfield was greatly depreciated by the Wartime houses, built on cedar posts, no cellar, no shed, some of them a storey and a half, altogether a cheap type of house that "frightened away" the people interested in desirable residential sites.

Lawyers Felicitate Magistrate Langley

Congratulations to Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., upon his having completed thirty years on the bench in Peterborough County formed a pleasant interlude in police court proceedings Monday.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., introduced the subject by remarking that he had a very important matter to bring to the attention of the court. Then he proceeded to felicitate Magistrate Langley upon his long and successful service and to thank him for the careful attention he had always devoted to the many matters that had come before him during the past three decades.

T. J. Carley, K.C. and W. J. Arthur Fair, president of the Peterborough Law Association, also extended their congratulations in neat speeches.

Visibly taken by surprise, Magistrate Langley expressed his deep thanks for the congratulations that had been voiced by members of the bar and also for the consideration and co-operation that had been extended to him by counsel during his 30 years' occupancy of the bench.

ly could be difficult to defend in event the Japanese were in position to react strongly. That is the reason that during the summer of 1942 a Japanese attack on Russia was constantly in the forefront of possible war developments. Tokyo was winning then and could afford to dream of new conquests.

The Russians are known to have kept substantial forces of troops in Siberia throughout the war. In turn they tied up at least comparable Japanese forces. The Japanese are reported to have used the Russian front as a breaking-in ground for new troops as well as a station for some of their best units. The Russians probably have followed the same policy.

If Allied unity is carried forward after peace, there is no question that Russia would have a powerful voice in the Pacific even without fighting, but a record of having helped to accomplish the victory would add authority that Moscow can hardly afford to pass.

War Loan Nears

Sixth Victory Loan totals by the end of the week if we are going to make this loan the largest in Canada's history. Purchases in the final four days of the campaign must total $430,000,000 to reach last loan's total and of this $203,000,000 must come from individuals."

Out of a quota of $8,500,000 Canadian Pacific Railway employees numbering 67,645 had subscribed $8,338,100, according to the latest figures from C.P.R. officials. Thus, with about 7,000 employees yet to subscribe, less than $200,000 remain for the company's Seventh Loan to go over the top.

The armed forces were within sight of the $47,853,200 they raised in the sixth campaign and were expected to exceed that mark to-day All three services over-subscribed their quotas last week.

The army still was in the lead with $24,238,800 for 115 per cent. The navy had $5,375,850 for 111 and the R.C.A.F. reported approximately $16,500,000 for 110 per cent.

The latest list of large subscriptions included: Prudential Insurance Co. of America, through its Montreal office, $15,000,000; N. M. Paterson and Co. Ltd., Fort William, $625,000.

Japs Wipe Out 2 Villages Kill Javanese

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7 — (AP). — Emulating the Germans at Lidice, Japanese have wiped out at least two villages of the Netherlands East Indies with virtually their entire populations, headquarters of Netherlands forces in the Far East announced today.

A village near Medan, on Sumatra, was soaked with kerosene and petrol and burned to the ground. Any inhabitants who tried to escape were shot with machine guns. A village on Java was set afire by incendiary bombs, and machine guns also were turned on those trying to flee.

Other atrocities were described in a document, "Japanese atrocities in occupied Netherlands Indies."

Some people were burned alive; some were forced to drink soapy water until they were bloated, and then soldiers jumped on their stomachs until the water spouted from their mouths. Prisoners of war were suspended by their feet and their heads were bumped on the ground. Others were forced to stand with their heads thrown back and their eyes opened to the blazing sun.

Javanese women who resisted the advances of Japanese soldiers, the document related, were bayonetted through the breasts.

"The brutality practised by the enemy . . . has been so appalling this headquarters is making public a few of the instances but by no means the most severe," the document said.

The names of the destroyed villages were not published but the document said the one on Sumatra was wiped out because it was the home of a newspaper writer who criticized the Japanese in an article.

The Java village refused to give up its rice crop after two harvests had been seized. The citizens were so enraged they killed a policeman sent to arrest a man accused of being the ringleader of the "opposition."

Home to the soldier meant "something tangible, invisible, and as far as they can make it so, indestructible. It means a spirit—it means a way of life, the way of life their pioneer ancestors toiled for and established . . . To preserve it, our boys have gone to war. Japs Unable To Check U.S. Advance

Suicidal Attacks Fail To Dent American Lines

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Nov. 7— (AP). — American veteran troops, already four miles south of Carigara Bay, continued an unchecked advance today through Japanese mountain defences on the twisting highway toward Ormoc—16 miles distant—and the finale of the Leyte Island campaign.

Well-equipped Japanese reinforcements were somewhere along the shell-raked highway through Ormoc valley, waiting perhaps to launch a final attack which is expected to produce some of the campaign's fiercest battling.

While these fresh troops waited, infantrymen of the original Japanese garrison swarmed from strong hill positions in three suicide charges against the American perimeter four miles from the coast. All were repulsed bloodily, without denting the American lines.

The southern end of the Ormoc traps presumably also was closing tighter, although a communique made no mention of troops last reported some 12 miles south of the port.

Six enemy warships were caught near Manila and sunk or damaged Sunday (Philippines time) by aircraft of the U.S. 3rd Fleet, it was announced from Pearl Harbor.

The raid raised to at least 66 the total of enemy warships sunk or damaged since Gen. MacArthur landed October 20 in the Central Philippines.

The carrier planes sank a subchaser, probably sank a heavy cruiser, damaged a light cruiser and three destroyers and wiped out nearly 200 enemy aircraft in day and night attacks.

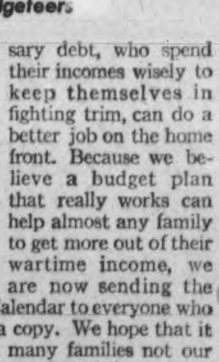
HELP KEEP THE HOME FRONT STRONG!

BUDGET YOUR SPENDING FOR VICTORY

Here's a simple budget method to help you—Send for free copy and join the Budgeteers.



"I WILL do my part to keep the home front strong!" Surely everyone of us should live up to that simple pledge until full Victory is ours. Part of that pledge consists in keeping our personal finances sound—in planning our spending so that expenses don't get out of line with income.

Your income must do more now

Even before war brought new claims on your earnings, you probably found a budget could often be very useful. Now, with war savings, higher taxes, contributions and all your regular living expenses to come out of your pay cheque, wouldn't a budget be even more helpful?

A new way to budget

Not long ago Household Finance published the Budget Calendar as a service to customers. This is a brand new way of making a family budget. It gives no fixed spending pattern, no rules that you spend so much for this item and so much for that. On the contrary it asks you to take the expenses you now have and shows you how to go about meeting them out of the money you have to spend. Isn't that a simpler, more practical way to plan a budget?

Get more out of your income

Families who stay out of unnecessary debt, who spend their incomes wisely to keep themselves in fighting trim, can do a better job on the home front. Because we believe a budget plan that really works can help almost any family to get more out of their wartime income, we are now sending the Budget Calendar to everyone who requests a copy. We hope that it will help many families not our customers to plan their spending to better advantage.

What the Budgeteers receive

All who use the Budget Calendar seriously are invited to join the Budgeteers. Budgeteers receive a new booklet or letter from time to time to encourage them in their efforts. They may also ask for individual help with their problems at any time. All Budgeteers who complete a full year of budgeting receive special recognition.

Household Finance is Canada's largest and oldest Small Loans company. We offer the Budget Calendar to families everywhere in the hope that it will encourage more of them to budget their wartime spending. We will not take advantage of your request to send you a loan solicitation of any kind. Won't you ask for the Calendar and see if it doesn't help you budget your spending for Victory?

Two Plead Guilty Robbing Schools

COBOURG, Nov. 7 — (ENS). — Frank Kane of 484 Church street, Toronto, and James Webster, 43 Ligner street, Toronto, pleaded guilty in police court Monday, to three theft charges and were remanded until next Monday for sentence. They were charged with breaking into the schoolhouse of School Section No. 1 of Hamilton township and with breaking into the schoolhouse of S.S. No. 1, Haldimand township. They were also charged with breaking and entering the store of R. Lawless of Grafton. All offenses took place on October 29.

Provincial Constable Alex McLeod of Cobourg testified that on October 29 he received a phone call to go to Lawless Store where he found that the proprietor had captured two youths in the store. Entrance had been made around 7 p.m. by going up a ladder and breaking a window. Noise of the breaking glass attracted the attention of Don Lawless who saw them climb in the window. Constabel MacLeod said that he found six fountain pens and six automatic pencils on Kane. The youths admitted stealing $12.75 worth of war saving stamps from the Hamilton School and $13.50 worth of stamps from the Haldimand Township School. In each case they broke a window to gain entrance.

The youths told police that they were on their way to Montreal and had broken into the store at Grafton to get something to eat. A quantity of cigarettes and some cookies comprised the loot from the store. The fountain pens and pencils along with the war saving stamps were stolen from the schools.

Oshawa Man Jailed On Theft Charges

According to police, Beatrice Foulash, of Bowmanville, was in a cafe there on Sunday afternoon and left her purse containing $11 in a telephone booth. Tobruk, Greece, Crete Targets For FO. J. P. Withers In 3 Years

One of the heroic young airmen who wrote aerial history in the skies high above Rommel's supplies lines across the Mediterranean Sea, above Crete and Greece and sandy deserts in Africa, Flying Officer James P. Withers, son of J. D. Withers, 547 Douglas avenue, has returned home after completing his tour of operations overseas, which in the last three years has led him half-way around the world. He has been with the Royal Canadian Air Force since September, 1940, and attached to the Royal Air Force overseas since November, 1941.

The young flier has been through no less than five plane crashes during his period of service, but thanks to fate, and the somewhat dubious charms of a miniature skull-and-cross-bones which he carried for some time, never has he been injured beyond a few bruises and shake-ups. Once, when a motor in the plane failed while on operations at the far side of Crete, he brought the plane back to his base in Africa with only one motor, landed it in the dark, and escaped when the plane burst into flames. Again, luck was with him when a plane crashed under him just after taking off from a runway on Gibraltar, but not even a scratch to him was the result. Incidentally, this airman frankly suspects sabotage to the aircraft's controls, caused the Gibraltar crack-up.

FO. Withers, serving at first with a squadron of Bristol Beauforts, torpedo bombers, took part in the air battles in the Middle East, which helped to spell finis to Rommel's attempts at victory in Africa. Supply lines across the Mediterranean took pounding after pounding from torpedo planes, and once, he was in a raid that attacked a Nazi tanker lying off Tobruk. The ship blew up, and sank before the raiders left. Liberators had already given the ship a blasting during the night, FO. Withers hurried to add, and the torpedo planes came out in daylight, "to finish the job."

At El Alamein

He was stationed in Cairo at the time of El Alamein, when Cairo residents were making preparations to flee the capital, because of the belief it would be captured soon by the Nazis. The story of El Alamein is history now, how brilliant military strategy and powerful naval and air support smashed the "Desert Fox's" dreams of conquest, and became the turning point of the entire war. Here then, is an airman who helped write that epic story!

Across blazing deserts, building landing fields as new advances were made, he followed and supported the drive across the rim of Africa until Tripoli was captured. From Tripoli, he went to Tobruk, where he flew with an Australian squadron, and from Tobruk, to Bengasi. After his work at Bengasi had been finished, he began a tour of instructional duty at Cairo, which culminated in his eventual return to England .... and home!

Flying Officer Wither's story is interminably tangled with those places, Cairo, Tobruk, Bengasi, Algiers, Malta and countless others. To most people just names on a map; to him synonyms for tough going, hard fighting, and keep fighting! He was stationed at Malta for a short time, during the days when the blitz from Italian and German planes was ceaseless. High praise for the Maltese people comes from this pilot, and he described them, living in caves by day and night, and lining up each day for their ration of one slice of bread.

According to FO. Withers, torpedo bombing is a thrilling chore, and not without its dangers. No one plane takes the credit for a sinking, he said, because several planes will fly in, each release their torpedoes, and thus share in the honors. He explained that the bombers swoop in on a ship from the side, flying at deck level. Then a hop up to 80 feet is in store, and the important thing about loosing the torps, he said, is to fly at a level, so that the torpedoes will take a straight run.

Difficulties met the pilots of these air warriors, both coming, going, and at the target.

"Jerry would send fighters to get us on our way to the target, the ship would send up a barrage of flak at us, and then more German fighters would attack us on our return flight," he said.

Torpedo Bombing

He took a special course in torpedo bombing at a British school in Cairo, and has spent a great deal of time flying these aircraft. Chiefly used for reconnaissance in daylight, Baltimore warplanes were flown by him for some time, while he was stationed at Tobruk. Operations from this African base consisted for a large part over the Dodecanese Islands, Crete, and Greece. More action was in the books when he was stationed at Bengasi though, and flying a Wellington bomber, he has taken part in raids over Athens, airdromes around the Grecian capital, and landing barges and airdromes over the island of Liros, in the Aegean Sea.

Mine-laying, anti-submarine work, reconnaissance, night bombing, night torpedoing....and incidentally, most of his bombing work was carried out at night....are just a few of the jobs he has participated in, during his stay overseas. He told of an "amusing incident," which happened while his plane was above fighter-plane airdromes in Greece, at night. He was in the rear of the plane, near an open hatch in the bottom of the plane, from which beer-bottles with razor blades in the neck were being thrown. The purpose of this is to confuse ground forces shooting flak, and the bottles make a loud whistle during their descent. The tail-gunner reported a Nazi night-fighter to be approaching, and the aircraft immediately went into evasive action. Without his inter-plane communications set on, FO. Withers did not hear the report, and the twisting plane sent him sprawling.... and almost out of the open hatch in the plane into space!

The only thing to mar his homecoming, was that while stationed in the Western desert, he received word of his mother's death. He said that he is glad he enlisted when he did, saw the action he has been through, and would be glad to do it all over again, if necessary. However, now at home on a thirty-day leave, his new duties at the end of the leave will consist of work in Canada, and he hopes to be stationed near Peterborough. He will probably do instructional work. After leaving Collegiate, where he received his junior matriculation and while waiting to become old enough to enlist, FO. Withers was employed for a short time, at the C.G.E.

He received his wings at Paulson, Man., in October, 1941, and was commissioned in England.

HASTEN THE DAY

INVEST IN VICTORY

Hang out the bunting... unfurl the flags... let joy be unconfined... that sentiment is unfortunately uppermost in the minds of too many of us... Can we, in the smug comfort of our Canadian homes, plan to celebrate a peace not yet won? ... VICTORY IS IN SIGHT of that there is little doubt ... our leaders have said so and they are not the kind to raise false hopes ... BUT ... in every case they have added words of caution ... words which we will do well to heed "much bitter fighting must still be done before the kind of peace the world is hoping for can be assured."

Let us then put first things first, let us INVEST IN VICTORY ... let us insure a complete victory ... the sacrifices of our fighting forces demand it ... we owe them our support, without slackening, right to the victorious end ... postpone the celebration if need be but continue an uninterrupted flow of the tools of war by pledging your every spare dollar to Canada's Seventh Victory Loan.

Your dollars loaned to Canada will HASTEN THE RETURN OF OUR WAR-WEARY FIGHTING FORCE ... Then and then only can we really celebrate.

Explanations In Spain

The news from Spain at present is confusing in detail, but the purpose of it is plain enough: Spain wants to be accepted by the Allies as a friendly neutral. It is clear that the Fascist jig is up, and Spain would like to represent Franco's regime as something more respectable than Fascism. How this is to be done is not plain, for Spain signed the Anti-Comintern Pact with Germany and Italy, in the days when the Axis was powerful, and Russia has made it clear that the Franco government must go if there is to be peace in Europe. If Britain and the U.S. show themselves too lenient toward Spain now, they must expect to quarrel with Russia about it.

• • •

Spain obviously thinks that she is worth a quarrel. Recently the Spanish national weekly El Espanol, which reflects the views of the Franco government faithfully, asserted that the Spanish government should have a voice in the discussions about postwar Europe which are going on now, and should also have an important place at the Peace Table. Spain, the paper insists, has been a strictly neutral nation, and should be given the opportunity to bring its experience and wide knowledge to the aid of European nations. There has been no official comment on this claim, but the British Parliament has already expressed its opinion that no neutral countries should have places at the peace conferences, or should help in framing the peace. Lord Vansittart has spoken of the Spanish claim as "altogether fantastic", and there is a large body of opinion which agrees with him. But it must not be forgotten that the Prime Minister, Winston Churchill, spoke of Spain in very friendly terms not long ago, and made specific reference to favours which Spain had done the Allies during the war in the Mediterranean.

• • •

But British and American opinion are not solely concerned in this matter. France will have much to say about it, and France is far from friendly to Spain at present; the French cannot forget that Spain was hand-in-glove with Germany and Italy when the Axis brought about the defeat of the Republic. France is also the chief place of concentration for Spanish Loyalists, who are naturally anxious to push any cause which may lead to a fall of the Falangists. Whatever the U.S. and Britain may think must be balanced against the strong anti-Franco feeling in Russia and France.

The time draws near when it will be necessary for the United Nations to express themselves on the Spanish question. In a situation which is already complex, it will be another knotty and contentious problem, packed with possibilities for discord. Meanwhile Franco puts the best possible face on his government, as in an interview which he gave to an American newspaperman last Friday, when he spoke thus:

> "I invite all Americans to come and see for themselves with their own eyes and contemplate what goes on in our country. They will appreciate, especially, our insistence of maintaining order without which progress is impossible.
> "Due to certain peculiarities of the Spanish temperament, political institutions that produce excellent results in other countries lead here to the exact contrary. Forms of government that appear moderate even when directed by men of moderation, here in Spain only serve to unleash acts of violence that immediately destroy these very same men and institutions. Hence the necessity for reinforcing the authority of the Government".

It will take all the forbearance and mutual trust that the United Nations can muster to decide the Spanish problem without violent and open disagreement.

In response to an appeal for comforts for German prisoners of war, an English vicar sent a tin of rat-poison. Here is one man who can take the adjuration to love his enemies or leave it alone.

Mr. Walters On Canadian Unity

There is so much foolish talk about Canadian disunity these days, and so much discreditable effort to exaggerate that disunity that it is refreshing indeed to discover a responsible Canadian who believes that Canada is essentially united, and who is not fraid to say so in good clear terms. Mr. Chester Walters is the Deputy Provincial Treasurer and Controller of Finances of Ontario; yesterday he spoke at the annual dinner of the Public Accountants of the Province of Quebec. Now this might have been a frosty affair, at which Mr. Walters made a few remarks of interest to accountants, and at which the Quebec accountants treated him as just another unsympathetic Englishman from Ontario; but it was not so. Mr. Walters talked about Canada, and he moved his audience to the greatest enthusiasm. Mr. Walters proved again what every sensible Canadian has known for years: go to Quebec in a friendly mood and the people of that Province will come more than half-way to meet you.

No one who examines the report of Mr. Walters' speech can say that he was unduly careful of Quebec sensibilities. He talked about the building of Canada, and he told the story without any artistic shading which might have flattered the convictions of his hosts. But he spoke with an obvious enthusiasm for Canada, and an affection for Canada, which went straight to the hearts of his hearers, and won them.

> "For three hundred years Canada's story has been that of the slow conquest of the wilds. Today she is still a pioneer, but a pioneer in the overthrowing of a more dangerous barbarism, in driving a path through a more tangled wilderness, the wilderness of human fears and human perversities. It is a great task—I cannot imagine a greater. She has behind her a famous tradition, to the making of which Britain and France have given of their best. If she brings to the task that ancient, proud and indomitable spirit, then her success is as certain as the rising of the sun".

We may question whether the creation of a tradition in which Britain and France share has yet been completed. But it never will be completed, and it will never urge us on toward great achievements as a nation unless we believe in it and work as though it were already a fact. That is the nub of Mr. Walters' speech, and we cannot ponder the point too long or too deeply.

Death Of Jack Miner

Jack Miner of Kingsville was one of the best-known naturalists in the world; his scholarship may not have been wide, but it was deep; it was often said that he knew more about geese than any man living, and that there was nothing he could not do with them. In his youth he was a hunter, but his interest in wild life became so great that he lost his desire to kill and devoted more and more of his time to study. He had a small plant where he manufactured drainage tiles, and he found that wild geese liked to settle on the excavations from which he had taken his clay; he began a systematic flooding of these excavations, and thus his first bird sanctuary was founded.

Limited observation of the wild geese did not satisfy him, and he devised his own method of studying their migrations. He began tagging geese with his own distinctive emblem, and found out a great deal about their regularity of migration, their wisdom in estimating the time and conditions of their flights, and their fondness for bird sanctuaries. Miner continued this work independently for many years, but in time his books spread the fame of his work, and he secured government aid in extending and maintaining his bird reservations. A hospital for the treatment of sick and wounded birds was one of the curiosities of his establishment. During his later years Jack Miner welcomed birds from every part of the Western Hemisphere to his sanctuaries, all of them tagged, and all of them eager to visit the man and the place which they knew so well.

Jack Miner was particularly enthusiastic about the Canada goose (Branta canadensis), a bird of magnificent proportions and colour, easily the king of the black goose family; the great black geese dropped in thousands at Kingsville every spring and autumn, and it is no exaggeration to say that they stopped there to visit Jack Miner.

They will miss him next autumn, but they will be welcomed at Kingsville and at sanctuaries spread everywhere across this Dominion. Jack Miner made love and respect for the wild birds a common, rather than an exceptional, thing in Canada. That is a great achievement for one man's lifetime.

Education For Everybody

(The first of two special articles for Education Week)

(By HELEN R. McGREGOR)

IN our generation the problem of education is colossal. And no wonder. There have been schools in all civilized countries since civilization began. That is to say, there have been schools for at least five thousand years previous to 1944 A.D. During all that stretch of time the task of the schools was to train a comparative few: scribes and priests in the first place; later teachers, preachers, officials, and gentlemen; never at any time more than a small fraction of any population. Then a mere hundred years ago, with the growth of the democratic idea, the state began to provide schools and free elementary education for everybody. Since 1919 the democratic countries have demanded that everybody go to school and remain there until he is sixteen or thereabouts. The past century (from 1841 in Ontario) has shown much progress made in the field of public school education. But a school-leaving age of sixteen means that most boys and girls will go to High School for two or even three years. The old education for the few, prevailing in our high schools in 1919, had been evolved from centuries of trial and experiment. Is it surprising that in twenty-five years we have not quite worked out the new education for everybody?

◇ ◇ ◇

WHAT then has happened in the high schools since they too have been faced with the task of educating everybody, when a school of two hundred found itself within a decade increased to a thousand students? Well, a good many educationists threw in their hands, and have lived the twenty-five years in a state of chronic despair. The rest, generally speaking, divided into two warring factions which between them have made education not unlike a gross two-headed monster—facing in two opposite directions, with each of its mouths jabbering to be heard above the other. The one voice says that the right way is to provide a great variety of courses and subjects, the student to choose his course according to the job he proposes to do as an adult. Inevitably this opinion has been applauded by the great number who thinks that the aim of education should be to train a boy to make a living. Most of our ancestors came to the new world to make a better living. In the hurly-burly of expanding frontiers uneducated men made fortunes. To many, they are the heroes of this continent. To such, material success is the aim of life, and hence, of schooling. And so, the one voice repeats, in a modern, complex and scientific world what could be a better education than specialized training, for a specific job, suited to the individual's abilities—which are of course to be scientificially assessed?

◇ ◇ ◇

WHEN the other voice argues that, despite increasing numbers, what every man needs is a liberal education to fit him for the responsibilities of a free man, and that the old education not only helps a boy to make a living, but also helps him to live a god life, these statements are saluted with the literary equivalent of 'Oh yeah.' It is very difficult to talk about the good life to anyone who regards himself as hard-headed. So the second voice fell silent and observed for a few years, then came back with a few hard questions:

◇ ◇ ◇

HOW is an ordinary, average-sized community to pay for all your subjects and courses? The larger communities groan under the expense of providing some of them; the smaller ones are filled with envy and discontent. Is this democracy? Forgetting the cost of a course, if you guide three hundred students into a course, say in printing, in 1944, how are you going to know (all high school courses now covering four years) that there will be three hundred new jobs in this line in 1948? Unemployment insurance is a recognition of the fact that in your modern, complex world tens of thousands of workers have to be frequently and abruptly re-allocated and retrained. And if at the end of four years the specific job does not await, what is going to be the effect upon the student? Frustration and bitterness: take the case of the girl who at the end of four years' training for office work spent her days, as she herself said, turning a mimeograph. Students of the second year interviewed said that it took them ten minutes to an hour to learn a vacation job that paid them forty-one to sixty cents an hour, that is, put them in the $1,000 to $1,500 income tax group. Upon what scientific basis would you organize your years' schooling for those who will fill jobs like these (of which there are thousands in modern industry) that require little or no training? To be exact, what specialized training do you advocate for future garbage-collectors? It has been customary for our generation to think of drawing men for this and other so-called lowly occupations from the uneducated class. If everybody goes to high school, future garbage-collectors will be High School graduates. And why not? Garbage-collecting is important. Without it our city's proud twentieth-century civilization would soon be buried under its own rubbish. Surely you would not say that some of four fellow-citizens are to be denied an education in order that they may be available for certain jobs necessary to our civilization—jobs dignified by their necessity?

◇ ◇ ◇

EDUCATION, as a great English educationist has said, is a maid-of-of-all-work, and has to set her hand to as many duties as a general servant. Certainly to help boys and girls towards earning a living is an important duty of education. But it is not her whole duty, nor yet her first duty.

Male Dress Designers

Angry British women, threatening hostile demonstrations if they are not given better foundation garments, base much of their complaint on the fact that the panel which decides on the permissible designs of feminine clothing is made up entirely of men. This is not a legitimate criticism. Perhaps the women have reason to rail against the corsets—apparently there still are such things—that are on the wartime market; but the fault does not lie with the sex of the style dictators.

Apparently the wrong men are on the board, but there is no assurance that women could do better. As a matter of fact, almost every outstanding designer of women's clothing has been of the male persuasion. Many of them masquerade under alluring feminine names, but they are actually men. It is stretching a point to suggest that women could successfully take their places.

Taxes From Incomes Over $10,000

(EDMONTON JOURNAL)

COMMENT was made in these columns about a month ago on some figures that had just been released by the department of national revenue. They showed that in 1940 there were 11,816 individual Canadians who paid taxes on incomes above $10,000, which totalled $240,822,309. The taxation on this was $38,643,690. But three years later, according to the information furnished by the department, there were only 8,038 of them, who received $164,190,000 and were taxed $51,134,479.

The last figure was surprisingly small, in view of the level to which the rates were raised by the budget speech of 1942, and it was assumed by a Journal reader that there must have been a mistake somewhere. He made an enquiry and was informed by an Ottawa official that the amount was that collected during the fiscal year 1942-3 and that it mainly represented the taxes on 1941 calendar year income, though also to quite a large extent on what was received in 1940. It was explained that there is always a considerable lag in the assessment of large incomes. The 1941 rates, the official noted, were generally only about half what they are now. Accordingly much more than $51,134,489 would be obtained at present from incomes totalling $164,190,000. The rates on 1940 calendar year incomes were, it was further pointed out, not more than 20 per cent. higher than the prewar level.

But, when all this is taken into consideration, there was obviously much significance in the falling off in the number of persons with incomes over $10,000 and in the total amounts on which they were taxed, for in the two years there surely would not have been much difference in the lag to which the official referred. That falling off was what was especially noted in our article. It was regarded as an indication that, with heavier taxation imposed, there was less incentive to seek to obtain large incomes and that as a result the federal treasury was securing smaller sums from them, in spite of the raising of the rates. If this is borne out by figures covering the fiscal years 1943-4 and 1944-5, there will be no doubt about the correctness of the conclusion reached in the article that the taxation of large incomes "can yield little more, if any, of the money required to meet public expenditures than at present", and that "as wealth is more widely distributed, so must be the taxes that are imposed".

'Rat Poison'

(THE OTTAWA JOURNAL)

OF course the English clergyman who appealed to the public to supply comforts for German prisoners is a well-meaning man. The other English clergyman who answered with some rat poison has a sense of humour which perhaps he over-indulged, seeing that he is a clergyman. Nevertheless, we imagine that most people will be inclined to find excuse for his humour in view of the horrible extent of German brutality and crime throughout Europe, which suggests not merely the Nazi extremism but something vile in the national temperament. To try to please and pamper any of such a people is hardly an idea that can recommend itself to any person of common sense.

The idea is being tried in the United States, and doesn't seem to work very well.

German prisoners in the United States are being held under U.S. Army regulations, and with U.S. officers in command. The regulations are liberal beyond the requirements of the Geneva International Convention for treatment of prisoners of war. The liberality assuredly does not pan out well, The Nazis in the prison camps are not grateful; and control of the camps is not easy because of the fanatism of the non-commissioned officers, mostly picked Nazis; and ignorance of the German language by the guards.

An article in the Atlantic Monthly for November tells of a grim story of what is doing with German prisoners of war held in the United States. There are 200,000 of them. These are interned in some 99 camps in various localities. They are well housed, well fed, well treated. How do they respond? Mostly, says the Atlantic article, very vilely. "These men", says the article, "are unlike any other prisoners of war we have ever held." And "the majority endure captivity with a high contempt for their captors." They evidently consider the good treatment they get as a sign of softness and weakness. That they are largely arrogant and insolent is not the worst of the condition by far. In many of the camps the Hitler bigots impose a terrorism on their less extreme Nazi comrades. In many camps, says the Atlantic article, a secret (German) police functions, usually under the direction of a prisoner who has ties with the Gestapo.

"Prisoners themselves are so firmly under the thumbs of these fanatics and so cowed by past experiences that they seldom reveal the existence of the terror until secret disciplinary punishments inflicted upon them by the Nazi noncoms become intolerable".

In one camp, thirty masked prisoners were caught by the guards maltreating some other non-Nazi prisoners. Were they punished? Well—they were "segregated", which wouldn't hurt them much. According to the Atlantic article, there have been a number of cases of actual murder in the camps, and other cases "dead from suicide". To get any evidence of Nazi brutality in the camps is almost impossible, because the decent element among the prisoners are afraid to make complaints or give any information.

The good treatment received by the prisoners is accepted without surprise. "It is only natural", says the Atlantic article, "that the 'hero race' should be waited upon by flabby Americans".

The German prisoners in the United States, as already said, are held under U.S. Army regulations. These provide for a preliminary hearing to elicit information regarding each prisoner, his name, origin, rank and so on. It is amazing to hear from the Atlantic that "Right at the beginning the German non-coms make their presence felt. They intervene, and whenever they can—which is often—they assume full control of the proceedings. The cooperation of prisoners, it becomes clear at once, is not in response to their American examiners, but at the order of their own non-commissioned officers".

An American corporal who served eight months at one of the prison camps says in a letter to the New York Herald-Tribune:

"It is the Feldwebel (sergeant), not the commissioned officer, who commands the men's respect. In this group (of non-coms) there is the greatest percentage of Nazis. I should say that 50 per cent. of the German non-coms definitely support Hitler and his government. They are really a police force in the camp, since all activity within the barbed wire is directed by them. The effect of their rule is a little Germany, where persecution of anti-Nazis is thorough and violent".

Here is a further excerpt from the Atlantic article:

"German non-coms go to extraordinary lengths in our prison compounds in enforcing their Nazi point of view. Assuming a power and authority without legitimate basis, they bar attendance of their groups at educational or other movies provided for the men's recreation by camp officials. They even operate as censors over the prisoners' reading. In a certain Mid-Western camp the American authorities prepared a booklet on American history, past and present, for distribution within the stockade. The plan was blocked by the German sergeant. He declared that the book was untrue and would have to be censored since it gave a distorted view of the real history of this country—which he had studied in Germany! Camp officials, timidly interpreting the Geneva Convention's strictures against the compulsory indoctrination of prisoners, bowed to this veto of a booklet that had been prepared with careful attention to the intent of the Convention".

The Geneva International Convention for the treatment of prisoners of war, recognized by all the Allied Nations, provides for fair treatment of prisoners, but this does not necessitate mollycoddling. The Atlantic has a passing reference to this:

"The British gets results under that identical Convention. In Britain, German prisoners are put all on one plane, regardless of rank, spokesmen and leaders are picked from carefully-selected anti-Nazi prisoners; German non-coms have no authority whatever; terrorists are dealt with summarily; and Polish guards ensure a minimum of quibbling by 'Geneva Convention lawyers' among the prisoners. England no longer plays with her deadly foes".

In view of the facts regarding the effects of liberal treatment of German prisoners in the United States, a sentimental appeal in England for comforts for German prisoners does not seem altogether unworthy of a response in rat poison.

A Bible Message

Behold, he put no trust in his servants; and his angels he charged with folly: how much less in them that dwell in houses of clay, whose foundation is in the dust, which are crushed before the moth?

They are destroyed from morning to evening: they perish for ever without any regarding it. Doth not their excellency, which is in them go away? they die, even without wisdom. (Job 4: 17-21.)

◇ ◇ ◇

My days are like a shadow that declineth; and I am withered like grass. But thou, O Lord, shalt endure for ever; and thy rememberance unto all generations.... The children of thy servant shall continue, and their seed shall be established before thee. (Ps. 102: 11, 12, 28.)

◇ ◇ ◇

For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. (I Cor. 15: 22.)

"I hope you were careful what you gave him," said the chemist, nervously. "You don't know what harm you might have done him."

All one night U.S. Chamber of Commerce President Eric Johnston and Writer William L. White listened to their Moscow hosts sing Russian songs. Then the Russians politely asked their guests to sing an American song. Johnston and White responded with the only song they could think of: "Jesus Wants Me for a Sunbeam."—Time.

FAINT FRIENDS

Though it is politic to maintain the fiction that our ancient ally, Portugal, is a friendly neutral, her Government has odd ways of displaying the friendship. The censorship, for which, of course, the Government is responsible, deliberately weights the scales against the Allies even now. In Allied messages the "massacre of Jews" is altered to "persecution," a "gigantic crime" becomes merely "a crime." When the Germans in Normandy are reported to be using "houses, churches and other buildings" for defence, the censor deletes "churches"; nor will he allow the Portuguese to read Mr. Herbert Morrison's statement that the use of the flying bomb is one of the Nazis' last acts of desperation that will not affect the result of the war. Yet at the same time the censor allows anti-British and anti-American propaganda to appear and such false statements as that the Americans have lost half a million men in occupying one five-hundredth of France.—Manchester Guardian.

Coldwell Wants Premier To Call Parliament

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Nov. 7—(CP)—National Leader M. J. Coldwell of the C.C.F. said last night that in view of the "unrest" caused by the resignation of Col. J. L. Ralston as defence minister, Prime Minister Mackenzie King should summon parliament and make a statement on the question.

Mr. Coldwell said also that Col. Ralston should be allowed to make a statement.

(Earlier last night, Col. Ralston said in Ottawa that he had been "pressed from many quarters" for an explanatory statement and that he felt responsibility for informing the public belonged primarily to the prime minister.)

The C.C.F. leader made the statement in reply to a question from the floor after he had delivered a speech in city hall auditorium.

"The Prime Minister," Mr. Coldwell said, "should give the members of the House of Commons the opportunity to question members of the cabinet on Mr. Ralston's resignation. Mr. King should not prevent the right of members of the House to know and to inquire."

Mr. Coldwell made no reference to the defence minister's resignation in the course of his main address, which dealt mostly with postwar problems.

He asserted that Canada should develop a nationally owned merchant fleet. The Dominion should become a trader nation, taking steps after the war to expand her foreign trade with the whole world.

Referring to "our too much neglected men of the merchant marine," Mr. Coldwell said 994 Canadian seamen had given their lives in action against the enemy and "deserve the best from us."

Loan Purchases Nearing 4 Million Mark

Peterborough, city and county, opened the third week of the Seventh Victory Loan, with total subscriptions of $215,400, as compared with $295,150 Saturday, swelling the total for thirteen of the eighteen days to $3,971,300.

The city canvass produced $93,100, payroll savings $85,600, and rural canvass $36,700 for the Monday aggregate of $215,400.

The joint percentage of objective increased from 81.7 to 86.3, an advance of 4.6, but the time percentage moved in its set daily measure from 66.66 to 72.22, a difference of 5.56 in that percentage column. Monday's percentage lag was 1.06, but against that is the surplus spread between the 86.3 per cent of the objective piled up in thirteen days and the 72.22 per cent in the time column, a credit margin of 14.08 with five days to go.

At the close of the thirteenth day in the Sixth Victory Loan campaign the percentage of objective was 72.9 as compared with the 86.3 Monday night. That means, Peterborough, city and county, was only .7 per cent ahead of its required objective for thirteen days last spring as compared with the 14.08 per cent at the close of Monday. The difference in subscription totals is $690,800, $3,971,300 for the present thirteen days of canvassing and $3,280,500 or thirteen days in Sixth Loan.

These details of percentage and subscriptions add up to the prospect that Peterborough should reach its objective before the final day of the campaign, providing the present daily volume of investing is maintained.

Payroll Group 103.1 Per Cent

The payroll savings division of the Peterborough organization passed its objective Monday with its contribution of $85,600, following the special names section, which was first over the 100 per cent level. The northern townships, Harvey, Burleigh, Chandos and Anstruther also went "over the top" Monday to 101.8, first of the county divisions to break above their campaign commitment.

Payroll savings, the industrial front, lead the entire field with 103.1 per cent; special names are second with 102.8 per cent and the combined four northern townships are third with 101.8 per cent.

The remnant rural part of North Monaghan is next in order at 98 per cent of their quota and Havelock village is 94.8 per cent.

The city general canvass, yielding $93,100, boosted its present total from $1,026,650 on Saturday to $1,119,750, but the objective in this important division, at $1,675,000 still seems remote even with five days to go. The city is still slightly behind its thirteenth day total of last spring, 66.8 as against 69.7.

The rural total Monday went up from $398,650 to $435,350, on the day's investing of $36,700. Their percentage up to Monday night was 69.7, exactly the same as that of thirteenth day in the spring Loan.

Actually the rural subscriptions in this drive, $435,350 are larger than the $418,100 for the same period in the Sixth Loan, but the total objective is up from $600,000 to $625,000. And the city's general canvass objective is up from $1,550,000 to $1,675,000, and increase of $125,000; and the city's response so far in this Loan is $1,119,750 as compared with $1,079,750 for thirteen days in the Sixth Loan.

Northerners in Front

The canvass in the four northern townships, Harvey, Burleigh, Anstruther and Chandos, turned in $3,100 Monday, bringing their total to $47,850 or 101.8 per cent of their $47,000 quota.

While the northern townships were rolling over the 100 per cent mark Monday, Lakefield lead the rural canvass with $11,100 subscriptions for the day, with Havelock's $9,850 second, and Norwood third for $5,300. The other sections in order were—Dummer fifth, $2,150; Asphodel $1,550; Belmont-Methuen $1,550; North Monaghan $850; Otonabee $700; Ennismore $500; Smith $250. Douro's $17,050 was unchanged.

The rural percentages of advance Monday were: Havelock 21.9; Lakefield 20.2; Norwood 9.1; the northern townships, Harvey, Burleigh, Anstruther, Chandos, 6.6; Dummer 6.2; Belmont-Methuen 6; North Monaghan 4.2; Asphodel 3.5; Ennismore 3.3; Otonabee .5; Smith .3.

Salesmen's Progress

John Troke is leading all salesmen with 128.4 per cent of his assignment. J. Anderson, another city canvasses, is second with 114.1 per cent. Henry Batten, in rural North Monaghan is third at 113.2 per cent and Rev. C. E. G. Spence of Apsley is fourth with 111.8 per cent.

Other city canvassers in the upper brackets are: J. Arnott 100 per cent of objective; Fred Revoy 97.7; R. Irwin 95.3; Victor Tully 94.6; Rufus Payne 93.8; W. Roberts 83; G. Gallagher 82. And in the rural canvass: C. Hunter, Lakefield, 98; J. Henderson, Otonabee [illegible]; P. J. Mather, Otonabee 83; A. Rose, Dummer 77.6; C. Pelton, Havey 69.4.

Grand Record

By FRANK LOWE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 7—(CP Cable)—The corps of Canadian firefighters, 400 strong, who came voluntarily in 1942 to fight blitz-created blazes in Britain, paraded for the last time Monday to hear an official farewell from a Britain that was thankful for their aid. Shortly the firefighters are due to sail for Canada.

Led by a 15-piece band, the members of the Canadian Corps marched through the heart of London, smart in blue uniforms with red "Canada" flashes on their shoulders and as militarily correct as guardsmen on parade, to be reviewed by the heads of the fighting services and Home Scurity Minister Morrison.

Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, also was present and made the official farewell speech.

Leading the Canadians on the parade was Gordon Huff, M.M., former fire chief at Brantford, Ont., and now head of the corps.

Mr. Massey told the men: "Nowhere has the civil defence of Britain been more admired than in Canada. You have played a very fine part in that work. Now your work has come to an end . . you have done a grand job. I want to thank you for all you have done."

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

The interscholastic battle at Riverside Park this Saturday between the traditional rivals, Oshawa Collegiate and P.C.V.S. seniors with the Lake Shore group title at stake is regarded by local fans as the football classic of the schedule and the biggest crowd to see a game here since the last championship season is assured. The tilt looms up as a natural. Both teams have won four games out of five starts and on their season's record look to be most evenly matched. Oshawa defeated the Peterborough students in the Motor City in a closely fought struggle but Coach Bev Goulding's athletes made up for that loss Saturday by winning in Bowmanville, a feat that the Oshawa team had been unable to perform and as a result the teams go into Saturday's game here on even terms with the winners emerging as group champions and entering the Cossa playdowns. With so much at stake the battle should be a tense exciting struggle. When the schedule opened Bowmanville looked like the team to beat but the High School team is now out of the running and Oshawa and Peterborough Collegiates, both of whom have shown consistent improvement as the season progressed are left to fight it out for the championship. In addition to the senior game there will be a curtain-raiser with Trinity College School seconds and P.C.V.S. juniors providing the contention.

* * * * * *

Football quarterbacks in particular and players generally should take note of the fact that failure on the part of Balmy Beach in their hectic struggle against Hamilton Wildcats Saturday to take advantage of the openings they had to collect single points cost them the ball game. The Toronto team tossed away half a dozen chances to boot for single and as a result they were eventually nosed out 9 to 8. This column has seen so many games frittered away in the same way—we recall two played at Riverside Park this season—that we have perhaps become a crank on the subject. Just the same we believe that kicking is a department of the game that most clubs are not using to the fullest advantage. It used to be that it was accepted as a fundamental principle of football that no team could win that didn't possess a good booted. Nowadays even when they have such a performer in the lineup teams fail to make adequate use of his talent. Perhaps it is because the forward pass has opened the way to quick and spectacular scoring. But whatever the reason quarterbacks continue to aim for major scores when sound football would suggest taking the sure single points that are there for the picking—and the kicking. We still say that more games have been lost because of failure to grab off singles than have been won by gambling for touchdowns.

* * * * * *

Give Them A Chance

The suggestion has been made, and this column endorses it without the least hesitation, that the city's parks board should be asked to set aside one of the free open air rinks during the coming winter to be used exclusively as a hockey cushion, thus paving the way for the organization of a city juvenile league. Unless such a loop is formed this winter there will be no opportunity for the city's youth to play organized hockey. There will be a school league that will take care of the kids up to 14 or 15 years of age but beyond that there is nothing in sight for the older boys. And there should be. While this city is waiting for the erection of the Memorial Health Centre arena we should be doing the spadework to ensure a supply of young hockey players to be available when modern facilities for hockey have been provided. We cannot afford to wait until then to begin the development of hockey talent and it is certain that players will not be forthcoming for some time after the arena is operating unless something is done now to take care of available material.

* * * * * *

The situation that exists at present is a challenge to the service clubs of the city, all of whom are interested in work among youths, to do something constructive. If each of the service organizations would undertake to sponsor a team one of the biggest obstacles in the way of a successful promotion of a juvenile hockey league would be taken in stride. Sponsorship by a reputable organization, ensuring the proper kind of supervision, is a primary requisite of a worthwhile juvenile hockey organization. Coaching, too, would enter into the situation and we believe that such players as Jim Ellis, Johnny Godfrey, Honey Tompkins, Bun Kingdon, Art Heal and other former Peterborough performers who have had the experience and training would gladly lend their services to teaching the young players the fundamentals of the game. We feel that they would be delighted to make that contribution because of their real interest in Canada's national winter pastime. Let us hope that something along this line may become a reality this winter. The youth of today is asking for a chance; surely this community will do what it can to see that the boys get what they are seeking.

Gathering Them In

George Campbell, Oshawa sport scribe throws some light on what is involved in getting together a Junior A squad in the following paragraph in his Oshawa sport column: "Word comes out of Port Colborne that this week-end, they have two "Scouts" touring the Provincial country-side, in search of Junior "A" hockey talent. Coach "Goonie" McGowan and Manager Wray Rubel are the two men and some of the points they are scheduled to visit are Galt, Kitchener, Brantford, Kirkland Lake, Cobourg, Fort Erie, Lucknow, Stratford and Georgian Bay centres (Midland and Owen Sound). Maybe they'll not bother going up to Lucknow now because they got about all the "luck" they can get their now (isn't that corny) but anyway the three Chin brothers, much publicized Chinese forward line which carried Lucknow to the O.M.B.A. Juvenile "B" finals last year, are going to play with Port Colborne this year. One thing is certain, the acquisition of these three players by Port Colborne will be acclaimed by every other team in the group—for while the Ports might at this stage appear to be a "weak sister" in the race, they will at least be a real drawing card the first time they visit any other place, for the fans will want to see the "Chu-Chin-Chow" trio in action. We wonder who they are looking at in Cobourg?"

After a prolonged and hard-fought series the King Edward School soccer team has captured the senior championship of the Public School League and thus become the first holders of the handsome trophy recently donated by the Kinsmen. The south-end school finally won the title yesterday when they triumphed over Central two goals to one and thus grabbed the final series by two games to one. The winning goal was a tough break for the losers, one of their own players kicking the ball into his own net in trying to clear after M. Chambers for King Edward had rattled the cross-bar with a hard drive. The teams played good football throughout the six-game series. The first three games were drawn. Central then pulled off the first win in the fourth battle, leaving it up to King Edward to come through the hard way. And they did winning the fifth and sixth fixtures to take it all.

Central Loses Kinsmen Cup To King Edward

Two well-balanced soccer teams finally arrived at a decision Monday afternoon, King Edward gaining a 2-1 verdict when a Central player scored the winning counter for the South-enders after M. Chambers had rattled the cross-bar with a terrific drive from ten yards out. Self registered the opening counter, while J. Whitehall tallied for Central. This climaxed a real soccer triumph after the players had battled in six games to gain possession of the Kinsmen Senior Trophy, which is emblematic of the Peterborough Public School soccer championship.

After the match, Central players went over to the King Edward boys and shook hands with the winners in true sportsmanship.

Smart Tactics Prevailed.

Right from the kick-off, both teams endeavored to open up the game with long swinging passes that brought out the sterling qualities of the full backs whenever the attack forwards hove in sight. Though Brooks was the individual who never gave up trying to get the opening counter as he repeatedly missed the uprights by inches. This was evident by the excellent work of Breadman and Downer on the defence. Thereafter Central fell away to permit King Edward to run wild on the wings, thereby giving the Central custodian plenty of work in safeguarding his goal. The half-backs on the respective elevens concentrated on tackling quickly to offset any breakaways. Patterson and Wilson on the defence intercepted many dangerous raids as they kept plying the ball up the field where Whitnall, Brooks and Dolan were always dangerous with their first-timers.

Half-time—No scoring.

Two Good Teams.

On resuming, exchanges continued on an even basis with the forwards battling hard to get the break. There had been no corner-kicks up till this point when Brooks gained a fruitless flag-kick off Grant when he kicked clear as the Central man was right in to score. Breadman headed the ball out to Self who made tracks for the other end where King Edward gained a successful flag-kick off Patterson, who was hard pressed by three players right on top of him. Riches was trusted with the corner kick that landed right into the centre of goal. All the players jumped up in the air to head the ball, but it landed at the toe of Self, who registered smartly.

Central went right back and hemmed the King Edward team into their own teritory as Whitnall and Brooks gave a great exhibition of initiative as they kept shooting for goal to test Grant. Brooks placed a beautiful centre into goal. Breadman again headed out and punted forward to Lawson who sent Riches away on the left wing. He drew the full-backs out of position to let Chambers break away fast on the right wing. He evaded three men nicely to smash the cross-bar with a terrific drive that bounced back into play where a Central player converted for King Edward. Central replied with a steady pressure that ultimately resulted in Whitnall reducing the count with a low grounder. Thereafter it was a battle by King Edward players in every department as Central went on a rampage and kept it up until the final whistle as they received flag-kicks galore that had all the earmarks of a goal.

LIEUT SADIE TROTTER

Ninety-six Canadian nurses took Brussels, the capital of Belgium, by assault, not with guns, but with their Canada badges, writes Lieut. Sadie Trotter, R.C.A.M.C. Patriotic Belgians lined the streets as their uncovered lorries sped into the city and everywhere they received a most enthusiastic welcome. The nurses found that it was the closest thing to Canada they'd found since going overseas.

"Twenty of us were given tickets to a revue at one of the theatres. Just after we entered, there was a great fanfare of trumpets and the actors and actresses came down from the stage and we had a grand march up on the platform where we proceeded to wave Belgian flags and yell. The public clapped and shouted "Vive les Allies."

"Everywhere along the road, people waved 'V' signs. People would stop us on the street to shake hands, present us with flowers and give us their addresses. We had our first ice cream here since landing overseas. We went from place to place gobbling it down. The price was 70 cents for each ice cream sundae, but it was worth it.

"At first here, I had a 120 bed ward-full of Canadians. Since then most of them have been evacuated and we have mostly Germans. It is a prisoner of war ward. I really have a time as I don't understand German and most of them don't understand English. I am making the most of my hands — the sign language you know. It doesn't always work though and then everyone gets pretty exasperated.

German Patients

"At present there are about 50 German patients and most of them are very sick. Many have gangrenous wounds and there are several amputation cases. In one bed we have a Canadian with his leg smashed by a German bullet. In another beside him, a German soldier with face and chest burns from a Canadian flame thrower. A few days ago they were trying to kill each other, now we have them and are working madly to save their limbs and heal their bodies."

Lieut. Trotter described her ward as having four rows of beds. They are brown with blue blankets and are kept as attractive as possible. She said the boys coming in appreciate having real beds and sheets, since many of them have been living in tanks and slit trenches and some haven't had their clothes and boots off in ten days, and they've been in water a lot.

One of the aside tragedies of the war happened when a group of nurses were returning to residence from the hospital one night. It was black and raining and in the darkness their car struck a group of civilians walking on the road. Lieut. Trotter said she pulled a little girl out from under the back wheel and she died on the way to the hospital, while another woman was also seriously injured.

Nurses Sea Sick

"After nearly two months of waiting and getting ready in England we at last set out in August for France. We had supper on board ship and it was grand, there was coffee, butter, swell bacon and white rolls and bread, best of all. We spent one night on board and it was quiet, since we had all taken our anti-sea sickness pills. Towards the last it got a little rough and we were let down to the Landing Craft by a rope and ladder, while the barge kept rolling and bumping back against the ship. At last we were all down, including the unit mascot, Pte. Spot, a terrier dog. I gulped down anti-sea sickness pills as prescribed, but no sooner had I gotten perched to one side of the pitching vessel than trouble overtook me. I don't know how the boys in the invasion ever got onto the beaches in condition to fight. They really must have been wonderful.

"We had all been issued with three paper bags before we left England and they really came in handy. In what seemed like hours, in reality minutes, we pulled up at a floating dock, and I being near the front, immediately bounded out on solid ground. Once there I felt OK. They hauled me back in again, so the boys could leave first. Then it was our turn. Within a few minutes we piled into lorries. We were now on the British-Canadian beachhead, the place where the Canadian 3rd Division fought so magnificently."

This nursing sister paid high tribute to the organization work carried out. She said authorities remembered every little detail. Before embarking they were given a rubber life belt, a tin of canned heat and wire stove, pills for purifying water, two chocolate bars, 10 biscuits in a paper, a box with 24 hour rations of concentrated food, 6 anti-sea sickness pills, tin with 10 cigarettes and three sea sickness bags. Multiply it by hundreds of thousands of troops that have gone through, each receiving this equipment, and hundreds of other pieces not used by nurses.

Water Trouble

"While stationed at a hospital in France, we went by lorry eight miles to hot mobile showers. They had a mobile laundry there, with big tents fitted with showers and a boiler outside to keep the water hot. They can put through as many as 3,000 soldiers a day. This was our first chance for a real bath in France under running water. We scrubbed, showered and shrieked like a bunch of kids.

After that we were able to get a little hot water after dinner for washing our clothes, but before that we walked 1½ miles to a river and spent the morning on our knees in

Army Rejects Phil Watson Goes To Rangers

NEW YORK, Nov. 7—(AP)—Phil Watson, veteran New York Rangers centre, has been rejected for military service in Canada and will be available to the club for the remainder of the National Hockey League season, Manager Lester Patrick announced today.

Watson played with Montreal Canadiens last season under a "loan" arrangements when he was working in a Montrel war plant and could not obtain clearance papers to join the Rangers in the United States. Under a league rule adopted this season he was not eligible to play for any club until he was rejected by the services. Watson has played in one game with the Rangers in Canada this season, against Leafs in Toronto.

Nervous Perch

LEYTE, Philippines, Nov. 7 — (AP). — Pte. William Nykaza of Chicago was high in a palm tree stringing telephone wire when the Japanese counter-attacked. He stayed aloft while the Japs took the position—and while Americans took it back. Said Nykaza, "I had a 50-yard-line seat."

TORONTO, Nov. 7 — (CP). — The Oshawa Generals don't feel so badly about being called the "big money club" and similar epithets hurled at them by disillusioned rivals. They feel sure now that filthy lucre has a part in the dealings of other junior squads as well.

George (Oshawa Times-Gazette) Campbell relates the story of Frank Long, with St. Catharines Falcons last winter, who signed a professional contract with Providence Reds of the American League this year. Long, it seems, wants Providence to tear up his contract as he can play with Falcons again. Campbell says the reason is that the junior squad can offer him more mazoola than the pros.

Hamilton hep:

The good citizens of Hamilton, Ont., are taking their football very seriously this autumn. For days before last week-end's game with Toronto Balmy Beach, which Wildcats won 9-8, the ticket sale was brisk. The customers lined up for tickets as though they were after the beer ration on the last day of the month, and Walter McMullen of the Spectator said it was the first time a regular league game attracted such a wide interest in Hamilton.

Incidentally:

Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle remarked recently that Frank Gravelle, Montreal whistle-tooter, is the first French-Canadian referee to make the grade in the N.H.L. However, Mike Rodden of the Kingston Whig-Standard, himself one of the refereeing fraternity, points out that Eusebe Daineault of Montreal, the late Bert Corbeau, and Louis Berlinquette of Ottawa officiated with success in the past ....Girls' hockey is looking up in Montreal, and prospects are good for renewal of activities by the female Durnans and Richards of the Metropolis....Son Buddy Leavitt is following in the footsteps of Daddy Charlie Leavitt, former Western Canada jockey and racehorse conditioner. Buddy has taken to the saddle now and has shown well on United States tracks......In Vancouver they don't know whether the old Auditorium will ring to the cheers of frenzied sport fans or ring to the clang of machinery. The building is being vacated by Boeing Aircraft, but there are four bids in from business firms for its use as a factory. Four other bids are from sports organizations.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.— (AP). — There's a football team in Pocatello, Idaho, that rates a cheer if they never win another game all season ....It's called the "Pocatello Marine Devildogs" and is composed of 20-odd marines from a guard detachment and a few sailors from the naval ordinance plant with a coach, Cpl. Ken Doland, borrowed from an army air base....These few marines comprise nearly half the detachment and every one is a combat veteran recuperating from wounds and jungle diseases incurred overseas....They lost their first two games because there wasn't enough reserves and the men weren't well enough to play a full game....Then they turned on the Great Falls, Mont., air base team and won though they were outweighed 25 pounds a man....Those guys must really like to play football.

Shorts and Shells.

What's this story that the Cardinals demanded meal money when they left the "home" dugout during the world series and became the "visiting" club?....And come to think of it, why not?....Boston's amateur hockey school drew 284 kids for the opening session....Gene Tunney is dropping out of the Baltimore pro football setup because he now thinks the war will last a lot longer than he believed before.

Scorers Topped By Krol With 49 Points

TORONTO, Nov. 7.—Joe Krol, of Hamilton Wildcats scored 49 points in the six-game Ontario Rugby Football Union schedule this season to lead all scorers in the O.R.F.U. and the Ontario Armed Services Football League, it was shown yesterday in final scoring statistics for the two leagues compiled by The Canadian Press.

Leading Seaman Annis Stukus of Toronto Navy Bulldogs led the services league scorers with 44 points, standing second to Krol in both leagues. This reversed the roles played by the two last season when Stukus, playing with Balmy Beach in the O.R.F.U., led all senior scorers in the Province with 64 points, Krol standing second with 48.

Krol, 25-year-old Windsor native, scored nearly half of the 102 points collected by his team in six games this year. He climaxed a brilliant season's work by getting all nine points Saturday as Wildcats edged out Balmy Beach 9-8 in the last scheduled game of the season. He scored six touchdowns, two field goals, nine singles and four converts over the season. Stukus had three touchdowns, six field goals, four singles and seven converts.

Toronto Trio Dominates Score Column

MONTREAL, Nov. 7 (CP)—The blistering scoring pace that Toronto's Schriner-Carr-Bodnar line has been setting in the National Hockey League was reflected in the first weekly official scoring list, today with the Toronto trio holding down three of the first four places.

At that, the high-powered Torontonians were just a shade ahead of Detroit's Howe-McAtee-Bruneteau combination.

Sweeney Schriner was tied with Syd Howe for top spot, each with 11 points, while the other two members of the Maple Leaf line were tied for third with 10 points each. Mud Bruneteau held down fifth spot with nine points, two ahead of Boston's perennial Bill Cowley and three ahead of line-mate Jud McAtee.

Schriner's 11 points were made up of seven goals and four assists, while Howe had four goals and seven assists. Carr's total was split evenly between goals and assists and Bodnar had two goals and eight assists.

Schriner led the goals division with his seven, two more than Carr and McAtee who were tied with five each. Bodnar's eight assists put him ahead in that divsion, with Howe right up behind with seven and Carr, Bruneteau and Cowley tied with five each.

Montreal Canadiens dominated the penalty list. Glen Harmon led with 11 minutes, Murph Chamberlain had 10 and Leo Lamoureux seven plus a 10-minute misconduct.

Armand Gaudreault and Gino Rozzini, highly touted rookies purchased by Manager Art Ross from Montreal Canadiens last week, will join Boston Bruins to-day when they report at the Boston arena for their first home practice session of the National Hockey League season.

Phil Watson, veteran New York Rangers centre, has been rejected for military service in Canada and will be available to the club for the remainder of the National Hockey League season, Manager Lester Patrick announced yesterday.

Red Tilson Killed.

Abe (Red) Tilson of Regina, ace centre with Oshawa Generals in the 1943 Memorial Cup finals against Portage la Prairie Terriers, was killed in Holland Oct. 27 with the Canadian forces, his family said last night.

Tony Golab, whose brilliant football earned him the Jeff Russell Memorial trophy in 1941 as the most valuable player in the Big Four, has been promoted to Flight Lieutenant. The one-time Ottawa star now is serving in Cairo, Egypt, as a navigation instructor with the R.C.A.F. Tony has seen action in the African, Sicilian and Italian theatres of war since going overseas in December, 1942.

Bob Gracie of Pittsburg, recorded two goals and set up a couple of tallies to hop from the bottom of the "leading nine" to third place in the American Hockey League's individual scoring race. Gracie's scoring spree, the best of the past week, boosted his total to 11 points, two under Wendell Jamieson, the leader, and one less than Tony Hemmerling, runner-up. The three are teammates. In fact, the Hornets dominate the list, occupying seven of the nine spots. Only exceptions are Byron MacDonald, Indianapolis, tied with three others for fifth, and Roland Forget, Providence, who shares the cellar with Lloyd Roubell.

Chins Are Amateurs.

Coaches Nels Stewart and Genie McGowan of the Port Colborne Junior "A" entry in the Ontario Hockey Association left Port Colborne yesterday with 30 candidates for Niagara Falls to practice for a week until ice is available here. Among candidates are the three Chinese brothers from Lucknow, Ont.—Bill, Albert and George Chin, who were at the Toronto Maple Leaf training camp at Owen Sound, Ont., earlier this year.

Mexican Joey Peralta Defeats Canadian Welterweight Champ

TORONTO, Nov. 7 (CP)—Canadian welter and lightweight boxing champion Dave Castilloux lost his second decision to Mexican Joey Peralta here last night in a 12-round non-title bout that pleased a crowd of more than 6,000.

The "rubber" bout gave Peralta two wins over the Canadian titleholder, both in Toronto. Two months ago, Castilloux dropped a close match to the Mexican lightweight champion and scored a win against him in Montreal last month.

Back-pedalling for nine rounds, Peralta did not stand up to the Montreal boxer until the 10th, trading blow for blow from then on.

Castilloux came into the ring at 135½ pounds and Peralta weighed 137.

In a fast semi-final over the six round route, Ralph Walton of Montreal and Joe Bagnato fought to a draw. The lanky Montreal negro boxer had it all his own way in the first two rounds, but Bagnato evened the count as the bout came to its end.

The 135¼ pound Torontonian rushed Walton and landed a barrage of body blows, but Walton's longer reach tied Bagnato up often and inflicted facial punishment. Walton weighed 136.

GOP Raps Reds On Dewey Yarn

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 — (AP)— Mrs. Eleanor Medill Patterson, owner-publisher of the Washington Times-Herald, yesterday termed "crazy' 'a political article carried by the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia.

The Izvestia article, which said there was a rumor that Republican interests were plotting a fake assassination attempt against Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to sway voters Tuesday's election, also said that support of the Hearst, McCormick, Patterson and Gannett newspapers "betrayed Dewey."

Mrs. Patterson commented:

Associated Press, makes the close

"This crazy story, as quoted by the alliance between our present administration and that of Mr. Stalin and the Communist party clearer than ever."

(Gov. Dewey, reached in Albany, had no comment to make on the Russian newspaper's story. President Roosevelt was in seclusion at his Hyde Park home."

In Rochester, N.Y., Frank Gannett, publisher of the Gannett newspapers, described the Izvestia article as "ridiculous and absurd."

"Not one of the 21 Gannett newspapers by any stretch of the imagination can be characterized as isolationist," he said. "We who are supporting Governor Dewey do not need to resort to any such Communist-conceived plot to sway voters. The fact that the Communists of Russia are so deeply interested in his defeat is in itself a powerful argument in his favor."

PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-roid and are not entirely pleased with the results your druggist will gladly return your money —(Advt.)

Ireland Builds Great Airport

By J. H. MURDOCH
Canadian Press Correspondent

DUBLIN, Nov. 7.—(CP).— Eire will play its full share in the development of international civil aviation after the war and might easily be the "mighty atom" of the international civil aviation conference now meeting in Chicago.

Eire holds a key position in the most important aviation artery in the world. Government technicians and advisers are keeping pace with the times and Eire commands one of the best air ports in Europe—the land and sea base near the mouth of the Shannon.

No effort or money has been spared by the government to equip this port with everything necessary to cater for the biggest imaginable trans-Atlantic aircraft. Full use has been made of the airport's ideal surroundings.

The Shannon airport is roughly 140 miles from Dublin, which has a magnificent, first-class airdrome in its suburbs.

There is a distinct possibility that when commercial aviation is in full swing in a few years' time the Shannon airport may become the Southampton of Europe. It may be the big clearing house for North Atlantic aviation with first class shuttle services operating to all parts of Europe.

Eire government delegates at Chicago are Sean Leydon, secretary to the Ministry of Supplies, J. J. Hearne, Eire High Commissioner in Canada, J. Brennan, Eire Minister in Washington, and T. J. O'Driscoll a government aviation expert.

86,000 Imperials Now In Canada

OTTAWA, Nov. 7. — Called to consider the situation of a small number of Imperials in Canada who are in distress, also the improvement of organization of the Imperial Division of the Canadian Legion, a rally was held by the Ottawa nad District Legion Imperials' group here.

The chair was occupied by Brig.-General C. F. Winter, who was introduced by Capt. H. R. Gunning, president of the Ottawa Imperials.

Present position of the organization was reviewed by Capt. C. L. Hall, 1st vice-president of the Imperial Division, who advised Imperials to organize now so that they might have proper representation at Legion conventions and be in proper shape to care for the problems of Imperials in Canada. He emphasized the fact that after the war many additional Imperials could be expected to settle in Canada.

Captain G. Kermack, Dominion secretary of the Imperial Division, spoke of the Association's plans and said that a sub-committee of the Dominion Executive Committee of the Imperial Division is now operating in Ottawa. He referred to the extension of the War Veterans' Allowance Act to cover Imperials and similar matters.

There were 86,000 Imperials in Canada at the time of the 1940 registration, he said, and of these the great majority had established themselves. He spoke of the special fund which is being launched, to be made up by voluntary subscriptions, to take care of cases of hardship among Imperials. He, like other speakers, stressed the need of organization to be ready for the postwar influx of Imperials.

The business session was followed by a successful programme of entertainment.

SULPHURIC ACID
Barometer of Business

SUCH is the importance of Sulphuric Acid to the many industrial processes now being carried on in Canada that the monthly record of its production could well be used as a barometer of the rise and fall of business.

Sulphuric Acid is extensively used in steel mills, foundries and similar plants whose volume of production is governed by the demands of construction, ship building, transportation and the engineering trades. These are the basic industries and their progress parallels the general trade statistics of the Dominion.

Another important use of Sulphuric Acid is in the manufacture and maintenance of storage batteries for cars, tanks, radio equipment and certain marine engines.

While Sulphuric Acid is only one of the many products of Canadian Industries Limited, it is an outstanding example of the way in which commercial chemistry is contributing to the life and progress of the Dominion.

Rev. J. F. Everson conducted a brief devotional exercise, reading Psalm and offering prayer, and Dr. E. W. Young introduced a new member, H.-Capt. John L. Hodgson, who was welcomed by the president.

G. R. Langley, the speaker, was introduced by Dr. E. W. Young. Mr. Langley developed a thesis closely correlating the economic laws to Christian ideals.

"Many small groups are now forming to plan the rehabilitation of the postwar period," he said. "There seems to be a prevailing dissatisfaction with the status quo. What can we do? We have a choice of regimentation or education. Through education we can acquire a thorough understanding of the basic laws that govern our economy. Instead of holding tenaciously to the existing idea of tearing down our present economic and social order and substituting totalitarian government and socialization of industry, we should promote a closer relationship between the principles of Christ and our economic laws.

"A new education is fundamental to the problem of banishing depression and other economic ills. The Church's task is to educate the people. These basic economic laws are simple and readily understood if approached in the spirit of the great commandment, 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself'."

Canadians Try To Sell Aviation Idea

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, Nov. 7 (AP)—On this election day in the United States a group of Canadians are out to sell an idea of 50 other countries.

The idea is an international air traffic authority and the Canadian delegates to the international civil aviation conference set out to sell it yesterday by emphasizing the points on which their plan tends to meet the special views and interests of the United States on the one hand and the Latin-American republics on the other.

This found its latest expression in a summary of the Canadian proposals issued from official sources just about the time the delegations had got around to reading the mass of proposals and drafts laid before them during the opening days of the conference last week.

From the point of view of the United States which wants a minimum of regulations and a maximum of open competition between air lines in international traffic the summary pointed up the statement that the powers proposed by Canada for an international authority are the same as those exercised within the United States by the civil aeronautics board and stated it involved "freedom of competition with the best operator getting the business."

The Latin-American republics at the conference have expressed a determination not to surrender any sovereignty to an international body and a suspicion of any plan to vest power over international aviation in the big nations. For their benefit the latest Canadian sales talk says the Canadian plan envisages:

"The preservation of every nation's sovereignty in the air and the establishment of a democratic world air assembly in which each nation would have two votes."

Beyond the fact that a good deal of interest is being shown in the Canadian proposals which are still the most specific before the conference, there is no indication as yet of how far the Canadian plan is going to go. The technical side of the conference's work got under way seriously yesterday and more subcommittee sessions are scheduled for today.

Friendly Class Gives Cheer For Christmas

If any one has a tendency to complain of the restrictions and claims made upon one's purse during these latter years of stress, a good panacea would be to read some of the British newspapers, which recently have been permitted to reveal some of the difficulties which people in considerable areas of that country have had to face day in and out for a long time now, the danger of which has not yet subsided, as witness Saturday night's reprisal attacks on a fairly large scale by the robot or flying bomb.

A copy of one of these recently received in this city and dated October 7, reveals they were now permitted to give a picture of what had actually transpired in a typical provincial city of less than one-third of the pre-war population of the city of Toronto, which has been having attacks made on it since July 9, 1940, during which time thirty thousand homes had been hit, and that exceeds by a large margin the entire housing accommodation in this whole city of Peterborough.

In an almost obscure way close by the article describing the difficulties through which these people have been passing for three and a half years, is another telling of how 70 children evacuees attending one of the board schools in the city were given a party, graced by the presence of the city's highest officials, showing how that in the midst of their own difficulties, they could yet find a place to take care of these youngsters from other places, that had had the same misfortune as their own people had.

This displays what really might be termed a heart of pure gold in friendliness and humanitarian sympathy for others in trouble, which should really inspire poeple who are much better situated to further efforts, in order to give such people a real helping hand while the need still exists.

It is for people such as these that the Peterborough and District War Victims' Fund is now making a special appeal, for the purpose of sending an extra sized donation to give all afflicted in this manner, something extra to provide necessities and cheer for the Christmas season now only a bare seven weeks distant.

Today sees another one of quite a large number of gifts made by the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. Johns church appearing, showing how well they maintain a work of good in this connection, which goes back to the time when the fund first began to function, thereby upholding that portion of their name which bespeaks of friendliness, besides the tenets of the Christian faith under whose auspices they are banded together.

For a small group of this kind, they have done exceedingly well in contributing a total of $232.00 to the fund through this constant help that has appeared from time to time in this column.

The young ladies in the Ready to Wear Dept. of the C.D.S. Stores take quite a pride in boosting the penny box located at their office desk. It had really started as a penalty box, although goodness knows what use a box of that nature would find among members of the fair sex.

To date, some seven collections have been made from it, the latest of which appears today in an amount of $5.20, which gives them a total credit of $33.65 for the period that it has been in operation there.

Brig. Green Conducts Evangelistic Services

Brigadier Emmeline Green of Toronto, conducted the first of a series of revival services in the Salvation Army Temple on Sunday. She was assisted by Mrs. A. J. Smith.

Speaking with power upon an Old Testament patriarch, she outlined Abraham and his unwavering fidelity to God when those about him were "pitching their tents toward Sodom". The trend toward worldliness in the church was a danger of which all Christians should beware, she declared. The Songster Brigade sang, in this service, "Wonderful Healer, Touch Me Again."

The subject of Brigadier Green's message in the evening service was based upon an incident in the life of Christ and concerned the leper, who implored the Lord in these words: "If Thou wilt, Thou can'st make me clean". The sympathy and loving kindness of the Great Physician was emphasized by the speaker.

Mrs. Smith, who, with her late husband was stationed here on the occasion when the Salvation Army Temple was destroyed by fire, gave earnest witness to the power of God in her life. On the broadcast the band played, "The Lord Is My Shepherd" and the Songsters sang: "All Your Anxieties, All Your Fear, Bring To The Mercy-Seat, Leave It There." Mrs. M. Shadgett sang, "Willing To Take The Cross".

Revival services are conducted every night this week, at 7.45 p.m. with Brigadier Green in charge.

Bun Armstrong Maquis Fighter Returns Home

Blown out of his flaming bomber which exploded when attacked by two Nazi fighters over France, May 3, F.O. Bernard (Bun) Armstrong, 23, whose wife lives at Denistoun avenue, floated down by parachute to land unconscious in a treetop. A Maquis family lifted him down by ladder and hid him in their home while a doctor of the underground tended his burns and back injuries. The airman joined their ranks on recovery.

For five months after he was reported missing, his parents wondered if he were dead. Sunday he arrived home.

"Ours was one of 41 bombers lost on May 3. Our pilot got the rest of the crew out, sacrificing his own life," said Armstrong.

"When I regained consciousness I found my battle dress had been hidden, and a beret an knee shorts, laid out for me. The Gestapo, during my stay at this French patriot's home, came several times to obtain butter. They never guessed who I was."

Next he was taken to the chief of the local Maquis and joined their forces.

"We sabotaged German vehicles at night at a nearby ordnance depot. We helped capture one of the largest German airdromes in France. Luckily for me I look like a Frenchman and I speak the language. Sometimes at cafes German soldiers and rat-faced Gestapo sat at the same table. I was really scared at times."

A Japanese sniper with the German army was shot by the Maquis. He died in the presence of Armstrong. "There were a number of Japanese around," Armstrong said. "They were deadly snipers. Their victims were always officers.

Fooled Germans

"The Germans believed they had a collaborationist in one little Frenchman, but he was a leading Maquis. He got the plans and location of an airfield. Allied planes came over and bombed the airdrome. Often the Gestapo came to this Frenchman's place. I would be in the next room. He was the last person they suspected."

One night Armstrong and a party of Maquis were surrounded. Three men were caught and shot. Bullets pinged about me. I must have crawled about four hours in the underbrush and through fields. "Suddenly a U.S. jeep drove by. I shouted, 'Hi there, chum!' You should have seen that driver jam on the brakes. The officer came back and said: 'You're no Frenchman.' I told him who I was, and they helped me to Paris."

Five Prisoners Break Jail In Belleville

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 7—(CP). — Capture of Floyd Andrews, 16, one of five youths who broke out of Hastings county jail last night was announced today by Provincial Police. A former jail inmate recognized Andrews as he was breakfasting in a Belleville restaurant, and called police.

Police officers continued their widespread search for the other four boys—David Quigley 17, Martin Green 20, Bert Hawkins 18, and Norman Bell 17 — three of whom were wearing regulation blue denim prison clothing. Hawkins, recently discharged from the R.C.A.F., was still in uniform.

The quintet last night attacked Joseph Semain, governor of the jail, and Herbert Urch, turnkey, before escaping from the institution. All except Green were under sentence on charges of car theft. Green, who pleaded not guilty to four charges was remanded for trial November 10.

Officials of the Provincial Secretary's office ordered to the scene said they were investigating a warning given Hastings jail authorities by a Toronto detective that a break was contemplated as early as last Friday.

A sister of one of the fugitives was arrested on a charge of car theft at Trenton with two other youths. The girl is 16 years old. In the back seat of the car were found hack-saw blades, files and a roll of clothes-line wire, police said.

The girl is said to have admitted she was en route "to get her brother and a boy friend out of the coop." The three are still in custody because of failure to raise bail.

The governor and turnkey were beaten about the head by the men in a corridor leading to the cell block.

The governor said the five men, with seven other inmates in the jail, had just completed eating in the kitchen and were being given tobacco and cigaret papers at the top of the stairway in a corridor leading to the cell block when the attack took place.

Semain Seized

Semain was serving Bell when another man, who was serving a seven-day sentence, asked for some tobacco and papers. As the governor attempted to comply with the request his arms were held at his side and one of the five men at large began hitting him with his fists. The other three youths grabbed Urch and pounded him across the head and ears.

"I managed to break away," the governor said, "but was grabbed again and Andrews started to beat me with a long maple stick with the nail in the end of it."

"They asked me for the key to the corridor, but I told them I had no key," the governor said. "They held a carving knife about 18 inches long against Urch and a small knife at my throat," but "I managed to get away again."

Semain ran to the kitchen where he unlocked a side door, the key of which he carried in his back pocket, then to his residence where he notified police. Meanwhile the youths managed to retrieve the keys to the corridor door, which were a few feet outside the entrance, unlocked the door and escaped through the court-house.

Got Knives From Kitchen

The governor said the youths obtained the knives from the kitchen, where Hawkins had been on duty since Friday. He said he believed the break had been planned for more than a week.

A warning was issued to police in nearby towns to be on the look-out for the quintet and a rush call was put in to nearby Trenton where Hawkins' sister, Margery, was being held in jail on a vagrancy charge. She and Harry Tilley, also of Toronto, were arrested in that city last Friday in an automobile, police said was stolen in Toronto.

A 100-foot piece of steel cable and three new hacksaws were found in the automobile. A third man in the car with Miss Hawkins and Tilley escaped.

Traffic Charges Engage Court

Speeding on Highway 7 between Havelock and Norwood cost a Toronto man, John R. Liberty, a fine of $15 and $1.60 costs when he entered a written plea of guilty in police court this morning.

As the aftermath of a recent traffic accident on Highway 7 three miles east of Havelock in which a Smith transport truck and an automobile were involved charges of careless driving were laid by Constable Grayling against T. M. Johnston, Ottawa, drive of the transport and Mrs. Rita Minaker of Lindsay, driver of the passenger vehicle.

Both cases were adjourned until Tuesday of next week when called before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court today.

A charge of drunken driving against Garfield Emery, Otonabee, was adjourned until Friday. W. C. Grant appeared for the accused this morning.

James J. Fleming Justice Of Peace

James J. Fleming, police court stenographer for the past seven years, was this morning sworn in by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., as a justice of the peace, after receiving his commission from Queen's Park.

The appointment of Mr. Fleming to this office was made at the request of the Peterborough Police Commission who decided at a meeting some months ago to have the court stenograher named as a justice of the peace as a convenience in the administration of justice here.

Law enforcement officers will now be able to lay informations before the new justice of the peace who will be closed at hand when needed.

Mr. Fleming received general congratulations from court officials and police this morning when word of his commission spread around.

Every Employee Bought Bonds At Outboard

Every employee of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company is an investor in the Seventh Victory Loan.

The Johnson Motors plant has a staff of 488, men and women, and not one of them has missed buying a Victory Bond in this campaign.

And their average investment is $184.83. There have been no blanks in that shop drive. If you know one of the Outboard workers, whether girl in the office or man in the shop, you know that he has dipped into the Seventh Loan, helping to make the shop score a perfect 100 per cent of the personnel.

Johnson Motors objective was $56,050 and they have closed their subscription list at $90,200. The fact that a plant of 500 employees has been able to turn in a perfect score sheet is a salient feature that is not easily attained. Some employees may be confronted with difficulties which make it next to impossible for them to buy a Bond or two, no matter how keenly they might wish to do so. On the other hand if the Gestapo were in control and laying down a levy there would certainly be no exceptions, no excuses, but that would be the effect of compulsion.

The final result at Johnson Motors confirms Larry McGuire's early report that the spirit throughout the plant was so sincerely and practically interested that if a man were overlooked by the shop committee he was inclined to feel slighted or that for some strange reason he had been passed by in the canvass.

Training Centre

With a curtailed staff as compared with its more expansive years just passed, the Peterborough Training Centre was given an objective of $54,000. Headquarters admitted that this was "a severe job". They have said so, but the Turnbull corps hit their objective Monday, another helpful accomplishment in Peterborough's mounting total of Victory Bond buying.

Court Dismisses Theft Charge

A charge against Elizabeth Rishor of having, while living apart from her husband, C. M. Rishor, stolen electric appliances and other household articles from him was dismissed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court Monday afternoon.

Hearing of the case began Friday afternoon and was adjourned until yesterday when the balance of the evidence was heard.

W. J. Arthur Fair appeared for Mrs. Rishor and the prosecution was conducted by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., while T. J. Carley, K.C., was present in the interest of Rishor.

In dismissing the case Magistrate Langley found that Mrs. Rishor had acted in the belief that she had a proprietory interest in the articles allegedly stolen and that therefore there was some color of right which would make a conviction for theft impossible.

D. L. McIntosh Killed Overseas

Donald Laughlin Best McIntosh, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. McIntosh, 66 Lansdowne street, who been serving in Holland with the Calgary Highlanders, has been killed in action, word has been received.

Prior to enlisting, this soldier worked on the farm of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Lillico of North Monaghan. His parents who had been living in Toronto, moved back to Peterborough in the spring, and his wife and baby daughter, Venetia, are living in England. A sister, Margaret Eleanor McIntosh, also survives.

Pte. McIntosh would have been 25 years old next July, and he had served in Iceland, and England before he went to the Continent. When H-Capt. John Hodgson, former padre, now at Trinity Church, went to the Royal Regiment of Canada, McIntosh was assigned to him as a driver and they were together until Capt. Hodgson left the regiment. Then he was transferred to the Highlanders.

"Mac was a great lad, one of the best overseas, and he will be sadly missed," his former chaplain said this morning.

Cooks Can Make Old Fashioned Christmas Cake

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 —(CP)—The cake at this year's Christmas dinner will be the old-fashioned, rich kind only mother can make.

Reporting that Christmas cake ingredients are in good supply this year, the Prices Board today gave the good word to cooks to get out the mixing bowl, for unless the cake is baked right away it won't have time to season properly.

Storehouses halfway around the world are sending Christmas cake ingredients dear to the hearts of every cook.

Raisins are arriving daily from Australia, spices from Granada, B.W.I., Ceylon and Zanzibar, candied peel and walnuts from the United States and other nuts from Spain, Portugal and Mexico.

Housewives can whisper a special prayer of gratitude to the Royal Canadian Navy and the merchant navy for getting the goodies here safe and sound despite the submarine menace and shipping difficulties.

CWL Prepares Program For Orphanage

St. Peter's subdivision of the Catholic Women's League held their November meeting on Monday evening, when an increasing membership and active interest in the work of the league was manifested by the reports submitted by conveners and the programs outlined for the next month.

Letters were read acknowledging donations to the Merchant Marine and to other charitable and educational endeavors. The need for foster homes for several children was emphasized. A Christmas program was approved for children of St. Vincent's Orphanage and an appeal made for still more workers at the Thursday afternoon sewing at the orphanage.

One hundred and forty-one Christmas boxes have been mailed by the C.W.L. to parish boys overseas and the work of visiting patients at the local Training Centre hospital and of knitting for the men in the services is continuing. It was arranged to join the other city C.W.L. subdivisions in placing a wreath at the Cenotaph on Remembrance Day to honor the men who have made the supreme sacrifice. A number of visits to the sick were reported and the Visiting Committee enlarged to cover a wider area.

Arrangements for a Christmas fair to be held November 30 in the K. of C. hall were confirmed and members and friends will be able to secure attractive articles at the booths and enjoy afternoon tea.

A musical program featured Miss Anne Szammers' piano solo "On the Meadow" by Lichner and Miss Mary Jane Wharry's violin numbers "Salut d'Amour" by Elgar and "Traumerei" by Schumann. Mrs. H. V. Dobson was accompanist.

Miss Mary Ross of the local V.O.N. staff gave an interesting account of the origin and the work of the Victorian Order of Nurses, which has been functioning so successfully in Canada for 47 years and now has 100 branches. Miss Ross described the care given to patients by these competent graduate nurses and the part they play in promoting health in the community.

Members decided to hold a tea and rummage sale in the Legion Hall on November 16, when the contents of a bale to be sent to England will be on display, and to buy a $100 war bond.

Mrs. R. Ritchie, a recent bride, was presented with a Kenwood blanket and a pair of pillow slips on behalf of the Auxiliary by Miss Hilda Houghton, and Mrs. G. Downer, the president, read the address. Mrs. Downer and Mrs. G. Stevens were named to represent the Auxiliary in the Peterborough branch, Health League of Canada, and Mrs. Saunders gave her report of the meeting of the Local Council of Women. At the close of the meeting, Mrs. J. Little and her committee served tea and wedding cake.

Auxiliary Given Outline Of Civic Hospital Plans

Plans for a fine, spacious civic hospital in Peterborough with equipment and facilities second to none for a city of its size, were outlined by Alderman Adam Sands to members of the Nicholls Hospital Women's Auxiliary, at their general meeting Monday afternoon. The meeting, held in the auditorium of George Street United Church Sunday School, was marked by an excellent attendance of members and canvassers.

The speaker explained that the proposed hospital would contain approximately 265 beds. According to recommendations made by the Minister of Health, Alderman Sands explained that 15 beds would be set aside for isolation cases, approximately 40 would be set aside for chronic patients, eight for psychiatric cases, with the remaining approximately 200 beds to be divided into private, semi-private and public wards, as the doctors advised.

Outlining in brief the plans already formulated, the speaker said that it had been decided that there would only be six beds to each ward, with an extra "quiet room" in each. He said that it was hoped that there would be enough public ward beds to meet the demand, but that there also would be enough private and semi-private rooms to help defray the expenses of the hospital, and lessen the deficit, citing the hospital in Belleville as an example of the working of this plan.

Throughout his address, the speaker stressed the theme that the mechanics of the hospital should be run on business basis. He explained that the doctors and nurses needed a good layout, and excellent equipment to help them. He felt that the initial expense of building a good civic hospital, complete with latest innovations and equipments, if not comparable in quantity, at least comparable in quality to any hospital, was a good investment.

Lauds Cooperation.

Speaking of the splendid cooperation of the special hospital committees were receiving from the City Trust, the Nicholls Hospital Trust and the County, Alderman Sands said that it was only good common sense to take advantage of the opportunities offered. He said that the tentative expense of the hospital was figured at approximately $1,400,000, plus the value of the buildings and property of Nicholls Hospital, amounting to about $200,000. Thus, he continued, with the grants and donations 'in sight,' the hospital would cost the citizens of Peterborough about $600,000, and he considered it a good investment and good business, arguing that if "someone offered you an article worth $1.60 for 60 cents, you would certainly take advantage of the offer."

Attractive Residence.

Discussing the nurses' residence, the Alderman said that the committee realized that the hospital should be made as attractive as possible to prospective student nurses. He explained that a nurses' residence would be built near the hospital, and that each nurse would have her own room. He felt that since the student would be living in Peterborough for three years, she had a right to have her own room and to make it her home during her training period. Again stressing the good business angle, he explained that the more student nurses were enrolled, the less the hospital would have to pay to complement its staff with trained nurses.

Speaking of the work the Auxiliary had accomplished throughout the years, the speaker said that its members would be called on for even more service. He said that their work would increase, and that they would have a place in the new set-up and their assistance would be needed. He said that they still had a job to do even though it would be a civic hospital. Concluding, he urged the women to "talk hospital" to everyone.

Quoting the approximate cost of the new hospital to Peterborough tax payers, Aldermand Sands said that it would cost a person paying $90 a year in taxes, about nine cents a week, for twenty years. Allowing for the time for the necessary bills to be passed in the legislature, and the architect to draw up his plans, he said that the payments would probably not begin until January or February of 1947.

Consider Recreation

Miss Edith Young, superintendent of nursing at Nicholls Hospital, in a brief address, urged that consideration be given to the recreational life of student nurses. She said that the use of leisure time is a vital consideration, and that a challenge was presented to play a greater part in supplying suitable pastimes for leisure time. She explained that in the more complex and scientific profession to which nursing had grown, a more complex educational program was necessary, and new and adequate facilities for recreation were needed. She urged that special consideration be given to the type of school of nursing which would be best, and would appeal to student nurses.

Mrs. E. V. Morphet presided, and heard the secretary's and treasurer's reports, and accounts from committee conveners. Mrs. S. Graham, membership convener, said that to date, 1,568 members had joined in the new membership drive, quoting again the objective of 3,000 names. Mrs. R. Ross, of the visiting committee, said that 226 visits had been made by her committee during the period since the last meeting. Mrs. J. Detcher gave an account for the Wartime Prices and Trades Board, while Mrs. W. H. Hill's report for the Thursday Club was read by Miss E. Morrow, and Mrs. J. Wood reported for the Samaritan cupboard.

Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell, for the buying committee, said that the committee was trying to purchase pianos and sewing machines for the nurses' residences, and asked members who knew where either could be bought to contact the committee. Dr. Semple, welcomed the Auxiliary to George Street and told of his interest in their work. Miss E. Morrow was at the piano. The vote of thanks to the speakers was moved by Mrs. G. S. Cameron, who expressed the hope that members would carry the messages home with them, and spread them among their friends.

Home and School Association' News

CENTRAL SCHOOL

"Open House" was observed at Central School Monday evening, when a large number of parents met the teachers, and learned how their children were progressing and methods of teaching, before the regular meeting of Home and School Association.

Guest speaker was K. O. Birkin of the Normal School, who chose as his topic, "Education for National Unity." He explained that in this day, the citizen of a democratic state which is constantly undergoing changes, must be able to adjust himself to the new and changing conditions. He said that he must have a flexibility of mind that will enable him to meet these changes with intelligence.

Mr. Birkin suggested group organizations as another characteristic of a democratic state. He felt that children should be taught at an early age how to participate in these organizations, to help them develop open minds, stressing the value of co-operation among all peoples.

It was announced that the December meeting would be held on Tuesday, December 5, with F. H. Dearborn, principal, in charge. Mrs. L. Groombridge sang two solos, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. W. S. James. Mrs. G. Groombridge presided, and refreshments were served.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA.

The chief causes of juvenile delinquency, and how they can be overcome, were presented in a challenge to members of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association on Monday evening, by Miss Rachael Young. Miss Yonug, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, spoke under the topic, "The Responsibility of the Home and Community to Juvenile Delinquency."

Defining a delinquent as "one who is not getting satisfaction in life, and is maladjusted to his environment," Miss Young dealt with the home and community and the contributions each could make toward helping the delinquent to adjust himself. She said that the home is the source of all socializing and cultural influences, and is the place where the appliance of simple habits is taught. "It must provide security, understanding, decent housing, and intelligent parents," she went on.

"The community is responsible for the playmates, school mates, church mates, and recreation mates for the children, and has a definite contribution to make to delinquents in homes where strife and drink are prevalent, and inadequate room for privacy is provided," Miss Young continued. She said that inconsistency in training due to temper or mental defects was another cause of delinquency, suggesting state medical or free hospitalization to protect health, and the necessity for the working mother to provide adequate supervision for her children.

Better Homes.

The speaker outlined the aids for delinquents as better homes, more understanding parents, and good church associations. She said that the Peterborough school system had been very co-operative, but that more workers were needed to help. She asserted that the Y.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A. had been doing splendid work, but stressed the great need for local recreation centres, suggesting that school buildings could be used for that purpose.

The musical program included two piano selections, "Vesper Chimes" and "Hawaiian Echoes" by Sheila Smith, and two vocal solos "Come, Trip It" and "Sigh No More Ladies" by Mrs. L. R. Mitchell. G. Wilson Craw presented the project for the new civic hospital for Peterborough.

"Open school" was announced for Monday, November 20, and parents were invited to inspect the work of the pupils and meet the teachers.

The December meeting will be held on December 18, when a Christmas program will be presented by children of the school. Parents were urged to attend a talk in the Y.W.C.A. by Mr. Moebus, of the Collegiate, on "Career Planning" sponsored by the Women and Men Teachers' Federation. The roll call for mothers was won by Miss B. Hart's and C. D. Munro's rooms. Mrs. C. McBride, who presided, opened the meeting with a tribute to service boys and girls.

QUEEN ARY

Arnold Olmstead, discussing home education and the education of children of pre-school age, was guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association Monday evening. A large number of parents in attendance marked the opening of Education Week.

He pointed out that the purpose of education week is to interest the people in education and show that education in the home plays a very important part. He said that parents have a wonderful opportunity to lead children as they copy the habits of dad or mother, and read a pamphlet, 'The Prodigal Father.'

Mr. Olmstead continued by saying that living with others takes much adjustment and children must be taught this fact early in life. "Parents should feel that each child is brought into the world to fill a

Mother Not to Blame for the Children's Colds

Despite all the mother can do the kiddies will run out of doors not properly wrapped up; have on too much clothing; get overheated and cool off too suddenly; get their feet wet; kick off the bed clothes, and do a dozen things the mother cannot help.

Half the battle in treating children's colds is to give them something they will like; something they will take without any fuss, and this the mother will find in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, a remedy used by Canadian mothers, for the past 48 years.

Price 35c a bottle; the large family size, about 3 times as much, 60c, at all drug counters.

A LETTER FROM THE CHIEF*

BILL: Boy, that's what I call a letter!

JOE: From your girl?

BILL: Nope—from the President of my company. He tells me there's a job waiting for me and all the rest of the 2,200 Bell employees who joined up. Not only that—he says it looks right now as though they'll have to take on still more staff if they're to handle their post-war program.

They're giving credit for war service, too, when it comes to position and pay when we get back.

JOE: Pretty good outfit to work for, eh, Bill?

BILL: They're O.K.! Looks as if they have lots of work lined up—and that I'll be really needed... Think I'll write Marj about it right now.

*Bill is referring to a paragraph in a recent letter from our President to 2,200 Bell employees on war service, which read:—

"... I imagine you are more concerned with what conditions will be in the company when you return. Already we have done our best to look ahead and plan for the post-war period ... Our present estimates indicate that we will need to retain all our employees now on the force; that there will be a job for you and all other Bell employees who return from active service, and that it will be necessary for us to hire a number of new employees."

Havelock United Church Observes 60th Anniversary

HAVELOCK, Nov. 7 (ENS) — The Havelock United church celebrated its 60th anniversary, Sunday, when Rev. F. W. Craik of St. James' United church, Peterborough, was the guest speaker at both services. The congregation were asked for a thankoffering of $500 and this amount has been realized.

For the morning service Mr. Craik spoke on the subject "A man after God's Own Heart," choosing two texts as a basis for his discourse, first, Samuel's reproval of Saul in 1 Samuel 13, verse 14, and Acts 13, verse 22.

When there is anything specific to do and God is looking for a man He knows exactly where to go for him. When He sees fit to call His saints to Gloryland He never leaves the church without Christian workers, the speaker said. Also when God is looking for a man or woman for His service He never thinks of the evil things he has done but looks for the noblest. Mr. Craik said this was exemplified in David. He was not a perfect type for he had sinned, yet the one who has transgressed is the one whom God is looking for despite the criticism by so-called Christians.

Mr. Craik pictured David from the standpoint of friendship and love and said that no fraternal society had exemplified fidelity and brotherly love as David had in his relation to Jonathan, and advised his hearers that if they wanted a song to help them through tomorrow to look at David and forgetting the past, re-dedicate their lives to doing the things that God calls them to do.

Personal Influence

In the evening Mr. Craik's address was woven around the hymn "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee," with Romans 12, verse 11, as a basis for his sermon. Mr. Craik dealt with personal influence and gave incidents from the lives of Henry Drummond and Florence Nightingale to illustrate how much good can be done through the atmosphere of a good life.

He then dealt with the atmosphere of Jesus' life, first taking his enemies, the Pharisees, Pilate, the wife of Pilate, Judas, the Centurion who gave the order to crucify Christ, and the thief on the cross, and showing from some incident in their lives how they had been influenced by Him. Next he spoke on Christ's friends, John the Baptist, Peter, Thomas, Paul, and those of modern times, John Bunyan, Oliver Cromwell, John Knox, David Livingstone and Grenville of Labrador, illustrating from their lives the good that may be derived through "Walking With the Master."

Special music was sung at the morning service by the senior choir directed by Mrs. J. W. Wilkinson, comprising an anthem "How Beautiful Upon the Mountains," a solo, "Gently Lord, O Gently Lead Us," by Miss J. McDermott and a mixed quartette "Harbor Bells" by Mrs. S. Southward, Mrs. J. Clarke, Gordon Young and E. D. Chiles. In the evening the junior choir officiated under the leadership of W. M. Platt, entering the church in processional singing "Onward Christian Soldiers" to a musical arrangement by Ira B. Wilson. Other numbers sung were: anthem, "Crown Him King"; anthem by senior girls "In His Garden Fair"; quartette "No Room for Jesus' by Stella Wilkinson, Ruth Wilkinson, Dora Ketchen and Jacqueline Puffer; the latter three girls repeated by special request a trio "Beautiful Words of Jesus."

Sent Greetings

A message of greetings and good wishes was read from the congregation of Knox Presbyterian church.

The first Methodist church, the beginning of the present United church, was a frame structure erected in 1884 and situated on what is now the J. Gibb property on Concession street at Old Havelock. The church was dedicated in May, 1885, Rev. D. E. F. Gee of Norwood assisting the minister, Rev Isaac Puffer. This charge was called at that time the Blairton Mission Circuit and comprised five preaching stations, namely: Blairton, Havelock, Rockdale, Victoria and Garrisons.

During the pastorate of Rev. J. J. Rae 1889-1892, the parsonage, which was destroyed by fire in December, 1942, was built, and at the same time the church was moved from Old Havelock to where the present church now stands This church was sold and moved to where A. C. Denike's drug store now stands, where it was used for a store, later being destroyed by fire. The present church was built in 1896, the corner stone being laid by the Rev. T. W. Jolliffe. The pipe organ was installed in 1913.

Special Service At Millbrook Church

MILLBROOK, Nov. 7 — (ENS). — Grace Presbyterian Church observed its anniversary on Sunday, morning and evening, with large congregations, and the guest speaker, was Rev. Samuel Johnston, B.A., of Toronto, minister-elect of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Peterborough. The soloist for the day was Mrs. Johnston, wife of the visiting minister, her selections including at the evening worship, "O Shepherd Of The Flock", and following the sermon, "Hold Thou My Hand". For the choir number, "Why Not Now?" the verses were taken as a duet by Mary Blair and Ethelda Hubbeard. Mrs. Harold Hubbeard presided at the organ.

It was unfortunate that, just as the people were gathering for the evening service, lights in the community were all cut off through a broken high tension wire just east of the village, which resulted in the Hydro pole and the grass in its immediate vicinity, taking fire, so that an alarm was sent in. No damage took place, however, and the lights came on again a short time before the minister concluded his sermon. In the meantime, enough coal-oil lamps had been secured to furnish light for the pulpit, the choir loft, and for the piano which had to be brought upstairs, the power being off the organ.

Rev. A. L. Sisco, B.D. of St. Andrew's United Church, assisted with the Grace church service in the evening, bringing greetings from the sister congregation, and reading the lesson from Matthew 5, from which chapter Rev. Mr. Johnston chose his text: "What do ye more than others?"

The challenge to the Christian in Christ's words was developed, under the headings: that Christ expects more from His followers than from anyone else; because they profess more, and because they have a greater example in him; because Christians have more resources than anybody else since the weakest individual on God's earth is strong when he knows that in God is his strength; while we have a great and noble ideal set before us, God doesn't expect us to be other than ourselves; how then are we to fulfill God's expectations concerning us, he said. By the assurance that there is no command given in the Scriptures that is not backed up by God's promises, and by His almighty power we shall succeed. What we are unable to do for ourselves, Christ stands willing to do fo us, and to give us the power to accomplish.

Love And Patience Are Required In Aiding Soldiers Re-establish

"We have got to thaw out our hearts in dealing with our soldiers, airmen and sailors after the war", declared R. S. Hosking, national secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in an address before the Peterborough Rotary Club Monday on the subject "What the War has Done to Canadian Youth".

Emphasizing the fact that the government could not possibly fill in all the gaps in the rehabilitation problem, Mr. Hosking urged the church, Y.M.C.A. service clubs, and individual Canadians to open their hearts to former service men and exercise love and patience in helping them to reestablish themselves in Canada after the war. "Paper plans are OK", said the speaker "but give me heart plans".

Mr. Hosking was introduced by Rotarian George H. Roper, secretary of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A.

"I am satisfied that in the past we have not done as much for youth as we will have to do in the future" said the speaker. "Any nation that does not look after its seed corn can have no future."

Canadian youth, he said, was playing the leading role in the great tragedy that was being played on the stage of the world and playing it exceedingly well. Yet he reminded them that a few short years ago youth was not on the stage at all, not even in the wings. They had no jobs and they were roaming the highways and riding the rods.

Tragedy of Life

"It is one of the tragedies of Canadian life" said Mr. Hosking, "that the generation which had to roam over the country, sleeping in hay stacks and in police stations should be the generation that has been called on to save democracy".

'The stone that the builder rejected has become the corner stone of the whole building'. I don't know what your reaction is but it makes me feel very humble. I suggest that we have got to do better for this generation than we did in the past or history will laugh at us and mock us".

Family Life Hit

Referring to the effect of the war on Canadian youth Mr. Hosking pointed out that no unit of society had taken a greater beating because of the war than had the family. War was one of the great scatterers of family life. Members of Canadian families were spread around the world and when the costs of war were added up it would be found that family life was paying a heavy price.

The resulting conditions in family life, with members serving in the armed forces, the father in the services, the mother perhaps working in munitions, mass shifting of populations and other war-time developments was having its effect upon the children. In the United Kingdom where the strain on family life was much more severe than was the case in Canada, he had found, he said, some encouragement in the fact that family life there had proven to be tough. In spite of all the shocks of war it got together again whenever the opportunity offered.

Mr. Hosking said that if he had had any medals to hand out in the United Kingdom he would have handed them to the girls of 12 and 13 years of age, too young to go to work in munition plants but old enough to take over the drudgery of running the home and looking after the younger children while mothers went out to war jobs.

The speaker said that family conditions caused by the war had been responsible for an increase in child neglect and in juvenile delinquency. This was not to be wondered at, he said, "You can't hold up the commando as a hero and expect children to be satisfied to play tiddly-winks or dominoes" Mr. Hosking declared.

The Adolescent Problem

The war crop of adolescents constituted a problem that needed some thinking about. There was a tremendous pressure on the children of 12, 13 and 14 years and as a result those in that group were going to need patient sympathy. "The 14-year-old boy who leaves school to earn big wages in a war plant on the ground that it is patriotic may not be doing something patriotic at all" said the speaker who pointed out that this condition was creating a serious problem for the future. It would be far better if every 14 and 15 year old boy was encouraged to remain at school, Mr. Hosking stated, pointing out that the position of these youngsters who had gone to work in war plants was insecure and uncertain.

Discussing the effect of war service on Canadians in the navy, army and air force the speaker said that in addition to the visible casualties there would be wounds to the spirit and the emotions that would leave no scar but would still be there.

As to the men who came back in reasonably good health and sound mind Mr. Hosking remarked that they would come back with a new sense of dignity and importance. "They were the saviors of the world; they have accomplished things that were worth while. You are not going to push those fellows around when they come home. You can't expect to put a group captain, who has been flying a bomber over Berlin and taking equipment worth thousands of dollars over Germany and bringing it and his crew back safely, at work sweeping a floor."

The men in the services, he continued, would come back also with a new sense of fellowship and comradeship. They would be lonely for that fellowship when they came back. He had noticed that some of those already home from overseas were restless and didn't seem to know how to put in their time.

Government Can't Do All

Mr. Hosking said that he was not setting himself as authority but he wanted to leave a few thoughts with his audience on post-war conditions. In the first place he said that he was satisfied that the government couldn't do the whole job of rehabilitation. There were certain things that it could and should do but it was powerless in other areas. It was the duty, he felt, of the churches, the Y.M.C.A. service clubs and of Canadians generally to fill in the gaps

"We have got to thaw out our hearts" said Mr. Hosking warning that many of the returned men might come home pretty short in temper. "No matter what they do" he said "we have got to love those fellows and stick by them. We have got to exercise untold patience in dealing with them."

"We haven't suffered like they have" the speaker remarked, adding that he was convinced that we must endeavor to find jobs for the returned men commensurate with their service. It was idle to expect a man who had risen to the job of colonel while still young to take any odd job when he came back, even if he had never learned to work. It wasn't going to be easy to look after such men and give them the jobs they should have but it must be done.

Remarking that the Y.M.C.A. had decided to issue six months free membership tickets to all returned service men, Mr Hosking said that that was done not in a spirit of sympathy but rather because there was a big job ahead of the Y.M.C.A. and it was felt that returned men would respond to the challenge if they were asked to help the Y.M.C.A. solve its problems.

The leaders of the Canada of the future, the speaker remarked, were to be found in the soldiers and airmen and sailors of Canada, and he was satisfied that if the returned men were approached with a challenge to lend their aid in making this a better country after the war they would readily respond

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, November 8.

According to the lunar transits for this day the emphasis may be concentrated on personal, social, domestic and affectional matters, although there is much promise for all business affairs relating to these aspects of life, as well as all artistic, cultural and romantic aspirations. There is a sign of perhaps a lively celebration of prosperity, peace, happiness and these in which personal magnetism, prestige and glamor may be conspicuous and influential. Courtships, marriage and other domestic festivities are in order.

If Is Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of prosperity, happiness, peace and general well being with suitable festivities to signalize such romantic, domestic, cultural and gratifying occasions. There should be enhanced glamor and personal magnetism, in which beauty, idealism and notable good fortune are emphasized. These should not be negated by extravagance, over acting, or by certain treacherous agreements or connivances.

A child born on this day should have an artistic or romantic temperament, with much personal charm, which it may use to its disadvantages by some tricky or intriguing alliances.

Norwood W.I. Plans Citizenship Meeting

NORWOOD, Nov. 7.— (ENS). — Plans were made at the November meeting of the Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. C. Davey for a rally and citizenship meeting in the W.I. room November 21. A pot luck dinner was planned as the meeting is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mrs. Clarence Hayes, of Georgetown will be the speaker.

Other business discussed was a bazaar and tea to be held in the W.I. room on November 18. Several articles of clothing for children made by the members will be on sale as well as baking and vegetables. A sewing meeting will be held on Friday. Mrs. H. Rogers and Mrs. W. Gallaher will be hostesses.

Mrs. G. Baker was chosen as delegate to attend the convention to be held in Toronto November 14, 15 and 16, the theme of which is to be 'Greater Co-operation For Service in Rural Life.' Mrs. C Davey spoke briefly of the girls club, which has held one meeting, the project being 'bedroom accessories.' The officers for the club are as follows: President, Betty Andrews; secretary, Mrs. A. Baker; treasurer, Betty Wright. The girls were instructed to have their material ready for curtains, bedspread, dresser scarf, chair seat cover, waste basket or a curtain for a dressing table. Each member is to make any three of the above.

It was decided to use money from the funds to buy articles to fill a comfort bag for the I.O.D.E. and Mrs. F. J. Stewart and Mrs. G. R. Baker gave a description of their recent trip to Calgary and Banff.

SUPPLY BASE GETTING CLOSER—Up to now Allied supplies for the battle of Germany have come 400 miles by road and rail from Cherbourg (black arrow) or from prefabricated beach-harbors on the Normandy channel coast. Now, with the opening of the great port of Antwerp, Belgium, the supply base distance will be reduced to only 75 miles away from the front. Recent Nazi reports indicate British "sabotage parachutists" have dropped behind the line at Arnhem.

GRANDMA GETS SEAT OF HONOR

Her Methods of Baby-Care, Rockers, Big Kitchens All Coming Back.

IT appears that after having been incarcerated in the doghouse for the past twenty years, Grandma has been liberated and invited into the parlor and given the seat of honor. For not only her daughters and her daughters-in-law but also the doctors have discovered that she is a shrewd old body who has learned a lot by living and who has some mighty good ideas that they now are putting into practice.

Especially about babies. Time was when every young mother, with her first infant, thought she knew more about rearing children than Grandma, who had brought up a family of eight or nine. She would no more have thought of taking Grandma's advice about Junior than she would have administered a dose of poison to him.

She conceded that Grandma meant well, but her ideas were all so old-fashioned they couldn't possibly apply to a modern baby. Yet, when you come to think of it, there doesn't seem to have been any improvements, alterations or new gadgets added to the baby pattern in the last million years.

Babies Need Her Affection

The young mothers positively shuddered when they thought of how Grandmother reared her children and they couldn't understand how a one of them survived. Why, she actually cuddled the poor little helpless things in her arms and kissed them—can you believe it? She rocked them to sleep and sang to them and talked baby-talk to them and told them they were the booofulest fings in the world and Mama's own pet lambs.

But, thank Heaven, the modern mother knew better. She didn't risk her precious darling's life by even letting Grandma touch him and as for letting Grandma kiss him, pet him or handle him, she would have died defending him from such dangers.

And now the baby-specialists tell us that babies are human beings, even as you and I, and that they love company and get bored and lonesome when they are left by themselves; that they adore flattery and want to be petted and made much of, an that instead of Grandma being bad medicine for Junior she is just what he is crying for.

And, believe it or not, for it seems too good to be true, Grandma is bringing back the big kitchen. For years and years now, architects have vied with each other to see which one of them could compress a kitchen into the smallest space until they have got them so little that you can't get a square meal into one of 'em. That is the reason there is so much bad cooking, because it takes elbow room in which to beat up a souffle, baste a turkey or concoct a pie that mustn't be shaken in the baking.

One of the sweetest recollections of any of our lives is Grandma's great big kitchen that always smelled like all the spices of Araby, and with the cookie jar in easy reach of youngsters. And when we get that back we are not going to have so much juvenile delinquency and divorce. It is kitchenettes that have been our ruin.

And, praise be, rocking chairs are another blessing that Grandma is bringing back with her. Once more we can loll at our ease instead of having to sit up stiff and straight as ramrods.

Married Women To Be Released

OTTAWA, Nov. 7—Blessed or not, married is paying some kind of dividen to married personnel of the Women's Division, RCAF, under a policy which is demobilizing them from the force.

While headquarters is reticent about the program, it is understood that it is already in effect, and that most of the 1,400 married personnel of the total present strength of 14,000 will be returned to civilian life shortly.

In contrast, Defence Minister A. G. L. McNaughton, yesterday at Arnprior, told war veterans that both men and women will be urged to join the army in the voluntary enlistment program that is under consideration.

The RCAF (WD) is the senior women's service organiaztion. It was authorized on July 2, 1941, and became a component of the RCAF in February, 1942. Peak objective called for a force of 20,000. By August, 1944, more than 16,800 had enlisted.

Present strength of the CWAC's is given at more than 15,000, and of the WRENS, 5,000.

That we do not think of you.
To those who have a mother,
Cherish her with care,
You will never know her value,
Till you see her vacant chair,
— Lovingly remembered by daughter, Mabel and sons, Wilmot and Bert.

JORDAN—In loving memory of a dear husband, James Jordan, who passed away six years ago to-day.

If all the world, was ours to give,
We'd give it yes, and more,
To see the one we loved so well,
Come smiling through our door.
—Sadly missed by wife and family.

definite place and should begin early to fit that child to fill this place," he went on. "The child should also be taught at an early age obedience to all who need to give them commands," he said.

The speaker urged parents to accept their responsibility to the child and not to make mountains out of mole hills with regards to accidents; and not to decide for the children when they are too old to play with certain toys, as some children outgrow their toys before others. Mr. Oldmstead concluded by saying that children should above all be treated with caution, patience, sympathy and firmness of purpose.

Discusses Hospital.

W. G. Ovens spoke briefly on the civic hospital and after covering the hospital situation to date gave reasons why this new hospital is needed. The increased demand due to increased population; statistics show that ten out of every thousand require hospital care for an average of eleven days; social legislation and industrial health insurance has added to the number seeking hospitalization. He also pointed out that on a monthly average 26 acute cases were unable to receive admission to the hospital and there were about eighty others that the doctors did not try to get in because they knew it would not be possible. Mr. Ovens stated that prominent hospital authorities have been consulted and many outstanding hospitals visited and after seeing these other hospitals one realized more fully our own need. He also explained the cost of the new hospital to the people, pointing out that to a home owner assessed at $3,000 the cost would be $4.47 a year or about 8½ cents a week. He concluded by saying good hospitals, good schools and adequate recreation facilities all go hand in hand to make up a good municipality.

Two vocal solos by Miss Jean Jackson, accompanied by Mrs. H. V. Dobson, were enjoyed. Mrs. T. J. Carley presented a review of current events starting from D-Day and dealing with the advance through France, Belgium and Holland; the progress made by the Russians, and the Japanese being shoved back in the Pacific.

An interesting report of the regional conference was read by Mrs. C. H. Crowe. Reports were also given by Mrs. W. Fanjoy on the meeting of the Local Council of Women; by Mrs. G. Moore for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board; and by the secretary and treasurer of the association. A letter was read from the Teachers' Guild announcing a lecture on Friday, November 10 at the Y.W.C.A. when Mr. Moebus will discuss 'Career Planning.'

The President, Mrs. James Matthews, spoke briefly about the education week and called upon Mrs. A. A. Munro to read a poem on this subject. Mrs. Matthews also moved the vote of thanks to the speakers and those taking part in the program. During the evening, community singing was enjoyed, with Mrs. H. V. Dobson at the piano. The next meeting was announced for Tuesday, Dec. 5, when the speaker will be Rev. W. A. Filer. Refreshments were served at the close by Mrs. W. J. Hardill and her committee.

WINDSOR, Nov. 7—(CP).—Joe Rawlings thinks the custom of wishing on a penny a good one. He found 97 pennies, two dimes and a quarter while draining the fish pool at Jackson Park here—and a passing Kennedy Collegiate Institute student told him of the "wishing well" tradition.

the grass, scrubbing clothes in icy river water and washing our hair. This same little river was where they had been getting our drinking water. They have special trucks fitted with big tanks like gas trucks, and in this is a filtering apparatus. The water was chlorinated three times before we had it for drinking and washing our dishes in. We used that water until two dead Nazis were found in the pond above. Don't know where they got it after that.

"One of the girls had a little Red Cross German car given her. This was in good running order, except that the starter is broken and it has to be cranked. The other day a pal and I borrowed it to go to an American rest home near Cherbourg. Two Americans, going to Paris, had taken 3,000 francs from us to buy perfume. Eight days went by and we hadn't seen them, or the perfume, so we set out to investigate.

"First we couldn't find the road to turn off, and when we did, the car stalled. A military police jeep came along to see why we were sitting in the middle of a busy military highway and so we offered them the job of cranking our jalopy. I don't think they had ever cranked a car by the looks of their faces. Well old Lizzie wouldn't go. We pulled out everything on the dashboard, as the writing was in German. Soon we began to smell gas and figured the engine must be flooded. They shoved us along for a mile or so before she finally caught on. When we got to the camp, our friends weren't there, so while we waited, a sergeant cook made us hot pork sandwiches and served American coffee. To end the story, we got our perfume, and money refund, and also had to be shoved another mile home."

Lieut. Trotter is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Trotter, R.R. 4 Peterborough, and is a graduate of the 1941 class of Nicholls Hospital.

Has Belgian Friends

Another Peterborough soldier, Pte. George Willshaw, has written home enthusiastically about the kindness of the Belgian people since he entered that country with the Army of Liberation. He is with the R.C.A.S.C. and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Willshaw, 178 Sophia street.

"The people are wonderful here and can't be beaten. They are so kind and I have made some real friends, who are going to write to you. They are a Mr. and Mrs. Verbanck, and I am treated just like one of the family. Although everything is expensive, you can buy nearly everything you want, and there are lots of places to go."

Pte. Willshaw enclosed some snaps of a German battle flag which he and his buddies captured. A brother, Pte. Jimmy Willshaw, with the H. and P. E. Regiment in Italy, was wounded a while ago and he wrote recently:

"I am feeling fine and getting along O.K. I was up to the Regiment, but was only there a few days. My shoulder was a little too sore to wear the equipment, so they sent me out again. I finally ended up in a hospital and stayed five days. They couldn't find anything wrong but figured it was likely a muscle, which was still a little sore. At present I'm at a British Convalescent Depot, but expect to leave in a few days.

"We are living in tents and most of the boys are English. The rest are a mixture of Canadians and other nationalities. The English boys are easy to get along with, and we have a couple of them in our tent. We go on parade at 8 in the morning till 10.30, then we are through for the day. We are not allowed out till 5 at night and we have to be back at camp by 10 o'clock.

"The war news seems good these days. It didn't take the armies long to get into Germany. They are doing a great job and I can't understand why they won't give up now. The fighting here is sure tough. The Jerries are putting up a battle all the way."

Comforts Parents

Not only do chaplains at the front strive to bring comfort to the men who are fighting this war, but they remember their people at home, and the busy padre, H-Major S. B. East, of the hard fighting 48th Highlanders, found time to write a reassuring letter to Mr. and Mrs. James W. Ketchen of Havelock, whose son, Dvr. D. A. Ketchen, is serving with that unit in Italy.

"By the light of a flickering candle in one of the few remaining rooms of a demolished Italian manor house, I write this letter as your son sits near me in this, our Regimental Aid Post. We have had a long talk together about home and loved ones, and the things that men talk about as they face the grim realities of a life and death struggle.

"Dvr. Ketchen is doing excellent work. Although none too robust looking, he has that mental and spiritual sturdiness which is enabling him to endure with a strong heart the worst we have had to face yet. He will not be in the line for a few days since his officer, Capt. R. Murdock, is in charge of the Rear Echelon, at present. This officer speaks exceedingly well of your boy and you can be proud of him.

"As Padre of the Highlanders, I consider it an honor to know him. All this I write in the hope that this letter, will, in a small way, lessen the thousands of miles which separate you from your boy."

Keeps 'Em Flying

Even under stress, the R.C.A.F. manages to keep its planes in the air, even when they have to try something a little out of the ordinar. The following item about W.O. William Harle, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Harle, 336 Rubidge street, appeared in the R.C.A.F. paper "Wings Abroad" recently.

"An emergency modification to the propeller of the Typhoon flown by W.O. William Harle, was necessary when the tips were bent while taking off. There were no spares, so the mechanics cut off 7 inches at the end of each blade.

"It flies just as well as it ever did," W. O. Harle said on his return from an operational flight."

Brighton Ships Milkweed Crop

Four thousand bags of milkweed pods have been loaded at Brighton, the first time Ontario has ever heard of and promoted a harvesting of this weed. A Northumberland comment that October was wonderful for work with "excellent progress in the gathering of apples, cabbages and root crops" is a dominant note in the weekly report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Hundreds of wells are dry in Carleton county and in Frontenac "water supplies are getting scarce." Rural eastern Ontario is hoping for more rain before winter takes control.

Most of the dairy cattle are still in pasture in Glengarry where dust is flying behind plows.

A slackening in hog production is observed in Grenville, "labor scarcity rather than feed shortage being given as the reason." Generally, the area of plowing is larger than last year.

Prescott-Russell news is typical: "Pastures are quite green for November; most of the plowing is completed; farmers are having to haul water for live stock in a good many localities."

Stormont says: "Many farmers are drawing water from a considerable distance for their stock. Pullet flocks are laying well but at auction sales hens and pullets are difficult to sell, although eggs are bringing a good price."

BID OVER A REDOUBLE

DOES IT show some strength? Or does it show weakness? Your partner's bid after you have doubled and the intervening opponent redoubled may have either of those extremely different connotations, and it is important to know which your side is observing. Some contend that, the redouble having relieved you of any obligation to keep it open for your partner, you should pass unless you have a bit of strength. Others reason that you should disclose your suit length at once with a hand which is worthless in high cards. Plenty of misunderstandings come on this point.

North: ♠Q 10 3 ♥A Q 2 ♦A Q 10 4 ♣A 8 3

West: ♠A 7 ♥6 4 ♦K 7 6 3 ♣Q J 10 9 4

East: ♠9 6 5 2 ♥J 10 9 8 ♦9 8 5 ♣7 5

South: ♠K J 8 4 ♥K 7 5 3 ♦J 2 ♣K 6 2

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1♣	Dbl
Rdbl	1♠	Pass	2♠

And all passed. What a tragedy for North and South. An unbid small slam was made. West led his club Q to the K, the spade A was played on the 4, and the club 10 came back to the A. Followed the spade Q and 10 to the K, the diamond J not covered by the K, the spade J, the heart A, Q and then the K. As that heart was played, West was holding his K and two other diamonds and the club J. He was squeezed between the dummy's club 8 and the diamonds. He discarded a diamond. So the declarer finessed the Q, dropped the K with the A and scored the 10 for the final trick.

East got away with an almost foolhardy psychic redouble solely because he caused North and South to misunderstand each other. South thought his bid over the redouble indicated some strength, and felt that if North could lift it to only 2-Spades, North had a pretty weak doubling hand. North, however, thought South's bid over the redouble showed weakness, so that he had to go gingerly and barely raise. If North had thought it showed strength, he would have jumped to 4-Spades. If South had thought North took it to indicate weakness, and could raise anyway, South would have jumped. But the slam would have been hard to reach, after the psychic. Notice what would have happened if the redouble of 1-Club had been left in by all concerned.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠J 9 6 5 3 ♥Q 10 8 4 2 ♥10 9 7 ♣None

West: ♠A 8 4 ♥9 7 ♦8 3 ♣A J 10 6 3 2

East: ♠10 2 ♥A K J 3 ♦A K 4 2 ♣K 9 5

South: ♠K Q 7 ♥6 5 ♦Q J 6 5 ♣Q 8 7 4

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

If North launches the bidding of this deal with a psychic 1-Spade effort to mislead his strong opponents, how should the affront be shown up?

Canadians Are United Nation United By Canadian Creed Public Accountants Are Told

MONTREAL, Nov. 7—(Special to The Examiner) — Canadians from all parts of the Dominion have so many valuations in common that we are one people, and what may appear as not harmony to superficial observers, is actually a melody, the song of a free people living and working in unity, declared Chester S. Walters, Deputy Provincial Treasurer and Controller of Finances for the Province of Ontario, who addressed the annual dinner of the Corporation of Public Accountants of the Province of Quebec, meeting here on Monday. Mr. Walters chose as his topic, "Canada, Incorporated, But Not Limited".

He said, "Too Many Canadians spend too much time emphasizing our differences of race, culture, religion and language. We are a united nation. We are united by a Canadian creed; we live by it, and we will die for it".

Obedience To Creed

Mr. Walters told the meeting we are united because we are alike,— though differing as brothers and sisters will,—and we have proved in the past that at every time of crisis, the best that is in us asserts itself, in obedience to our Canadian creed. This creed, he said, embodies the idea of the essential dignity of man made in the image of his Creator; of man's fundamental equality and perfectibility, regardless of color, creed, or race; of the indisputable fact that power comes from the people, and only from their voluntary consent; that right alone makes might; that the law of the land is, of all human institutions, the most sacred, not thrust upon us by tyrants, but springing within us as the foundation of all our liberties, civil and religious, and the inward witness to our moral and spiritual growth and advancement; that man's right to freedom, justice and equality of opportunity are natural and absolute.

To the mind of every Canadian, he said, this creed symbolizes the real meaning of our age-old struggles for a more abundant and better life. It is, he asserted, we, the people of Canada, at our very highest.

Mr. Walters said that although Canada is still a comparatively young nation, in many respects, she already outranks all but a few of the leading nations of the globe. Being the third largest country in the world, he said, we have the soil, climate, geographical position, great waterways, railways, highways, and airways, the natural resources, and the men and women, to make us strong and self-reliant. We must, he said, bend every effort to the speedy winning of the war, to bring back our fighting men and women soon. Lauding the men and women of the armed forces for their heroic part in the struggle to preserve civilization, and the men and women of the home front, for their splendid work in backing the armed forces, he urged they receive the praise they so richly deserve.

Co-operate In Peace

"Let us continue to co-operate in peace as we have in war", he said. Let us drive out defeatism and selfisness and greed and special privileges and intolerance. Let us work, and work hard, all of us, to the end that Canada can fulfill her great destiny and become a nation of the happiest, noblest people on earth"

A colorful review of some of Canada's history was a feature of Mr. Walters' address. At the beginning of his talk, he urged that he thought of as only a Certified Public Accountant, despite the fact he has been described as one of Ontario's senior civil servants.

Right Point of View

"I am an ordinary citizen . . . just a plain common man", he said. "In an approach to any practical question I have learned from experience to stick as closely as possible to the common man's point of view, to follow his ideas and solutions of the every-day problems that crop up in this changing world. Wisdom is not to be found solely in the halls of learning, nor in the counting houses, nor even amongst the ranks of Certified Public Accountants. As we learn from Holy Writ: 'Great men are not always wise'. Moreoften, wisdom is the guide, companion, and handmaiden of the humble, the plain man, the man on the street. He lives in a real world, is ambitious for himself and family, and is always planning and working for a better and brighter world for his children, and his children's children."

"My earliest recollection of Canadian history has to do with poetry; in the well-remembered lines of Thomas D'Arcy McGee's poem, "Jacques Cartier", we read and memorized the story of the hardy navigator's first voyage to Canada. As our own childhood glimpses of Canadian history had to do with the seaport town of St. Malo, so our children and grandchildren thrill with pride today at the thought of Canadian troops fighting the Germans near . . . that and other ports from which came the first pioneer stock of Canada."

Mr. Walters said, Cartier left St. Malo in May 1534; three hundred and thirty-three years later, the "British North America Act, 1867" became law, uniting the provinces of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Ontario and Quebec, and by it, the four provinces with a population of three and one-half million, were incorporated as the Dominion of Canada. In the time that elapsed since Cartier first set foot on the shores of Canada, and 1867, when the country blossomed into a full-grown Dominion, Cartier's Old world, and the new world had both been made over. The people of the new world in the part known as Canada, had developed a civilization never dreamed of by the simple people of St. Malo. Cartier, LaSalle, Laval, Champlain, Brebeuf, Joliette, Marquette, and a host of other patriots and martyrs, whose names are linked with the glories of New France, have passed from the scene, leaving an heritage of which all Canadians are justly proud.

In Canada, he said, the sons of these two great races have become welded into one people. Like the joining of the Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence rivers, so may our streams of destiny be joined in a union that will lead to international brotherhood and lasting world peace.

After the first two prime ministers, John A. Macdonald and Alexander MacKenzie, both Scotsmen, had started the young nation on her way, the people began to look more to their native sons for leadership. The first choice of Canadian-born men, was Hon. Sir John J. C. Abbott and quite naturally, he was born in Quebec, the old mother province. Of eleven prime ministers in Canada since Confederation, two were born in Scotland, one in England, two in Quebec, one of them the illustrious Laurier; three in Nova Scotia, one in New Brunswick, and two in Ontario. Our present prime minister was born in Berlin, now Kitchener, Ontario. Since 1921, except for the periods, June 1926 to September 1926, when Rt. Hon Arthur Meighen was again prime minister, and 1930 to 1935 when Rt. Hon. Richard B. Bennett, now Lord Bennett, served as first minister, the Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King has filled the position as head of our young nation.

Entering Confederation

Three years after confederation, that is, 1870, Manitoba joined the Dominion; British Columbia joined in 1871, Prince Edward Island in 1873, and Alberta and Saskatchewan in 1905. Alberta has had eight premiers, five born in Ontario; the first one was Ontario-born Hon. Alexander Rutherford; the last Alberta premier but one, was Hon. William Aberhart, born in Ontario, who died in office May 1943; British Columbia had for its first premier Hon. J. F. McCreight, in 1905, Irish-born, as is the present premier, Hon. John Hart. Four of the B.C. premiers were Ontario men. Manitoba had its first premier, English-born Hon. A. Boyd, who took office in 1870. Two premiers of Manitoba were born in Quebec and the last five premiers, namely Hon. Hugh John Macdonald, son of Sir John A. Macdonald, Hon. Sir R. P. Roblin, Hon. T. C. Norris, Hon. John Bracken, and Hon. Stuart S. Garson, were all native sons of Ontario. The first premier of Saskatchewan Ontario-born Hon. Walter Scott, took office in 1905. Three other Ontario men were premiers of that province. Ontario has had fourteen premiers, all of whom were native sons.

"Of these fourteen," Mr. Walters said, "it has been my good fortune to have known personally and fairly intimately, eight, and my privilege to have served under four. They have all played their parts worthily as head of the Government of the grand old keystone province of Ontario."

He said, "I have been moved to tell you of the contribution that people of Ontario have made to the building up of our Western provinces, because I read and hear, with sorrow, stories which grow with constant repetition that the Province of Ontario is regarded by the West as 'self-centred and purse-proud.' I hope the people of the West do not so regard the people of the old Province of Ontario, whose sons and daughters have torn up their roots from their native provinces, and established themselves in new fields in Western Canada. I should like to refer briefly to two or three matters that have to do with co-operation between Ontario and with other provinces, and with the Dominion."

Mr. Walters then read the clause in the Succession Duty Act of Ontario that provides that no duty shall be levied on any property passing on the death of the deceased to any religious, charitable, or educational organization for the same purposes, carried out in any provinces except Ontario, which allows the same exemptions for exactly the same transaction. He said the province of Quebec has enacted similar legislation and the result is that if a person living in Quebec wishes to make a gift or to bequeath a sum to some organization as explained, in Ontario, the gift or bequest will not be subject to the Succession Duty Act of Quebec province. It works both ways, he explained, and termed it "fine co-operation" between the provinces. Ontario made the advances, was met half-way by Quebec, and the credit for the cooperation belongs in equal proportions to the two provinces.

OLD DESKS REMOVED—In a number of rooms of the Peterborough Public Schools the old desks are being removed and tables and chairs are taking their place. The new system is liked by both the teachers and the pupils and make new sense of freedom and friendliness has invaded the rooms. Tables And Chairs Are Replacing School Desks

By DON McGIBBON

When E. H. McKone, principal of the Peterborough Normal School, visited Queen Alexandra School recently, and asked Grade 8 students if they would like to return to the usual individual desks, rather than the new tables and chairs scheme, a uniform and emphatic "No" went up from the children, symbolizing to a great extent the manner in which parents, teachers and educational officials look upon this latest strike toward a better and more modern schoolroom in Peterborough's Public Schools.

There is nothing complicated about the new furniture, used in certain classrooms in May's, Confederation, Parkhill, Central, Queen Alexandra and King Edward Schools. Simple in construction, style and arrangement in the rooms and built in the Board of Education's workshop, these new tables have innumerable accomplishments chalked up in the record books, since they were initiated into the city schools.

Convert More Rooms.

Plans are being made now to convert many more classrooms from the individual desks, into tables and chairs. At the present time, there is oneclassroom in May's and Confederation Schools, two at Parkhill and Queen Alexandra Schools, using the new furniture. In Queen Alexandra, there has been a complete change in Grade 8 and Grade 1 classes, and the partial changes in the Grade 8 classes of Central and King Edward Schools.

Work in Groups.

One of the prime acomplishments of this furniture has been helping to train Public School pupils to work in groups, independently. A child with an inferiority complex, termed by psychologists an introvert, has always posed a problem to both teachers and other pupils. With tables and chairs, at which children sit together, do group work and learn to know each other better, introverts have little opportunity to draw into a [illegible] built around themselves, and u[illegible] it has been found that this c[illegible]ex clears up in a little time.

As everyone who has attended Public School at some time knows, the desks in use are clamped to the floor, set in lines up and down the room, and have little space for the books and accessories. A complete reversal of these conditions has been made now, and the problem of adapting the furniture to the type of work done has at last been conquered. Tables and chairs are not fastened to the floor, and if one arrangement for social studies proves not suitable for, say, mathematics, then the complete layout of new desks can be quickly and easily rearranged. Large surface space permits big maps to be unfolded and spread on the desk; the work in painting and modelling is facilitated, and children doing geography posters, or naming places on cardboard maps, find their work much easier if they can see the whole map at the same time. In connection with the actual school work of the pupil, teachers are finding new advantages to the tables almost daily, and according to the children their own work is becoming better, too.

School More Popular

But behind all the praises of the practical advantages of tables and chairs is another reason why they are favored, a more important basic reason, which schools for years have sought to induce in classrooms.

Working in groups, spending the day together with fellow-pupils, makes the school not a place to be shunned, but a popular rendezvous with both education and friendship. Tables and chairs have made classes more homelike to pupils.

K. S. Wightman, Inspector of Public Schools, revealed recently that the use of the desks has made a difference in the number of students who practice truancy. The fact is, he said, children in general seem to like to come to school where these desks are, better than they did formerly.

He said they work better in groups, and with a more homelike atmosphere in the proverbially-staid schoolroom the average pupil responds to the work and responsibilities much more readily than otherwise.

Mr. Wightman said: "We are getting away from the plan of every student looking at the teacher and the back of the head of the child in front; with individual desks the tendency was for the teacher to give and the pupil to receive. Now, however, self-activity is the keynote.

"With these tables and chairs we have an opportunity of getting at the introverts, helping them now so that they will not become mental problems in later years. We are trying to develop group work among senior pupils, and these desks lend themselves excellently to that purpose."

In the junior grades, smaller replicas of the desks are now in use in some cases, and for the younger children more space for play periods is made by having these non-fixed desks. Mr. Wightman said that junior grades are being changed over to tables and chairs as fast as possible, because a partial change is not advisable in younger children's rooms. With the seniors, however, furniture can be changed to an advantage at a gradual pace.

Amity the Rule.

Bringing children into groups to work together might prompt one to ask if the children get into more quarrels and squabbles that way, but according to Miss Helen Staples who teaches a Grade 1 class at the Queen Alexandra School, so far amity has been the rule and not the exception.

"They feel much more at home here now," she said, "and although you might expect temperaments to clash occasionally, it just doesn't happen.'

Miss Staples explained that with the desks in her room, much more space is allowed for group games and play periods for the youngsters' Tables and chairs can be moved about with ease, and when it becomes advisable to change the seating plan, that solves the problem.

For the senior grade, there is a great deal more space in their tables for books, just another on the growing list of benefits afforded by the tables.

What do the parents think about this arrangement? From all signs, everyone is perfectly satisfied and no complaints have been registered, and incidentally, none are expected. Parents in general have shown themselves to be well pleased with the new set-up, and as for the children, well, they don't want to go back to the old-style desks for anything.

It might be imagined that the timeless schoolroom habit of talking would be substantially increased with a grouping together of the pupils. J. E. R. Munro, principal of Queen Alexandra School, said that in his Grade 8 class, when lessons are not being taught, no objection is raised to a little talking, if the pupils proceed with their work. Mr. Munro observed that the children in general are enjoying their new, comparative freedom in a quiet manner, and have shown their respect for others in many ways during school periods.

But this is undoubtedly the $64 question. With children sitting close to each other around tables, how is "peeking" going to be prevented at examination time?

Mr. Wightman thinks there will be very little peeking, even under the circumstances.

"Of course, we're liable to find the odd child untrustworthy during an examination, but with the flexibility of the desks it will be simple matter to separate his table from the others," he said. Also a new class to the tables and chairs, accustomed to the rigidity of individual desks, might be tempted to peek. The chances are, however, that these pupils will become used to the new desks speedily, and the peeking urge will be abandoned.

Mr. Wightman said that so far no actual disadvantages have been found with the new desks. The major disadvantage is with the schoolroom itself, he said, being too small to make use of the full advantages of the desks.

"If we were able to build the schools over again," he said, "we would certainly make the rooms larger."

With the coming of tables and chairs to Peterborough's Public Schools a new sense of freedom and friendliness has invaded the classroom. It might well be that with the success of the table and chair already established, not only here but in other centres as well, the individual desk for young children, with its regimented atmosphere, is on its way to exit. In the minds of many people, including both parents, students and educational men, a pleasant and progressive coup de grace is in the offing for them.

Allies Expected To Speed War This Winter

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 — (CP) — The winter war in Europe is expected to see Allied operations on a scale as great as those of the summer and consequently little decline in casualties may be expected, Ottawa observers said today.

Discussing the continued need of army reinforcements, they said the Allies were pressing for a swift conclusion of the war and there was no tendency to be content with "digging in" for the winter.

Defence Minister McNaughton, speaking at Arnprior, Ont., yesterday, made clear the need of continued pressure on the enemy, when he said that the Germans must not be allowed time to organize his forces underground for sabotage and murder, to complete "new weapons and devices of vast power to use against us."

It seems possible, however, that after Canadian military operations on the Schelde are completed the troops will be withdrawn for a rest and reorganization. Another factor to be considered is winter weather conditions which in the past have had a tendency to bog down operations and this has reflected in light casualty lists.

Government officials would give no figures of Canadian reinforcements overseas for security reasons, but estimates have ranged from 60,000 upwards.

At home there are some 70,000 men in the home defence army who have not volunteered for overseas service. It has been estimated from 10,000 to 35,000 are fit for overseas.

Little Change In Siege Of Budapest

Torrential Rains Slow Russians Attacking City

LONDON, Nov. 8 (CP) — The promise of explosive action hung today over the long eastern front, where for the past two days Moscow has announced there have been no essential changes.

Torrential rains hindered Red Army troops jabbing at the outskirts of Budapest. The Russians were moving infantrymen into the front lines beside their tanks, while Soviet artillery plumped shells into the city.

Berlin said the Russians were preparing for a new large-scale attack toward Tarnow in southwest Poland from the Soviet bridgehead on the west side of the Vistula river. The Nazis declared the Russians have been withdrawing mechanized formations from the East Beskids area of the Polish-Czechoslovakia border to reinforce assault divisions and "the early beginning of a big battle is assumed."

Soviet troops in northeastern Hungary have pushed to two new bridgeheads across the Tisza river 75 and 125 miles north of Budapest, the Germans admitted.

A supplement to the broadcast Soviet communique said a reconnaissance in force was carried out in East Prussia and Eastern Czechoslovakia.

The Budapest radio said Russian troops were repulsed in an attempted landing on 30-mile-long Csepel Island in the Danube river, but admitted a landing was effected on a nearby smaller island. Csepel Island reaches into Budapest's precincts.

LT.-GEN. K. STUART

OTTAWA, Nov. 8.—(CP). —Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, 49, Ottawa, Chief of Staff at the Canadian Military Headquarters, London, hat gone on leave pending retirement, Defence Minister McNaughton announced to-day.

The brief announcement contained no reference to a successor, but said that Maj.-Gen. Price J. Montague, General Officer in Charge of Administration at C.M.H.Q., London, would continue to hold his present post.

There had been reports that both Gen. Stuart and Gen. Montague had either resigned or would be retired. These reports arose after Gen. McNaughton succeeded Col. J. L. Ralston as Defence Minister after a cabinet crisis over the reinforcement question.

Col. Ralston's resignation came after a tour of the battlefronts during which he is believed to have gathered information for his argument before the cabinet on the need for conscripting home defence troops for overseas service.

Gen. Stuart accompanied Col. Ralston back to Canada and it was understood his trip was for the purpose of supporting Col. Ralston's views if his advice was sought.

Gen. Stuart at present is visiting Montreal on personal business and when approached yesterday on the subject of his possible retirement he said he had nothing to say "at the moment."

Gen. Stuart, tall, grey-haired and ruddy, took over C.M.H.Q. last December 27 when Gen. McNaughton left his field command through ill-health. Gen. Stuart, former Chief of Staff, willed in as temporary Army Commander until he was relieved by Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, obtaining field experience as a Corps Commander in the Mediterranean.

It was to Gen. Montague that Gen. McNaughton wrote a letter December 7, 1943, signalling his retirement from active service. He referred to the fact he had not the strength left to look after the Army properly and added:

"I must and will accept the situation with the best grace I can muster."

Allies Gain One Mile Near Nancy

Heavy Panzer Units In Battle Beyond Aachen City

LONDON, Nov. 8 (CP) — United States 3rd Army troops charged in a dawn offensive today at points along a 25-mile front between Metz and Nancy, seized four lightly-contested villages and scored advances up to a mile.

To the north, infantry of the 1st Army still battled strongly-reinforced Germans in the town of Vossenack, 13 miles southeast of Aachen. Bloody and yet inconclusive fighting continued throughout the Hurtgen forest area. Two enemy counter-attacks near Schmidt were broken.

The 3rd Army "substantially improved" its line between Nancy and Metz, a front dispatch said. Midway between the two French cities, the Americans crossed the Seille river. Resistance ranged from light to moderate.

In Holland, the Germans retreating to the north bank of the Maas river had wrecked every river bridge between the Sea and Hedel, north or 'S Hertogenbosch, a field dispatch said.

Farther west British forces were completing a mop-up job on flooded Walcheren Island, attacking an enemy pocket northwest of Domburg where fighting still continued for the only German artillery position left on the Island.

The encounters southeast of Aachen — in which the Germans used heavy panzer units — were described by William Smith White, Associated Press war correspondent at the front, as greater in scope than the battle for Aachen itself.

In Vossenack, once seized by the Americans and then retaken by the enemy in a swift counter-thrust, a bitter hand-to-hand struggle raged through the centre of the town, and American artillery and fighter-bombers blasted at the enemy forces entrenched in every house in the northern half of the battered strongpoint.

IN FOR FOURTH TERM—Franklin D. Roosevelt, shattering all United States precedents, has been returned to office for a fourth term. The President led in 31 out of 48 states. The soldier vote from 11 states has not been counted, and is expected to swell the President's lead.

Electoral College Vote of 451 Against 80 for Thos. Dewey

Democrats Clinch Majority In Senate, Congress

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (CP) — Democrats today clinched a majority of the treaty-ratifying Senate and took stronger control of the House of Representatives as well as returns continued to roll in from Tuesday's Congressional elections. The 79th Congress will convene Jan. 3 predominantly Democratic.

Presidential intimates in the Senate will be enabled to route important international commitments, perhaps even the final peace treaty ending the Second Great War, through the legislative machinery. The United States constitution requires that a two-thirds majority of the Senate approve all treaties made with other countries.

Long before dawn the Democratic party clinched a mathematical Senate majority. Not since President Roosevelt carried the party into power in 1932 have the Democrats lost control of the Senate but successive elections sharply reduced their majority and the Republicans this year, for the first time in 12 years, had a chance of getting a slim majority. Of the 35 seats at stake yesterday Democrats took 15, Republicans 7, with 13 to come.

A fresh charge of Democratic power gives the administration a stepped-up voltage in the House where before they ruled by virtue of a bare majority. Early today Democrats had won 16 House seats heretofore held by Republicans and at that time had been elected to 182 seats in the 435-seat chamber. The Republicans had 99 seats with one each going to Progressive and American labor candidates.

The standing of the present (78th) Congress, members of which are elected for two-year terms unlike the Senate where one-third of the membership is elected biennially with members elected to six-year terms, is: Democrats 214; Republicans 212; Progressives 2; American Labor 1; Farmer Labor 1; Vacant 5.

Fish Thrown Out

The first Senate turnover toppled John A. Danaher, Connecticut Republican whom vice-president-elect Harry S. Truman had termed an "Isolationist.' But the Republicans had gained a seat in Iowa where Republican Governor Bourke B. Hickenlooper defeated Senator Guy Gillette, who was seeking re-election.

In the House, Hamilton Fish, Republican who long represented Franklin D. Roosevelt's New York home district but not his international policies, fell at last after 24 years in Congress. Throughout the

Reorganization Of Canadian Army Expected

LONDON, Nov. 8 — (CP. Cable). — The possibility that the 1st Canadian Corps in Italy may be brought back to fight as part of the 1st Canadian Army in Holland was reported today in a dispatch from Toronto published by the Daily Telegraph.

The dispatch added the resignation of Lt.-Gen. Stuart "is described as the first step in reorganization of the Canadian Army by which it is expected Gen. McNaughton, will seek to reunite the Canadian forces in Italy with those in Holland, assuming that Gen. Eisenhower and Field Marshal Montgomery will approve such a plan."

The resignation of Maj.-Gen. P. J. Montague, general officer in charge of administration at C.M.-H.Q., as well as of Gen. Stuart, is expected, said the Telegraph, one of three London morning papers to publish half-column reports from Canadian correspondents about the current controversy. (The subsequent Ottawa announcement said Gen. Montague would continue to hold his present post).

Position Untenable.

"Gen. Stuart's position is regarded as untenable in Ottawa military circles since his reports provided much of the foundation on which Col. Ralston (former Canadian Defence Minister who resigned last week) based his case for sending conscript troops overseas," the Telegraph said.

"More significant it is said Gen. Stuart was the Chief of the General Staff who sided with Col. Ralston when the decision was taken to break up the Canadian army and send a division and later a corps into action with the 8th Army in Sicily.

Michigan And Ohio Go To Roosevelt New Jersey To Dewey

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(CP).—Seesaw swings in three key states today kept in doubt the actual size of President Roosevelt's fourth-term victory but it was clear that he was armed with a fresh mandate from the American people to continue the leadership he has given them during the last 12 years.

Governor Dewey, his Republican opponent, inched into a lead in New Jersey, while Mr. Roosevelt threatened to capture Michigan and Ohio for the Democrats.

New Jersey shifted from the Roosevelt column at mid-day, but in a vote total approaching 2,000,000 Mr. Dewey's margin amounted to only 400. Outstanding ballots made the eventual decision uncertain.

Mr. Roosevelt was gaining in both Ohio and Michigan and there was a possibility that if New Jersey switched back and he won a lead in those two states he would run his electoral vote up to 451 against 80 for the Governor of New York who opposed him.

Early in the afternoon the popular vote for President, from 100,414 of the country's 130,810 voting units, showed Mr. Roosevelt with 20,434,190 and Mr. Dewey with 17,994,641.

Hope Vanishes.

The hopes of the 42-year-old New York Governor, who made a spectacular attempt to end the 12-year Roosevelt regime at the White House, crashed under an avalanche of ballots to which his own populous state added its majority.

Along with his mandate from the people to continue his leadership of the nation the President seemed certain to have a strong Democratic majority behind him in both Senate and House of Representatives.

Quits At 3.15.

Gov. Dewey admitted his defeat in a radio talk at 3.15 a.m. today. Before a crowd of 300 correspondents and friends in his New York hotel Dewey used the microphone to extend his congratulations and ask Divine blessings upon the President he has tried so hard to defeat.

Gov. Dewey told reporters he used that means of extending congratulations because he assumed the President had long since retired in his Hyde Park home on the Hudson River near here, after telling a serenading crowd of neighbors before midnight that the voting results seemed satisfactory.

But the President was listening to the radio and soon after the Dewey talk he sent the defeated candidate this message: "I thank you for your statement which I have heard over the air a few minutes ago.

Canadian Plan Being Discussed

CHICAGO, Nov. 8 — (CP). — Relevant sections of the Canadian Draft Convention on International Civil Aviation have been accepted as a basis of discussion in two of the most important sub-committees of the International Civil Aviation Conference.

These are the sub-committees on an international organization and on air transportation principles. The United States proposals are the basis of discussion in the sub-committee on air navigation principles.

This development is considered a step in the direction of the conference approving an international organization and the regulation of air transport on lines approximating those proposed by Canada.

It is recalled that at the preliminary discussion of the international aviation problem between the United Kingdom and the United States in London last winter the British Government sought to have the Canadian Draft Convention made the basis of discussion at an international conference but the United States considered the Canadian proposals too rigid.

With the return of members of the United States delegation who went to Washington to vote yesterday the conference is expected to plunge more deeply into the technical and political phases of its work.

Market Battle

The sham battle fought at one o'clock today in front of the court house will be repeated for the benefit of hundreds of Peterborough citizens unable to attend the earlier demonstration, this afternoon at five o'clock in market square. More than 130 young, trained soldiers took part in the fight, which was centred around the attempts of an attacking army to capture the court house, and take city officials prisoners.

Smoke bombs, Bren guns, rifles and pistols were all used by the soldiers, in storming the court house, defended by another platoon of soldiers, who fired from windows and points of vantage in the building.

Victory Loan Over Billion

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 (CP)—Canada's Seventh Victory Loan in its third and final week yesterday edged past the $1,000,000,000 mark on the way to an objective of $1,300,000,000, but the day's total was $11,000,000 below the 14th day in the previous campaign.

Yesterday's purchase of $78,826,750 brought the cumulative total for the Seventh Loan to $1,050,281,650.

The drop in yesterday's results was in the large subscription group, many of which were recorded earlier in this campaign that in the Sixth Loan.

On the 14th day of that campaign large buyers signed applications for approximately $57,400,000 while only $88,700,000 came from individual subscribers. In yesterday's total $35,933,150 came from individuals with $39,893,600 from large buyers. Cumulative purchases by individuals now amount to $475,665,550.

As the Loan now stands, 77.8 per cent of the canvassing time has elapsed but only 74.4 per cent of the Sixth Loan total, which was slightly in excess of $1,400,000,000, has so far been raised. The large buyers with $574,616,100 are somewhat below their purchases six months ago, due to the falling off in today's figures. The purchases of individual Canadians are better than 74 per cent of the $643,000,000 which they purchased in the Sixth Loan.

On the total dollar value of purchases, the present Loan is approximately $40,000,000 ahead of the same stage of the Sixth Loan.

Ontario's payroll buying continued favorable, with 903 of 2,000 establishments over quota, compared with 411 last Loan. Ontario municipal benefit funds continued heavy investments including Toronto Police Benefit Fund, $250,000; and Toronto Fire Department Superannuation and Benefit Fund, $175,000.

Canada Expected To Start Drive For Women Recruits

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 —(CP) —Canadian women are expected to play an increasingly greater part in Canada's war effort.

This greater participation probably will result from an intensified drive by the Labor Department for more and more women to take places in war industry and increased calls by the Defence Department for additional C. W. A. C. recruits to release men for overseas duty.

Attention was drawn to the need for more women in the war effort by Defence Minister McNaughton in a speech here Monday night when he issued an appeal for more women to undertake the "vital work" of turning out the shells and ammuntions needed by the troops on the battlefronts.

He stressed that much of the work in the filling and assembly plants, even in the shell-production plants themselves, could best be done by women who handle the delicate gear with "great precision" and have a natural aptitude for such operations.

Gen. McNaughton's appeal underlined efforts by the Labor Department in recent months to get 10,000 new workers—7,000 of them women —for the munitions plants. No figures have been published but it was understood the Labor Department drive was none too successful.

In all, the Labor Depatment is seeking some 173,000 worker, with an immediate need of 57,000 women.

Of Canada's 4,325,000 women of 14 years and over, 1,086,000 were in the armed forces or in industry at June 1. The total in the forces was 36,000 and in industry 1,050,000, including 195,000 working in war plants.

Gen. McNaughton's speech touched on the labor problem from another angle when he told of his plan to return to the army home defence troops now working on essential work projects.

It was understood that the immediate effect of his plan would be to stop the flow of draftees to war jobs, although the number working in those occupations has not been very large.

The process of returning those men to military duties is expected to be gradual.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—(AP).—Democrats captured three of the 26 Republican governorships in a notable election upset and today were threatening the G.O.P. hold on several others.

The turnover extended from Massachusetts in the east to Idaho in the west. It generally followed the Roosevelt tide.

Of the 32 states electing governors this year, Democrats were governors in 12 and Republicans in 20. Governors of the 16 states not electing this year are Democrats 10 Republicans six.

It was apparent that the Democrats had checked if not revised the Republican governatorial trend that started in 1938. As recently as two years ago the Republicans made a net gain of five governorships.

Hit Oil Plants In Day Raids

LONDON, Nov. 8 —(CP)—R.A.F. Lancasters, with fighter escort, today attacked the German synthetic oil plant at Homburg in the Ruhr, the air ministry announced.

A force of 350 American heavy bombers, guarded by 850 fighters, flew deep into central Germany today and attacked a synthetic oil plant at Merseburg.

After the heaviest bombing siege of the war, with more than 26,000 tons of bombs falling on Germany in three days, bomber crews of the R.A.F. and the 8th U.S. Air Force were given a much-needed rest yesterday and last night.

Italy-based fortresses and Liberators of the U.S. 15th Air Force, however, made heavy attacks on troop concentrations and rail targets in Yugoslavia, Northern Italy and Austria. Despite bad weather British and American fighter-bombers based on the continent also carried out attacks on key railway yards, bridges and gun positions along the western front.

A large railway bridge at Goch, just across the Dutch frontier southeast of Nijmegen, an oil storage tank and railway sheds at Emmerich were smashed by the R.A.F.'s famous rocket-firing Typhoons, which also destroyed two more Nazi-occupied buildings at Dunkerque. United States' light bombers cut a number of rail lines and bridges in the Ruhr.

Meanwhile, the Air Ministry disclosed that R.A.F. Lancasters had again drained the Dortmund-Ems canal, Germany's most important inland waterway, in a spectacular operation last Saturday. The canal was hit at exactly the same point —where it divided into two branches—as was smashed Sept. 23.

Japs Name Four New Top Officers

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—(AP).—Four new Japanese Generals and Admirals have been named to take over command of badly battered Nipponese forces in the Philippines in an effort to stop the American invasion, Tokyo radio reported to-day.

Bullet-headed Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, one of Japan's most successful field commanders, was named commander-in-chief of land forces in the Archipelago.

Admiral Denshichi Okochi, who led landing parties in "the Shanghai incident of 1937," was appointed to command naval forces in the Philippines area, Vice-Admiral Shigeu Fukutome and Vice-Admiral Takijiro Onishi were named joint commanders of naval air units in the Philippines.

12 Persons Die In Train Wreck

COFAX, Calif., Nov. 8 —(AP)—Twelve persons were killed when the westbound Southern Pacific Challenger was derailed at Lander, three miles west of here, early today, Coroner Francis E. West of Placer county announced.

The coroner did not estimate the number of injured. Previous unconfirmed reports said at least 75 had been hurt.

Confess Slaying Lord Moyne

Members Of Fighters For Freedom of Israel Body

CAIRO, Nov. 8.—(AP)—British officials announced today that two Jews from Palestine, claiming membership in the Sternist organization, had confessed the assassination of Lord Moyne, British resident commissioner in the Middle East.

The confession was given to two members of the Palestine police who arrived here yesterday, a day after the diplomatic member of the Guiness brewing family had been shot down at his residence, the British spokesman said.

The men were quoted as saying they came to Egypt with the express purpose of killing Lord Moyne. His chauffeur also was killed.

The police also quoted the men as declaring that the policies of the resident minister were prejudicial to Jewish aspirations for a national home in Palestine, and giving that reason for the assassination.

Their names were announced as Mosche Cohen Itzak and Ch. Salzmann.

"We are members of the fighters for freedom of Israel organization and what we have done was done on the instructions of this organization," the prisoners were quoted.

Officials said this organization was the Stern gang, which has been charged with numerous acts of terrorism in Palestine.

Plan Conference Of "Big 3"

Re-election Of President Is Acclaimed In London

LONDON, Nov. 8—(AP).—A new grand-scale conference of the "Big Three" before Christmas was regarded in diplomatic quarters today as an almost certain follow-up to President Roosevelt's re-election.

It was believed highly probable that the conference would be preceded by a meeting in Paris of Mr. Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Gen. De Gaulle.

London's three evening newspapers all bannerlined President Roosevelt's re-election, and editorials hailed the result.

"Above all," said the London Star editorially, "he now has authority to act, without fear of electoral contradiction, in the setting up of the World Security Council. He can meet Mr. Churchill and Marshal Stalin again backed by a terrific vote of confidence to win the war outright —and the peace."

The Evening Standard said: "The triumvirate whom all the world regards as the supreme architects of victory face future tasks every whit as colossal and inspiring as the grim conduct of the war."

The Evening News, saying that Britain had kept its ifs sealed in an attitude of elaborate impartiality during the campaign, observed:

"It would be hypocritical to pretend that President Roosevelt did not have our friendly if unspoken wishes in the fight."

Japanese Lose 1,000 Planes In Philippines

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Nov. 8 — (AP)—One of the bitterest battles of the Leyte campaign rocked the road to Ormoc today as United States troops and units of four Japanese divisions collided in ridges south of Pinamopoan.

The fight began when probing American advance parties were cut off in a series of Japanese counter-attacks.

The Americans extricated their isolated units after a night of fighting and U.S. long-range artillery—possibly firing over the mountains from the Jero area—harassed the Japanese rear at Ormoc and Valencia, starting fires in warehouses and hitting fuel dumps. They also assaulted enemy traffic in the narrow winding road north from Ormoc to the current front line.

American fighting planes dive-bombed Palompon, on the west coast. This port is the only one from which Japanese units north of Ormoc could hope to escape if they were cut off from Ormoc by the southern prong of the American pincers.

In Eastern Leyte, where large-scale Japanese resistance has been crushed, Americans wiped out remaining enemy pockets in the hills near Patok and Dagami.

Hundreds of carrier planes from the U.S. 3rd Fleet, in two knockout blows at Manila, increased to 1,000 the total Japanese aircraft they have destroyed and to 71 the warships they have helped sink or damage since Gen. Douglas MacArthur invaded the Philippines.

Soldier Kills Four Buddies Given Life Imprisonment

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 — (CP). — Gnr. Leslie Joseph Doyle, 38, of Kingston, Ont., sentenced to be shot to death when found guilty on a charge of murder by a field court-martial in Italy, has had his sentence commuted to life imprisonment and now is in a Canadian penitentiary, it was learned to-day from Defence Headquarters.

Evidence at the court-martial established that Doyle shot and killed a sergeant of his unit, later killed another sergeant and a gunner and wounded a bombardier so severely that he subsequently died of his wounds. Doyle then attempted to commit suicide by shooting himself through the head, but recovered from the wounds, Headquarters said.

The shooting occurred November 6, 1943, while Doyle's artillery unit was serving near the town of Campobasso.

Had Been Drinking.

Testimony revealed that on the afternoon of the shooting, Doyle had been drinking Italian wine at a farmhouse in the vicinity. He came back to camp about eight o'clock in the evening, sat down at the entrance of an improvised tent before a camp fire and dozed off, his loaded rifle in his hands.

One of the sergeants of his unit, just coming in from duty, attempted to awaken the sleeping gunner, Headquarters said. After a few words Doyle shot and killed the sergeant. The evidence indicated that Doyle then left the tent. As he was going out he shot and killed another sergeant and a gunner and wounded the bombardier. The attempted suicide followed, Headquarters said.

No provocation was established at the court-martial held in the field in Italy last June. The hearing was on a charge of murder and related only to the first shooting. Doyle was convicted and sentenced to be shot to death. The sentence was subsequently commuted to life imprisonment, and Doyle was returned to Canada to serve the sentence in a Canadian penitentiary.

The next-of-kin of all the soldiers shot by Doyle have been fully informed of all details.

Second Youth Taken By Police

TORONTO, Nov. 8 (CP)—Toronto police announced today they have recaptured the remaining three of the five youths who escaped from the Hasting county jail at Belleville Sunday night. They were arrested in a downtown department store.

The three are Martin Green, 20, David Kuigley, 17, and Bert Hawkins, 18, all of Toronto. Floud Andrezs, 17, was arrested in Belleville yesterday and the fifth, 17-year-old Norman Bell of Toronto, was arrested here last night after the automobile in which he and three others were riding hit a bus and careened off a curb gasoline pump into a parked car.

"I am glad it is over," Hawkins told police. "We made a very foolish move and we are sorry we ever did such a thing."

Following questions, the trio was taken in a police van to the Toronto jail.

The youths were captured by William Black, a former Toronto detective and now a store operator. Walking through the store coffee shop, Black spotted the trio and, growing suspicious, asked for their registration cards. Unable to produce the identification, the three admitted they had escaped from the Belleville jail. Black then summonsed help and two detectives rushed over from the City Hall to take charge of the prisoners.

Black helped by two women store detectives, first trailed the youths from the ground floor. They had lunches in their pockets which they said a farmer "somewhere down east" had provided.

Police said they had been warned of a stolen automobile heading for Toronto from Oshawa with four youths in it. The auto eluded the police in East Toronto as it sped into the city and after the crash its occupants dashed up alleys and backyards.

Police scoured the district for an hour without success and while they were searching Bell called at the back door of a fruit store, gave his name to the proprietor to notify authorities, then vanished. Later he telephoned police from his home.

Huns Making Suicide Stand

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY, Nov. 8 (CP Cable)—Behind an anti-tank ditch and some concrete defences, about 300 Germans today are making a last stand at the southern entrance to the Moerdike bridges across the Maas (Meuse) River in Holland, and Polish troops of the 1st Canadian Army are dealing with them now.

It is a strange suicide effort for there is little purpose to it. The Moerdike bridges have been blown and the Canadian Army can't use them. The German 15th Army has given up in southwest Holland, and yet the Germans are hanging onto this one last pocket.

About 100 reinforcements crossed the Waal Rhine to join the German Moerdike force, and 60 of them were captured. The reason for this move was as obscure as that for the hopeless resistance.

On Walcheren Island in the Schelde estuary a Germany battery continues to hold out on the northern section of the island.

Typhoons knocked out one of its guns yesterday, putting a rocket through a slit in its concrete casemate with dead-eye accuracy, but three other guns protected by similar casemates still are intact.

Cut Railways

The Tactical Air Force flew 282 sorties in a tricky wind yesterday in attacking Walcheren targets and concentrating on cutting railways in Holland and Germany.

(A Reuters despatch today said the Allies launched an attack this morning to clear the last Germans from the bridgehead at the southern end of the destroyed Moerdike bridges in Holland.)

The situation in Middelburg in the centre of Walcheren is being straightened out and efforts are being made to get 2,000 German prisoners and 47,000 Netherlanders out of the town. They have to be removed over flooded areas in boats and amphibious vehicles.

It is necessary to evacuate the civilians from Middelburg in order to feed them, because the flooding of the town's approaches has made it impossible to move in enough foodstuffs.

There is sufficient on hand to last until the evacuation is complete and the Canadian army civil affairs organization is meeting the problem.

1944 and previous campaigns, the President castigated Fish, charging him with being an ardent Isolationist and urging his defeat. The titular head of the Republican party, defeated Thomas E. Dewey, also had spoken out against Fish.

Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas scooted in without opposition and Representative Robert Ramspeck of Georgia, the Democratic whip, won handily. On the other hand, Clare Boothe Luce, Congresswoman-playwright traded pointed campaign jibes with Mr. Roosevelt and bobbed up a winner in the fourth Connecticut district.

Dewey Admits

Harry Truman, the Democratic vice-presidential candidate who automatically wins with the President although his own state went Republican, said "it was a grand statement by Gov. Dewey and it shows American sportsmanship in this political campaign."

Bricker Congratulates

Gov. John Bricker of Ohio, who wanted to be the Republican nominee for president but took second place to Mr. Dewey on the ticket, received the news of his defeat in Columbus, wh e he has occupied the governor's mansion for three terms. His state also went Republican. He sent warm congratulations to the winner and promised his co-operation.

The election of Roosevelt was conceded without waiting for the count of overseas soldier votes in the 11 states where they may be received after the statutory home voting date.

So far as reports indicate the election was conducted quietly throughout the country.

In this city and in most communities liquor stores and bars were closed until after the polls closed. Times Square was crowded and extra police were on hand while many store keepers boarded up their plate glass windows. But there was little need for these precautions.

Labor Gives Help

Little was revealed of the fate of the four minor parties which had presidential electors on some of the state ballots, including Norman Thomas who has been Socialist candidate in every presidential election beginning with 1928. He said recently he would not run again after the present contest.

As the Roosevelt trend became apparent shortly before midnight newspaper supporting the Republican cause, several of them such as the New York Daily News and Chicago Tribune, bitterly anti-Roosevelt, began to concede victory to the President.

The final blow came when New York, with its 47 electoral seats and about one-tenth of the total eligible vote of the country, swung from the Dewey to the Roosevelt column.

There was evidence that the President's victory in New York was due in a measure to support by the Liberal and American labor party organization. He had the support throughout the country of the adherents of the political action committee of the C.I.O., which his opponents labeled Communist.

Sidney Hillman, chairman of the P.A.C., said the results were "a stunning repudiation of the anti-labor isolationist and defeatist element who based their campaign on bigotry and prejudice."

Suicide Stand

Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, said in a field dispatch that about 100 reinforcements were sent across the Hollandsche Diep to join the German Moerdike force which is hopelessly cut off as the Germans already have destroyed the bridges here.

The stand in this pocket is being made by about 300 enemy soldiers, Munro added.

Rails lines were cut in several places along the Netherlands-German frontier also, the Allied communique said, and fighter-bombers and rocket-firing fighters hit an oil storage tank and railway buildings at Emmerich and the railroad bridge at Goch, just across the German frontier east of Nijmegen and Arnhem.

The Allied communique made no mention of ground fighting in the Maas Bulge east of Eindhoven, but the German-controlled Netherlands radio reported that bitter fighting was still in progress in the town of Meijel as British and American troops sought to regain the ground lost to last week's enemy counter-attack.

In the sector east of Luneville and Remiremont, where American and French troops have been making steady progress into the upper Vosges foothills for several days, heavy rains retarded the operations. To the south, the enemy launched a strong counter-attack west of Gerardmer, but the communique reported it was thrown back after stiff fighting.

There was no confirmation from Allied sources of German reports that Allied troops landed on Schouen island, northeast of Walcheren and north Beveland.

The British-Canadian campaign to clear the enemy from the region south of the Maas was virtually closed out.

As the Germans fell back beyond the river—apparently to new prepared positions—authoritative estimates placed their loss in southwestern Holland in the past month at between 43,000 and 48,000 troops—including 26,000 taken prisoner.

12,000 Huns In Dunkerque Can Hold Out Three Months

By DOON CAMPBELL—Reuter War Correspondent

OUTSIDE DUNKERQUE, Nov. 8—(CP-Reuter).—The 10,000 to 12,000 German troops cooped up inside the 25-mile perimeter of Dunkerque are reported to have enough "cattle, cabbage and champagne" for at least three months. Besieged by Czech troops of the 1st Canadian Army in one of Europe's most depressing battlefields, they are receiving special attention from the German high command's "morale" section. Planes fly over at night and drop them magazines, letters, messages from relatives, pep talks and picture postcards depicting Nazi heroics. One booklet contained a special message from the Fuehrer himself.

The Arctic blast of a 60-mile-per-hour gale was blowing the leaves off the trees in the flooded farmland around the besieged port when I drove to it today from Belgium.

It struck me as the dreariest, most detached and waterlogged field imaginable. The roads over which the British Expeditionary Force retreated in 1940 now are under anything from 18 inches to 15 feet of water.

Every couple of Germans have a boat, and with many of the Czech troops waterborne too, minor naval actions are being played out around the perimeter.

They used three narrow lumpy lanes parallel to and about 3,000 yards south of the Dunnes where Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, now commanding the Allied forces in Italy, and his Tommies waited on the beaches more than four years ago.

The Czechs punched forward two miles, captured 165 prisoners and killed and wounded more than 250—the equivalent of a battalion of German infantry.

Small pockets of German's usually under cover of night, cross the swampy flood to give themselves up. They say there is quite strong feeling to give up among the men but the officers still are determined to hold out.

The Germans have plenty of fire power left in Dunkerque. They have in addition mortars and rocket incendiaries, both phosphorous and oil. Sniper warfare is also well organized.

Obituary

ALBERT E. SANDERSON

One of a family of pioneers in the Cavan districts, Albert Edward Sanderson died Tuesday after a very brief illness, at his residence, 305 Maitland avenue. He was in his 80th year.

Mr. Sanderson was born in Cavan, son of the late Edward Sanderson and Sarah Taylor, and until coming to Peterborough, 15 years ago, lived there his entire life. His father also, was born in Cavan.

Mr. Sanderson was for forty years and elder of his church, first in the Springville United Church and in later years in Knox United Church. He was always deeply interested in the spiritual welfare of the community and served as the superintendent of the Springville Sunday School for many years. He was one of the finer types of citizens, of noble character, a little reserved but a staunch supporter of his friends.

The greater part of his life he spent on the family homestead on the 13th Concession of Cavan only leaving that district when he retired to Peterborough.

He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife, Mary Elizabeth Armstrong, a son Donald E., of Toronto, and a brother, Joseph H., of Cavan.

The funeral service will be Thursday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock, from Knox United church. Remains are resting at the residence. Rev. H. H. Mahoney, of Knox United church, and Rev. W. McDonald, will conduct the service. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

8th Army Takes Strategic Hill

ROME, Nov. 8 (CP)—Polish troops of the British 8th Army are making "good progress' in high ground between the Rabbi and Montone rivers near Italy's Adriatic Coast, and have captured the important hill feature of Monte Casluda, an Allied communique said today.

The hill fell only after fierce fighting, and several German counter-attacks upon it since have been beaten off.

To the west San Ruffillo on the Florence-Forli road fell to other Allied units which advanced into high ground beyond the highway.

CANADA'S VETERANS
Their Post-War Opportunities

This is the eighth of a series of advertisements to inform the people of Canada of plans to re-establish men and women of the armed forces. To get the full details save and read every advertisement.

For complete information write for the booklet, "Back to Civil Life."

Handicaps Overcome —

RE-ESTABLISHMENT of WAR DISABILITIES

In Canada there is an ex-service man who has lost both hands and who is a railway agent in a large Canadian railway city. There is another with a similar disability, who holds a position requiring the use of precision tools. Another has an important post in the testing department of a large Canadian industry. These are serious handicaps, but they have been overcome. Similar and lesser handicaps are being overcome every day by those ex-service men and women prepared to help themselves.

PLANS ARE COMPLETE

It was early in 1940 that Canada started preparations to ensure an opportunity for a full and productive future to those who lost some of their faculties as a result of war service. A special committee was set up to plan for the re-establishment of war casualties. Their plans have been made law and they are in full operation now.

NO FINANCIAL WORRIES

To face the problem of re-establishment the wounded veteran must have peace of mind. He must know he is secure financially while recovering from injuries and that his family will not suffer hardship. Canada's plans take care of this. Any man or woman, discharged from the services in need of continuing treatment, and unable to work, has pay and allowances of rank continued for at least a year, if necessary, and longer if the disability is pensionable and if treatment is still beneficial.

HEALTH CENTRES

Canada is providing health and occupational centres, in a restful country atmosphere, for those who need convalescent treatment for wounded nerves and wounded bodies. Five of these are being established across the Dominion.

TRAINING IS A FEATURE

There is the widest possible opportunity for training to those in receipt of disability pensions. Their right to this training is continuous, and has no limitations of time, such as apply in the case of the physically fit. In many cases, training commences in hospital as soon as medical authorities will permit.

SPECIALIZED HELP

The service of specialists in the problems of the disabled are available to all. Those who lose their sight, for instance, are placed, immediately they return to Canada, under the care of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. The National Society for the Deaf and the Hard of Hearing assists in the problems of those disabled in this way. The services and the guidance of the War Amputations of Canada are available to all who suffer amputations. These specialized services are rounded out by assistance from other veterans' organizations such as the Canadian Legion, Canadian Corps Association and others.

ATTITUDE OF INDUSTRY

A continuous educational campaign has been carried on among employers of labour to demonstrate to them that a man or woman who has lost one faculty can be usefully and fully employed if their remaining faculties are taken into account. Volunteer Citizens' Committees and service clubs have aided in this work. To-day, most Canadian employers know it is not what has been lost, but what a man or woman still has, that counts.

OTHER RIGHTS

War disability pensions are paid to all who suffer permanent disability not a result of their own misconduct while on overseas service. They are paid to those who suffer permanent disability in Canada if the disability occurred in the line of duty.

War disability cases are entitled to free treatment, with allowances, for life for their pensioned disability, and receive, free of charge, artificial appliances which their disability makes necessary. An additional clothing allowance is paid monthly to those whose clothing is subjected to unusual wear because of these appliances.

Veterans' welfare officers are stationed in key centres throughout Canada. They are the friends of ex-service men and women. It is their duty to advise and assist all ex-service personnel with their re-establishment problems. If there is anything about the rehabilitation programme which you do not understand consult your nearest welfare officer.

Farm Radio Forum Has Opening Meeting

HARWOOD, Nov. 8 — (ENS). — The first meeting of the Harwood-Gore's Landing Farm Radio Forum, was held Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Drope, with twenty-two present.

The subject of the meeting was, "Is Our Soil Worn Out?" Highlights on each question discussed in groups were that cost of production on some land is too high for returns such soils as sand, hilly or stony fields should be reforested.

Some of the members present thought their farms were more productive and others thought less than they were 30 years ago. Teaching and washing of fertility were reasons for less production. A smaller acreage in grain was reason for a better production, a lack of money encourages selling crops; a lack of knowledge reduces returns and depletes the soil.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Bates, and the subject will be, "How can we make our land more productive."

Council Plans New Incinerator

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 8. — (ENS).—A matter of outstanding importance to the citizens of Campbellord was settled at the meeting of the town council Tuesday evening when a resolution was passed on the recommendation of the committee appointed to deal with the disposal of garbage, to purchase 1 beam, 50 grates, 12 door and all the metal framework necessary for the construction of a 2-burner incinerator. The material was purchased in Peterborough and was part of a dismantled plant there.

The council also agreed to pay the postage on all I.O.D.E. parcels sent overseas as Christmas gifts to the armed froces. The deed for the land adjacent to Trout creek was arranged for with the Kinsmen's club and referred to the legal committee with power to act.

Council Donald reported that the hospital is coming on in a satisfactory manner. There were 22 patients in the month of October.

With the passing of the payshee council adjourned at 11.05 p.m.

Wicks was taken to Cobourg Hospital, where it was found that he had sustained a broken collarbone, a cut on the ear, and abrasions. Constable E. Houghton investigated.

General McNaughton's Task

The elements in the country which look upon the present conscription dispute primarily as an opportunity to discredit and blacken the Government are clearly chagrined because Colonel Ralston has said nothing which will help them, and because General McNaughton has said nothing which will give them grounds to attack him. Apparently they expected that Col. Ralston would celebrate his freedom from Cabinet responsibility by aspersing his former colleagues; and that General McNaughton would make promises and issue statements before he had fully acquainted himself with the details of his new office. Both men, however, have behaved with dignity and restraint, as their previous records would lead us to expect.

• • •

Col. Ralston, during his period as Minister of Defence, reposed the greatest trust in his General Staff, and it is assumed that they agreed with his opinion that the best way to reinforce our troops overseas was to use men from the Home Defence forces. It must be pointed out, however, that the General Staff made the miscalculation which has resulted in a shortage of infantry reinforcements, and that if they were mistaken once, they might be mistaken again. This does not involve a strong condemnation of the General Staff; they are but men, and fallible, and if their way of estimating our needs was erroneous they are neither the first G.S., nor will they be the last, to make such a mistake. But General McNaughton has never been a man of General Staff mentality, and he is understood to have disagreed on the general plan of disposing of men for service. The General Staff plan has broken down: now we shall probably see whether McNaughton's plan will work any better. If his plan does not call for the use of Home Defence men we must at least pay him the honour due to an expert in his field, and trust his judgement until he is either proved right or wrong. General McNaughton, we may be sure, will not allow any political consideration to sway his judgement as a military man.

• • •

The people who think of conscription only in terms of spiting the present anti-conscription government would do well to count the cost of the measure they so zealously advocate. We had conscription in 1917; there was no alternative. But that brief period of conscription poisoned the subsequent 20 years of Canadian politics, and the poison is still at work. Under Bill 80 the Government can put conscription into force as soon as it sees fit to do so, but the effect on the Dominion would be such as to make any real Canadian unity impossible during our time. What effect would that disunity have on our postwar Canada? Those who advocate shotgun measures in this matter of conscription had better count the cost of indulging a fervour which has at least some of its roots in political vindictiveness. Meanwhile, let us give General McNaughton a week or two in which to work himself into his new job: as for Col. Ralston, if he sees fit to remain silent, we may be sure that he is prompted by the good sense and the high regard for his country which have always guided him.

The Importance Of Antwerp

It was early in September that British forces captured the great Belgian port of Antwerp, moving in so quickly that the Germans had no chance to do serious damage to the port installations. But possession of the port was useless unless the approaches to it were also in Allied hands, and thus the battle of the Schelde Estuary has been of the utmost importance to our cause. The part which Canadians have taken in clearing the Schelde area has been a glorious one, and they have performed feats of bravery there as great as any in the First Great War. When 4,000 desperate German troops armed with cannon and machine guns, were holding the island of Walcheren, Canadians crossed the narrow causeway which cut off the island from the mainland, advancing into the point-blank fire of the Germans; they then attacked the German big-gun positions which commanded the sea-lane to Antwerp. Bravery of the highest order is needed for deeds like that.

Antwerp is vital to our successful prosecution of the battle of Germany. To deal adequately with Germany we must have a first-class system of supply, and supply is a matter of ports, in the first instance. Hitler has staved off the battle for Germany as long as possible by leaving strong garrisons to die in defence of the French ports. That was why the Battle for France took so long to complete. Now the Germans are straining to make Antwerp useless to us to stave off the Battle for Germany. Once the path to Antwerp is cleared, we can send the huge consignments of supplies without which the Battle for Germany cannot be fought in deadly earnest.

A commentator in the New York Times has explained clearly how our timetable of offence has been prolonged into the late autumn. This is what he says:

"The battle for Antwerp vividly illustrates the course of the war in the west and explains why the high hopes of midsummer for a quick end of the European war were disappointed. The invasion of France began on June 6; Cherbourg fell on June 26; the great breakthrough into Brittany and the rest of France came around August 1; Paris fell on August 25; the borders of Germany were reached early in September, and on September 4 British tanks raced through Brussels and Antwerp as far as Breda in the Netherlands, having covered 225 miles in four and one-half days. But in this mighty sweep the Allied armies almost outran their supplies, and left hundreds of thousands of German troops behind them, at least 100,000 in the Pas-de-Calais area alone. The quick organization of supply to keep the Allied armies fighting was a miracle, but not enough of a miracle to keep them going, and the cleaning up of the isolated Germans took a longer time".

The Germans have been fighting for time, and they have won time. But will it do them much good? They have brought a winter of war on Europe, but their own country will suffer more than any other.

Russia And Japan

Until recently Russia and Japan have been well content to allow the ambiguous situation between them to rest, without further development on either side. It is unlikely, however, that either of them has thought that the war could be brought to a conclusion without fighting over Russian and Japanese interests. It has long been assumed that the one which was ready first would pick a quarrel, and then either a fight or an undignified retraction would follow.

It looks as though Russia were ready to pick a fight now. Marshal Stalin has referred pointedly to Japan as a typical aggressor, and has given the world to understand that Russia does not think that there can be real peace until all such aggressors have been disarmed. The next move will doubtless come from Japan. Will it give Russia a wrathful answer or a conciliatory one?

Russia will want to take a hand in any peace settlement which concerns the Pacific, and although Russia might do so without herself fighting in that area her position would be decidedly stronger if she appeared at the peace table as a victor rather than in the peculiar character of a combatant against two-thirds of the Axis and a neutral toward the remaining third. Apparently Russia feels that she is ready to fight Japan any time the Japanese care to begin, and has made the first provocative moves to bring that about.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Our men overseas, we hear, refer to the robot as the Zombie Bomb, because nobody can tell when it's coming over.

A fifteen-years-old boy in Winnipeg has stolen a C.N.R. locomotive. Delinquency on this scale can hardly be described as 'juvenile'.

A burglar in Toronto accidentally dropped a business card with his name, address and telephone number on it. Sherlock Holmes occasionally got cases of this sort, but he always hushed them up.

Like T.D.F. on the Ottawa Citizen, we like our popular songs to be earthy, and therefore we reprint this verse from a ditty called "Pin-Down Goil" which he approves:

Dose pin-up frails dey t'ink such swells,
Dey gits me ancient nanny;
I wants me bims wit' well-toined gams,
Like on a gran' pianny.
Now take me current heart-t'rob, Mirt,
She's hefty, tough—but pally;
An' she's de top fem scorin' ace
At Grogan's bowlin' alley.

Expert Opinion On The Enigma

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

FOR some years it has been fashionable to refer to Russia as an enigma; Marshal Stalin has been caricatured as a Sphinx, and it has been assumed that almost any pronouncement from the Kremlin was capable of three interpretations at least. Russia has given weight to this popular conception by a secretiveness and mistrustfulness which she took no pains to disguise, but which were not particularly new; Russia has been secretive and mistrustful in her dealings with the rest of the world for many hundreds of years. Russia has never been more of an enigma to the world than have Germany, the Balkans and China; Russia is no more an enigma to the U.S. than the U.S. is to Russia. But the 'enigma' label has struck, and it is good to read a book by a man who knows Russia well, and who does not consider her in the least enigmatical. The man is Sir Bernard Pares (now at the University of Toronto for a brief time) and the book is "Russia and The Peace" (Macmillan).

RUSSIA has been the study of Sir Bernard's lifetime. He first visited that country in 1898, and he has paid it twenty-one more or less long visits since then. He was with the Russian Army (as a British liaison man) from December 1912 until April 1917, and had the experience of going through the last war on the Russian front, and also of seeing the first smouldering of the Revolution. He has been an official correspondent for the British Government in Russia and he has been attached to the British Embassy there; he has visited Soviet Russia four times, and was last in Moscow in the summer of 1939. To him Russia is no enigma, but a country of special character taking great pains to establish itself firmly in a world which has shown itself hostile to the Russian experiment.

◇ ◇ ◇

RUSSIA is our great ally, and will have a hand in making the peace which must follow this war. What will Russia want? Many people are fearful that the Russians will make mischief, because they still think in terms of Bolsheviki who carry bombs in their overcoat pockets. But as Sir Bernard points out, Russia has shown herself uncommonly shrewd in her attitude toward international affairs, and is not likely to create a Polish problem, or a Finnish problem, or a Czech problem on her own western boundary. Why snatch at Czechoslovakia, when the Czechs are already firm friends of Russia? Why create a grievance in Poland, and turn Warsaw into a hotbed of anti-Soviet intrigue? Russia will probably want to protect the approach to Leningrad by taking in some part of Finland, and the Baltic States, but she will not be interested beyond that. Sir Bernard insists on what he calls "the old instinct of Russian aloofness," which will make Russia keep her fingers out of other people's pies. But he does hint that Russia will want to have a say in the settlement in the Orient. Russia had no hand in the making of the Treaty of Versailles, but Russia will be much in the limelight when the next treaty is made. That may be a very good thing. Russia is realistic and not inclined to be sentimental toward a fallen foe.

◇ ◇ ◇

IN order to understand the Russian attitude toward the peace, Sir Bernard insists, we must understand that Stalin has thrown overboard the old idea of an international Marxist revolution. Stalin is less like Lenin than he is like Peter the Great; he does not care about spreading the gospel of communism to the world; he cares only about building a strong and great Russia. The Communist party still controls Russia, of course, and Communist slogans and Marxist reasoning are part of the intellectual stock-in-trade of the Russian people. But Russia is strongly nationalist, as she has been for centuries, and the heroes of modern Russian youth are Alexander Nevsky, Suvarov and Peter the Great. The family is recognized as the social unit; religion is countenanced; and extensive rights of private property have been revived. This last move, in Sir Bernard's estimation, has been at the root of much of the tenacity and heroism shown by Russians in this war: they were fighting for a land owned by the people, it is true, but they were also fighting for specific plots of land, houses, and cherished possessions which belonged to themselves, and which no one could legally take from them.

◇ ◇ ◇

STALIN himself, says Sir Bernard, should not be regarded as a revolutionist, but as a counter-revolutionist; he wants a long term of secure peace in which to put Russia firmly on her feet, and he will make great concessions and accept great responsibilities to achieve that end. To lump Stalin with Lenin, Trotsky, Engles and Marx is ignorant folly; Stalin has moved so far to the Right of what Lenin was aiming at that it is a wonder that Lenin does not turn in his public tomb.

◇ ◇ ◇

ALL that Sir Bernard says is reassuring; he dispells the Russian enigma with a book filled with facts and arguments, well-arranged and pleasingly written. There are points which he does not touch upon, presumably because he does not know any more about them than the layman. For instance, if Russia remains a one-party country, how can we ever feel completely happy in our dealings with her? There has never been a one-party country yet which did not come to grief in some way or other. But Sir Bernard believes that this war has brought the Russians to a point where they no longer mistrust us, and where they are prepared to like us. Perhaps, in time, they might even copy some of our better ideas, taking the nobler side of democracy to their hearts, and leaving what is flabby, foolish and cheap. And, of course, we like the Russians better than we did, and the feeling may grow. Let us cherish it, for upon that feeling and understanding the peace of the world depends.

SMART SINATRA

Opinions may differ as to the quality of Frank Sinatra's voice, but it must be admitted that he has a smart public relations counsel. Frank has decided to take no legal action against the youth who hurled a quarter of a dozen eggs at him the other day. In so doing he has won the thanks of the nation's press, court stenographers, telegraph operators, linotype operators, printers and proofreaders. His assailant's name was Alexander J. Dorogokeepetz. And no one working in the above categories will any longer have to concern himself as to the proper sequence of o's and e's. —Chicago News.

FATES DILEMMA —By Thomas

What Education Week Could Mean

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

THIS is the first day of Education Week. Beginning today, and continuing to next Saturday, a series of discussions and lectures will provide the occasions for better directed and more responsible thinking on the whole subject of education.

The word "education" is to many an uninviting word. It suggests things dry and academic and remote. But no word in our very rich language is more vital or more impressive in its meaning. For "to educate" means literally "to lead out." And the work of the educator is just this—to "lead out" those potentialities of mind and character which are present in the child.

It is a supremely important work. For these potentialities are the real natural resources of this country, and, like other natural resources, they are valueless unless discovered and used.

It is supremely urgent work. For the opportunity to bring out what is potential in the child must be met promptly. The opportunity passes, and the adult is too often encased in a shell which his formative years have given him, and which inhibits many abilities that, under better handling, might have found their merited expression.

It is supremely skillful work. The educator must be an idealistic realist. He must be an idealist in that he believes in the very real possibilities in those he teaches. And he must be a realist in that he must see a child as he is, as an individual with his own distinct latent capacities—capacities that vary widely in nature and degree from the child next to him.

If we are truly to examine and test our educational system during this coming week, we can do so in no more penetrating nor constructive way than by attempting to make sure of one fundamental point: We must make sure that our system is really educational. We must, in fact, make sure that it is leading out the natural capacities of our children, and is not in itself an inflexible instrument, incapable of adjustment, treating our children in a standardized, routine way, bringing out their good qualities at times, but at other times neglecting or discouraging them.

The scope of such an examination must certainly be wide. It introduces matters of health, of nutrition and healthy buildings and medical examination. It introduces consideration as to how and by whom the schools are to be managed, and how and by whom financed. It introduces consideration of how teachers are to be selected, how trained, how paid. It introduces consideration of the fact that the school and the home are joint educational institutions, with parallel opportunities and responsibilities and with a mutual need for understanding and co-operation.

Education, indeed, embraces many things, and raises varied problems. But we shall come far nearer to solving these problems if we have, first of all, a more awakened realization of how important education is.

This is certainly no abstract matter. Our children will bear throughout their lives marks of the successes and the failure of the educators by whom they are now being formed, as we ourselves are now helped or hindered in our daily living by the understanding or misunderstanding of those by whom we were formed in our own childhood.

Education Week will perform a very valuable service to this country if it fosters discussions on the many aspects of our educational system. But it will perform a far greater service if it could awaken this nation to what education really is and could be. If we, as a nation, could once arrive at this realization, all the means of effective education would be added unto us.

Gay Caballero

(By J. H. GRAY)

TORONTO: Mr. Drew makes speeches. Mr. Jolliffe makes speeches. But out at his onion patch Mr. Hepburn says nothing; and from a random un-Gallupish sampling of public opinion here the average elector seems by far more interested in Mr. Hepburn's silence than in what the others are saying.

Mr. Hepburn is clearly back in the centre of the Ontario political spotlight, and when Mr. Hepburn gets into that spot other politicos get pushed into the shadows. Since his blast at Premier Drew, Mr. Hepburn has said nothing. Yet most people to whom we have talked politics—doormen, newspapermen, porters, bell-hops, barbers and sundry unclassified Ontarians assume that Mr. Hepburn will become leader of the Liberal party and that, come the election, he will succeed Mr. Drew as premier.

To put your finger on the cause of Mr. Hepburn's appeal is difficult. Most of the adjectives that come readily to mind fit him nicely—mercurial, tempestuous, inconsistent, outspoken, stubborn. His concern has always been so confined to immediate issues that his opponents have been able to accuse him, and with reason, of substituting a swashbuckling adventurism for political philosophy. No one has accused him of being consistent. But what Ontario likes in Hepburn, and this is obvious from talking to the ordinary citizens, is the vigor and courage of the Hepburn attack. Hepburn is a politician who loves an old-fashioned brawl—a fighter for the sheer joy of fighting.

THE public has never forgotten this gay caballero who broke the hold of the Henry machine. They recall his fabulous joust with the power interests, the assault on the C.I.O., his feud with Prime Minister King, his strange flirtation with the Tories and the Communists. Whatever else could be said, election campaigns with "Mitch" in there pitching were never dull.

There is an air of authority in the voices of the people who think that Mr. Hepburn can recapture Ontario for the Liberal party. It is partly an emotional reaction, but when they are pressed for reasons they invariably come up with two. One is the widespread belief that Premier Drew is going to take the drubbing of his life when he goes to the polls, provided, of course, that Mr. Hepburn leads the assault. Even among the ordinary fellows who think that the "Quebec problem" should be solved by sending the troops into Quebec to enforce the speaking of English with bayonets, fellows who are the ideological soulmates of Premier Drew, even they are sore at Drew over family allowances. Mr. Drew can explain himself breathless, but all the impression he seems able to make is writing on the ice.

SECONDLY, the general opinion seems to be that the C.C.F. has passed its peak. In the last election the people were sore; sore at taxes and regimentation and wage control and conscription. They gave expression to their indignation by voting C.C.F. It is surprising the number of people that say in Ontario that the C.C.F. is on the downgrade, people who voted for the C.C.F. last time but who now are looking elsewhere.

The dominant role played by the C.I.O. in the C.C.F. in Ontario is certainly a factor. The manoeuvring of the C.I.O. has bumped many of the old craft unionists of the Trades and Labor Congress off the C.C.F. bandwagon. There is a tendency, too, to rather severe judgement of the C.C.F. performance. In the same voice our barber said that the C.C.F. was too radical and that it had not done anything. What these people expected of a party that was not even in power is hard to fathom. But somehow they expected much, and of course have got little or nothing.

To these ordinary, and innately conservative, people there is disappointment with the C.C.F. Call them unreasonable and unfair if you will, but they are still disappointed. But the sudden re-emergence of Mitch Hepburn has captivated them. They hardly know what to expect from him, but they await his campaign with unconcealed delight. They are like people at a magician's show, awaiting the final, stupendous wind-up. If Mitch Hepburn does not carry through, if he does not return to the leadership of the Liberal party and proceed to turn the next election campaign into an old-fashioned Donnybrook, they will be disappointed indeed.

Feeling the Pinch

It looks as though some of the American film magnates will soon be scrabbling on the pavement with the pigeons for a bit of bread. A friend sends me a cutting which announces that one of them has agreed to "an annual salary cut of 560,000 dollars." He will "limit his remuneration to 500,000 dollars a year." When I meet this down-at-heel fellow the yachts will be on me.—Beachcomber in London Daily Express.

A Bible Message

Knowest thou not this of old, since man was placed upon earth, that the triumphing of the wicked is short, and the joy of the hypocrite but for a moment?.... He shall fly away as a dream, and shall not be found: yea, he shall be chased away as a vision of the night. (Job 20: 4, 5, 8.)

◇ ◇ ◇

Be ye therefore followers of God, as dear children.... For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light.... Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord....

Wherefore he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light. (Eph. 5: 1, 8, 10, 14.)

I have called upon thee, for thou wilt hear me, O God; incline thine ear unto me, and hear my speech....

As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake with thy likeness. (Ps. 17: 6, 15.)

Unconsidered Trifles

Jackson missed his train the other evening, so he went to have his hair cut to while away the time till the next train left. When he entered the barber's shop, he was in no amiable frame of mind.

"Cut it without conversation," he growled, as he took his place in the chair. "I don't want any hair restorer, scalp invigorator, dandruff eradicator, face lotion, or anything else. I don't interest myself in boxing, racing or football. As regards the weather——"

Here a customer nudged Jackson's elbow.

"You'll have to write it down on his slate," he said. "He's deaf and dumb."

Pat had done some work for the local squire, who was so pleased that he asked him if he would like a drop of whisky.

"Yes, sorr," replied Pat.

"Hot or cold?" asked the squire.

"Cold, sorr," was the answer. "I'll never have any more hot whisky as long as I live."

"That's funny," replied the squire. "What makes you say that?"

"Well, you see, sorr, it's like this," answered Pat. "The other night I had a drame, and in the drame a man asked me to have a drop of whisky, and he asked whether I'd have it hot or cold. I said 'hot' and believe it or not, sorr, while the kettle was boiling I woke up."

FARMERS SHOULD SPEAK OUT

During the war the demand for meats has increased enormously. Canada has found a ready market for her surplus meat production, Great Britain being the main customer. In peace times the British market is a highly competitive one. If Canadian meat packing costs mount, and if there is a constant threat of interruption of a steady flow of supplies, this country will have a difficult time retaining even a percentage of the British market. This is a matter of keen concern to the farmers. It is doubtful if they want the meat packing business to pass under the iron control of any group of labour union leaders. If the farmers want any kind of protection in this matter they will have to express their views publicly on the subject. While it is all right to say that the government has a responsibility in the matter, it should also be remembered that governments act under public pressure. Just now the C.I.O. is exerting the greatest pressure.—Calgary Herald.

CHAMPION TRAVELLER

Metal bands have been attached to the legs of nestlings in Labrador and the grown birds recaptured a few months later at the mouth of the Niger River in West Africa and in Natal on the Indian Ocean coast of South Africa—nearly 9,000 miles from Labrador.

And the Arctic tern is found in the Antarctic during our winter. It is well known as a seasonal migrant up and down the western seaboard of both Europe and Africa.

From this it has been inferred that this species migrates from Arctic America across the North Atlantic to Europe, thence down the coast past Africa to the Antarctic Ocean, and back up the same route the following spring—a distance, in all, of about 24,000 miles, or almost equivalent to the total circumference of the earth.—London Express.

First Canadian Cruiser Uganda Takes To Seas

By JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, Nov. 8 — (CP) — Canada's most powerful ship of war—the cruiser Uganda—has dipped her keel in the water of her adopted homeland for the first time, received the salutes of her fellow fighting craft, and gone off to seek the enemy on the open sea.

Standing like a titan among the lesser vessels of the Dominion's small-ship navy, the newly-commissioned Uganda spent several days at this base while she was primed to fighting pitch for her new role as queen of the Canadian fleet.

The 8,000-ton package of punch, spruce in new paint, came here from the United States yard where she had been turned over to Canada Oct. 21. She had spent several months in the yard for repair of war wounds suffered in hot action with the Royal Navy.

But there were no signs of the ravages of battle as the cruiser made her bow to Canada. Her 549 feet of fighting power, spiky with literally dozens of guns, looked as trim as the day she slid from the ways of a British yard two years ago.

Uganda's fresh appearance belied her record. Already in her short career she had taken on a near-fatal wound in the blistering job of protecting the Salerno landings in the Mediterranean last year.

A Nazi glider bomb slashed through her upper deck, plunged past decks and then went out the ship's bottom to explode beneath her keel. Crippled and with her plates badly torn, the Uganda was saved only by top-flight damage control. The holed ship was taken to Malta, then Gibraltar, and from there she hobbled across the Atlantic on one engine for final repairs.

"She's a good ship," said Cmdr. Hugh Pullen of Oakville, Ont., second in command to Capt. E. R. Mainguy aboard the Uganda. "She goes well, and she has a good feel to her." Cmdr. Pullen formerly skippered the Canadian destroyer Ottawa.

Most of the 59 officers aboard the big craft are Canadians, while the crew of 800 men that the Uganda carries is practically all Canadian.

Officers and men are ready now to take the ship into action. Most of the personnel, representing every province in the Dominion, have served aboard British cruisers at various times.

Kingpins of Uganda's offensive armament are her six-inch guns, which give her more slugging power than any other Canadian craft. Jane's Fighting Ships lists an even dozen six-inchers, plus eight four-inch anti-aircraft weapons and 16 smaller guns.

Lancaster Sets Ocean Record

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 8—A new trans-Atlantic record of 10 hours and 13 minutes, one hour and one minute less than the old record set last January was chalked up yesterday by a new Lancaster of trans-Canada Air Lines flying from Montreal non-stop to Britain.

The plane was carrying 6,031 pounds of mail, mostly for troops overseas, and 2,036 pounds of priority freight. There were no passengers aboard.

The pilot on the flight was Capt. G. B. Lothian, of T.C.A. who last January held the ocean record for two minutes only.

He landed in Britain 11 hours and 16 minutes after taking off from Dorval. Two minutes later another plane, which left Dorval four minutes after him, landed to set the time at 11 hours and 14 minutes.

Airline officials last night expressed the opinion that Capt. Lothian's record would likely stand for some time.

Other officers in the crew were 2nd-Capt. M. Gauthier, T.C.A. co-pilot, Flt.-Lt. G. F. Chipman, R.C.AF., navigator, and R. D. Smith, T.C.A radio officer.

Girls' Softball League Holds Banquet

Putting the finishing touches to one of Peterborough's most successful seasons of girls' softball, a large group of members of the Ladies' Softball League, officials of the league, and guests-of-honor attended the annual banquet and dance held Tuesday evening, in the Legion Hall. Awards were made to the teams who came out on top in the city league play-offs, and throughout the evening, grateful team members and leaders joined in offering William Bennett, president of the league, their thanks and appreciation, for piloting the league in such an admirable manner.

Ian McRae, works manager of the C.G.E., presented the R. S. Cotton Trophy to the Westclox Senior team, on behalf of Alderman Robert S. Cotton, who has been ill. Captain and representative of the 1944 city league champions, Isobel Bullock accepted the cup on behalf of the entire team, and Manager Ab. Delahaye.

Mr. McRae told the softball players that there exists in Peterborough today, a competitive spirit not to be found in many other cities in the province. He advocated continued city league softball, in which that competitive spirit in Peterborough will grow, rather than forming an "all-star" team, which might mean the end of the popular city league contests. Mr. McRae advised the softball players that the C.G.E. Aircraft girls will put up a tough battle for the city league title next year. Congratulating each team of the league, for fine ball-playing and stimulation of the competitive spirit, he said, "This year, the best team won, but all teams are the best."

Miss Bullock thanked the Aircraft girls for coming out to play practice games after the city league race was over, to tune up the Westclockers for the provincial play-downs.

Games Popular

Reflecting the opinion of more than one softball fan during the season of girls' softball, J. H. Vernor, general manager of the Western Clock Company, said that the entertainment value of the girls' games are doubled, by competitive liveliness in the tilts combined with the beauty of the players. Mr. Vernor presented the Knox Trophy, donated by the Knox Jewelry Store, to the Brinton Carpet team, winners of the Intermediate championship. Helen English, captain, received the cup on behalf of the team.

"How these girls can work all day, and then come out at night as the fastest thinkers and smartest ballplayers I have ever seen, is beyond me", Mr. Vernor said. He told the girls, to their audible delight, that American visitors to some of the games have commented on the girls' attractiveness, as compared to American girl softball players.

Along with playing and organizing excellent softball, the girls of the league and officials, displayed a spirit of generosity and thoughtfulness, in handling a check for $75, to F. G. Mann, chairman of the British War Victims' Fund. Mr. Mann praised the girls for playing clean and fair ball, and said the fact they can raise this money for the Fund along with their many other activities, proves that point. When the full story of the war is published, he said, they will be glad to have helped the people of Britain, who are in less fortunate circumstances.

By FRED D. CRAIG

The big question before Peterborough football fans this week is whether the ball-carrying ability of the P.C.V.S. backs and their forward passing attack can offset the plunging game that Oshawa Collegiate are almost certain to depend on when they meet Coach Bev Goulding's team at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon in an interscholastic game that will decide the Lake Shore senior title. It should prove by long odds the best-played and most exciting football fixture of the local season. Oshawa who have not been beaten since they were nosed out 2 to 1 in Bowmanville in the opening game of the season have a big powerful team, very strong along the line and with a couple of plungers who have proven decidedly hard to stop. P.C.V.S. have a more varied attack with a pair of fine broken field runners in Jack Matthews and Jack Sisson and a battering ram in the person of Capt. Red Outram who carries the ball and No. 13 through the enemy line as if he were ripping his way out of a paper bag. Matthews' work against Bowmanville last Saturday was outstanding and a repetition against Oshawa should have the Motor City tacklers pop-eyed. Undoubtedly the biggest crowd of the season will see Saturday's struggle with the student body out in full force and plenty of color and excitement. This is THE game and it rates a huge attendance.

The Ladies' Softball League, one of the most successful sport organizations in the city wrote "finis" to another splendid season last night with the annual banquet and presentation of championship trophies. For the second year in succession, after winning the Bond Trophy outright with three wins in a row beore that, the Westclox girls received the R. S. Cotton Cup, emblematic of the senior championship, Brintons were the recipients for the third time of the Knox intermediate trophy and the Baby Bens, otherwise the Westclox seconds became the first holders of the Quaker Cup, presented this year for junior competition. All three clubs richly earned the trophies they were handed last night for the competition was keen in all three divisions and the winners in each case had to fight hard to come home in front. Last night's most enjoyable affair was a fitting windup to a season that was marked by a lot of good softball. Hundreds of fans who got a season's entertainment out of the games staged by the loop will congratulate the winners on their achievements, and the losers on the gallant battle they staged and will unite in the hope that the 1945 season will find all the teams in action once again.

Red Tilson Dead

Hockey fans generally will be grieved to hear that Red Tilson, centre ice star of the Oshawa Generals for three seasons including the 1943 Memorial Cup winners has been killed in action in Holland where he had been fighting with the Canadian Army. Tilson was one of the most popular players who ever wore the Oshawa uniform. The Regina boy was class personified on the ice and would undoubtedly be starring in the N.H.L. now if the call to play a bigger game had not been answered by him. Peterborough fans who used to trek down to Oshawa to see the Generals perform always had a profound respect for the ability of Tilson, regarding him as one of the mainstays of the Motor City Club. They especially will be sorry that this fine young Canadian who was destined to climb to the heights in hockey if a former Austrian paper hanger had not turned the world topsy-turvy, has made the supreme sacrifice.

The Peterborough Ice Club, organized for the encouragement of figure skating in Peterborough has announced a meeting for Thursday night in the Y.W.C.A. to discuss plans for the coming season. Oscar Weiss, secretary of the club, states that the organization is under the approval of the Canadian Figure Skating Association, which sanctions tests, contests and skating carnivals. The club hopes to be able to develop and improve the facilities left uncompleted last year and levelling operations are proceeding at the club's property on Patterson street. Secretary Weiss emphasizes the fact that the club is not a business concern but a sporting association, amateur in its status and adds that it is hoped to enroll many new members this year.

Kingston Fortunate

Thanks to its importance as a military centre Kingston can look forward to a lot of good hockey this winter for the military establishments in the Penitentiary City contain many stars who will be seen in action. Says Mike Rodden in the Kingston Whig-Standard sport column: "That the Kingston Hockey League series will get a rousing send off at the Harty Arena tomorrow night is now assured. There will be a military band in attendance and it is anticipated that many fans will be there to make the event successful in every way. There are some great players spread among the various teams a number of them were stars in the National League before joining the forces. Among the outstanding performers are Sid Abel, one of the best the Detroit Red Wings had; Adam Brown, the speed merchant from the same team; Vic Gregg and Nick Knott, the latter a Kingston boy who played for the Toronto Maple Leafs; Don Hanneberry, Cleveland Barons; Goalkeeper Al Ritchie, Montreal Royals; Edgar Laprade, the sensational Port Arthur forward; Jim Giesbrecht, who hails from Pembroke and who is the brother of Roy of Detroit Red Wings, and Dinny McManus, the Perth netguardian who scintillated for the famous Oshawa Generals. Queen's University will present six of the players who won the championship last season. Some of the newcomers have been showing to advantage during practice sessions and officials in charge are hopeful that the team will be just as powerful as it was last season."

"Beaches and Wildcats are back where they started, with football fans divided in their support of the two clubs as the O.R.F.U. playoffs approach," says Jack Koffman in the Ottawa Citizen sport column. "Beach boosters will tell you Hamilton's margin of one point on Saturday is not to be compared with the 10-4 decision taken by their favorites in the previous meeting of the teams, but you can throw out this kind of an argument. The main point is that Joe Krol broke loose in the closing league fixture. If the Ponton men can stop Mr. Krol, as they did when the teams first clashed this season, the odds are all in their favor. But stopping Hamilton's big gun is no easy assignment. Ponton has drilled it into his players all week, and for weeks, that Krol is the man to watch but, despite all this extra attention, the man got away when it was necessary. Can he do it again? Find an answer to this and you have the Ontario Union grid championship series all settled."

Whipper Watson Beats Len Hall Frank Sexton Popular, Maich Wins

Whipper Billy Watson won over the turbulent Doc Len Hall in the main bout of the Tunney wrestling show at the Brock Street Arena last night on Referee Bert Maxwell's decision after the rivals had split two falls and finished the hour without being able to pin each other again.

Maxwell declared that the British Empire champion had earned the decision by his aggressiveness in the third round. "Those flying mares did the trick" said the official. Hall brought in a minority report "You can easily see that the two of them came from Toronto" said the angry Doc after the bout. "Watson would never have won that way with a California referee."

It was a tempestuous session with not a dull moment. Hall, cocky as ever, and stirring the crowd to anger as he bounced around the ring in his characteristic manner was even more ornery than usual—if that was possible. He carried the battle to Watson much of the time and wasn't the least bit careful about how he carried it either, with the result that the Whipper took quite a beating at times and the Watson fans in the audience were at fever heat as the hard-hitting Californian pulled their favorite's hair, stepped on his hands, kicked him in the ribs, tossed him out through the ropes and in general gave the champ the well-known works. In fact in the first ten minutes of the bout Hall stepped right into the role of Public Enemy No. 1 so far as Peterborough fans were concerned.

Hall Starts Fast

The first round was his by a wide margin. Watson could not seem to get rolling so busy was he fending off the onslaughts of the rough-house battler from the Pacific Coast, and he took a ride that had his supporters aghast. On four or five occasions Hall tossed the Whipper out through the ropes and catapulted him back again time after time when he tried to climb back in. Of course Watson was not doing all the catching. He had the Doc out among the customers in the TORONTO, Nov. 8 — In the north country of Ontario there is a spirited debate going on now over woman's place in the sporting scene. Ralph (North Bay Nugget) Adams tried to promote the idea of a girl's hockey loop, but drew the heated opposition of Vic Copps of the Timmins Free Press....Copps suggested there would be a near-riot among the ardent male fans if the girls were let loose. Whereupon Adams countered by saying the only riot would be that caused by the aforesaid males scrambling and fighting to hang over the boards and ogle the fair ones on the blades....That is the way it has worked out anywhere else the idea was tried, at any rate.

All in the family:
Bill Dunlop of Guelph, Ont., isn't a retired athlete father who sits back and tells his young hopeful how pop used to do it—he gets out there and does it himself. Bill Senior and Bill Junior both play on the Guelph soccer team, so pop has to produce, or else. He has played every year since 1922, but still can give the youngsters some pointers.

Al Lust returns—home:
The pride of Medicine Hat, Alta., scrappy Al Lust who won the Western Canada professional welterweight title before joining the Army has returned to civvie street—but not to fight. Al stopped a near-knockout punch from a sniper's bullet on the point of the jaw while going to the aid of a comrade in Italy, and has been honorably discharged from the Army. His fighting days, as soldier and boxer, are over.

Incidentally:
Henry Marcell, Edmonton golf product who ranks with the best in Canada, will compete in the big tournament at Portland, Ore., late this month. Rena O'Callaghan, Vancouver ladies' champion, also is toying with the idea of taking in the tourney....Nova Scotia horsemen evidently are starting a building-from-the-bottom campaign. Instead of buying ready-to-race harness horses, they now are concentrating on getting promising colts and training them at home. They went in strong for youngsters at the auction sales in York, Pennsylvania, recently.

Before the 1944-45 race for the National Hockey League championship got under way club officials were reluctant to reveal the names of their goaltenders. But so far there have been no reports of dissatisfaction

Coach Hap Day of the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs, who had hoped to acquire Goalie Paul Bibeault from Montreal Canadiens but was unable to come to terms with Coach Dick Irvin, appears to have selected a worthy successor. The new Leaf custodian, 26-year-old Frank McCool, a former Calgary sportswriter, at present leads the league with only 9 goals scored against him in four games.

Bill Durnan, regular custodian for the 1943-44 champions, Montreal Canadiens, and runner-up last season to Gus Bodnar, Toronto forward, for the rookie of the year award, and Connie Dion of Detroit Red Wings, each has been beaten once more than McCool in the same number of games.

Coach Day's selection of McCool came after a hard training session at Owen Sound, where he picked his new custodian in preference to two other aspirants or the job—Pat Boehmer of Kitchener and Leo Sargent of St. Catharines.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 — (AP). — Consider the plight of the Army football team.....The Cadets have scored at better than a point a minute clip so far (some periods have been shortened), but if they don't beat 32 points against a still-good Notre Dame outfit on Saturday they'll be tabbed as "bums" by comparison with their leading rival Navy...Jedge Landis' official baseball book, which didn't come out this year because of paper shortage, will be published again next summer.

To-day's guest star:
Arthur Edson, AP — "Anyone owning a goal line stand should get in touch with Coach Henry Frank of Tulsa immediately." (Tulsa has scored 67 points in its last two games and lost both.)

Don Bradman, the "Babe Ruth" of cricket, is through with the game—rheumatism....The combined age of 13 players on the College Point, N.Y., soccer club is 508 years. And New York also had a league for nine-year-olds.

Minor Baseball Faces Stormy Session

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. —(AP). — Minor League baseball appears to be heading toward another stormy session at its Dec. 6-8 annual conclave in Buffalo, N.Y., where a revolt of the higher classification circuits may develop into an open split with the National Association.

If President Frank Shaughnessy of the International League can attract the support of the American Association and the Pacific Coast League, which has major league ambitions, a new double-A bloc will be organized, acting independently of but in co-operation with the big leagues and other minor circuits.

The most important result of such a revolt would be to make the three circuits directly accountable to Commissioner K. M. Landis instead of President W. G. Bramham of the National Association.

American Association support appears unlikely although President George M. Trautman has reserved an opinion until after the meeting of his league's board of directors Dec. 3. Trautman has been mentioned as a possible successor to Bramham along with Presidents Thomas H. Richardson of the Eastern State League, William G. (Billy) Evans of the Southern Association, Clarence Rowland of the Pacific Coast League and Shaughnessy.

Want Major Status.

Pacific Coast League directors insists upon major league status, a stand that has not drawn the support of the International or Association. A key plank in the platform President Rowland will put before the convention is an increase in the major league draft prices from $7,500 to $15,000. Nailing in this, the prosperous circuit, has threatened to refuse to give up players selected in the annual fall draft grab bag. Such a stand would involve breaking away from all organized ball.

In the final estimate the physical condition of Bramham may be the key factor. The Durham, N.C., executive was re-elected for a five-year term at $25,000 per last December at New York's highly controversial "battle of the proxies." Although he recently was confined to a hospital, Bramham has resumed his work and is reported ready to take charge of the Buffalo convention.

Home And Home Rugby Series Starts Saturday In Hamilton

By The Canadian Press

The keen rivalry this football season between the 1943 Dominion champion Hamilton Wildcats and the Toronto Balmy Beach team enters its final stage Saturday as the two clubs meet in Hamilton in the first of a home-and-home points-to-count series for the Ontario Rugby Football Union title.

The game is one of two play-off encounters this week; the other being a sudden-death game in Toronto for the Ontario Armed Services Football League championship between the Hagersville R.C.A.F. team and the Toronto Navy Bulldogs.

An exhibition game at Kingston between the Queen's University team, unbeaten in Kingston City League play this season and the Ottawa Trojans who wound up third in the O.R.F.U standings, completes the Saturday gridiron program.

Halfback Joe Kroll has been the chief factor this season in carrying Wildcats to five wins in their six scheduled games. He scored 49 of their 102 points and had a major share in paving the way to the others. He is an important cog in the stout Hamilton defensive play. Only 28 points have been scored against the team this season.

Veterans Lead.

Veterans Earl Selkirk and Sam Sward are the chief Beach scorers with 30 and 22 points respectively but young Billy Myers and Ross (Red) McKelvey provide much of the spark in the team's play. Beaches, who have scored 105 points while winning four games and lost two, have 33 points scored against them. Dean Griffing from Regina, Harry Sonshine and Bill Zock have been among the several linemen who have presented a strong barrier to opposition attacks.

Hagersville won four games, lost one and tied one in its six-game schedule. LAC. Doug Smylie and Sgt. Hoe Richman have provided much of the offensive strength during the season but additional strength will be added for the game Saturday with the appearance of FO. Bobby Coulter, out most of the season with an injury. Hagersville has scored 74 points—20 by Smylie and 15 by Richman—and have had 46 scored against them.

LS. Annis Stukus, veteran quarterback, has been the chief threat for Navy all season. Of the team's 80 points, he scored 44—more than half. Bulldogs have had 54 points scored against them. They won four games and lost two.

Toronto Goalie Claims He Is Lucky

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Nov. 8. — (CP).— Frank McCool of the Toronto Maple Leafs is the only sports writer playing in the National Hockey League but if he were assigned to write a story about himself the modest native of Calgary would probably leave out anything boosting his hockey play.

"I've been pretty lucky so far," was the way the soft-spoken McCool to-day described his showing in the first four games in the N.H.L. in which nine goals have been scored against him in four games for an average of 2.250 a game. "None of our games yet have been tough."

But his goal-tending is gradually winning a warm place in the hearts of Toronto fans, quite ready to be critical of the successor to Paul Bibeault who became a favorite last season through his sensational play.

They like the careful way the 26-year-old Irish-Canadian covers up the nets and the care he uses in clearing the puck. They first took to him when he held New York Rangers to one goal in the opening game of the season. Their confidence wavered somewhat when the Black Hawks scored five against him a free-scoring game at Chicago. But he cancelled their doubts completely by holding Canadiens to one goal at Montreal last Thursday on the eve of his 26th birthday.

McCool worked eight months as a sports writer, joining the staff of the Calgary Albertan about a year ago after stomach ulcer trouble kept him from catching a place with the New York Rangers last season. It was the same trouble that brought his discharge from the Canadian army with which he served about a year. However he now is having little trouble with them and has to be careful.

He's as Irish as his name "but I don't think I'm any relation to Finn McCool," the legendary figure who built Giant's Causeway and spread the fame of the name through the length and breadth of Ireland.

Here and There in Sport

President Peter Campbell of the Toronto Baseball Maple Leafs announced yesterday he had obtained Charley (Greek) George, hard-hitting catcher, on draft from Nashville Vols of the Southern Association. If George lives up to his 1944 statistics, he will replace Herb Crompton, Leaf regular catcher in 1944 who was drafted by the New York Yankees. He batted .345 for Nashville in 94 games and drove in 79 runs.

Ottawa Board of Control gave its approval for the use of Lansdowne Park here Nov. 18 by the Inter-scholastic Football League, assuring an inter-city grid play-off between the Ottawa champions and the Montreal Westhill High School. The Ottawa titleholders will be named Friday when Glebe Collegiate and Ottawa Technical High School meet in a sudden-death senior circuit play-off.

The inter-city clash will be a two-game, home-and-home affair, with the second game at Montreal, Nov. 25.

W.I. Given Hints For Conservation

MARMORA, Nov. 8 — (ENS) — The November meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. George Kerr.

The roll call was 'a hot supper dish or a quick dessert.' A report was given by the secretary of the branch, Mrs. James Gordenier, on the recent euchre and bingo event in the town hall. It was decided to hold a dance in the town hall on December 1 and a lunch committee was appointed to act that evening. Attention of the members was drawn to a health lecture to be given in the Orange Hall, Springbrook, by Miss H. Gardner of the Department of Women's Institute for Marmora, Springbrook, Rylstone and Wellman's branches, November 9, and it was decided to apply for the annual legislative grant. Mrs. Percy Gordon reported for the sick committee, mentioning the despatch of cards to sick members and the sending of a wreath in the bereavement of a member. The roll call for the December meeting was then changed from "exchange of Christmas gifts' to 'auction of Christmas gifts.'.

A paper on 'home economics' was given by Mrs. H. P. Nayler, in which the value of nutritious food, the remaking of clothing and re-dyeing of old material was stressed. She concluded with the suggestion that the war effort would be much aided by the purchase of Victory Bonds. Community singing, with Mrs. L. R. Rundle at the piano, was enjoyed. The president asked at this juncture for all sewing for the Salvation Army to be brought in at the December meeting.

The report of the area convention held in Belleville last month was given by the president and Mrs. L. R. Rundle sang 'Say a Prayer for the Boys Over There' and 'When the Lights Come On Again.' Mrs. E. Belanger, branch pianist, accompanied. A flower contest was put on by Mrs. Ethel Gray with honors going to Mesdames P. Gray and L. R. Rundle.

Canon MacDonald Speaker At Bailieboro

BAILIEBORO, Nov. 8 — (ENS)— Canon MacDonald, of Wycliffe College, Toronto, was guest speaker at Christ Church anniversary services on Sunday. He chose "Dwell deep" (Jeremiah 23, 6) for the morning text and entreated them to dig down deep to the rock foundation of Christ and there abide in His constant presence. His evening text was a complement of that thought, and was taken from Matthew 28, 20, and impressed on them that Christ was a living-invisible presence. He quoted extracts of statements from boys on the battle areas who are learning to know that God is real, a living invisible power and comfort

The church was decorated with potted chrysanthemums and in addition to the choir music, Miss Beryl Challice of Peterborough sang two solos, "Just for To-day" and "Jesus Saviour, Pilot Me."

The service on Sunday evening was upset when an electric power wire broke near Millbrook at 7:15 p.m., leaving Bailieboro in darkness for two hours. Lamps and lanterns were secured, and after some delay the service was carried through. The choir led the singing as the organ was without power.

WOMEN INTERESTED.

Indications were Tuesday evenning, that Peterborough women took a greater interest in the American presidential elections than men. Staff members of the Examiner reporting last-minute election bulletins said that women, in proportion of four to one over men, made the inquiries.

CHIMNEY FIRES

A chimney fire at the home of David Menzies, 273 Thomas street, was extinguished by firemen this morning around 10.30 o'clock, and another chimney blaze, Tuesday afternoon close to five o'clock, at the residence of J. GRADUATES AT LONDON

Bob Honor, their son, is a member of the Q'Appelle crew. Several of the crew were decorated.

Three Months Sentence Given

Harold Brooks was sentenced by Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning to three months imprisonment in the county jail after having been convicted as a third offender on a drunk charge, but only after he had staged a battle to retain his liberty.

In the first place Brooks pleaded not guilty to having been drunk on Sunday, October 29.

However Constables Leo. Murphy and C. J. McGilien testified that the accused was very drunk when they arrested him at McDonnel and Aylmer streets that morning. Brooks was staggering around the street, the officers stated, and Constable Murphy said that in his opinion the accused had been drinking rubbing alcohol.

Brooks, in the witness box, said that he had had some beer but he was sure that he had not had nearly enough to make him drunk. The accused said that he had a sore foot and that probably made it look as if he was staggering. He could not bring any witnesses, he said, because they were working.

Convicted

Magistrate Gee registered a conviction on the drunk charge. As to the previous convictions Brooks argued that more than a year had elapsed between the first and third. However it was pointed out to him that it was the date of the offence and not of the conviction that counted.

"You celebrated a few days too soon," Magistrate Gee remarked.

Brooks asked for suspended sentence but was told that the Liquor Control Act was like the laws of the Medes and Persians and had to be carried out. There was no provision for suspended sentence, Magistrate Gee said, in sentencing the accused to three months in jail.

COMMISSION DATES BACK—Mrs. J. J. Hickey, 304 Maitland avenue, has been notified that her son, Sgt. James M. Hickey, RCAF, reported missing in July, has been awarded his commission as Pilot Officer, dating back to two days before he became a casualty. His wife and son live at 236 Sherbrooke street.

Transportation Group Considers Lighting

The Peterborough Transportation Group met in the Paragon Hall Tuesday, for their first business session of the new season and T. McCabe occupied the chair. This safety group is composed of drivers of trucks and horse drawn vehicles from all firms in the city and their aim is to make our streets and highways safer by recommending changes in traffic control and lighting where it is considered necessary.

The question of inadequate lighting on horse drawn vehicles was discussed and a sub-committee was formed to develop a new type of light for use on milk and bread wagons, this committee to have the light ready for the next regular meeting. The chairman of the committee then introduced Alderman James Dutton who gave a brief but interesting talk on the commonplace cause of accidents. In the course of his remarks Mr. Dutton complimented the public spirited men who voluntarily served in the cause of Accident Prevention for the General public and gave his opinion that a group such as this, composed of men who have intimate knowledge of conditions, would do much to improve safety within the City. Speaking as an employer as well as a driver Mr. Dutton cautioned those present against the danger of thinking in terms of insurance and compensation instead of in accident prevention and asked them to continue to take an active part in view of the yearly accident toll which is costing many lives in Ontario. In closing the speaker drew the attention of the group to the serious accidents which have occurred in the past from seemingly trivial actions and made an appeal to each driver to watch out for the children on our streets.

Mr. McCabe thanked Mr. Dutton for his talk and gave his opinion that the group would benefit from it. Amongst those present at the meeting were: H. A. Cranfield, chairman of central Ontario Division, Mr. T. Taylor, chairman Peterborough Lindsay section and T. A. Lister, S. E.

Sports League Boosts Christmas Fund

Good sports in both an individual and collective sense are definitely linked with giving pleasure to other people, as well as the joy that one receives themselves by reason of participation in such.

Likewise, a good sport is one who plays the game in all fairness to everyone concerned, devoid of all selfishness that might react to the disadvantage of others, thus taking in the larger outlook which so acts as to be of benefit in this larger sense, rather than just for individual good.

This inherent trait in all true sports in an individual sense, could hardly fail to inculcate a feeling of genuine sympathy for the persons whom the fates of life had dealt hardly with, and has been demonstrated to quite some degree by the manner in which all sports organizations in this city and district have risen to the time and opportunity that was theirs, by making their associations together in this manner, the occasion for doing some real practical service for those on whom the adverse fates of war have fallen heavily in the British Isles, through enemy air raid attacks or latterly the devastating effects of the robot or flying bomb.

Ladies' Softball League.

This spirit of genuine helpfulness for those in trouble has once again been made manifest by the good sports who form the Peterborough Ladies' Softball League, whose activities for this season came to an official close on Tuesday night, with the annual presentation of awards which featured their annual banquet and dance held in the Legion Hall on Murray street at that time.

This marks the second time that the secretary of the Peterborough and District British War Victims has had the rare privilege of being an honored guest at this gala event, on both occasions a cheque from them being presented on behalf of all the League members to the fund by their president, Wm. Bennett.

This time the amount was $75, and this nice sum represents but one-half of their splendid gratuity, for a cheque for a similar amount was given to another particular Peterborough project also assisting in the war effort.

Sports groups such as this could make no finer conclusion than this to bring their season to a close, for after battling all that term in friendly rivalry to come out on top, they all unite in doing an act of goodness for others thousands of miles away, whom the misfortames of war still continue to harass.

Being almost entirely dependent on public support for their own financial needs, they set about raising this money by means of a draw for four prizes, which also came to a close at this dinner, each prize being drawn for by a representative from some of the clubs within the League membership.

Miss Isabel Bullock made the draw for the first prize of a $30 suit, which was won by S. Simmons of 273 Dalhousie street, with ticket No. 306, while Miss Helen Mark picked the second winner for a prize of a $10 War Savings Certificate, which went to Miss Frances Young of Box 544, Lakefield, with ticket No. 750.

Miss Helen Craig drew the 3rd prize-winner for a $5 War Savings Certificate, who happened to be Miss Dorothy Pearson of 296 Prince street, with ticket No. 314, and Miss Helen English made the draw for the 4th prize, also a $5 War Savings Certificate, which went to Frank Jobbitt of the Peterborough Lock Works with ticket No. 1269, which he immediately presented to the fund, to help swell the goodly amount the members had already given, a very fine spirit indeed to display as a finale to a splendid meeting.

Previously acknowledged	$82,962.23
The Peterborough Ladies' Softball League, per Wm. Bennett	75.00
Proceeds of prize won and given by Frank Jobbitt	4.00

It was also announced that these changes in the corporated structure of the company will not effect operations in Peterborough in any way. Mr. DeGraw has been treasurer of the company here for a number of years and is also a member of the executive of the Canadian Jewellers' Association. Guides Donate $20 For Arena

Two groups of girls have contributed $20 to the Peterborough Memorial Centre Fund. They are, 4th Salvation Army Girl Guides and 1st St. Andrew's Girl Guides, each $10. It seems that from some unidentified source the girls were given a lot of empty paint cans which they sold as garbage containers.

The story of neighboring assistance applied not only to James Jopling's Bridgenorth collection amounting to $91 and Warsaw's dance proceeds, but also $85 credited to old sporting friends in Bethany. The Examiner was told that some part of that Bethany credit should go to Keene along with $25 contributed by three Keene men, and that the neighbors from the Indian River hamlet made a good showing in the appeal to the district outside the city. Keene always has been a sports centre although its athletic interests have been suspended during the war. The fans around town will undoubtedly like to know that here and there in the district there have been groups of men who are willing to put up cash as encouragement to Peterborough's sport and health project.

Rural groups have never been refused use of a city park up to this stage, swimming place and so on.

Penicillin Saves Life Of C.W.A.C. Suffering Spinal Meningitis

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 — The story of a dramatic week-long battle for the life of a pretty 22-year-old Western Canadian girl, in which Canadian Army doctors at Rideau Military Hospital pitted the fabulous penicillin drug against the deadly germs of spinal meningitis — and won, was revealed today by the Department of National Defence.

The case of Betty Wood, of Helena Lake, Sask., a private in the C.W.-A.C. is believed to be one of the first in Canada where penicillin alone has been used successfully to counter spinal meningitis. It provides breathtaking evidence of the great advance medical science has made during the past few years in its fight against a disease which, at one time, was considered a death sentence.

Betty isn't superstitious, but she can't help remembering that it was in the early morning hours of Friday, October 13, lying in her bed at Argyle Barracks, that she began to realize something was wrong.

First came a painful irritation of her nose and throat. Then, as the hours dragged by, she began to suffer such violent chills that she shook the bed. By mid-morning she was deathly sick, and had begun to vomit.

When the Army ambulance swung up to the receiving doors of the Rideau Military Hospital at 3 o'clock that same afternoon, Betty Wood was in a pretty desperate plight. Tossing and moaning, her eyes bright with fever, her chances of life or death seemed about even.

Good Diagnosis

A doctor basing his hunch on the presence of pupuric rash, and the intense irritability of the patient, he diagnosed the disease as spinal meningitis — even though at that time there was not a trace of infection in the spinal fluid.

At four o'clock, exactly thirty minutes after her arrival at the hospital, a quantity of fluid was drawn from her spine (to relieve the pressure) and a like amount of life-saving penicillin injected. Injections were also made into the muscles of her thighs and arms.

"I might have used one of the sulpha drugs", the doctor explained, "but their use is too often accompanied by a great deal of vomiting. This girl had been vomiting for hours before reaching the hospital. She was already exhausted. I hesitated to tax her strength further. That is why I used penicillin."

By nightfall of the first day, so miraculous was the counter-action of penicillin, her temperature had dropped to normal.

It was then that "intraveinous injection" was started. Apparatus similar to that used in a blood transfusion, was set up beside the bed. From a glass flask attached to the top of a metal standard was suspended a long rubber tube. A needle, affixed to the end of the tube, was inserted in a vein in Betty's arm. In the tube itself was placed the amount of penicillin required for the injection. In the flask above was a mixture of glucose and distilled water to provide the patient with both liquid and nourishment during the worst period of her illness. As the glucose-water solution passed down through the tube it mixed with the penicillin, carrying the drug alone with it into the patient's bloodstream. By this ingenious method to Betty's relief, Army doctors made one needle do two jobs.

The next day the spinal fluid, which had been clear on the day of arrival, was a mass of infection. The Army doctor's early diagnosis, which had saved precious hours, was proved correct.

"Penicillin", the Army doctor explained, "does not kill germs directly. But it prevents their increase — their multiplication. Under such conditions the human body has a better than even change in fighting germs, and can kill them itself, with ease."

Wins Fight

On the third day, there was no longer any doubt. Penicillin had won another fight. Not a living germ was anywhere visible in the fluid of the spine. Pte. Wood was going to live. Penicillin was continued at three-hour intervals, day and night, for another week.

ARMY DOCTORS—AND PENICILLIN—WIN FIGHT FOR LIFE—Rushed to Rideau Military Hospital in Ottawa dangerously ill with spinal meningitis, Pte. Betty Grace Wood of the Canadian Women's Army Corps was saved when Army doctors made a quick diagnosis of her illness and pitted the wonder drug—penicillin—against the malady that at one time had a sixty per cent death rate. At Top Left Betty is pictured receiving an injection of penicillin via the arm muscle, with Army Nursing Sister Bessie C. Douglas administering the drug. At Right the penicillin is being given by the intravenous injection method in a mixture of penicillin, glucose and water, which saved puncturing the sick girl's body with more needles than were absolutely necessary. Below the patient, well on the way to recovery, is congratulated by Capt. L. N. Stewart, radiologist on the Rideau Military Hospital staff.

ALEXANDER M. CALDER

WARSAW, Nov. 8—(ENS)—The funeral of Alexander M. Calder, from his late residence on the second line to St. Mark's Cemetery, Warsaw, was one of the largest ever seen.

Japs In Burma Suffer Great Casuaties

LONDON, Nov. 8 — (CP-Reuter) —Air Chief Marshal Sir Philip Joubert, Deputy Chief of Staff to Lord Mountbatten in the South-east Asia Command, said at a press conference on Tuesday that British and Indian forces in Burma had to date inflicted a greater number of casualties on the Japanese than any other force in the Pacific theatre.

These troops of the 14th Army were fighting in and holding the biggest single front in the Pacific—100,000 square miles of jungle.

There were "250,000 very angry white men" of this Anglo-Indian force of 750,000 who were deeply concerned that what they were doing in fighting Jaapn received only a small amount of publicity."

Sir Philip said the British, Indian, Chinese and American troops fighting in Burma "are not only saving India but they are knocking the hell out of the Japanese."

Victor T. Goggin Quits Liquor Board

TORONTO, Nov. 8 — The Drew Cabinet yesterday accepted the resignation of Victor T. Goggin as Chief Commissioner of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, the resignation to take effect December 31 next.

In making the announcement Premier George Drew said that Mr. Goggin left important duties at Ottawa last February to become Liquor Commissioner in order to carry out the reorganization made necessary by the restrictions on the sale of alcoholic beverages imposed by the Dominion Government.

Mr. Goggin explained at the time that it might be necessary for him to leave at such time as it appeared to him necessary to return to his earlier occupation," said the Premier, "but he did undertake to carry out the details of reorganization which were so essential. This he has done exceedingly well; and in keeping with the understanding we had at the time he assumed these duties at my request, he has now asked to be relieved of his public responsibility. Fortunately, he will be able to remain long enough to continue the direction of the affairs of the board through most difficult period of the year, and also to assist whoever will be responsible for the future direction of the affairs of the board."

front pews several times too, and it was lively going. Finally, however, after 20 minutes fast action Hall once more arched the Whip through the ropes and bounced him back a gain two or three times as he tried to make his way back into the ring. When he did succeed in climbing in Watson was out on his feet and the Californian laid a couple of hay-makers on his jaw and then floored him with a series of flying mares to take the fall.

Watson fought back hard in the second round and the tide of battle started to come his way. He flung Hall around with the whip, laid him low two or three times with flying tackles and the Doc began to lose a lot of his swagger, although he kept punching and had the champ in several jams. At last however, Watson took all the steam out of his pugnacious opponent with a couple of hard flying tackles, softened him still further with a drop kick and then quickly applied his Canadian avalanche to trundle the Californian into position to pin his shoulders. Hall argued that he had not been thrown but both the referee and the crowd were against him.

In the time left before the end of the hour the Whipper carried the fight. He opened out on the Doc right off the reel by flopping him down hard seven times in a row with a series of flying mares that had the Californian bouncing all over the ring and from then until the timer's gong ended hostilities Watson continued to put on the pressure. Hall did not quit. In fact he was dangerous more than once but Watson was setting the pace and got his reward for his aggressive tactics when Referee Maxwell raised his arm at the end of the bout in token of victory.

Hall did not like any part of the decision but his angry outburst at the close of the battle only earned him the jeers of the crowd and did nothing to change the ruling.

Sexton Shows Class

Frankie Sexton, who met long Joe Christie in the semi-final, never looked better. The Ohio Power House, clean cut, fast and clever has become one of the most popular wrestlers on the circuit and in his clash with Christie he demonstrated the reason. Christie tried hard against the formidable Columbus athlete and in the early stages of the bout Sexton was satisfied to let his elongated opponent set the pace, contenting himself with clever breaks whenever Christie tried a hold. The smartness with which he rolled and twisted and spun out of threatening grips had the crowd cheering. Then Sexton moved in on the attack and the end was not long coming. He slowed Christie down with a shoulder butt, hitting like a tank, and before the tall boy recovered from that shock Sexton had picked him up by the feet and Christie found himself helpless in the famous Sexton giant swing. Ten times the Columbus grappler whirled his opponent around in a complete circle and when he finally let him drop to the mat Christie was as completely out as Dewey was in the Solid South yesterday. All Sexton had to do was drop on him to take the fall in ten minutes.

Two Ontario boys, the popular Joe Maich of Brantford and tall Bill Stack of Bowmanville staged an opening bout that was as clean as a soap drama. There was not a dirty grip in a carload as the two youngsters using a lot of holds that were in the wrestling codes and a few that were not battled for a decision. Maich had the edge in experience and Stack a big advantage in height and reach. In the long run experience told the tale for Maich used a couple of monkey-drops and then a series of flying mares to take the bout after 21 minutes of interesting action.

Referee Bert Maxwell was back as the third man in the ring and Fred Scates looked after the timing and introduced the gladiators to the crowd.

Special Scrubber

CHICAGO, Nov. 8—(AP)—Chicago and North Western Railroad Company's fleet of streamliners are getting streamlined scrubs. Since installation of a portable mechanical car washer, an 18-car train is washed in about 22 minutes. The device, in the form of a steel arch, is lined with a series of revolving brushes which, with the help of a fine spray of water, scrub the train as it passes through.

gue offered some of the fruits of the past season to help other people. A check for $75 was given to George A. MacDonald, chairman of the Peterborough Corvette Committee, to assist in buying comforts for the crew of H.M.C.S. Peterborough.

Money from the League will go to buy the comforts not placed on the ship by the government, for the sailors who are offering their lives for us, Mr. MacDonald said. In the past, he said, such things as washing-machines, radios, electric irons, and clothing has been bought for the ship, not to mention the large number of Christmas boxes recently sent. He said the government equips the ship for war; but the sailors need the added comforts of gifts from home. Lauding the girls for their cooperative spirit in the games, he likened it to the game of life, in which the cooperation taught by sports, is also vitally needed.

In recognition of service to the league during the past season, presentations were made to Isobel Bullock, secretary, and Gladys Fountain, treasurer. A surprise presentation was made to Mr. Bennett and Mrs. Fountain, who will be married this week, by Ab. Delahaye, who offered the couple the best of luck, and wishes for a long and happy married life. Albert Watkins, coupled his best wishes with those of Mr. Delahaye.

A draw was made, and four winners chosen by the captains of the Westclox, Aircraft, Outboard Marines, and Brinton Carpet teams. The first prize winner of a $30 suit, was Miss S. Simmons, of 273 Dalhousie street. A $10 war savings certificate was won by Frances Young, of Lakefield, and awards of $5 war savings certificates were won by Dorothy Pearson, 296 Prince street, and F. H. Jobbitt, secretary-treasurer of the Peterborough Lock Company, who was present at the banquet and who turned over the award to Mr. Mann, as a contribution to the War Victims' Fund. The Peterborough Lock team is one of the newcomers to the league, but played good ball during the season.

Gladys Mortimer, president of the Provincial Women's Softball Union, Alderman F. Curtis, chairman of the Parks Committee, Dave Leether, president of the Men's City League, and manager of the Peterborough-Brinton Carpet Company, all offered their congratulations to the Ladies' league in recognition of a fine season of good softball.

Mr. Bennett, main sparkplug in the girls' league progress this year, replaced the thanks and appreciation offered him, on the shoulders of his executive, and members of the teams themselves. New teams and veterans came into the focus of his thanks.

After the dinner, the meeting adjourned to a lower floor, where dancing held the spotlight until midnight. The entire dinner was sponsored by the various industrial firms with entries in the Girls' league.

Trinity Club Hears Rev. W. McDonald

Rev. William McDonald addressed on Tuesday evening the regular meeting of Trinity Young People's Club on the theme, "Our Legacy of Literature." He said that the literature of today was based upon the firm foundation laid thousands of years ago by the Romans and Greeks, and that since then many great writers had built on this foundation and added storey after storey.

"One of the greatest pieces of literature ever written is the Bible," Rev. McDonald continued, showing that it was great not only for the way in which it was written, but also for the history it told. He explained that the Old Testament was a group of many histories, while the New Testament was one large story, revolving around the central figure of Christ.

In closing the speaker suggested that it would prove most beneficial if everyone took the time at least once a year to read one good book and share the benefits gained from it with someone else.

Mrs. H. Shier was in charge of the devotional program, assisted by Miss Edna Elliott and Mrs. H. Gray. Dick Clayton presented a program of amusing games, and Mrs. D. Clayton provided the refreshments. It was announced that the next meeting, in charge of Miss Elva Elliott's group, would feature as guest speaker Miss Rachael Young, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, discussing "Juvenile Delinquency."

CONFEDERATION SCHOOL

"Open House" was observed by members of the Confederation Home and School Association Tuesday evening, as parents gathered to meet the teachers, and discuss their children's work.

Rev. F. W. Craik was guest speaker for the regular meeting of the Association, choosing as his topic, "Religious Education." Rev. Craik said the program of non-sectarian religious education in the school was the finest piece of work attempted for boys and girls of the present time. He spoke of his pleasure in meeting and teaching the children, and said that both he and the children looked forward to their half hour together each Wednesday morning. He was particularly gratified that on one morning recently, the class asked him 21 questions which he answered from the Bible, showing that they were really interested and eager to learn.

QUEEN ELIZABETH

Members of May's Home and School Association were guests at the regular meeting of the Queen Elizabeth Association, Tuesday evening, when K. O. Birkin of the Normal School was guest speaker. In keeping with the theme for Education Week, Mr. Brisben spoke under the topic, "Education for World Cooperation."

In his talk he showed how the home and school are linked together in the educating of the child for responsible citizenship. He felt the child could only be taught to accept responsibility by practice, and should be given small tasks for which he alone is responsible, even when he is quite young. Mr. Brisken stressed the value of games of the "team" type, to teach cooperation among children, and also said that enterprise was fostered when the opportunity was provided for children to work together with a minimum of guidance.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, November 9

A VERY propitious time for placing the affairs, employment, possessions and all serious objectives on a sound and enduring basis. It may require some deep analysis of plans and purposes, with a definite concentration of the energies and talents on a systematic and methodical summary of the factors and possibilities that may be considered assets. It is suggested that a subtle or quiet conference or agreement with others may be a concrete way of permanent advancement, especially in association with public or community authorities.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are encouraged to work with concentrated energies, plans and purposes for future stability and security. Promotion as a reward of merit or work faithfully accomplished may be looked for. likewise possessions, property and other tangible assets may be put on a solid basis, by straightforward analysis. The personal affairs are also under promise of growth, stability and more sentimental and pleasant security, possibly courtship and marriage. Cultivate those in influential positions.

A child born on this day may have much sold talent and equipment for a progressive, secure and happy future, in which system, sound plans and responsibility may attract rewards and sound co-operation.

DOROTHY DIX

PRIDE IS A NECESSITY

DEAR MISS DIX—Should I take the old adage that says "pride is a luxury which a woman in love cannot afford" at its full value? Why I ask is this: I am engaged to a boy who is in the service and I promised I would wait for him until he came back from the war, but another chap came along with whom I fell desperately in love and who told me that I was the only girl, so I promised to marry him.

But now this second boy and I have quarreled and he has broken off our affair and says that I had better go back to the first boy and that I will be happier with him. Now what shall I do? Shall I humble myself and go back to the first boy and ask him to take me back?

TROUBLED GIRL.

Pride Not a Luxury

ANSWER—I think that instead of pride being a luxury to a woman in love, it is a necessity if she wants to keep herself desirable to her man. For men take women at their own valuation and the higher a girl holds herself, the more they want her.

After a lover's tiff, a girl should let the man be the one to make it up. If she does the apologizing, he will think she is so much in love with him that he can treat her as he pleases, but if she waits for him to come back, he thinks she can take him or leave him. It piques his vanity and arouses his interest in her. He wants to find out if she is not as much in love with him as he thought she was and how it is she has been able to resist his fascination.

As for your individual case, you must be dumb indeed if you do not see that this man who so nobly gives you up to his rival is trying to shake you. He doesn't intend to marry you. He has repented the brief flare of fancy that made him propose to you and he is offering you a way to save your face. Take it.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a woman in the early fifties who knows all there is to know about philandering husbands. For many years I have worked like a coal heaver doing everything possible to make a success of my marriage but at last, I have come to realize what a sap I have been and that there is nothing that anyone can do to change a born wanderer into a fireside companion.

Rather than hurt the feelings of a wonderful daughter I have refrained from divorcing this man whose only interest in life is skirt chasing, but I have ceased to let what he does or leaves undone even annoy me. I live a full, complete and happy life with my own work, my own pleasures, my own friends. Whether my alleged husband is out with a blond or a brunette is of no more importance to me than it would be if it were some other man who is spending his time and his money on a cutie.

So I pass on this tip to other middle-aged wives: Why break your hearts worrying over someone who isn't worth worrying over? Forget him.

CHEERIO.

◆ ◆ ◆

ANSWER—I commend this woman's letter to the many tear-sodden wives of philanderers who dampen this column with their tales of woe. Granted that every woman wants her husband to be faithful to her, granted that she started out by loving him. Well, there is no better cure for love sickness than sitting down calmly and dispassionately and analyzing the philandering husband and seeing whether what you've got is worth worrying about if you lose him.

DEAR MISS DIX—My son is about to marry a divorced woman who is in her thirties and has a child five years old, while he is only a boy of twenty-two. Worse still, the woman is not of good character and she is obviously marrying him because he is well off.

Now one of my friends wants to give them a reception at her home and insists upon my attending it, but I have refused, because if I go it will be publicly accepting her. Do you think I should go or not?

ANSWER — Your friend shows little regard for your feelings in giving this reception, for it publicizes your humiliation at your son's folly in making such an unsuitable marriage, and gives a gaping crowd of curious people a chance to gossip about how you are taking it.

But in the end you will have to accept your son's marriage and patch up some sort of a family truce, so perhaps you had as well get the ordeal over by going to the party.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

DEAR MARY MOORE: I bought a whole cheese and found that parts of it that had been cut an not waxed properly to make it keep were moulding faster than I was using it up. So I decided to put on a campaign to save that cheese and discovered what a magazine called cheese goulash and it was liked so much by my husband and family I have made it several times since. It wouldn't be anything you would try unless you had a reason like I had so I'm sending it on with my recommendation.

Cheese Goulash

(Sent by Marge Henderson)

Three-quarters cup each chopped onion and green pepper, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 can condensed tomato soup, ¾ cup milk, 3 cups grated mild cheese, 3 egg yolks beaten (there is another way to make it by baking it and folding in the beaten whites), buttered toast. Saute the onion and pepper in the butter until wilted and a little golden. Add the soup and milk, and stir until heated, then add the cheese and stir until melted. Stir in the yolks and add seasonings if desired. Serve on toast, or as suggested above fold in beaten whites, pour into casserole and bake until well-puffed and golden.—M. H.

An ideal supper dish—actually a new idea in rarebits. Thanks.

Valuator Says Hatton Lots Worth $500 Each

Wartime Housing's offer of $23,000 for the Hatton property represented "a very low" average value of the building lots into which it could be subdivided, said Newton Smale of Lindsay, witness in the Tuesday afternoon session of the Exchequer Court which is sitting in Peterborough to decide the sum which should be paid the owners of the 27.3 acres of the Hatton estate expropriated by the Crown company in August 1942.

Mr. Smale is assistant manager of the Victoria Trust and Savings Company, and a former alderman of Lindsay. He was examined by T. J. Carley, K.C., counsel for the members of the Hatton family who rejected Wartime Housing's $23,000 offer for the property on which a block of temporary houses were built for the accommodation of the families of workers on wartime production in local manufacturing plants.

Mr. Smale estimated that the 27.3 acres could be divided into 126 building lots of 50 feet frontage and 127 feet in depth. On the basis of $23,000 for that property, the average value of a lot would be $182 as against Mr. Smale's estimated worth of at least $500.

One of his comments from his examination of the Hatton property and the residential development in the west end last Thursday was: "I thought that some of those large and fine looking houses on the west side of your city looked rather ambitious for Peterborough."

That was merely a parenthetic opinion in the course of Mr. Smale's evidence in reply to Mr. Carley's questioning.

Well Drained

Appraising the Hatton acres as a potential residential section, the witness said the land was high and rolling and compact, evidently with natural drainage. "It seemed to me that the only higher area was the Liftlock on the east side. The ground is generally clay loam with a little gravel in it. Obviously the trend of residential building is toward the west, and I was convinced that the Hatton property would lend itself readily for subdivision purposes.

I first made a calculation of the probable number of lots suggested from previous conveyances from the Hatton estate. I took the dimensions 50 feet frontage and 118 feet in depth, but I found that this unit did not divide the property for me without leaving a substantial residue. I then took a basic lot of 50 feet by 127 feet, and found that this would provide 126 lots, and at $23,000 for the whole property taken by Wartime Housing this would come to $182 a lot."

Mr. Carley: "What do you say as to the price of the lots being a fair value for property in that location?"

Mr. Smale: "I don't like to use the words absurdly low, but I have no hesitation in saying 'very low'."

Mr. Carley: "What you do consider a fair value of lots of that size in that residential area?"

Mr. Smale: "I think lots on the higher ground would be substantially more than the figure I would suggest. Lots 50 x 127 feet should average $500."

The 126 lots at an average price of $500 would amount to $63,000, Mr. Smale continued. To that he added $8,000 for depreciation of the farm remaining part of the entire Hatton house, barns and stables and to the property, bringing his total to $71,000.

"For ready sale of lots I should say that the owner should have a survey of the property, register plans and have sewers on the streets that would be laid out. Four thousand feet of sewerage at $3 a foot (Lindsay municipal cost) would cost $12,000, and drainage, survey and plans would cost around $3,000, altogether $15,000. Deducting that amount from the $71,000 would leave a net value of the property at $56,000."

Potential Value

Mr Carley questioned Mr. Smale as to whether it was general practice in realty developments for the owner of a subdivision to put in such services as streets, sidewalks, sewerage and water mains. Witness replied that he did not think it was, and that these services were usually provided by the municipality.

Norman Hatton had previously stated that the owners of the property never had any intention of supplying any of these necessary conveniences and that anybody interested in building lots could take them just as they were.

To Mr. Huycke, counsel for Wartime Housing Limited, Mr. Smale said he never had any experience in subdivision developments.

As compared with the Wartime Housing use of the property, Mr. Smale said to Mr. Carley, "I'd feel the potential value of the Hatton lots, considering their location, is very great."

Another aside in the course of his testimony was Mr. Smale's statement that farms are selling at only 60 per cent of their 1929 values. The Hatton acres considered as farm land in actual use, that is the entire property which had been rented for farm purpose, might have been worth $100 an acre, or a total of $5,000 at the price of $100 for the 50 acres.

Valued At $100,000

Prior to the expropriation of the 27.3 acres by Wartime Housing Limited, the value of the entire Hatton holdings, comprising Walkerfield House and 48 acres, was valued at $100,000, Norman C. Hatton stated in cross-examination by W. F. Huycke, K.C., Tuesday afternoon. This estimate was based chiefly on expected returns from sale of the land as building lots.

Witness affirmed that seven or eight years ago the entire property's assessment by the township of North Monaghan was increased from $10,000 to $11,000. An appeal was made to the Court of Revision, and the assessment was restored to $10,000 including Walkerfield House.

The present remnant of the family property is eight acres, including house, which witness estimated at $30,000 in value, allowing around $15,000 for the residence.

As to the sale of twenty lots between 1919 and 1942, which Mr. Huycke suggested as not indicating "velocity" of movement, Mr. Hatton said there had never been an effort to sell the property in building lots. Disposal was made only from time to time when special offers were made for individual lots. "We had several real estate men want us to exploit the property but we wouldn't consider it. We turned down an offer of $25,000 for ten acres in 1924. Generally we had been holding the farm until some one came along and paid enough to make it worth while. It turned down a lot offer at noon today. I don't think the time is ripe even yet to put the property on the market.

Mr. Carley: "What do you mean by the time not yet ripe?"

Mr. Hatton: "There was not enough enquiry for good residential sites until it began to smarten up in 1938. By 1942 to 1944 there was more enquiry, but labor has been short and the cost of building material has been high."

Mr. Hatton said that if Wartime Housing kept their promise and tore down the temporary houses six months after the war there would be bound to be a big demand for houses.

SOUCES OF KNOWLEDGE

WHEN THE opponents are indulging in psychic bidding, to fool your side out of getting into the best contract, there are several guides to the true facts. First, if too much strength has been shown around the table, more strength than the deck of cards contains—considering what you have yourself—you know somebody is lying. Who is it? If you are vulnerable and they are not, that is one indication. If they opened third hand, that is another. If your partner is habitually conservative and sound, that is still another. Expert bidders consider all of these carefully.

This was a case of two top-ranking pairs competing against each other in a rubber game, for keeps. West was a player noted for his consistency and conservatism and for not shading any kind of a bid except in an extremity. The reputation he had with East proved an important factor late in the bidding.

The first clue to East on the psyching of his opponents came when West showed enough strength to make a free bid at the height of two over South's 1-No Trump. When East then showed willingness to lift the bidding to three over North's 2-Hearts, he told West that his double was thoroughly sound. West's taking the bidding then voluntarily to the four level in clubs told East all the rest he wanted to know, excepting the ace situation. To find out then how many aces West had, he resorted to the Blackwood convention.

Against such opponents, the psyching tactics of North and South proved futile They were shown up West made the slam contract by playing the clubs right, after the spade 5 lead, and finessing hearts successfully, which enabled him to toss a spade loser on the third heart. Thus he limited his loss to a single trick in spades.

Churchill Warns Great Effort Required To Beat Germany

Russians Massing for Big Drive

LONDON, Nov. 9—(CP).—The German High Command said today the Russians had crossed the Danube at Apatin, in Northern Yugoslavia 15 miles south of the Hungarian border and 125 miles south of Budapest, and a "battle is still raging there." The broadcast communique said the Russians had penetrated that part of Apatin which is on the west bank. The Red Army had been reported massing men and materials along the eastern front for "decisive action against the vital centres of Germany" promised this week by Premier Stalin.

A Soviet communique dismissed developments by noting "no essential changes at the front," but the German radio described the comparative quiet as "the calm before the storm."

Massing Tanks

Besieged and strife-torn Budapest was considered the most likely target for a fresh and heavier assault. The Berlin radio reported new concentrations of Soviet tanks in the outskirts of the Hungarian capital.

The Russian drive on city slowed perceptibly two days ago in the face of a desperate German and Hungarian resistance and heavy rains.

Red Army columns have been reported in the northern and southeastern suburbs of Budapest and a flanking armored column apparently is about 12 miles north of the city. Another quick advance along the Danube River valley in that sector was reported last night by the Morocco radio.

Continental broadcasts told of open revolt inside Budapest. The Paris radio said street-fighting took

Air Conference Disagrees Over Degree Of Authority

By FRANK FLAHERTY—Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, Nov. 9—(CP).—Line of disagreement on the degree of control to be applied to international civil aviation stood out sharply at the international civil aviation conference today. Developments which followed the United States election which established an assured continuity of personnel and policy at Washington were:

An indication that the United States is opposed to giving an international authority power to allocate routes and frequencies on international commercial services; evidence that the Australia-New Zealand proposals for international ownership and operation of trunk services has wider support than was anticipated.

May Mean Deadlock.

The United States' position as it was stated yesterday might, if followed up, mean a deadlock in the conference since Canada and the United Kingdom, which favor an international authority with power over routes, may regard any lesser agreement as not worth while.

The conference took its first major decision yesterday when after a brief formal debate, it declared there was not the "necessary unanimity" for the organization, at the present time, of an all-embracing international company.

It thus rejected the first move sponsored by the only two labor governments represented at the meeting and which is in accord with a policy endorsed by the British Labor Party and other Leftist movements in different parts of the world.

The proposal is not dead yet, however, since the French delegate, Max Hymans, who along with the spokesman of Afghanistan, supported it, served notice that he would bring it up again in a different form. He intends to propose that, in orer to see what can be done through International co-operation, one International service be set up on some designated route.

There was no recorded vote on the rejection of the Australia-New Zealand scheme.

Stalin Offended Japanese People

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9—(AP).—Premier Marshal Stalin's speech this week in which he branded Japan an "aggressor nation", surprised and offended the Japanese people, Domei, Japanese News Agency, reported today in a radio broadcast.

The broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said the Russian Premier's address has become the "central topic of discussion of all Japan . . . but government circles are refraining from making any comments."

Japanese propagandists reiterated their theme that Japan was fighting the war to "free the peoples of greater East Asia from the Imperialism of America and Britain" and added that the Japanese people were surprised by Stalin's statement since "liberation and aggression are two opposite things and one cannot confuse the two kinds of philosophies."

The Domei broadcast added: "It is naturally expected that the foreign policy of Russia will change as new situations demand. Consequently, it is the firm belief of the Japanese general public that Japan must also adopt a realistic policy which will conform with any new situation created by the Russians . . . Premier Stalin in his speech did not allude to the Chungking regime. This fact is noteworthy."

Mr. Stalin's reference was to "aggressive nations" but the Domei broadcast said, "Premier Stalin branded Japan as an 'aggressor nation.'"

Air Training Scheme To Be Curtailed

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 (CP) — Possibility that the British Air Training Plan agreement will not be renewed when it expires March 31 was reported today following information Monday that the RCAF will undergo further curtailment Jan. 1 when the strength will be cut by a third with personnel mustered out on the previously announced "first-in, first-out" basis.

In the absence of Air Minister Power—recovering from an appendectomy at Quebec — air officials said they had nothing official to say on either of the reports.

Germans Claim 'V-2' In Use

Five Killed And Scores Injured In London

LONDON, Nov. 9—(CP).—At least five persons were killed and scores injured during the night when flying bombs crashed in residential areas in southern England.

London was alerted for the first time in three days.

A number of the missiles were shot down over the east coast in a fierce sky display.

Three out of nine injured persons uncovered by rescue squads working all night died en route to hospitals.

The German radio—which yesterday proclaimed that the Nazis' new "V-2" rocket projectile already has been launched against London—declared today that attacks with this weapon will be stepped up. Other secret weapons of great explosive power also will be unleashed, a Berlin broadcast declared.

Fox Holes Made Into Bathtubs

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Nov. 9—(AP)—The battle for the road to Ormoc seethed through its fourth day today, with American and Japanese divisions punching at each other from muddy mountain footholds and through blinding downpours.

Still indecisive, the battle centred in ridges abutting a horseshoe bend, with the tiny village of Limon as its focal point. Neither side claimed victory.

The storm was the most important factor on the fourth day of the Ormoc road battle. Already facing terrain difficulties—the necessity of fighting their way uphill, the difficulty of using artillery from low firing positions against the hilltops—the Americans were further hampered by the arrival of a tropical hurricane which made muddy bathtubs of fox holes and made the fighting itself a groping affair in which neither side could see the enemy soldiers they were battling almost hand to hand.

UNRRA Stalled By Red Tape

PARIS, Nov. 9—(AP).—The United Nations' relief and rehabilitation administration's program for civilian war relief in France apparently has been stalled by political and military red tape and friction, although thousands of French people still lack shelter and clothing.

Sixteen uniformed U.N.R.R.A. representatives attached to Allied Supreme Headquarters are marking time in a more or less advisory capacity, gathering statistical data on the French situation. Two are working with the 6th, 12th and 21st Army Groups in the field to prepare for transfer of civilian relief from the army to the U.N.R.R.A. as planned.

But the extensive outlay of material and expert personnel which the U.N.R.R.A. has been organizing in England for months still is unrealized in France.

The immediate obstacle is the lack of formal authorization by both Supreme Headquarters and the French Government—a situation which several Allied officers confirmed without explanation.

It appears however, that the reasons for the delay are (1) a delicate relationship between the French Government and Allied military officials, who already have surrendered their jurisdiction over half of France; (2) friction between American civil and military authorities, and (3) possible confusion attending many phases of the rapid development of the campaign in France.

King Defends Policy On Draftees

Only 68,000 Men Of 750,000 Are Not Volunteers

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 (CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King last night set forth his continued belief in conscription if necessary but not necessarily conscription when he reviewed the overseas reinforcements situation in a half-hour broadcast address.

In support of his policy he said that the voluntary service system has not broken down; that only 68,000 of the 750,000 in the armed forces are not volunteers; that the achievements of the Canadian Army have demonstrated the efficiency of its training; that infantry reinforcements have been sufficient to date and that a special appeal can bring more general service enlistments from those called for compulsory military service.

In short, brisk sentences, laden with figures of Canadian strength in manpower, he reviewed the recommendation of Col. J. L. Ralston that conscription for overseas was necessary to keep flowing the reinforcements to be needed overseas.

Turned to McNaughton

Faced with Col. Ralston's recommendation as Defence Minister, Mr. King said he had turned to Gen. McNaughton to seek his advice. Gen. McNaughton said he thought the possibilities of voluntary service had not been exhausted.

The Prime Minister retained the position he has held on overseas service during the war. While the 60,000 effectives in home defence army will not be sent overseas unless war developments demand, they will not "be maintained in idleness." Compulsion where necessary will continue to be used to ensure fit men of military age perform national service required by the war effort.

Fit draftees "will continue to be a potential ultimate reserve of reinforcements whose compulsory employment in any theatre may, in in the light of developing circumstances, have to be reconsidered.

It had always been believed that Canadian forces, having begun as voluntary forces, would be more effective and the country more united if they continued on this basis.

Only 8,000 Trained.

Only about 8,000 of the less than 60,000 home defence army troops were sufficiently trainedas infantry reinforcements to be ready for combat at an early date.

While a detailed plan of demobilization could not be announced, it had been decided to follow the principle that those with the long-

Detroit, Nov. 9 (AP)

THE Wayne county board of canvassers today began a recheck of the vote in 94 Wayne county precincts to determine what had happened to an estimated 50,000 "lost" ballots for president, with Michigan's 19 electoral college votes hanging in the balance.

On the basis of the first precinct re-checked, E. Cyril Bevan, Democratic national committeeman from Michigan, predicted the final count would swing Michigan to President Roosevelt by more than 5,000 votes.

Canadians Man, Service Trains In France

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE, Nov. 9 (CP)—Canada's railway troops are making things hum in France. There was a time not so long ago when you nonchalantly whizzed past railroad crossings, but today "Stop, Look and Listen" is the watchword, because trains manned and serviced by Canadians are roaring past carrying vital war supplies.

A company of the 1st Canadian Army Railway operating group, under Maj. H. T. Alcorn, of Melville, Sask., has worked with railway troops of Britain and the U.S.A. to get things under way.

At a main round-house, locomotives are overhauled and services by Canadians who formerly worked for the C.N.R. and C.P.R. in Canada Strewn along the routes are block-houses from where expert railwaymen watch the trains as they go by and report ahead any visible trouble.

R.C.C.S. men attached to the railway group handle the communication end of it with telephone and teletype

Supplies of all description are carried on imported as well as captured enemy trains.

Some of the Canadians like Sgt. John James of Vancouver and Sgt. Ted Barnett, Lindsay, Ont., live in old boxcars where they claim they have all or—practically all—the comforts of home.

The company includes fitters like Spr. Jimmy Dougals, of Stratford, Ont., Engineers like Spr. Bill Adams of Ignace, Ont., Spr. Ed Shell of Uxbridge, Ont., Sgt. Wally Wallace, St. Thomas, Ont., Spr. Garnet Oulds of Chatham, Ont., and Spr. Johnny Layman of Fort William.

The Canadians realize the importance of the work they are doing and do not shirk the long hours. "It's just like working in a railway yard back home," said battle dressed former C.N.R. man Cpl. Joe Sigouin of Cornwall, Ont., adding "but we feel much nearer to the front line."

Allies Are Now Preparing For Simultaneous Offensives

Associated Press War Analyst
By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The way military operations are developing in Europe it looks as though the Allies are getting set for simultaneous offensive in both west and east—a squeeze attack calculated to achieve a quick kill through terrific pressure.

Along with the evidences of General Eisenhower's preparations for a big drive, it's reported now that the Red armies are massing for a strategic sectors of their long front. Marshal Stalin meant business when he said last Monday that the Allies had assumed starting positions for an offensive against the cities of Germany, and that country is "on the verge of inevitable catastrophe."

The Soviet armies may strike at several places. A highly important prospect is held out in the Berlin assertion that the Russians are preparing to hurl an attack from their bridgehead on the west bank of the Vistula in southwest Poland, in the sector of the railway cities of Krakow and Tarnow. Here the Red armies are standing only about 100 miles from the border of German Silesia, one of the natural routes into Germany.

Building for a big offensive often is comparatively slow and methodical. Gen. Eisenhower for days has been ironing out his front at lumpy spots in preparation for the onslaught. This has accounted for the violent fighting on the U.S. 1st Army front southeast of Aachen in the Huertgen forest area.

Highway communications run through there to the neighboring city of Duren and thence to the prized objective of Cologne on the Rhine.

Need Every Scrap of Strength To Crush German Resistance

Operation To Clear Schelde Estuary Hailed By Churchill

LONDON, Nov. 9—(CP).—Prime Minister Churchill warned today that the "full exertions" of Britain, the United States and Russia will be needed to defeat Germany, "this military antagonist at last beaten back to his own lair."

Britain's dominant thought was to end the "frightful slaughter and devastation" in Europe within the shortest possible time," he said at the Lord Mayor's luncheon at the Mansion House.

"It is high time we had another triple conference of himself, President Roosevelt and Marshal Stalin, the Prime Minister told a distinguished audience.

He hailed the operation to clear the Schelde operation, carried out by armies of Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st Army group, but said casualties to British and Canadian forces in that campaign and in Italy had been heavy.

"In these two operations — Italy, and Holland and Belgium — very heavy losses have been sustained in the greatest proportion by the British and Canadian forces. In both we have been aided by our valiant Allies. In both opportunities have been offered for superb feats of heroism and deeds have been done which when they are known and can be studied with the attention they deserve will long figure in song and story and long light the martial annals of our race.

"I think it right to point out in a precise and definite manner that these two important battles, one in the Apennines and the other in the west, are only the prelude to further great operations which must be conducted in the months to come."

He said the victory in the Netherlands opened the Schelde River and "will very shortly place the great port of Antwerp at the disposal of the northern flank which will presently move into Germany for the final struggle."

"Now we stand on the threshold of Germany and it will take the full exertions of the three great powers, every scrap of strength they can give, to crush down the desperate resistance which we must expect from this military antagonist at last beaten back to his own lair."

War Must Come First.

At another point he said:

"Although it is our duty to work hard—and we have worked hard—to produce large schemes of social improvement and advance, although it is our duty to make preparations for the change-over from war to peace, or from war in Europe to war in Japan, in far distant Asia, although we are bound to work as hard as we can, nothing shall stand in the way of the prosecution of

British Capture Jap Stronghold

KANDY, Ceylon, Nov. 9.—(CP)—British troops have captured Japanese stronghold of Fort White on the Tiddim-Kalemyo road in northwestern Burma after two days of heavy fighting, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten announced today.

Fort White is eight miles southeast of Kennedy Peak, the fall of which was announced by Allied Headquarters Tuesday, and about 15 miles southeast of Tiddim—main base from which the Japanese launched their abortive invasion of India last year.

Kalemyo lies about 15 miles beyond Fort White.

Russia's Relations With Iran Strained

MOSCOW, Nov. 9 (AP)—Iranian militia and police were reported today by the Tass News Agency to have broken up a planned celebration at Tehran by the Labor Union Council and other organizations Tuesday on the 27th anniversary of the Soviet Union.

The Tass dispatch said labor union officials had been arrested.

Nov. 7 is Russia's biggest and most solemn holiday. The reports of the discord put an even greater strain on relations between Russia and Iran, already strained over the question of oil concession.

Bets Are Paid Off

Hollywood, Nov. 9 (AP)

THE film colony was its old uninhibited self yesterday as freak election bets were paid off. Red-headed Ann Sheridan paraded through the town wearing a ragged costume and burnt-cork make-up, after betting on Gov. Dewey with make-up man Perc Westmore. Yvonne De Carlo lost an unspecified bet to Martha O'-Driscoll and paid off by kissing the first 50 servicemen she met on the street.

Canadian Army Mops Up Suicide Squads

MOERDIKE, Holland, Nov. 9 — (CP Cable)—In the first flurry of winter snow, the battle for southwest Holland ended at dawn today in this smoking, shell-torn town at the approaches to the broken Moerdike bridges across the Hollandsche Diep.

The last German "suicide squads" on the Netherlands mainland south of the line of the Diep and the Mass (Meuse) River were mopped up in this operations, in which Polish forces of the 1st Canadian Army captured 350 prisoners and a number of self-propelled guns.

Left as a sacrifice screen by Field Marshal Model's fugitive 15th Army which several days previously had withdrawn to the north of the Hollandsche Diep-Mass line, the enemy rear-guards capitulated at 8 a.m., meekly surrendering to bayonet-wielding Polish infantry.

The Poles had to blow their way through the concrete defences. Their tanks and guns ran up to within 20 feet of strong points to blast at point-blank range. All the time they were under merciless shellfire from German self-propelled guns within the pocket and other enemy artillery on the north bank of the river.

Because the area is flooded, the battle was narrowed down to attacks along three roads, each blocked by large concrete walls. On one road, the Polish forces blew a 12-foot gap and pushed tanks and infantry through a hole which enemy gunners had taped.

Snow Falls In Holland

A wild fight raged on in cold and stormy weather. Last night sleet whipped down on the front and for brief periods wet snow fell—first of the season in Holland.

Hiting out from this gap in the wall, the Polish formations closed with the Germnas inside the pocket. They charged the enemy guns, stormed pillboxes and bunkers with the flaming courage that has typified everything these troops have achieved with the Canadian Army.

A second gap was blown through the wall on another road and two tanks got stuck in the gap. Under an artillery barrage, Polish soldiers went forward and pulled out the tanks. Then they put other tanks and infantry through the breach.

The Germans fired every weapon they had along these two roads and into the gaps but the concrete-busting Polish forces advanced yard by yard with guns, infantry and tanks slamming shells and bullets at the bogged enemy.

Three New Divisions Thrown Into Fight In Drive Beyond Metz

By WILLIAM FRYE
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP)—The United States 3rd Army's attack towards the Rhine was doubled today as Lt.-Gen. Patton threw in three more American divisions and extended the drive to both sides of Metz.

German radio commentators said the U.S. 3rd Army commander signalled the prelude to "the big offensive" with an earth-shaking barrage in an effort "to burst open the historical gate to the Palatinate which was chosen by Napoleon as the marching route for his battalions and regiments."

Meanwhile Polish forces of the 1st Canadian Army fought savagely inside breached defences against a suicide German garrison holding the southern approaches to the Moerdike bridges across the Hollandsche diep.

(A Reuter field dispatch said German resistance collapsed after the concrete defences were breached.)

Defences Penetrated

"There has been bitter fighting for the Moerdike bridge approaches," said the communique. "We penetrated the concrete defences and made some advance in the face of fierce opposition."

Ned Nordness, Associated Press war correspondent in Holland, reported almost complete lack of activity on the Netherlands front.

Mopping up by British troops of the 1st Canadian Army continued on Walcheren Island with the Germans reported pocketed on two villages north of fallen Middleburg.

Front line dispatches said Gen. Patton sent two divisions into action north of fort-ringed Metz and another to join the three which attacked south of the city on a 25-mile front yesterday and gained up to three miles.

At least 16 villages were captured in the combined advance of the 3rd and 7th Armies. Several of the villages had been previously captured however, and relinquished in the face of counter-attacks.

Loan Has Lead Of $46 Millions

OTTAWA, Nov. 9— (CP) —Canadians yesterday purchased $69,294,-850 in Victory Bonds to bring the total of the Seventh Loan to $1,119,-576,500 in the final week of the campaign which has an objective of $1,300,000,0000.

The total announced today is approximately $46,000,000 ahead of the total reached on the corresponding day in the sixth loan in which the final figure was $1,400,000,000.

Individual purchasers yesterday recorded one of their biggest days in the present drive with their purchases amounting to $38,084,800, moving the cumulative total for individual purchasers up to $513,750,-350.

Applications now total 2,032,000 as against 1,960,000 in the same stage of the Sixth Loan.

"This can be the biggest Victory Loan that Canada has ever had," one official said. "However, we need another 1,000,000, applications to equal the participation in the last loan and it is important that every Canadian who has not yet bought, and every Canadian who can buy an extra Bond, should sign their application at once. There is no question but that the minimum objective will be reached. The aim now should be to go well beyond the mark of the Sixth Victory Loan, which was somewhat in excess of $1.400,0000,000."

Dutch Claim Nazi Territory

May Demand Part Of Adjoining Prussia

LONDON, Nov. 9 — (CP).—Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee told the House of Commons today the Netherlands government, in an official communication to the British government, had reserved the right to claim in compensation for damage and destruction caused by the Germans a "suitable part" of the adjoining Prussian territory.

The territory would either be ceded or brought within the economic orbit of the Netherlands on a provisional or permanent basis, Mr. Attlee quoted the Dutch communication as saying.

The House cheered when Mr. Attlee declared, "so far as the British government are concerned, all just claims for territorial compensation at the expense of Germany which the Netherlands government may decide to put forward will be given energetic support."

Reinforcements Well Trained King Declares

OTTAWA, Nov. 9.—(CP).— More than 650,000 men have served in the ranks of Canada's army during this war, and of that "great number a few may have failed to receive all the training prescribed," Prime Minister Mackenzie King said last night.

Competent officers have made the most careful review of charges that reinforcements were going into battle without sufficient training, said Mr. King in a radio address.

The officers found that the number of cases of men going into battle without sufficient training was "exceedingly small."

"The highest military advisers of the government are satisfied that reinforcements sent into action have been well trained, he said.

(Maj. Conny Smythe, well-known Toronto sportsman and a wartime artillery man, recently returned to Canada after being wounded on the Normandy battlefields, had said in a statement that reinforcements being received overseas were "green, inexperienced and poorly trained." He said many reinforcements had never thrown a grenade, practically all had little or no knowledge of a Bren gun and most of them had never seen a Piat anti-tank gun.)

Received Long Training.

More than 45,000 men had volunteered for general service since the beginning of this year, said Mr. King. Most of those now in the army had been in its ranks for one, two, three or four years. All but recent recruits had received long, rigorous and varied training.

It was against such a background that should be examined the statement that reinforcements without adequate training were being sent into action.

"The record of Canada's army in Italy, France, Belgium and Holland is not the record of any army of which any part lacked adequate training," said Mr. King. "On the contrary, the military achievements of our armp are he best possible evidence of tha efficiency of its training."

Total army casualties had not been as great as the number estimated and provided for before D-Day. Infantry casualties were lower than expected in the actual landings and higher than estimated in the heavy fighting since the beachheads were established in June.

"The army has been obliged to transfer some of the men originally trained for other arms into the pool of infantry reinforcements," Mr. King said. "This procedure is known as 'remustering.'"

All re-mustered troops had had basic infantry training, in addition to basic training and the training they had received in their particular army, they were given further specialized infantry training before being sent into combat.

Election Over Americans Unite To Win The War

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9—(AP).— President Roosevelt's fourth term victory, sweeping in the electoral vote, was won by the smallest popular vote margin since 1916, the nearly complete returns indicated to-day.

With 44,353,855 votes reported, the President's edge over Governor Dewey stood at 2,867,319: Roosevelt 23,610,587, and Dewey 20,743,268.

The President was leading in states with 413 electoral votes and Gov. Dewey in states with 118, but where Michigan's 19 votes eventually would wind up was in doubt although Gov. Dewey held a slight lead.

Four years ago the President won by 4,938,711 over Wendell L. Willkie in a total popular vote of 49,815,312.

House of Representatives.

Swept into office along with the President was a strengthened Democratic majority in the House of Representatives. On the basis of late returns, the Democrats held a plurality of at least 49 seats with 13 contests still undecided.

In the Senate the Democrats seemed assured of maintaining at least their present strength.

Mr. Roosevelt thus carries a strength that Mr. Wilson lacked when, with a war won, he fell into endless arguments with an unfriendly Congress about the peace.

Mea[illegible] country bound up its election wounds and settled down to a let's-get-on-with-the-war attitude.

"Let us unite to win the war and to achieve a lasting peace" was the solemn request of Mr. Roosevelt as he prepared to return to Washington from Hyde Park. This was the attitude, too, of Gov. Dewey.

Mr. Roosevelt's vote of confidence will still be fresh as he heads into an expected talk before Christmas with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

Democrats elected 19 Senators to give them 55 seats in the 96-man Senate which must approve peace treaties by a two-thirds vote. The Republicans added 11 to their 24 holdovers. Five contests remain for later counts to settle. One seat is held by a Progressive.

Late returns showed that Democrats unseated Republican Governors in Ohio, Massachusetts, Missouri, Idaho and Washington, while the Republicans captured Governors chairs from their opposition in Indiana and North Dakota.

Left in doubt, possibly until next week when all the state's service vote will be counted, was the Utah Governorship. It was a neck-and-neck race between Democrat incumbent Herbert Maw and Republican J. Bracken Lee.

Gov. Dewey could take pride in the fact that the indicated popular vote margin by which he lost is the smallest in 28 years.

Synthetic Oil Plants Bombed

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(CP).— The aerial bombardment of western Germany went on to-day with an attack on objectives in the Ruhr by a force of R.A.F. Lancasters, escorted by Spitfires and Mustangs.

No targets were named but the attack probably was aimed at further crippling Nazi communications lines to the front.

An air ministry communique said two bombers were lost on the operation.

A small force of R.A.F. Mosquitos last night raided Hanover and other targets in western Europe without loss, it was announced earlier.

A damaging double-barreled assault was made on two German synthetic oil plants yesterday at Merseburg and Homberg.

One R.A.F. fighter was lost and 42 U.S. fighters failed to return, but most of them were reported to have landed in France because of the weather.

R.A.F. rocket - firing Typhoons yesterday blew up a German headquarters building near the Reichswald forest southeast of Nijmegen.

Netherlands-based Canadian fighter-bombers, flying more than 150 sorties yesterday despite unfavorable weather, continued their rail-cutting attacks and were credited with at least 13 cuts in enemy railway lines.

the war to its ultimate conclusion," he declared.

He said a Churchill-Roosevelt-Stalin meeting "might easily bridge the sufferings of mankind and stop the fearful process of destruction which is now ravaging the earth."

Mr. Churchill declared, "It is high time we had another triple conference" of himself, President Roosevelt and Marshal Stalin.

Such a meeting, he said, "might easily bridge the sufferings of mankind and stop the fearful process of destruction which is now raving the earth.

"The prospects of such a meeting," Churchill said, "have been vastly improved by the results of the presidential elections in the United States."

Pausing while the audience applaused, Mr. Churchill added

"And for which we waited so breathlessly on Tuesday last."

He said the U-boat menace "for the time being" had been practically effaced. There was one month when the Germans did not sink a single ship until the last day; then they got one, he said.

"It is hard to remember how long ago this war began," the Prime Minister said. "One can never be quite sure whether it has lasted a flash or an age...."

U.S. Elections.

Turning to the United States elections, he said:

"When I was here last year I appealed to the British and American public to be very careful that election year did not in any way ruffle the goodwill that existed throughout the English-speaking world, and which was so great an aid to our armies.

"It is certainly remarkable that all this turmoil of the United States election should have been carried through without any disturbing of the ancient, moth-eaten, threadbare controversies which are to be found in the history books between Great Britain and her American kinsmen, now brothers in arms.

"We must be very careful to avoid mixing ourselves up in American political affairs. I offer my thanks to parliament, press and to public men of all parties and no parties—perhaps especially to them— for the care and restraint which have made all potential indiscretions die upon their lips."

Praises Dewey.

Mr. Churchill praised Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for sportsmanship in defeat, saying: "What a model this would be to those states where political difference are not lovable by word or vote, where the question of who is to be in and who is to be out may be one of life and death, to be settled by violence and intrigue and where there may be but a short gap between being the ruler and being the victim."

Describing air attacks upon Germany, the Prime Minister asserted: "We have not suffered one-tenth, and we shall not suffer one-tenth of what is being meted out to those who first started and developed this cruel and merciless form of attack."

He said no one could be blamed for hoping that victory would come to the Allies and peace to Europe in 1945, provided "he does not slacken his or her efforts for a moment."

"These are months profoundly interwoven with the future of both our countries," he said, "and also we trust that the future association of our two countries will be interwoven with the peace and progress of the whole world."

The Prime Minister said it seemed almost certain Britain would have a general election in 1945. He expressed belief it would be conducted "with all the liveliness and robust vigor which will gratify the political emotions of our public, without destroying that marvellous underlying unity and sense of brotherhood which has long existed in this country and has reached its highest degree among the perils from which we have been delivered."

South of Metz the attack spread all the way from Cheminot, 10 miles south of Metz and four miles east of the Moselle, to the Chateau-Salins area where infantry hammered a mile-deep wedge north of the Rhine-Marne Canal at a point 20 miles east of Nancy and an equal distance west of Sarrebourg.

Prepare New Offensive

The Germans said the "Americans are making feverish preparations for a new offensive in the Aachen region" also and were seeking to eliminate German artillery observation posts by dropping smoke canisters on them. Artillery fire was intensified on both sides, the Germans said.

In Holland where the first show of the season fell last night, Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st Army group had seized all of Walcheren island at the mouth of the Schelde except a tiny pocket around the villages of Buttinge and St. Laurens, two miles northwest of Middelburg. This pocket was isolated from the coast.

The U.S. 1st Army was slowly regaining some of the ground lost this week southeast of Aachen to strong German counter-attacks.

Gaining Ground.

The Allied communique said the Americans were gaining ground slowly against heavy enemy pressure in the area south of Vossenack, and south-west of the town of Hurtgen against "very heavy resistance." West of Schmidt enemy pockets were being mopped up.

The attacks by the 3rd Army east of Pont a Mousson and in the area of Chateau Salins, described in dispatches from Allied Supreme Headquarters as line-straightening operations, pushed ahead for gains averaging two to three miles. More than a dozen towns were captured.

At the same time, advances were made by other 3rd Army units north of Metz, further strengthening the Allied lines around that German-held fortress on the Moselle.

Farther south, where French 1st Army and American 7th Army units have been pushing into the Vosges foothills, the town of Migneville was captured north of Baccarat, and additional gains scored, including the capture of the village of Les Baroques, west of St. Die. The Germans made several counter-attacks south-west of Gerardmer, but were repulsed.

To-day's Allied communique reported aerial attacks on enemy gun positions at Dunkerque, where a garrison of from 10,000 to 12,000 Germans is holding out against Czech units of the 1st Canadian Army.

Do You Suffer From Headaches?

It is hard to struggle along with a head that aches and pains all the time.

A headache need not be an illness in itself, but it may be a warning symptom that there is intestinal sluggishness within.

To help overcome the cause of headache it is necessary to eliminate the waste matter from the system. Burdock Blood Bitters helps to remove the cause of headaches by regulating the digestive and biliary organs, neutralizing acidity, regulating the constipated bowels and toning up the sluggish liver, and when this has been accomplished the headaches should disappear.

Customer Trails Alleged Thief Into Drugstores

Evidence by Chester C. Mowry, C.G.E. production clerk, of how he trailed a woman and three men around George street last Friday night and watched them while they visited five different drug stores featured the hearing of a charge in police court this morning against Mrs. Joan Gardner, Montreal, of stealing three bottles of perfume from McDermid and Jury's drug store.

Mowry said that on Thursday night while in the McDermid store he had noticed the accused apparently buying a pair of colored glasses at the front of the store while a man with her was at the back of the place. When on Friday night he happened to visit the same store and saw the same woman again buying glasses and the same man again at the back of the store he became suspicious.

When the accused and her male companion left the drug store they went north on George street and in front of the Bank of Nova Scotia met two other men. The four had entered Tamblyn's drug store. Later they visited Payne's drug store at George and Simcoe streets but when Mowry walked into the place all four left.

Mowry said he walked south a short distance and then turned and followed the quartette back, walking on the west side of the street and saw the woman and two men go in to Greatrix's drug store while a third man remained outside. The same thing happened a few minutes later when the four crossed George and went to Elliott's drug store.

Watches Theft

The witness testified that he had followed the three inside and when one of the men took a bottle of perfume from the counter and put it under his coat Mowry said that he asked the man what he had under his coat and received no reply. After the question had been asked again the witness said that the man took the perfume out from under his coat and eventually paid for it. Then the woman and this man left the store and were subsequently arrested down the block by Constable Trennum.

Cross-examined by W. J. Arthur Fair who appeared for Mrs. Gardner, Mowry said he did not see the accused take anything in any of the stores.

"What business had you in this affair?" asked Mr. Fair. "Were you playing the role of a busybody?"

Remembers Sale

Arthur A. Long, pharmacist at the McDermid store identified Mrs. Gardner as the woman to whom he had sold a pair of glasses in the store on Friday night last. Shown three bottles of perfume Long identified one as one that had been in the McDermid store, saying that he knew it by the firm label and cost mark. As to the other bottles the witness said that they had had similar ones in the store.

Irene Hollingsworth, clerk in Elliott's drug store, said that she had seen Mrs. Gardner in that store on Friday night and that the accused had asked for smoked glasses. Later when Mrs. Gardner had been questioned by the police in the store, witness had accompanied her down to the washroom in the basement. On the way back as they were passing through the stock room she had noticed the accused's arm go out toward a counter and on going back to the stock-room afterward Miss Hollingsworth said that she found one of the bottles already entered as exhibits in the case.

Registered At Hotel

Kenneth Graham testified that Mrs. Gardner with a man supposed to be her husband had registered at the Empress Hotel on Thursday under the name of Gordon. Witness said that he had seen one of the bottles of perfume in the room occupied by the accused when he had gone up there with police officers on Friday night, some time after 9 o'clock.

J. W. McDermid, proprietor of the McDermid store, identified Mrs. Gardner as the woman to whom he had sold a pair of glasses on Thursday night last. He identified one of the bottles of perfume produced as his property and said that he was convinced that the other bottle said to have been found in the Empress Hotel bedroom was also from his store, although he could not positively identify it.

Mrs. Winnifred Brown, clerk in the McDermid store also identified one of the bottles as the property of the store and said the other two bottles were similar to those they had had in stock. She said that she had noticed two of the bottles were in their proper place when she dusted on Thursday morning and they were not there on Friday night.

At this stage the court adjourned for luncheon.

LONDON—More than 1,300 American heavy bombers pounded German front-line positions in the Metz area to clear a path for the United States 3rd Army fighting toward the German frontier.

Meanwhile a force of R.A.F. Lancasters, with fighter escort hammered at unspecified targets in the Ruhr. The blows, which cost two bombers, probably were aimed at further crippling German communication lines to the front.

DETROIT — A recheck of 81 Wayne county precincts by the board of canvassers indicated today Gov. Dewey's lead over President Roosevelt for Michigan's 19 electoral votes had been slashed to 1,657 votes.

King Defends

est and hardest service would be given the first opportunity of leaving the services.

After a warm appeal to home defence service men to make themselves available for duty overseas, the Prime Minister said that partisan controversy and division at this time would weaken, and not strengthen, the war effort.

The Prime Minister spoke over a Canadian Broadcasting Corporation national network two days after Gen. McNaughton appealed for support of the voluntary service policy before an Ottawa Canadian Legion meeting and heard members of his audience indicate they were in favor of conscription for overseas.

Mr. King said that in actual fighting the army casualties had not been as great as the number estimated and provided for. Infantry casualties were lower than expected in the invasion landings and higher than estimated in the heavy fighting since the beachheads were established in June.

All Got Basic Training.

The army had been obliged to transfer some men originally trained for other arms into the pool of infantry reinforcements and all such "re-mustered" troops had received basic infantry training.

"In the opinion of the military authorities, no difficulty is likely to arise except in relation to reinforcements for the infantry," Mr. King said.

"Infantry reinforcements have been adequate to meet the requirements to date. But, during his recent visit to the Army overseas, Col. Ralston learned that to provide replacements for future casualties at present rates, the flow of infantry reinforcements from Canada should be accelerated."

There was no over-all shortage of reinforcements, many thousands of men were in training and enlistments were continuing at an encouraging rate. But recent recruits and those who enlisted from now on would not be available until they were trained.

Col. Ralston resigned last week and Gen. McNaughton became Defence Minister.

Col. Ralston had said there was an immediate problem of finding the means of speeding up the flow of trained infantry reinforcements to meet a possible shortage in the next few months.

The sending overseas of some of the trained draftees would seem to many the easiest way of meeting the problem, but it was not in accord with the policy of keeping the overseas army on a voluntary basis if possible.

"We have always believed that Canada's forces, having begun as voluntary forces, would be more effective and that the country would be more united in their support, if we continued to rely upon the voluntary system for reinforcements as long as the voluntary system continued to be effective."

The acceptance of Col. Ralston's recommendation would "have required agreement by the government that no alternative existed to a resort to conscription for overseas service."

Went to McNaughton

Mr. King went to Gen. McNaughton as "the builder and first commander of the Canadian Army" and "I knew there was no man who had the interests of the army and the men overseas closer to his heart.

"Gen. McNaughton expressed the belief that the possibilities of securing the required reinforcements by voluntary means had not been exhausted."

The Prime Minister said he deeply regretted the difference which led to the resignation of Col. Ralston, who had given selfless and devoted service throughout the war.

Incorrect Impression.

The impression that draftees were "sitting around in military camps in Canada since 1941 or 1942 drawing good pay and doing little or nothing to help win the war" was almost totally incorrect. At present about 68,000 men were enrolled as draftees and some 9,000 were on extended leave and many of these were unsuited for military duties. The effective total strength was under 60,000 and of these only 23,000 were from the Province of Quebec and only 25,000 from all Canada were French-speaking.

The home defence army composition was changing constantly and this year more than 15,000 had been called up and enrolled as draftees and more than 10,000 draftees had enrolled for general service.

Since the landing in France in June voluntary enlistments for overseas from the home defence army had been higher than the numbers called up and accepted as draftees.

Enlisting for overseas gave the draftees a new outlook, new self-respect and a determination which came from making a great decision. This was bound to make them better soldiers.

It had been said over and over again that conscripted men would be received without enthusiasm by the volunteers they joined overseas and their presence might be a cause of division in the fighting units. This however, was a risk the Government would have to take if it was necessary to enable Canada to bear her just share of the load in winning the war. But that situation had not arisen.

Of the 60,000 home defence army effectives, only about 42,000 were considered suitable material for infantry reinforcements and some 16,000 of these were trained as infantry. It was estimated about 8,000 were sufficiently trained to be ready for combat at an early date.

Without compulsion a considerable number of these draftees would volunteer and it was believed many more could be obtained by a special appeal.

There would be genuine and possibly "very grave" difficulties in conscripting men for overseas. Instead, redoubled efforts were being made to meet the situation by the voluntary method and the patriotic co-operation of all Canadians was sought.

The home defence army was not being disbanded because trained men volunteered from it. Another reason was that under the demobilization plans it was decided to follow the principle of those having the longest and hardest service being released first.

This meant a first preference in discharge and employment opportunities for those with overseas service.

Mr. King said the draftees would not be maintained in idleness. A considerable military establishment had to be maintained in Canada and garrisons in Newfoundland and on the coasts could not be abandoned. Some of these duties must continue to be done by draftees.

Compulsion where necessary would continue to be used to ensure that fit men of military age performed national service required by the war effort. Draftees employed in national service would remain in the army under discipline at army rates of pay.

Fit draftees would continue to be a potential reserve of reinforcements which might be used in any theatre in light of developing circumstances.

In encouraging enlistments the Government would seek to have every draftee told of the need of his services and of the practical benefits to his own future of becoming a volunteer.

"To you, young men, who a serving in Canada's home defence forces, I should like to make a special appeal," Mr. King continued.

"Because of the training you have have already received you are in an exceptional position to give service which is particularly needed at this time.

"I have told you of the need. Let me emphasize the oportunity —the greatest you will ever have— to further serve your country and bring honor to yourselves and your families. You will never regret the decision to do all you possibly can to support Canadas fighting army."

Army Officers Cannot Resign

TORONTO, Nov. 9.— (CP).— A senior officer at Military District No. 2 Headquarters to-day described as "grossly exaggerated" a report that 50 Toronto reserve army officers are resigning. "An officer cannot resign his commission any more than a private soldier can ask for his discharge," he said. "They can ask to resign" but their resignations probably wouldn't be accepted.

The Globe and Mail reported this morning that it understood that the 30 officers—all members of a unit whose first battalion is serving overseas—have submitted oral resignations to Maj.-Gen. A. E. Potts, District Commanding Officer, and would "put in writing" to-day. The paper said it understood the officers agreed to resign in protest against the government's "lack of action, its no conscription policies, the zombie army."

The Headquarters officer said "several" reserve army officers who disagree with present government policy have said they might resign but "we have received no written resignations.

The spokesman said the men he mentioned did not come from any one unit and explained: "Many of them had mentioned resigning in a jocular fashion. I even kidded them about it at the time. A few were serious but by no means have 30 men mentioned resigning."

Officers commanding the 48th Highlanders, the Royal Regiment of Canada and the Irish Regiment said their units are not involved. Other Toronto infantry units serving overseas are the Toronto Scottish and the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada.

Postmaster Captured In Mock Street Battle

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 9 — (ENS). — A realistic mock battle was staged in front of Memorial Hall Wednesday morning by approximately 150 Canadian soldiers, who are stationed at A-10, Camp Borden.

The "firing" and casualties were so realistic that smaller children were terrified, and even the adults had a few shivers, at one time a smoke screen was thrown over the entire street, and the noise of the firing was terrific.

Eventually the "Nazis" were defeated. T. Chaplin, postmaster, was captured, and bound and only released when he promised to persuade the Lakefield residents to buy more war savings stamps and bonds.

The demonstration was in the interest of the Seventh Victory Loan.

Moscow has at no time, however, confirmed that Soviet troops are inside the capital.

New blows also were expected against the 30 battered German divisions reported trapped in western Latvia beyond the Baltic port of Liepaja. The Germans contended last night that the first stage of the battle at this front was a defensive victory for their army. Moscow dispatches said the Red air force was joining the battle of annihilation in this area.

British Troops Advance On Bussecchio

By LYN HEINBERLING
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Nov. 9 — (AP) — British troops of the 8th Army have advanced to within 500 yards of Bussecchio, about one mile from the bitterly-contested Po valley communicaions centre of Forli, Allied Headquarters announced today.

The British forces crossed the "King of Ditches" canal forming the eastern boundary of the Forli airfield and captured the shattered buildings on the north side of the field. Eight prisoners were taken.

To the west, Polish troops attacking on a three-mile front southwest of Forli captured Dovadola in the advance along the Florence-Forli road and were engaged in heavy fighting in the hills to the northwest of Dovadola.

The Germans fought tenaciously for the Forli airfield, using Tiger tanks to support their infantry which still held the Northern tip. The landing strips command the approaches to Forli from the south-east, a short distance from the Rimini-Bologna highway.

Brig. E. Green Speaker At Revival Services

Continuing the revival services at the Salvation Army Temple Brigadier Emmeline Green spoke on Tuesday night on Elijah, the patriarch, and on the confession of the widow of Zarepheth: "I know that thou art a man of God". Applying this statement to the individual, the speaker asked whether it could be said of her listeners that they were men and women of God. The Songster Brigade sang: "Walk in the Spirit".

A women's meeting was held on Wednesday afternoon. From the words of King Solomon Mrs. Green drew many illustrations which women of today might profit by. The text was: "Every wise woman buildeth her house, but the foolish plucketh it down with her hands." In this meeting a letter was read from an officer at the front in which he described how the spirit of prayer had gripped the men of an entire company and their officers and what a difference it had made in their outlook.

The tremendous power of a "witnessing life" was the topic of Brigadier Green's address on Wednesday night as she brought vividly to the mind of her hearers the record of the Apostle John: "And Andrew findeth his own brother Simon and saith unto him: We have found the Messiah." Then again John says: "Philip findeth Nathanael and saith unto him; We have found Jesus of Nazareth; come and see." It is the privilege and duty of all believers to bring their fellow men to Christ. Envoy Arthur Wells is assisting in the services which are being held each night, in leading the chorus singing.

$90,000 Is Required Every Day To Reach Victory Loan Objective

To reach its minimum objective of $4,600,000 Peterborough, city and county, has to invest $275,400 in Victory Bonds by Saturday night, an average of $90,000 for the remaining three days.

Total buying of Bonds up to Wednesday night was $4,324,600 or 94% of the objective with 83.33% of the time of the three weeks' campaign gone.

The last stretch of the drive calls for three times $90,000 by Saturday night. Feature of Wednesday, the fifteenth day, was furnished by the payroll savings section going over the million dollar line to $1,032,350 for 114.7% of their $900,000 objective. This industrial division turned in Wednesday sales of $61,800, and presumably the factory investors must be nearing the end of their big contribution to the prospective success of the Peterborough campaign.

City general canvass came through with $101,950, raising its total to $1,271,400 for 81.9% of the urban quota of $1,675,000. The time percentage, again, was 83.33% Wednesday night, showing that the city canvass is keeping close to its onward moving obligation.

The county canvass reached $478,900, or 76.6% of its allotment of $625,000. The rural sector increased its investments by $23,900 Wednesday.

Comparisons for 15 days of the present drive and that last Spring are as follows:

County canvass—$478,900, against $520,100.

Objectives—$4,600,000 and $4,500,000.

Although the over-all margin Wednesday night, that is between amount already secured and grand objective was $275,400, the city general canvass was confronted with $301,650 to be made up in the next three days. That is the difference between the amount secured $1,373,350 and the objective, $1,675.00.

Wednesday Returns.

The divisional returns for Wednesday were: City canvass $101,950; payroll savings $61,800; county canvass $23,900. Total $187,650.

Rural North Monaghan maintained its county leadership with $1,400 as the day's work, hitting the $21,900 mark, or 109.5% of their allotment of $20,000.

The Northern townships, Harvey, Burleigh, Chandos and Anstruther, kept on selling beyond the 100% peak, yielding an additional $1,100 to $49,300 or 104.9% of their objective of $47,000.

Wednesday rural sales of Bonds were, in order: Smith $3,900; Lakefield $3,050; Norwood $2,950; Asphodel $2,900; Douro $2,600; Dummer $2,100; North Monaghan $1,400; Harvey, Burleigh, Chandos and Anstruther $1,100; Otonabee $850; Havelock $750.

Two villages, Havelock and Lakefield, have brought their quotas in sight, Havelock at 99.3% and Lakefield 98.3% and appear to be certain of fulfilling their undertakings in this Seventh Loan.

The present surplus of $321,200 shown by the Payroll Savings division over their $900,000, which was the same as in the Sixth Loan, accounts largely for the assuring position of 94% of the total with three days to go. Give credit also to the $40,000 excess in Special Names, and for that matter to everybody who has helped build up that grand total of $4,324,600. But, the reports of increased buying in the factories, together with those shops reporting 100% of the employees investing, many of them girls depending on their daily wage, and a minor aspect of the campaign looms much larger than is generally conceived — the Bond buying by the wage earners.

One who does not forget them is Bill Reid, director of the Payroll Savings division at headquarters, but about all he can do to manifest his appreciation of being associated with this industrial division is to tell folks about "the grand job they have done".

Hunter Gets Two Deer While Using .22 Rifle

PORT HOPE, Nov. 9 (ENS) — Harold Hart of Port Hope has set up a record in one deer hunters' camp up Apsley way. Hart, who is an expert shot, was unlucky while in camp, perhaps it was because he was using a deer rifle which he obtained at the camp and he was going home deerless, when he spotted a doe and two fawns. The range was about forty yards and all he had was his .22 rifle, which his wife gave him last Christmas, and which he had brought for pot shots around the camp. He drew a bead on one fawn and the .22 long rifle mushroom killed the animal in one shot. He emptied his gun on the other fawn, before the sixth shot downed it. By that time he had no shells left and the doe got away safely.

Senator Bouchard Is Coming To City

SENATOR BOUCHARD

The newly formed Canadian Unity Group in Peterborough is bringing to this city on November 15 Senator T D. Bouchard of St. Hyacinthe, Quebec. The Peterborough group is being sponsored by the same patriotic citizens who made such a success of the Labor Day celebration. The meeting is to be held in the Collegiate auditorium of November 15 and admission will be by ticket.

Senator Bouchard was a member of the Taschereau and Godbout governments in Quebec and it was his speech in the Canadian Senate about the activities of the Order of Jacques Cartier that brought the wrath of the powers that be in Quebec on his head. He was fired as chairman of the Quebec Hydro Commission. The meeting is scheduled to commence at eight o'clock.

Bomber Work Reviewed By RCAF Officer

COBOURG, Nov. 9 (ENS)—Work accomplished by the men of No. 6 Group, Bomber Command, which is now almost 100 per cent RCAF, was described by Air-Vice-Marshal G. E. Brookes in an address Tuesday night, at a joint meeting of the service clubs of the town. Dr. A. R. Richards, county chairman of the Victory Loan committee, was chairman of the meeting.

The speaker referred to the statement of Sir Arthur Harris who said that the bomber command had led the offensive because it had the power to carry the offensive a long distance. The bomber command of No. 6 group was formed in July of 1942 and contained many thousands of men and women and many squadrons. While the bomber group was being organized, the old RAF squadrons were still hammering away at the enemy, the speaker said.

He spoke of a typical day in the work of the bomber command. In the "orders of the day," thirty large bombers would take off after preparations for the flight had been going on all day and everything had been checked, double-checked and triple-checked. The bombers would take off one every minute or better.

Hard to Watch

"To my last day over there, it always gave me a lump in my throat to see the men in the planes, I say 'men' in spite of their youth, because the hell they went through made them men not boys," declared Air-Vice-Marshal Brookes. "As I said, it gave me a lump in my throat to see the men in the planes give the traditional 'thumbs up' signal, which answered a like signal from the men on the ground. From us on the ground the signal was the same as saying 'cheerio—God bless you—may you come back.' With clock-like precision, each aircraft took off each on its individual course and most of them got there exactly on schedule.

"There was the suspense of awaiting their return and the relief when each plane roared in to a landing. For those who were casualties, the ambulance was waiting when they landed and the best of medical attention was immediately available. In good weather or bad, the airmen go off on their bombing raids and you know, as Winston Churchill said, that the bombing raids resulted in the robot bomb coming six months too late. What of the cost? We might say in terms of money, one-quarter million for each bomber. I prefer to think of it in terms of men. Consider not the financial cost, but the personal loss to wives, parents, sweethearts," the speaker said.

While credit was due in great measure to the men who manned the aircraft, the men on the ground must not be forgotten as their work was not properly appreciated by those outside. English winters are traditionally cold and raw and mechanics could not work on the intricate mechanisms of the bombers with gloves on. To the men on the ground, the air crew owed their safety and the ground crew never let them down.

Girls Do Job

The speaker paid tribute to the many Canadian girls in that bomber group who did great work in their various lines of duty.

"Number Six is a great team, one of the finest I ever knew. The team is made up of air crew and ground crew. But what good is any team without the enthusiasm and support on the homefront. The need for funds is appreciated by the fighting men and women at the front just as well as by those at home and you can readily see that, by the way the armed services have responded to the Victory Loan," he said.

In concluding his remarks, he cited instances of bravery among the aircrew; of men who brought their ships back while suffering the agonies of bullet-torn bodies and of the skill of pilots who brought ships back which astonished their groundcrews by their ability to fly at all.

The guest speaker was introduced by Roy Willmott, who has charge of the local air cadets and the vote of thanks was extended by W. H. McGuire. Brief remarks were given by Fred Slade, president of the Rotary Club; Harold Bellamy for the Kinsmen Club and W. H. McGuire for the Kiwanis Club. During the evening two G.M.C. films were shown, giving an authentic picture record of D-Day and of American operations in the Pacific war

What's Wrong With The General Canvass?

Once again a Victory Loan is drawing to its close, and once again all departments of the canvass are well advanced toward their goal except the General Canvass. Why is it that in every Loan the General Canvass lags behind?

• • •

The Special Names Canvass and the Payroll Canvass are always entirely satisfactory; indeed, both have been over-subscribed by a considerable margin. Is there any special circumstance which keeps the General Canvass behind? We have not been able to discover any good reason for its deficiency. Experience gained during past Loans makes it clear that the objective set for the General Canvass is not too high. We are forced to the conclusion that the people who are included in the General Canvass do not take their responsibility as seriously as they should.

• • •

The people who are canvassed under the Special Names category are all well-informed about the war, and some of them are engaged in war work of the first importance. They know that governments, like businesses, cannot get along without money, and they know how much money our war effort consumes. Their readiness to subscribe to Victory Loans may be explained on these grounds. The people who come under the Payroll Canvass are in a rather similar position. They are constantly reminded of the war and its needs by the conditions of their work; they have made real sacrifices, and they have accomplished great things.

• • •

But the people who come under the General Canvass do not seem to be so conscious of the war; their sense of responsibility in this matter is not strong, and they either do not subscribe at all, or subscribe markedly less than they could. Yet their subscriptions are important, for the control of inflation—which is one of the purposes of the Loans—is to a great extent in their hands.

• • •

Are we to have yet another Loan in which the deficiencies of the General Canvass are made up by Special Names and the Payroll Canvass? That is the way it looks now. But there are still two days in which the people who are included in the General Canvass can do the job which their fellow-citizens have asked them to do.

Mr. Roosevelt's Fourth Term

The citizens of the U.S.A., having broken with tradition by electing Franklin Roosevelt for a third term, have now established a precedent which will not soon be exceeded by electing him for a fourth. As it is no longer necessary for Canadian and British newspapers to be discreet on this subject, we say that most people in this country will be delighted. Mr. Roosevelt has shown himself a good friend to Canada, a good friend to Britain, and a brilliant and whole-hearted collaborator in all the aims and plans of the United Nations. We have come to look upon Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin as The Old Firm who have conducted the war successfully until now, and we were not eager to see one of the partners drop out. Canadians, we are quite sure, have nothing against Governor Dewey, but he is a stranger to them; it is understandable that in the next four years we shall feel more confidence in a man whom we know than in one whom we do not know, and whose affiliations have not always been reassuring.

It is recognized in Canada that President Roosevelt's extremely successful and courageous war policy has not always been balanced by a successful or sound domestic policy; he has been in power long enough to give some of his ideas a thorough trial and they have not stood the test. The strong criticisms which his countrymen have brought against him have been in some degree justified on these grounds. But it is as a war leader that we know and admire Mr. Roosevelt, and we think that it is as a war leader that his countrymen have re-elected him, with sufficient support in the legislative houses to give him all the power he needs.

Irresponsible And Flatulent Reporting

We extend our congratulations to the Ottawa Journal on the thorough editorial drubbing which it has given to two reporters who are with the Canadian forces abroad, Ross Munro and L. S. B. Shapiro. When General McNaughton succeeded Col. Ralston as Minister of Defence, Munro sent out this message through Canadian Press:

"Over field wireless on this cold and foggy Scheide front officers and men of the 1st Canadian Army tonight heard the news that their old chief, General McNaughton, had become Canada's Defence Minister in succession to Col. Ralston.

"The first reaction of the troops was astonishment, and then delight that 'the general', as he was known to thousands of Canadian fighting men, had returned to active participation in the war... They feel they always got a square deal from him, and they were sorrowful when he left. Now they are delighted—that is the only word for it".

The ineffable Shapiro, who is also with our men in Holland, sent out this through the Bell Syndicate:

"What has shocked Canadian troops...is that General McNaughton, beloved of all ranks in the Army, appears, at least from this distance, to have thrown his popularity and influence to the side of the anti-conscriptionists".

Both these dispatches, as the Journal points out with asperity, are drivel, and must be disregarded by wise readers. But many readers, unfortunately, are not wise.

The press in Canada has a good reputation for honest reporting, but honest reporting is very often anonymous. Correspondents who have gone abroad with the troops sometimes become intoxicated with their own importance, and write expressions of personal opinion and prejudice when they imagine that they are writing straight facts. Munro and Shapiro are both good reporters, as they have shown on many occasions, but both have an affection for their own opinions which handicaps them in their work. We have about 70,000 Canadian troops in Italy whom Munro and Shapiro cannot reach: we have even more men than that in Holland, and Munro and Shapiro have perhaps had time to ask twenty of them what they think about General McNaughton's appointment. How dare they say that the Canadian troops are either shocked or delighted?

There has been some fine reporting in this war, and there has been an intolerable deal of irresponsible and fatuous blather. Both Shapiro and Munro need the attention of a ferocious city editor.

The Murder Of Lord Moyne

It has now been determined that Lord Moyne, the British High Commissioner in the Middle East, was murdered by two young Jews. This will be a cause of regret to Jews all over the world, for they know better than any other people that acts of terrorism are indefensible as means to promote a political end; the Jews are, upon the whole, a highly intelligent, civilized and peaceful people and they know how deeply a murder of this kind will prejudice Gentiles against the Zionist cause.

It was the late Lord Balfour who gave impetus to the plan for a Jewish national home in Palestine; the Zionist movement is very old, if all its various forms are considered, but it is only in recent years that anything in the nature of a coherent or practicable plan has been set in motion. Britain has the disagreeable job of keeping the peace in Palestine, and preventing assaults upon the Jews by the Arabs. The British method of achieving this end has not met with Jewish approval and there have been many disputes on the subject. Now an extremist group has employed two desperadoes to murder the British representative.

The English Zionists have hastened to disassociate themselves from this outrage. Men of goodwill in Jewish communities everywhere will condemn it. But the fact remains that the murder of Lord Moyne will always be remembered as an act of intolerant viciousness committed by the Jews, and not against them.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Seasonable epitaph:

There is still a mystery about Frank Sinatra's visit to the White House, but one theory is that Fala dragged him in, mistaking him for a bone.

Education For Everybody

(The second of two special Education Week articles)

(By HELEN R. McGREGOR)

HOW then shall our high schools set about the task of educating everybody? Latterly from both directions — from those who would have education practical and specialized and from those who would have it liberal and universal—comes the same proposal: have everybody take the same general course until he is sixteen, and then take his vocational training in a short, concentrated, purely practical course of six months to a year. Or, if he has a book-learning mind, let him at the end of the general course write his way into an academic course by a good stiff examination as he does now at the university level.

THE practical advantages of this plan are manifold. It would enable those entering industry and business to train for the jobs available. It would be useful for retraining and flexible for re-adjustments. Being short, the practical courses would be taken by far more people than at present. One can guess that many fathers would stand their daughters to a six-months course in Household Arts! And it would be democratic, in that smaller communities could all provide the general course; and for the practical, it is one thing to send a child to a larger centre for a four-year course, and quite another to send him for six months or a year.

(This incidentally invites pleasant speculation as to the part a centre as large as Peterborough might play. Peterborough already has far greater facilities and teaching staff with far more diverse, and for the most part, higher qualifications than any comunity for miles around. Under such a set-up Peterborough might well become an educational centre.)

THERE already are one or two courses built up along the lines suggested which give proof of the advantages to be derived. The agricultural short courses (not to be confused with the degree courses) offered at Kemptville and Guelph are such. They are given in the off-season of farm work, usually November to April. They may be taken at any time, immediately after leaving school or after many years' work on the farm. The farm folk of Ontario, many of them descendants of the pioneers who laboured so hard to build our first schools, have been staunch supporters of education. They keep their children at school in the face of difficulties of weather and transportation unknown to townsfolk. They are a practical people, but they know that you are not going to keep boys down on the farm by segregating them at entrance age in agricultural schools where only agriculture is taught. This other is the better way, and it is indeed the way by which Denmark, a mainly agricultural nation, developed its great system of adult education—"the only great successful experiment in educating the masses of a nation."

◆ ◆ ◆

THERE are naturally difficulties in a common general course, but no more than at present nor in the end insuperable. A few boys and girls cannot learn in the ordinary way at all. This problem comes to a head long before high school age, and it is being met by experts in the public school field. There are the brilliant few, setting out upon the long courses, whose training is so necessary to the nation. Yet one or two options to keep them busier than their fellows, and possibly more rapid promotion would go a long way towards taking care of them. And for them, and for all in the general course, there is one remedy that could be applied at once—more teachers and smaller classes. There is absolutely no comparison between the individual development possible in a class of twenty-five and in a class of forty.

NOW there remain to be considered the reasons why everybody should take the same general course —which are the reasons why everybody in a democratic country should have an education.

Specialization is a narrowing process. So much so that Canadian universities, where students might be thought to have a fair general education, view with alarm the lack of a common culture among their graduates. Yet students entering our high schools at the age of thirteen or fourteen are asked to choose and specialize. The effect of this is clearly set forth by Walter Lippman (in a speech to the American Association for the Advancement of Science):

"There is an enormous vacuum where until a few decades ago there was the substance of education.... There is no common faith, no common body of principle, no common moral and intellectual discipline. Yet the graduates of these modern schools are expected to form a civilized community.... They are expected to arrive by discussion at common purposes. When one realizes that they have no common culture, is it astounding that they have no common purpose? We have established a system of education in which we insist that everyone must be educated, yet there is nothing in particular that an educated man should know."

NO one who associates mainly with people older than thirty-five has any conception of the division of mind among the young people of today. The case for a common general course is irrefutable. And until we have it, all the effort and expense that goes into education is futile: "parturiunt montes, nascetur ridiculus mus," which being freely interpreted, great things are promised, but little or nothing accomplished.

Yet no new upheaval in education is needed, only a realization of the necessity of a common culture, only an emphasis on first things first. The tools lie ready and proven to our hands; the three R's of public school continued in their High School forms of language skill and mathematics which, as Dorothy Thompson puts it, train the mind to the intellectual recognition of law and standards. And then history and literature, from which all educated men, consciously or otherwise, derive their common heritage, their firm beliefs, their clear outlook. If it is democracy that sends everybody to school, should not everybody learn at school the things essential to democracy? A sense of unity, a sense of direction—of going our way—and as counterpart of both, high ideals? Where can you find these other than in literature and history? To quote Sir Richard Livingstone again, here is the main stream of the river, here is the current that leads to the sea, and here the boats of youth must be launched, not in back-eddies and side-streams.

This Will Make You Strong and Financially Secure —By Houston

"The Colonel"

(WINNIPEG FREE PRESS)

THERE have been times when a minister of the Crown has resigned at Ottawa without causing much disturbance. Mr. Ralston's resignation last Wednesday was not in that class. Partly this was due to the issue raised—an explosive issue which remains. But partly it was due to the man himself, a very extraordinary man whose ability, character and charm have earned for him both love and respect. He has faults, as who has not. But it will have been already noted that no one in Canada has suggested that he became an Ottawa storm centre because he was driven by private ambition to take the course he did.

Mr. Ralston has been in politics since he was 27 years of age, and he is now 63. There have been times when he held no public office, had no seat in a legislative body. He has been beaten at the polls more often than he has won. But politics were in his blood all his life, even when he "retired"—as he periodically did—into private practice. Mr. Ralston, in essence, is a public servant in the real sense of that word.

FIRST adopted as a Liberal candidate for the Nova Scotia provincial house in 1908, he was beaten. But in 1911 he won and, during the war when he was serving with the Nova Scotia Highlanders, he was re-elected. Mr. Ralston and his kilt were a conspicuous feature in Paris during the peace conference, whither the young colonel went to see the sights.

He came home to further defeats—in 1920 and 1925—and when he ran in the federal election of 1926, he was beaten again in one of the Halifax seats. But the newly elected member for Shelburne-Yarmouth went to the Senate, and Mr. Ralston received an acclamation at the by-election that followed. The new member became minister for national defence. The King Government was beaten in 1930, but Mr. Ralston was re-elected and was one of the most powerful critics of the Bennett regime from 1930 to 1935. Then he felt he had had enough. He practiced law from 1935 to 1939, winning himself a great reputation at the bar.

But when war broke out there was a sigh of relief in the country when he accepted Mr. King's invitation to rejoin the administration. Somehow, everyone felt happier that Ralston was back; and in 1940, following the death of the Hon. Norman Rogers, the "Colonel" became minister of defence.

THIS small tribute to a great Canadian should not degenerate into indiscriminate praise, and it is a fact that his administration of his huge, rapidly growing and unwieldly department was not all smooth sailing. Mr. Ralston has a fault which many a lawyer has: he has a tendency to argue from a brief presented to him, and this, coupled with an equal tendency to immerse himself in detail, led him sometimes into roles that did not present him at his best. It would have been better, some men say, if he had stood away from his problems a little more, and looked at them in perspective. Had he done so, it may well be that some of the difficulties faced in 1944 would have been earlier foreseen and handled with greater vigor. He considered himself to too great an extent the barrister arguing a case for his experts on the general staff. His blunders, if he made any, were their blunders, but, as minister of the Crown, he was responsible for them.

But this failing—for failing it was—leaves a vast sum on the credit side of the balance sheet. He was a man who retained steadfastly his integrity of purpose, his high ideas for Canada and its place in the world. The battering impact of day-to-day politics never made him swerve. He was, and he will always be, obstinate in his strongly held beliefs. Not very flexible, it may be said. No, not very. But everyone always knew where he stood, as Mr. King and his cabinet colleagues learned this week.

He now proposes—and not for the first time—to return to private practice, but he remains a member of the House of Commons. He is rugged and strong in body, resolute in mind, and be a mistake to thin kthat it is certain that he will now just remain one more Nova Scotia lawyer who made good in Montreal.

Labour In Politics

(By J. H. GRAY)

TORONTO: Fresh from a neatly rigged triumph at the Canadian Congress of Labour convention at Quebec City the C.C.F. took a licking at the diamond jubilee of the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada which concluded here on Monday. That the 700 odd delegates to this convention would reject endorsement of the C.C.F. was a foregone conclusion, that they would snow the C.C.F.'ers under so deeply could hardly have been anticipated.

What the C.C.F. wanted very badly was to get this Congress to endorse it as the political arm of organized labour. What the Congress did was to pass the mildest sort of resolution asking the executive to consider setting up a non-partisan political action committee which would work for labour's endorsement of pro-labour candidates regardless of political parties.

When this resolution came out of the resolutions committee, the C.C.F.'ers almost let the struggle for endorsement go by default. They dared not risk a test vote on their own resolution because its defeat would have been an outright blow to their prestige. The blow that fell was not less devastating to their hopes because it came indirectly. If the party had been able to marshal the needed strength, it would have forced endorsement.

THE rout of the C.C.F. was in part a victory for the Labour-Progressives but it was an even greater victory for the independents. What matters in essence is not what happens at these Congress conventions but what happens in the hundreds of local union meetings across the country. The trades union leaders do not disguise their concern over the political strife that has arisen in these meetings. The campaign of the C.C.F. to tie the unions to their band wagon has turned many a trades union meeting into a three-alarm brawl. Union members, who come to discuss day to day trades union problems, tend to become disgusted and stay away from meetings.

The struggle between the C.C.F. and the Labour-Progressives today is a repetition of the old story of 1910 to 1913, when various Socialist groups fought for control of the unions, a fight which aroused internal bitterness which seriously weakened the trades unions. The responsible leaders of the old established unions, who remember those hectic days, are afraid that history may repeat itself, turn union member against union member and do irreparable damage to the unions. The C.C.F.'ers, however, think they have a brand new idea to play with and will undoubtedly continue to press their campaigns in the locals.

IF the reaction of the delegates to the convention is any criterion, it will be a losing struggle. For the first time since the war began, the Trades and Labour Congress exhibited a willingness to be fair with the government. Two factors outweigh the others in producing this change of mind. The first of course is the national labour relations code. Under this act the congress unions have so substantially added to their membership that its roll of members has now passed the 325,000 mark. The congress officers claim an increase of 100,000 members in the last year. The second factor is clearly the government's social legislation.

An illustration of the distance these unionists have moved toward the government was the reception of Mr. C. D. Howe. No Canadian minister was more thoroughly disliked by many of the congress leaders. At last year's convention, President Bengough singled out Mr. Howe for outspoken denunciation. But this year, when Mr. Howe came before the congress, Mr. Bengough praised his co-operation and his contribution to the war effort. Mr. Howe, for his part, admitted past mistakes, promised that labour would have a full voice in planning for reconstruction and appealed for co-operation. Last year he would have been roundly booed. This year he was applauded.

A Bible Message

This I say therefore, and testify in the Lord, that ye henceforth walk not as other Gentiles walk, in the vanity of their mind, having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of their heart....

But ye have not so learned Christ; if so be that ye have heard him, and have been taught by him, as the truth is in Jesus: that ye put off concerning the former conversation the old man which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts; and be renewed in the spirit of your mind: and that ye put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness. (Eph. 4: 17, 18, 20-24.)

For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption: but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting. But God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world.

For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth any thing, nor uncircumcision, but a new creature. (Gal. 6: 8, 14, 15.)

Unconsidered Trifles

"See here", exclaimed the stranger, as he stumbled into his twentieth puddle. "I thought you said you knew where all the bad places were on this road?"

"Well", replied the native, who had volunteered to guide him in the dark, "we're a-finding of them, ain't we?"

"I suppose you find it rather dull in the evenings", said the sweet young thing to the R.A.F. pilot.

"Simply nothing to do at all", sighed the pilot. "We just play darts, do the crossword puzzles in the evening papers, drop a few bombs on Hamburg, and go straight to bed!"

DEATH TO WAR CRIMINALS

Perhaps it is necessary, as reported, to draw a distinction between "war criminals" and "arch criminals" when it comes to dealing with the fiends in human form who are responsible for bringing the war about and conducting it with brutal savagery unparalleled in the history of the race.

If so, and if legalistic minds must split hairs over the elemental act of exterminating noxious vermin, let them go ahead and prepare two lists instead of one.

To the layman, however, it seems a little like quibbling. He only wants to make sure that all who planned the holocaust, all who flouted the established conventions of war and the treatment of fighting man and civilians, all who ordered barbarities and spoliation in contravention of international law and custom, and all who carried out unlawful and inhuman orders shall suffer death.

He wants no arguments about jurisdiction or degree of guilt. The least of the war or arch crimes calls for the extreme penalty.—St. John Telegraph-Journal.

READING IN BED

For the person who can be reasonably temperate about it, reading in bed is a pleasure beneficial to health. There is no relaxation more complete, perhaps, except sleep itself.

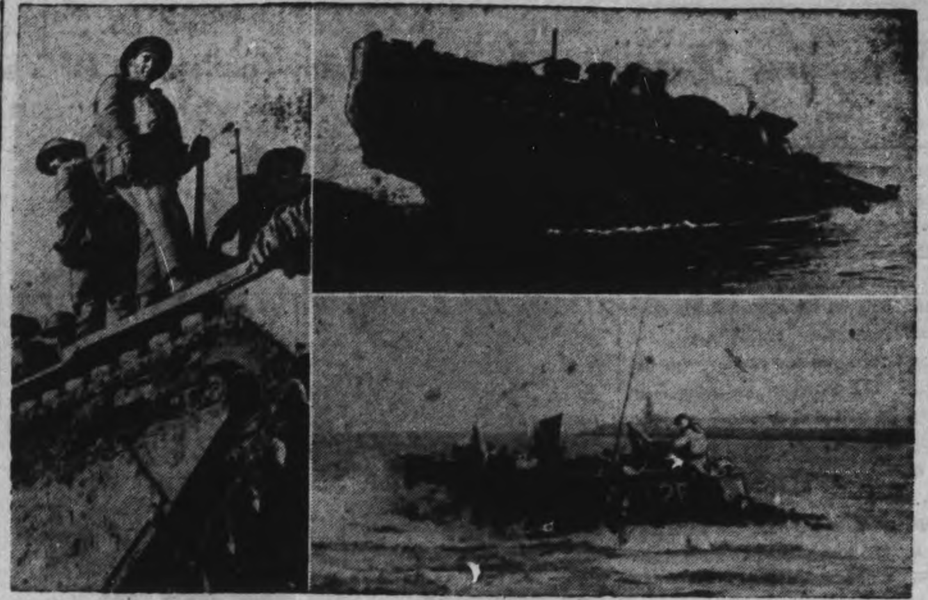
It is assumed that no effort will be made to "improve" the mind by the reading done in bed. There should be no purpose other than pleasure, surely, and other incidental effects may be accepted as by-products.

Some people complain that they cannot read detective stories—one of the most enjoyable bedtime choices—because they are over stimulating and prevent sleep afterward. The remedy for this is simple. Decide in advance exactly what hour you will attempt to go to sleep, and fifteen minutes before that time lay down your detective story and pick up any book of poetry. No matter what your opinion of poetry, it will make you forget murder within fifteen minutes and soothe you into something like slumber. And it is, besides, a rather good way to spend fifteen minutes a day.—New York Times.

Kitchener Mayor Takes Challenge

KITCHENER, Ont., Nov. 9—(CP) — Mayor Joseph Meinzinger of Kitchener tossed his hat into the seventh Victory Loan ring today by accepting a challenge of Mayor W. J. Macdonald of St. Catharines for a competition in per capita sale of bonds. Mayor Meinzinger offered to bet Mayor Macdonald a hat that Kitchener can win the competition.

In the sixth loan, St. Catharines ranked third in per capita sales among Ontario cities of 20,000 to 50,000 population and Kitchener was fourth. So far in the present loan St. Catharines has a slight edge with per capita sales of $76.65 to Kitchener's' $75.10.



CANADIANS LAUNCH AMPHIBIOUS ATTACK IN HOLLAND — Fighting bitterly and at times fanatically, the Germans have taken advantage of every natural obstacle in the Lowlands of Holland and Belgium to hold back the Allied advance. The first Canadian Army staged a miniature invasion of their own at one point in Holland, sending amphibious forces across water to hit the enemy at an unexpected point. At Left Canadian soldiers with their landing vehicles and equipment get ready to embark on their amphibious attack. Top Right shows one of their landing vehicles hitting the water as the operation began, and Below, the men and equipment are ferried across water to establish their beachhead. Farm Security Legislation Reconsidered In West

REGINA, Nov. 9 — (CP) — The Saskatchewan Farm Security Act, providing for a crop failure clause in mortgages and agreements of sale and preventing eviction from the home quarter section under mortgages, went back to committee of the whole in the Legislature today for further C.C.F. amendments.

Under the crop failure section, Attorney-General J. W. Corman moved an amendment to change the income clause, making yield of grain the yardstick of farm income in determining a crop failure. Formerly crop failure depended on the financial position of the farmer and not on the yield of the land.

A crop failure is one in which due to causes beyond control of the mortgagor or purchaser the sum realized from the grain crops equals a sum less than $6 an acre sown to grain.

Such a mortgagor will have his mortgage postponed one year and the principal written down by at least four per cent.

A. T. Procter (L-Moosomin) questioned whether the Federal government would make grants to Saskatchewan members of the armed forces settling under the Veterans' Land Act if the Farm Security Act was made applicable to such veterans.

"Here we have a Liberal who advances the suggestion the Federal government wouldn't give a soldier land on which to settle because the law of the province dared to guarantee the soldier security of tenure on the home quarter," replied Premier T. C. Douglas.

"I don't think they will do that. I don't see why we should refuse to pass this legislation because some day a government at Ottawa will be so callous as to refuse to give the soldier land because of this Act. I think the Federal government ought to speak for itself."

Life insurance in Canada must be brought under greater public control to reduce cost and to integrate the investments with a national program of planned investment to achieve economic expansion and provide full employment, Provincial Treasurer C. M. Fines said.

Mr. Fines said that if a Dominion government after the next Federal election would not take necessary steps, "it is my hope Saskatchewan will consider extending its field of activities to include life insurance as well as other types of insurance."

The Minister spoke on second reading of a bill permitting the government to enter the insurance business.

The cabinet was not prepared to recommend the province go into life insurance at the present time, said Mr. Fines.

It would enter the fire insurance field. Reasons included the desire to find new sources of revenue to give the people additional social services, retain money that was finding its way outside the province and to reduce rates to make it possible for all people to have protection.

BUY BONDS — INVEST IN VICTORY

INVEST IN VICTORY

By ALENE HOLT
Victory Loan Headquarters

"Over There" A. L. Stedham, one of the Organizers at the Victory Loan Office, received an interesting letter from Lieut. H. L. Hamley, who is with the North Shore Regiment (N. B) in Belgium. Lt. Hamley is the son of L. Hamley, Maitland Avenue.

"I have just come out of the line on a 48 hour rest and of course am really enjoying it. I couldn't help but think of you the other day because I was selected as company representative for the bond issue. In less than two hours I sold $3,500 worth of bonds to my boys right in the front line, I rather think they are more than backing good old Canada, eh what?'

A few days ago within 24 hours, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Moore, 43 Frank street, who have four sons serving overseas, received word that two of their boys had become casualties, one in Italy and one in Belgium.

On other Victory Loans, Mr. Moore has always been a faithful subscriber through his employment but on this particular drive, Mrs. Moore felt that she too, would like to sacrifice more and take out a bond on her own.

J. Arnott also reports Miss Violet A. Todd and John R. Todd of Brown street, both invalids and hopelessly crippled but manage to keep up the faith and courage. John Todd is adept at making wooden toys and other articles, and also is a radio repair expert. Both always purchase bonds.

Children Back Loan

Maurice Pringle, Victory Loan salesman, reports Mrs. Wilehema Bradley Adeline street has two sons, Albert and Gerald. Albert works in the Canadian General Electric plant after school and Gerald works for Braund's on Saturdays. Together they operate a little bait business in their spare time and sell such titbits for the ardent fisherman as dew worms and minnows.

This summer the boys decided they were due for a holiday and their sister, Helen, age 10, offered to take over their business while they were away.

Evidently she was a real saleswoman, because the other day when hearing the Victory Loan show she phoned in her pledge to buy her first Victory Bond.

John Troke has been calling at a particular home many times and always found the occupant away. This time he met her returning from a shopping spree, and when he told her what his visit was about, she immediately asked him in. They went on up to the front door and then search for her key began. After looking for some time, she came to the conclusion that she had left the key inside, and it was impossible to tamper with the Yale lock.

Being a "never fail" salesman, Mr. Troke went next door, borrowed a step-ladder and his grandson, Michael Lucas, age 5 years, who was waiting in the car, was elected to go up the ladder, open the window adjoining the pantry, gain entrance and secure the lost key. The young lad let the householder and Mr. Troke in and Mr. Troke sold his Victory Bond.

One of the few human interest stories from the rural district comes today from the Rev. C. A. G. Spence of Apsley. He reports that an elderly woman nearly 60 years of age, who works on a farm in the northern part of the county, had saved $100 to make badly needed repairs to her barn. However, she decided to put the whole amount into Victory Bonds and the repairs are to wait until next year.

Then, there was the very thoughtful grandfather who purchased a $50 Victory Bond for each of his seven grandchildren, and a sizeable bond each for his wife and himself. This is a good story right from Charles H. Hunter of Lakefield, and concerns a citizen of Lakefield.

Don't forget the Amateur Show Thursday night. It is to be held at the Drill Hall, Training Centre at 7.45 p.m. Please note change in time. There is no admission charge.

Court Of Revision Meets In Norwood

NORWOOD, Nov. 9—(ENS)—Appeals for lowered assessment were dealt with when the village council met as a Court of Revision in Norwood, Monday evening. Of four cases brought to the attention of the village fathers, two were rewarded by a lowered assessment.

An appeal that assessment is too high was made by the Humphries Estate but when it was compared with other properties, the Court confirmed it. The property of Lillian Humphries, on Queen street south, received a $100 reduction in assessment, and Ethel Johnson's lot on North Spring street, was benefited by a $25 drop in assessment.

A lot on Victoria street, owned by Ida Parker, was reviewed, and an appeal for lowered assessment resulted in no action being taken by the Court.

Tax arrears were considered by the Court, and after a study of the questions involved, the following were written off the treasury books: business tax of H. S. Calder, 1944, $5; no business was done in the municipality due to a change in plans. M. Brayley, penalty charged in error, $2.08; Mrs. J. Galloher, 1943, levy of $5.20, was marked off the books because her residence was destroyed by fire early in that year.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 AP) — Between now and New Year's Day a lot of folks who are promoting football games to sell war bonds and for other worthy causes are bound to be disappointed . . . The biggest attraction, of course, would be to shift the Army-Navy game to a big city but that won't happen.

Guest Star:

Tommy Fitzgerald, Louisville Courier -Journal: "General MacArthur has been mentioned as possible successor to Judge Landis as Czar of baseball, but the job would have to wait for him. Right now he's pretty busy making free agents of the Filipinos."

The Age of Sports:

W. C. (Pop) Anderson, Utah State's 35-year-old guard who is the oldest active gridder in the Rockies, explains that he took up football "because I wanted to see if I could take it." . . . If he takes it another year or so, he may find sonny on the same team. He's father of two children, one 14 . . . Clara Saj, 15-year-old outfielder on an Amsterdam, N.Y., girls softball team, made 29 hits in 31 times at bat last season for a .935 average . . . Les Patrick, age almost 63, still drills occasionally with his teen-age hockey Rangers and can bust up most of their attacks single-handed . . . Coach Rube McCray of William and Mary claims the youngest one-two combination at centre this season. First stringer Tommy Thompson of Woodbridge, N.J., is 17 years and 10 months and his sub, George Davis of Hopewell, Va., won't be 17 until late in December.

By FRED D. CRAIG

Judging from the reports from Oshawa, the P.C.V.S. squad will have to be prepared for more than a plunging game on the part of Oshawa Collegiate when the school rivals meet at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon in the final game for the Lake Shore senior group title. The Motor City twelve overwhelmed Lindsay 41 to 0 last Saturday and the surprising feature about the win was that Oshawa used an aerial attack for most of its scoring. Bill Dell fired three touchdown passes and Bird tossed a fourth with Reddock doing the catching on most of the pitches. On top of that the Oshawa tackling was deadly. The Peterborough students in short have a job on their hands but they are confident that they can turn back the invaders and grab off the group honors. They are drilling hard all week and should be in the best of shape for the big test. Jack Matthews cracked a rib in a collison with a goal post in Bowmanville last Saturday but will be out there on the backfield Saturday and the Petes expect to be at full strength. This is easily the outstanding football argument of the season and will draw a huge crowd.

* * * * * *

George Campbell, Oshawa sports commentator sizes up the big contest as follows in his Times-Gazette sport column: "The stage is all set for the big "crooshal" rugby game of the season this Saturday afternoon up at Riverside Park in Peterborough. It's the Liftlock City students and the Oshawa Collegiate gridders for the COSSA group championship and right to meet Belleville in the Eastern Ontario playdowns, on Nov. 18, likely in Cobourg. It's strictly a two-team race now and whatta race! Peterborough and Oshawa school teams are all tied up, with four wins and one loss apiece. Oshawa C.V.I. lost their opening game here in Oshawa. Bowmanville H.S., having lost three games, are hopelessly out of the running now, while Lindsay students didn't win a game. Peterborough gridders did just what we predicted they likely would, namely stepped right into Bowmanville on Saturday afternoon and grabbed of a win, 7 to 1 was the score. Meanwhile, the O.C.V.I. boys were giving the Scugog Town boys a gridiron lesson, 41 to 0. That's a powerful score, even for a football game and indicates just what a classy team Coach Doug Waugh has rounded out in the past few weeks. We're predicting an Oshawa victory but it will likely be a tough one to win. It means plenty of stiff workouts this week and no costly fumbles in Riverside Park. That 41-0 shutout victory right in Lindsay should scare the Liftlock City gridders a little. The O.C.V.I. is quite apparently clicking on all cylinders right now."

Where Are They?

Reading the prospective lineups of some of the junior O.H.A. teams this season the thought naturally arises as to what has become of the Anglo-Saxon athletes in Ontario. A few days ago we listed the roster of one of the teams at the head of the lakes and it sounded like the Notre Dame first string team than it did a bunch of Ontario puck-chasers. The Galt Red Wings furnish another example of what we mean. Coach Al Murray's first line is made up of Pavelich, Kromptic and Ourick and others players on the Galt outfit include Adamo, Froglin, Babando, Bariko and Kazarian. Not many English, Irish or Scottish names in that gang and a similar situation situation is to be found in other centres. It is a healthy sign to find the second and third generations of former European families starring in the favorite sports of this Dominion for it is proof that they have become thoroughly Canadianized. At the same time the shrinkage in Anglo-Saxon names in sport circles is a development that should cause some concern. We hope it is not a sign that the descendants of older Canadians are developing into a generation of jitterbugs and drug store cowboys, leaving the manly sports to the boys with mid-European names.

The Ladies' City Five Pin League is sizzling these days, with every game a dogfight and the competition about the keenest in the history of the loop. Making a clean sweep this season is the toughest kind of an operation. Westclox did manage to turn the trick Monday night when they rolled three four-figure games to take all three points from Commandos but if our memory is still functioning that was about the first time this season that last year's champions had been able to grab off three games. Incidentally in so doing they pulled themselves up to a tie with Outboard Marines, who won two out of three from the Five V's. The two leaders have 12 points each. Merry Macs took two from Brintons and as a result took over third slot, just a point behind the leading pair. Brintons are fourth with 10 and tied for fifth and just three points off the pace are Commandos, Corvettes and Beavers. The Empressettes have seven points, the Five V's six and Arcos, in the cellar, have five to their credit.

Likes Canadiens

In spite of the speed at which the Leafs are travelling right now Bill Gaynon of the Niagara Falls Gazette still likes Canadiens and tells why in this paragraph: "Canadien produced the real championship spark in their double triumph over Detroit the past week-end. In both contests, the issue was exceptionally close and when a goal either way would have decided matters, it was Canucks who checked in with the tally, Toe Blake turning the trick in Montreal and Murph Chamberlain doing the chore in the motor city. In defeat, Wings showed enough to convince the wise hockey men that they will be powerful contenders all the way, while the Montrealers do not seem to have lost any of the effect of a season back. Any team that has Toe Blake roaming around has to be conceded a chance in any contest, while men of the Chamberlain, Getliffe or Lach type, are others to be reckoned for payoff tallies. Another creditable point for Dick Irvin's boys was Durnan's sensational goalminding in the Saturday and Sunday tilts, providing the thought that last winter's Vezina trophy winner, will likely pace the pack again this campaign. Wings and Leafs are going to prove dangerous squads in the present schedule, but Canucks appear like the team to beat for all the collateral."

It is expected that the annual meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club will be held shortly. Unfortunately this does not mean that Peterborough is going to have O.H.A. hockey this season. It simply is an indication that the local club wishes to maintain its connection with the Ontario body even if there is no possibility of action on the ice this season. The club will follow the same course as a year ago, elect officers, pay its entry into the O.H.A. and call it a season. The irony of the situation is that all the ingredients for a good club are still here with a wealth of player strength that any other hockey centre in the province would be glad to welcome. Yet because of the lack of rink facilities all this talent is going to waste. No wonder the citizens have swung in behind the Memorial Health Centre project with a vengeance.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: If Joe Krol who is battling old John B Flu is unable to play for Hamilton Wildcats Saturday the Balmy Beach club will be odds-on favorites to grab off the opening game in the senior O.R.F.U. playoffs.... Without Krol the Cats are just an ordinary football club.... Glen Harmon, Canadien defence player is out of action with a broken hand sustained in Sunday night's game at Detroit.... However the Flying Frenchmen are well fortified in the matter of rear guards.... Phil Watson has been re-established as a regular member of the New York Rangers and if the Patrickmen can get the green light for Bryan Hextall, they may prove tougher than their early games gave any reason to expect.... Hershey Bears scored eleven times to blank the Pittsburg Hornets last night.... The boys must be getting a bonus for causing the red light to come on.... Pettinger fired four of the goals.

"Susie," Black-Coated Pride Of Calumet Farm, Has Rightful Claim To "Horse Of Year" Honors

Classy Lassie with a Classy Chassis

Twilight Tear

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Canadian Sports Editor

No need to shed a tear for "The Tear."

The classy lassie with the classy chassis has emerged as the top candidate for "horse of the year" honors despite the record of the two-year-old king Pavot, unbeaten in 10 starts.

Twilight Tear, the Calumet Farm cutie known by her close followers as "Susie," virtually cinched her claim to "horse of the year" honors by decisively defeating Devil Diver, recognized as the handicap champion, in the recent $25,000 Pimlico Special, which was run as usual on a winner-take-all basis.

The Tear romped away from the Diver in that race, over a mile and three-sixteenth, by six lengths and the Diver previously had won seven stake races out of 11 starts.

Loses First Start

The Tear started off somewhat drably by dropping a race down in Florida against older horses. Then she began to win and she won 11 straight against horses of her own age, over varying distances from 5½ furlongs to a mile and a quarter.

The black-coated daughter of Bull Lea ran all her opponents into the ground, generally taking the lead right at the start and outrunning anything and everything. She won stake races, allowances and handicaps, climaxing her 1944 campaign with victory in the Arlington Park Classic at Washington Park.

Proving her ability, the Tear carried weights up to and including 130 pounds, conceding more than 20 pounds to her opponents.

Upset Twice

She was upset by Vienna at Belmont Park, Aug. 4, and then was beaten by Dare Me at Laurel Oct. 21. With the defeat suffered in her first outing, those were the only three losses she has met with this season.

Her racing record lists 17 starts—14 victories, one second and one third. She has collected $167,555 in purses for her owners, Calumet Farm.

Twilight Tear was a classy filly last year as a two-year-old. She made only six starts, winning four, finishing second once and third once. She won $34,610. She was nominated for the Kentucky Derby but she did not start. Her stablemate, the colt Pensive, won the derby.

Should Be Picked

Since, however, she has beaten Pensive twice, once in the Arlington Classic, the same distance as the derby.

Development of Twilight Tear from a sprinter to a distance races has been one of the amazing things about her.

She was bred for speed, being by Bull Lea-Lady Lark, and that means swiftness for six or seven furlongs but not much beyond that mark. And yet she has run over distances of a mile and a quarter and has come close to setting track records.

Pavot, the Walter M. Jeffords' colt who is unbeaten as a two-year-old may get the call as the "horse of the year." But any racing fan will nod agreement if "Susie" gets it, for she has conducted her activities all season as a lady should and a gentleman would like to do.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

TORONTO, Nov. 9 — (CP). — Around this time of the year there is always plenty of talk about changes in the football rules, should the United States type of game be adopted or not, will the East and West ever get together and co-ordinate their regulations, and so on. This year is no exception, with the sport pages filled with speculation.

That Canadian-American angle especially has been debated with the usual vigor and free expression, with the sides fairly evenly matched, we might say from observation. We don't like to throw cold water on things, but it seems doubtful if the American game ever will be adopted holus-bolus, since Canadian football has many angles that are popular with the home fans, who wouldn't want to see any radical changes. However, a gradual merging and adaptation of some rules taken from south of the border would pass almost unnoticed. It has been done in the past, with benefit to all concerned.

Elimination of the East-West differences is an equally tough nut to crack, with both sides holding their ground firmly. But there are signs some compromise might be reached before many years, with the High School players the most likely source of amicable repletions.

Short, one player:

When Marino Pieretti was picked up by Washington Senators from Portland of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, at the waiver price of $7,500, the Portland bigwigs were unduly sad. They finally broke down and admitted that Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics had offered $20,000 for the classy pitcher, but then found out he was only 5 feet 7 inches tall. "Three inches too short," wired Connie in cryptic fashion, and withdrew his offer.... Mourned business manager Bill Klepper: "St. Louis Browns buy Pete Gray, and he is only shy one arm."

Disillusioned:

George Schilling, presiding steward and racing secretary with the Prairie Thoroughbred Breeders and Racing Association during the summer, tells how he once located what he thought was a real, soft-hearted owner. This character came up to Schilling at Caliente, Mexico, where the judge is racing director and presiding steward, and asked to withdraw a claim he had made. He said he had found out the horse's owner was a real nice chappie and he didn't want to take a horse away from so fine a man. When the horse, scrawny and almost lame animal, paraded to the post, the judge decided his soft-hearted customer hadn't looked at the animal until after he put in the claim.

Livingston Is Rejoining Cubs

CHICAGO, Nov. 9 (AP)—Catcher Thompson (Mickey) Livingston, who came to Chicago Cubs late in 1943 and pushed Clyde McCullough out of his regular job but was in military service last season, says he'll be back in 1945 to take over as the Club's No. 1 receiver.

Jim Gallagher, Cubs' general manager, said Livingston, in a letter from Newberry, S.C., advised him he had received a medical discharge from the army and was all set for the 1945 baseball season.

Gallagher, who in his search for catching talent since Mickey's entrance into the army late in 1943, was elated over the news and was confident his return would bolster the club's most glaring weakness and greatly enhance its pennant chances. The Cubs finished fourth in 1944.

The unexpected return of the 30-year-old catcher, who came to the Cubs from the Philadelphia Phillies in a trade for Pitcher Bill Lee in 1943, increases the Cubs' backstops to five. The plethora of receivers is an indication of the Cubs' frantic efforts to find a capable man for the post.

Livingston, who rates high as a big league backstop and who also has played with Brooklyn and Washington, hit .261 in 36 games with the Cubs in 1943 and .241 in 84 contests as a Philly.

Leafs Gunning For Fifth Win

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Maple Leafs have a chance to-night to move further into the lead in the National Hockey League when they clash with the tail-end New York Rangers at Madison Square Gardens. In the only other league game since last Sunday, Chicago Black Hawks play Canadiens at Montreal.

Leafs will be gunning for their fifth successive win without a defeat while Canadiens, in second place, two points behind Toronto, will attempt to stop Paul Thompson's hard-driving Hawks, who currently share fourth spot with Boston Bruins.

Rangers will pit a new line against Leafs in an effort to come through with a victory. So far the Broadway Blueshirts have lost their first three games. Phil Watson, who played last year with Canadiens on loan from Rangers, will perform to-night at centre ice between Hank Goldup, former Leaf left winger, and Walter Atanas, rookie from Hamilton, Ont.

Watson joined the Rangers' camp last week-end and worked out with the club at the Brooklyn Ice Palace Tuesday and yesterday. Goldup has been acting as an extra defenceman and utility forward since the start of the 1944-45 season.

The Quebec Senior Hockey League although in doubtful standing with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, is away to a flying box-office start and fans are predicting a banner season.

The circuit's difficulties with the C.A.H.A. stemmed from its inclusion of Hull Volants to join Ottawa Commandos, Montreal Royals and the Allan Cup champion Quebec Aces. Ottawa district officials claimed both Volants and Commandos should play in their own district instead of a Q.A.H.A. League.

The C.A.H.A. backed the Ottawa demand, but the Q.S.H.L. decided to play regardless. The C.A.H.A. has made no comment since the league defiance but presumably the Q.S.H.L. is an outlaw circuit at the moment. Its status is expected to be righted by playoff time.

A British paratrooper, Sgt. Gwyn Williams, who took part in the Arnhem battle, will meet Ronnie James, British lightweight boxing champion, in London November 27. Williams, only 22 years old, has won 63 of 65 fights, taking return decisions from the two men who defeated him. Since his return from Arnhem he has fought once, gaining a quick victory. James will appear in the ring for the first time since he won the title.

To Coach Marlboros.

Appointment of Dave (Sweeney) Schriner of Toronto Maple Leafs as coach of the Toronto Marlboros team in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series was announced yesterday by Manager Harold Ballard. When Schriner is away from the city with the Leafs, Ballard will take over.

Joe Krohl, star halfback with Hamilton Wildcats, 1943 Dominion football champions, was stricken with an attack of influenza late yesterday and rushed to a Hamilton hospital. Officials said it was doubtful if he would participate in the first game of the home-and-home points-to-count series against Toronto Balmy Beach for the Ontario Rugby Football Union championship here Saturday.

Smith's Falls Collegiate Seniors captured the Lanark county inter-scholastic football title yesterday on the home field by defeating Perth Collegiate 23-5.

Threats of a bottleneck in two major sports—basketball and wrestling—are developing in Montreal. Referees of both games are asking more money for their services. The Montreal Wrestling Commission is arranging a meeting between referees and promoters to settle the dispute, while a deadlock seems to have been reached in the case of the cage officials. Members of the Quebec board of approved basketball referees have asked the Montreal Basketball League for an increase in fees from $2.50 to $3.50 a game for senior referees, but league officials claim present small attendances won't permit the raise.

Rode Five Winners.

Ted Atkinson of Toronto, leading jockey of the season, rode five winners at Belmont Park in New York yesterday to bring his victories for the season to 256. Bobby Permane, also riding at Belmont, is second with 217.

A new schedule will have to be drawn up for the recently-formed Inter-Provincial Hockey League, it was decided at a Montreal league meeting last night. The 72-game schedule of the four-team league will be revised, it was said, to reduce travelling expenses. The new schedule will provide for teams playing both Saturday night and Sunday afternoon in the same town.

By HYE BOSSIN

International studios in Hollywood have an idea which, if applied generally, would solve the problems of the world.

All who work there eat the same lunches but pay according to their earnings. In that way the meal for which an executive pays three dollars costs a secretary a few pennies.

It seems to me that it's the same idea as our income tax. The purpose of the income tax as applied now is to create a classless society without changing the economic system. (Joke.)

Here's something: Maria Montez is wearing earings with Pierre Aumont's picture on them. He's her husband, and is overseas with the Free French. Aumont made one film in Hollywood, "Assignment in Brittany," after being discharged from the Free French forces but re-enlisted when well again . . . Gracie Fields and Monty Woolley, who made such a hit in "Holy Matrimony," will star in "Molly, Bless Her," a picture based on incidents in the life of the late Marie Dressler, Cobourg-born star. It was inspired by Miss Dressler's experiences as a cook when she couldn't get any stage jobs.

First thing you know bald-headed men will be considered glamorous. Screen stars used to be afraid of being caught without their wigs but they make so many public appearances these days that they would be wearing them all the time.

Charles Boyer, Paul Lukas, Bing Crosby and Fred Astaire are among those who stand naked and unashamed before the world—above the brow. Something good will come of it, too. The gals will look with kindlier eye upon lads with smooth noggins.

Reminds me of the wisecrack someone threw at a star after he unveiled his clean conk. "What's the matter," jeered someone. "Hair raid?"

Bears Set Back Pittsburgh 11-0

By The Canadian Press

Hershey Bears provided the first major upset of the young American Hockey League season last night when they set back the high-flying Pittsburg Hornets 1-0. Victory for the Bears on home ice broke a deadlock on top of the eastern division of the league and set Hershey into first place. Pittsburg's position at the head of the western division was not affected.

Gordy Pettinger led the scoring spree with four goals to his credit while Hec Pozzo notched three. Patterson added two and Bill Gooden and Frank Bennett scored one goal each.

Cleveland Barons handed the St. Louis Flyers on their home ice last night their third consecutive defeat 5-4 in a game postponed from Tuesday on account of the United States elections.

Havelock Institute Plans For Visit Of Mrs. C. Hayes

HAVELOCK, Nov. 9—(ENS)—At the November meeting of the Havelock Women's Institute arrangements were made for forenoon and afternoon sessions on Tuesday, November 20, when Mrs. C. Hayes of Toronto will be the guest speaker on the subject "Citizenship." A pot luck lunch will be served at noon and the Trent River and Belmont branches are expected to be in attendance.

Mrs. Charles Taylor was appointed delegate to the forty-third annual convention, for Women's Institutes of the Central Ontario area to be held November 14, 15 and 16 in Toronto. The meeting went on record as favoring two resolutions from the Grey Centre district and Grey North district which are to be put before the convention namely: first that they wish the women's beverage rooms in Ontario abolished as they are creating deplorable conditions in many Ontario centres, and drinking is debauching many mothers and potential mothers and the greatest cause of juvenile delinquency is the absence of mothers from the home and that the Department of Welfare for the province of Ontario be asked to grant a monthly allowance to cripples as pensions if required.

Not Ask For Grant

A communication was received from the superintendent of Women's Institutes, Toronto, regarding the legislative grant which must be used for educational purposes and it was decided not to make application for this.

The cemetery committee reported receipts of $7. Mrs. F. McKenize was program convener and Mrs. A. S. Thompson was guest speaker on the subject "Citizenship" and opened her address with a quotation from William Penn "that a man should make it a part of his religion to be a good citizen." She defined citizenship and gave a fourteen point questionaire and answers, inviting discussion on any part. She closed her address by reading a poem entitled "A New Earth," by John Oxenham.

The roll call was answered by giving what constitutes a good citizen. A vocal duet entitled "Till We Meet Again" was sung by Misses Dora Ketchen and Ruth Wilkinson accompanied by Mrs. W. M. Platt at the piano. A poem "Which Are You" was read by the president, Mrs. R. Jones. A geographical contest on Canada was won by Mrs. Thompson. Lunch was served at the close. The hostesses being Mrs. R. McCutcheon, Mrs. F. McKenzie and Miss E. Wright.

Sacred Heart Begins Bazaar

MARMORA, Nov. 9 — (ENS) — The annual bazaar of three days' duration, under auspices of the Sacred Heart Church was marked with success on its opening day, Tuesday. The attendance at the chicken dinner in the evening was computed at being a 10 per cent increase over last year. Patrons and patronesses were present from Tweed and Madoc and other nearby villages, while the presence of residents of the village and township representing all classes and creeds made it a real community affair.

In addition to the home cooking table, the fancy work table and the fish pond, bingo and other games proved an attraction to numbers attending the supper. As in former years, the chicken supper is being repeated for the second evening, followed by cards, and on the third evening a general supper will be followed by a dance and various drawings.

NEW TARGET OF SUPERFORTS—The Malay and Sumatra areas suddenly bounce back into the spotlight as the result of the record daylight flight of B-29 Superfortresses from India, during which they blasted targets in the great naval base at Singapore, and on northern Sumatra. No details of the raids were immediately available, but it is believed that considerable damage was done to the former British bastion on the tip of the Malay peninsula.

Mrs. Fred Neilson was appointed delegate to the annual Women's Institute convention in Toronto on November 14, 15 and 16.

One of the best demonstrations of the year was given by Mrs. William Morris on a jellied chicken salad. Several artistic arrangements of the various shaped moulds made tempting dishes. A collection of articles made from flour and sugar bags were on display. Mrs. F. E. Birdsall conducted a quiz on "Are you a good cook?" which was won by Mrs. A. Wood.

The December meeting will be held on the second Tuesday, December 12, instead of the third, and the program will include a bazaar of miscellaneous articles.

British Paper Lashes M. MacDonald

LONDON, Nov. 9 — (CP Cable)—The Daily Herald today described as "an astonishing piece of impertinence" an address Monday in Montreal by Malcolm MacDonald in which the British High Commissioner to Canada made personal predictions regarding the future leadership of British political parties.

The Herald, a Socialist paper, said editorially that Mr. MacDonald told his audience that Prime Minister Churchill and a "host of other people" regard Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden as next Prime Minister of Britain. Mr. MacDonald also said that if the premiership fell to the Labor party it probably would go to Herbert Morrison, Minister of Home Security, or Labor Minister Bevin.

"We don't know what the Conservative party will think about MacDonald's brazen departure from the traditions of office," the Herald said. "But as far as the Labor party is concerned we would say this: Our leader is appointed by the parliamentary Labor party. (Maj. Clement) Attlee recently has been re-elected once again to leadership and the movement stands solidly and confidently behind him.

"What right has the high commissioner in Canada to forecast the decisions of the British Labor party? And what right in particular has Mr. Malcolm MacDonald to pose as a reader of the mind of that party from which he is a pathetic renegade?

"If Mr. MacDonald wishes to influence the political future of any party in Britain he had better return to the House of Commons," the Herald said, adding that "if on the other hand he persists in regarding his absence as indispensable to the national interest, he should confine himself to the functions of the high commissionership in Canada."

What causes NEURITIS?

Like many other complaints, the cause may be simply lack of vitamins in the daily diet.

Many ailments, according to modern science, are not due to organic trouble, but to shortage of vitamins. At first, it was thought that lack of vitamin B1 was the cause of neuritis suffering. Now we know that all 5 vitamins are necessary, because each aids the other to function. You can now get them combined in "ALL-in-ONE" Vitamin Tablets (with valuable minerals and yeast added). Take daily for a month. See how much better you feel. Only $2.15 for a month's supply. At most drug stores.

Invaders Take City Officials In Sham Battle

Screening their advance with dozens of smoke bombs, and firing blank shells from Bren guns, rifles, and pistols, two platoons of soldiers stormed and overcame the county court house Wednesday afternoon, in a sham battle that brought home to Peterborough citizens some of the fury and speed of actual warfare.

Several prisoners were taken, including Ald. James Dutton, and Gordon Matthews, chairman of the War Finance Committee, and along with two "Nazi" officials, they were lined up in front of the building and shot by a firing squad. The battle was held in the interests of Peterborough's Seventh Victory Loan campaign.

More than 130 young, fully-trained soldiers took part in the battle, and they staged it in a most realistic manner, even to killed and wounded fighting men slumping over their weapons, as the pace of the fighting increased. All under 19 years of age, the troops are from the A. 10 training centre at Camp Borden, and are under the command of Captain A. W. Medhurst. Each soldier was wearing complete camouflage, even to a green and black streaked face. Mud-spattered uniforms and hats disguised by tattered rags added to the camouflage and the color of their clothing blended with the terrain in Victoria Park.

One platoon was assigned to be Nazis, and defend the court house, while two other platoons were the Allies, whose task it was, to take over the building, and capture important officials. Picking out suitable positions for cover behind telephone poles and trees, the defenders waited for the Allies to open the attack.

The Allies approached from George street, advancing in two sections on either side of Brock and Murray streets, to lessen the danger of excessive casualties. Swinging around the corner of Brock street, the attackers engaged forward patrols of Nazis at the outskirts of the park, tossing smoke bombs to hide their progress. The enemy forces retaliated by setting off many smoke bombs, but the Allies pressed forward, and tthe smoke helped screen the defenders' retreat to better positions.

At the first sight of the enemy, defending gunners in the park opened up with a terrific barrage of fire. The next stage of the battle came when another attacking force stormed around the corner of Murray street, and infiltrated up the hill to outflank the enemy. Snipers among the defending units were placed at vantage points in the court house, and when the battle line was shortened, they opened fire on the attackers.

Wave after wave of attacking soldiers were thrown into the fight, and the defenders on the hillside were slowly pushed back. A last ditch attempt to stem the advance and turn the tide of battle failed at the ridge of the hill, when Allied soldiers brought pressure on both flanks of the enemy. The victorious soldiers entered the building after resistance had ceased, and brought out enemy officials, and soldiers, while other units rounded up snipers.

Shoot 3 Officials.

The prisoners, including E. Simpson, unit organizer of the Victory Loan here, Wilfrid Huycke, K.C., City Solicitor, and William Reid, organizer for the payroll savings section of the Victory Loan office, were forced out of the building at the point of a gun, and were forced to line up for their execution. Before they were disposed of, however, two Nazi officials were shot, and both died in a manner any movie would be proud of. Troops dragged their "bodies" away, and before the executions of the civilians took place, Ald. Dutton reminded the large crowd that gathered, that in other Victory loans, Peterborough has always gone over the top, and it is to be hoped and expected that it will do the same this time. An individual effort by everyone in Peterborough, will be necessary to accomplish this, he said.

A firing squad then did away with the officials, who also died in a very entertaining fashion, falling flat on the court house steps.

The A.11 Band of the 48th Highlanders from Camp Borden, under the direction of WOI. Harry Thompson, also was in attendance. A description of the battle, and explanations of the various tactics used was given by Lieut. Thomas Mason, former member of the Prince of Wales Rangers (C.A.) here, who acted as liaison officer for the little army in its demonstrations. Lieut. Mason is now of Ottawa.

The demonstrations were repeated later Wednesday afternoon at five o'clock at the corner of George and Charlotte streets. Wednesday morning a battle was fought in Lakefield, and a large crowd turned out to see it. Victory Loan officials termed these mock battles as "the most realistic picture of war ever seen here."

Barry Ottewell Re-Elected Scout President

With three successive years of competent leadership behind him, Barry Ottewell was re-elected president of the Peterborough Boy Scouts Local Association for a fourth term at the annual meeting for the election of officers, held at Hooper's Palm Rooms, Wednesday evening.

Frank Buckland was elected to the post of first vice-president, and Roy Lewis was elected to be the new second vice-president, for the coming year. Capable work as the secretary of the Association brought about the re-election of W. G. Shiner to that position, and W. H. Frise was elected treasurer.

The following members were elected to the Local Association executive: G. E. Groombridge; Mrs. G. Langhorne, O. Kidd, W. King, W. D. MacDougall, Percy Hooper, and J. L. Thompson. The re-appointment of E. Wolff as commissioner for the next year was recommended.

Reports were heard from the secretary, treasurer, commissioner, and all committees and goups of the Association. Activities in detail of the past term were reviewed. It was decided to purchase a wreath for Remembrance Day, to place on the cenotaph, and a contribution of $25 was voted to the Memorial Community Centre fund.

The "Chins-Up" Fund was given a substantial boost by the Association, when a $50 contribution was made to it. This fund, operated as a memorial to the late Baden-Powell, sends books to boy scouts of other countries, occupied by the Nazis or freed by the Allies. It is believed books translated into Polish, are now being received by scouts inside Poland, and translated books are being sent to other countries where scouts are less fortunate than they are here. The Tweedsmuir Room in Halifax, operating as a kind of entertainment centre and canteen for scouts now in the armed forces, also received a $10 contribution from the Association.

In recognition of years of service, awards of merit were received by Mrs. Langhorne, Mr. Groombridge, and H. Nokes. Sent out from Scout Headquarters in Ottawa, the medal is awarded for 10 years service, with additional years being acknowledged by bars for the medal.

Henry H. Pollock Observes 86th Birthday

Born in 1858 near Cobourg, he came to Trent River over sixty years ago, just at the time when the big bridge was being completed.

Mr. Pollock recalls many interesting and amusing stories of Trent River in the early days, and tells of working in the shanty over sixty years ago, when wages were $10 a month, and if one drank tea, $1 a month was deducted from the wages. Butter was 13 cents a pound, eggs 5 cents a dozen, brown sugar 2 lbs. for 25 cents. Mr. Pollock's father taught school at Polmont, his salary being from $300 to $400 a year.

Mr. Pollock, who is a boat-builder and axe-handle maker by trade, is still very active in his work-shop. He enjoys good health, and with the exception of a little deafness and rheumatism he retains all his faculties and enjoys life in general.

The celebration of his birthday was held at his home, the occasion also marking the birthday of his son Harry. A family dinner was served in the diningroom, where the table was centred with a three tier fruit cake and an elaborately iced birthday cake.

Thirty-two guests were served including two sisters, Mrs. E. Kennedy and Mrs. A. C. Nancarrow; Mrs. Wm. Hyslop, Mrs. J. Calvert of Kingston; two daughters, Mrs. Sam Ellis, Campbellford and Mrs. Ken Green, Havelock; two sons, Harry of Havelock and Ross of Trent River; three granddaughters, Mrs. G. Rivard, Campbellford; Noreen Pollock, Havelock, and Mrs. Eric Anderson, Lakefield; two grandsons, Bob Pollock, Trent River, and Bobbie Bruce Pollock of Havelock, and a great granddaughter, Louise Anderson of Lakefield.

Other dinner guests were—Mrs. Harry Pollock, Mrs. Ross Pollock, Mrs. Fred Walker (Sr.), Mr. and Mrs. Fred Walker, daughters, Verda and Vivian, from Coe Hill, Mr. Weller Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. George Pollock, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pollock, from Rush Point, Mrs. Francis Ruttan and sons, Jim and Doug, and Mrs. Joseph McNeely.

Many friends called during the evening to extend congratulations and Mr. Pollock received many gifts, letters and cards.

Lt. D. Clark Wounded Fighting With British

One of several Canadian officers loaned to the British Army, Lieut. David George Clark, whose wife, Mrs. Annie R. Clark, lives at 454 Wellington street, was wounded October 28.

Formerly employed at the C.G.E., Lieut. Clark enlisted with the Prince of Wales Rangers (C.A.) and served in Canada with that unit until he went overseas in May on loan to the British Army. He was serving with a unit of the Cameronians S.R. His wife is working in the Aircraft Department of the C.G.E. and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Clark, Lansdowne street.

Absence Of Counsel Forces Adjournment

Owing to the fact that T. J. Carley, K.C., who is defending him was tied up in another court and was unable to be present today, a charge against Louis Freeburn, Norwood, of reckless driving, following a fatal accident on Otonabee street in which little Wayne Manley was killed instantly had to be enlarged this morning.

Freeburn was present but was not asked to plead or elect in view of the absence of his counsel.

He was remanded for a week and it is possible that there may have to be another adjournment then.

Airmen Not Interested

CALGARY, Nov. 9 — (CP). — Maj. Howard Gainor, recruiting officer for Military District No. 13 (Calgary), said physically fit members of R.C.A.F. ground crew were showing little inclination to transfer to the army for overseas. "This is a surprise to me," he said. "They must be aware of the need for reinforcements for the troops overseas."

RETURNED—Clare Booth Luce, Republican critic of President Roosevelt, who was returned in Connecticut.

REACHES ENGLAND — Mrs. Isobelle Bayliss has received word that her husband, WO. Fred Bayliss, who has been on active service in Ceylon, Arabia, Egypt and the Middle East, has arrived back in England. He enlisted in October, 1940, and went overseas in January, 1942.

FO. B. Armstrong Given Great Welcome

The enthusiastic crowd which swallowed up Flying Officer J. B. (Bun) Armstrong as he and his wife stepped from the train, Wednesday night, helped to make up for the long, uncertain periods of anxiety when his fate hung in the balance in France.

On behalf of the city Alderman James Dutton and Roland Glover were present to welcome him home, and congratulate him on his amazing escape. Although they have welcomed a number of Army men back from overseas, this is one of the few times they have had the honor of extending a welcoming municipal hand to a member of the R. C. A. F.

The young airman who arrived in Toronto a few days ago to visit his parents, was reported missing, when he parachuted from his burning plane in France. He was cared for by loyal Frenchmen and then joined the Maquis in that district.

A large group of his friends, who knew F. O. Armstrong was expected, were on hand to say hello, and surround him in a matter of seconds. Prior to enlisting, the R. C. A. F. officer was employed at Ed. Riley's Men's Store. His wife was formerly Freda Gray.

F. O. Armstrong told the Council representatives that he was mighty glad to be back and had thought many times about his home and friends in Peterborough when he had thought he might never see them again.

Manning Challenged

TORONTO, Nov. 9 (CP)—Three members of Board of Control yesterday challenged Harold Manning, Ontario president of the Property Owners' Association, to back up his statement that "no real housing shortage exists in Toronto." (Mr. Manning expressed belief that reports of Toronto's housing shortage were "insincere from start to finish" and said he agreed with Federal housing officials who had "insisted" there was no real housing crisis in Toronto.)

Fairview Group Makes $38 At Market Stall

The permission given the secretary of the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund by the City Council for the free use of a stall on the farmers' market has proved of immense value in the aggregate in raising money for the purposes for which the fund operates. Because in recent times it has not been as fully taken advantage of as might be desired, it seems most opportune that group which has had a splendid success through its use should come along at this time with another of their worthwhile efforts.

Interlocked with the membership of their church in that district the Fairview War Workers came into being with a social held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown of that place, the proceeds of which started them off on a series of events which now have rolled up the splendid sum of $420.18 raised for the fund.

In this, the Market stall has also played a good part, for by taking advantage of the facilities it offers, they have on a number of occasions utilized it to good effect in raising amounts that rank among the finest for this kind of effort, and their high total of over $50 on one occasion still remains as the top figure for any single effort through its use.

Their latest effort was held last Saturday, November 4, when they offered a large assortment of farm and garden produce with home-made baking collected from among the people in their own district. The sale, together with a draw on a large basket of apples donated by Mrs. Fred Brown, and a cake which was made and given by Mrs. W. D. Fowler, realized the sum of $38.28.

Those giving their services at the stall were Mrs. W. Rosborough, Mrs. C. Bell, Mrs. W. Fowler, and Mrs. Fred Brown, all of whom have been active on previous occasions for the same purpose. The draw for the two prizes resulted in Mrs. Fred Bell of R.R. 4, Peterborough, winning the basket of apples, and the cake went to Mrs. W. Smith of Keene.

This Saturday's Market.

This coming Saturday, November 11, will see another sale at the stall presided over by Mrs. Rufus Payne, who also has used it to good purpose to assist with the special donations for Christmas in the past few years. The offerings will consist of potted plants and cactus, which enliven and brighten a home so much during the long, dreary, winter months, when outside plant and garden growth is dormant.

Hatton Property Best Land Outside Of City

Of the Hatton property expropriated by Wartime Housing Limited in August 1942, W. J. Gibbs, realty agent, said as witness in the Exchequer Court hearing Wednesday afternoon: "I consider it the best subdivision proposition in or around the city of Peterborough."

Replying to T. J. Carley, K.C., counsel for the Hatton family, Mr. Gibbs said that in 1940-41 he was "anxious to have the property given to me as a subdivision to sell. I tried to tell Norman Hatton there was a good opportunity. Since Wartime Housing went in there I believe prospective buyers have been driven away, and the Hattons have lost many good sales.

Mr. Carley—"As of 1942 have you arrived at any value of the property expropriated?"

Mr. Gibbs—"I had in mind lots would have sold at from $500 to $700, and if the property was subdivided some of the lots might sell up to $1,000."

Witness said he had estimated divisior of the property into 140 to

British Parliament To Be Delayed In New Session

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Nov. 9 — (CP). — The new session of Parliament, due to start soon, will be delayed this year until members can clear up business still outstanding in the present session.

The Town and Country Planning Bill, one of the most factious pieces of legislation to come before the House this session, occupied considerably more time than was expected and was followed by demands for debates on the Government's social security scheme and civil aviation.

Members of all parties would like a clean break between the two sessions in preference to a carry-over, for the next is expected to be the last before a general election.

Plans for that election, the first in 10 years, are still going forward although there have been no hints how soon voting may take place.

The Liberal National Party appeared ready to throw in its lot with the Conservatives by joining with the Tories in nominating a prospective "National Government" candidate to oppose Labor's Herbert Morrison, Home Secretary and Minister of Home Security, in Hackney. Their choice was Flt.-Lt. Stanley Price.

Reports that the Liberal Nationals whose 28 members in the Commons include former War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha and former Health Minister Ernest Brown, were preparing to link up with the Conservatives have been current for some time.

Labor Minister Ernest Bevin, whose political figure has been under discussion, will be in the ring come voting day. "Mr. Bevin is sticking to Wandsworth and that's official," said a constituency Labor spokesman. The unofficial stories were (a) Bevin was tired and anxious to retire from politics, and (b) that he planned to publish a new national morning newspaper.

Berlin Comments On U.S. Election

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 — (AP) — The American people must "bear the consequences of Roosevelt's re-election," which surprised no one, the Berlin radio said today.

"Roosevelt's leading motive is to avoid everything that may displease the Kremlin and he is even willing to deliver his Chungking Chinese ally into the hands of Communism," the official D.N.B. Agency commented. "This servile attitude was rewarded by Moscow with support of Roosevelt's re-election.

"The American people will be burdened with very great sacrifices in view of Roosevelt's well-known tendency to stake all on one single card without remembering former election promises. Europe will answer Roosevelt's re-election by doubling its efforts to frustrate eastern Communism and western capitalism."

Berlin asserted that "victorious termination of the war against Japan is and will remain the hinge around which Washington's foreign policy revolves."

Observing Education Week

Education Week is being observed this week in Peterborough and in a number of the schools open school is being held under the sponsorship of the teachers and the Home and School Associations. Parents are seeing the work which is being done and are also being given an opportunity to discuss with the teachers their children's welfare. The Peterborough Home and School Council is behind these open meetings and in backing them it draws the attention of the parents that their children spend more waking hours in school than any other place. The schooling given the children influences their future more than any other single factor and that these open meetings are an opportunity for parents to learn first hand what education has to offer by visiting the schools.

Quotas Unfilled Worry Red Cross Heads

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—Reports on the progress of quotas for nine months of this year are causing grave concern at the headquarters of Women's War Work Committee, Ontario Division of Red Cross. At a time when more comforts are required for the men and women in the armed services than ever before, and when flying bombs are causing desolation in England and the need for civilian clothing is very great indeed, reports on quotas January to September are alarming, says J. C. Fraser.

Branches, says the chairman of Ontario Women's War Work committee, have not accepted quotas allotted to the Ontario Division by the National Committee during January and February of this year. The Ontario Committee in accepting these quotas believed that most of the articles would in turn be accepted by branches, made and shipped by the end of October. But the reports show that completed quotas are to be seen only in the easily-made articles.

In the first two months of 1944, Ontario assumed responsibility of quotas calling for 528,000 articles for civilians, to be completed during the year. By September 30, branches in Ontario had accepted less than half of that number. And need of those in the services is definitely not being met, for the quota of 350,800 knitted comforts for men is only half completed. The quota of over 21,000 articles for women in services is but a quarter completed.

In an earnest appeal to women in Ontario to contact their nearest Red Cross branch, Mrs. Fraser says "take whatever work is most needed; do it as quickly as possible. The women of Ontario know how to answer this appeal."

Army Boxes Cost Auxiliary $2,118

The total cost of the articles purchased for Christmas boxes for Canadian Army men from Peterborough serving overseas, was reported at $2,118, by Mrs. H. Mason, of the purchasing committee, to the regular meeting of the Active Army Auxiliary, Wednesday afternoon in the Armories. Mrs. J. A. Dewart presided, and received reports of the various conveners.

Mrs. W. Ovens, corresponding secretary, reported that since the last meeting, seven letters of sympathy had been sent out. Mrs. B. D. Hall, for the visiting committee, told of 14 calls made on next-of-kin of recent casualties, and Mrs. J. Duncan said that she had sent cigarette and airgraphs to 11 men wounded and hospitalized, and that six replies had been received. The president expressed the deep feeling of sympathy of the Auxiliary to Mrs. J. A. Campbell, one of the members, whose two sons have been reported missing, and voiced the hope of all that good news would be received soon.

Fred Hills briefly addressed the meeting about the civic hospital project and asked for the unanimous support of the members for a modern fully-equipped hospital, when they voted on the by-law in December.

Miss Margaret Stevenson gave an account of the recent meeting of the Local Council of Women, when Mrs. H. L. Luffman and Miss Estelle Cuff spoke on "Women in Civic Affairs." At the close of the meeting, two pairs of wooden shoes sent to Bobby and Dorothy Kingston from their father, Capt. Ken. Kingston, serving in Holland, were displayed. Refreshments were served by the social committee, convened by Mrs. J. Morley.

Robertson Davies Addresses W.A.

A delightful talk, entertaining as well as informative, on "How to "Read a Newspaper," was presented by Robertson Davies to members of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's Church, at their regular meeting.

Mr. Davies suggested, that to get the most out of a newspaper, one should look it over carefully, pencilling articles of interest, and then go back and read them. He also suggested that anything of particular interest should be clipped and filed for future reference.

Mrs. E. V. Morphet briefly addressed the meeting, asking for full support of the new civic hospital project. Miss Alicia Langley, guest soloist, sang two solos, accompanied at the piano by Miss E. Scott. Mrs. I. T. Lillico presided, and received splendid reports from various committee conveners. At the close, refreshments were served, with Mrs. V. Hamilton's group in charge.

Mrs. C. Shook, who was in charge of the finances, reported $20 as the proceeds for the afternoon. The committee which arranged the tea was made up of Mrs. S. E. White, Mrs. Wm. Millage, Mrs. Alf. Hudson, Mrs. George Hutt, and Mrs. J. M. Twist.

Following the tea a meeting was held and an organization formed to take charge of this money which will be used to buy new music for the choir. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Twist; sec.-treasurer, Mrs. Hutt; committee, Mrs. Millage, Mrs. Hudson and Mrs. White.

St. John's Church Burns Mortgage

A large attendance marked a congregational meeting in St. John's Church Wednesday evening, for the burning of the mortgage on the church. All church organizations were represented on the happy occasion, and the group enjoyed a social evening.

Canon W. P. Robertson reviewed the general history of the Church, which was built in 1826, and congratulated the groups on their efforts, particularly the Church Women's Association and the Women's Friendly Bible Class. He said that it was the fourth mortgage on the church property that had been redeemed. Dr. G. S. Cameron and D. G. H. Melton, ex-warden and warden of the church, also briefly addressed the meeting, and spoke of further improvements that they were expecting after the war. Mrs. G. H. Cutmore sang two solos.

At the close of the evening, refreshments were served by members of the Church Women's Association, with Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell and Mrs. D. G. H. Melton, wives of the wardens, pouring coffee.

Mission Training Outline Given

Mrs. Dengate, vice-president of the Baptist Foreign Mission Board and also on the Board of Religious Education of Canada and on the National Girls' Work Board, was guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Murray Street Mission Circle Tuesday afternoon in the church parlors.

Speaking on the work of the Foreign Mission Board, Mrs. Dengate said that they were very careful in their choice of young women to be sent out to the mission fields. She explained that they preferred someone with a B.A. degree, and told about a special B.A. and Reg.N., course that McMaster University was offering for foreign missions nurses.

A letter was read from Mrs. L. J. Pettit to the members of the Mission Circle, expressing her regrets at leaving the church and her many friends there. The devotional period was in charge of group three, with Mrs. W. Kidd as leader. Miss E. Aldrich read the scripture and Mrs. N. Barrie led in prayer. The vote of thanks to Mrs. Dengate was moved by Miss E. Aldrich.

JUST FOR WOMEN

By CONNIE NICHOLSON
(Society Editor of The Examiner)

Perky Pedicure

Milady is generally careful about the appearance of her hands, and keeps them fashionably soft and white and well-manicured, but she should remember that feet are in fashion too, and though they usually are not seen, except through air-conditioned toeless shoes, they certainly make themselves felt.

For a refreshing pedicure which really does wonders for the feet, making them feel fresh and eased, and consequently giving the whole body a "lift", here are the steps. Soak the feet in warm soapy water, and scrub, rinsing and drying them thoroughly. Avoid keeping the feet too long in the water, so that the nails will not become softened.

Remove any old nail polish with polish remover, and file the nails with the rough side of any emery board. Remember to file the toenails straight across, avoiding nail-splitting, and ingrown nails, which often develop if edges are rounded. Work back the cuticle with an orangewood stick tipped with cotton dipped in cuticle remover, and rinse and wipe away loosened cuticle with a soft towel. To apply polish, be sure the nail surface is absolutely dry, and then brush on the polish, covering the entire nail. For best results, separate toes by placing tufts of cotton between them while the polish is being applied and drying. As is the case with the hands, a sealing shield of another coat of polish or polishield will help polish to last longer.

It's also a good idea to apply cuticle oil around the cuticles, to clear up the danger of rough ends which tend to snag precious stockings. For a refreshing exercise, grasp the ball of the foot between thumb and fingers, and work across the foot with a kneading action. Cream can be applied with this exercise, which works as a massage. As a final touch, to leave the feet feeling cool and comfortable, dust powder over feet and ankles. This finish also facilitates putting on stockings.

VENEREAL DISEASE is no longer a hush-hush topic. It is a subject that comes up wherever thinking women meet . . . social groups . . . welfare meetings . . . the luncheon table.

And it is not idle talk. Canadian women now realize that when VENEREAL DISEASE strikes, the home is usually caught in the merciless web.

The home . . . their domain.

They want to know what can be done about it. How they can help blot out this shadow on our land.

They are helping . . . even by just talking about it. The more intelligently we discuss the problem the more knowledge we will have, and the greater the community strength to solve it.

Do YOU want to know how YOU can help? It's quite simple.

First, learn the facts about syphilis and gonorrhœa . . . what they are . . . how these diseases affect one . . . how they can be prevented . . . cured. Then, see that that 'teen-aged boy or girl of yours knows the facts . . . the truth. That's your job.

Second, see that your club has a frank discussion about the problem. Call in your health officer, or someone else who really knows the problem . . . and the answers. Arrange to have a free screening of a modern film to give you a better understanding of what is being done, and what can be done.

Third, make sure the conditions in your community are the kind which will give your children . . . and your neighbour's . . . the best chances for health and happiness . . . NO houses of prostitution . . . and NO unsavory places in which healthy and diseased young people can meet easily.

As a homemaker you cannot be indifferent. Canadian home life is the root of our nation's life. It must be protected.

Planning Christmas Cake In Order to Avoid Rush

By MARY MOORE

After pinching myself hard to find I was human after all my efficiency-expert plans to avoid the Christmas rush for recipes, I find myself swamped. Readers want dozens of things they've never craved before and I haven't anticipated your needs at all.

After you've shopped for hours and walked miles and snaffled about 2½ pounds raisins out of it all, and paid $1.49 for a pound of broken pecans (I had to grovel in the dust for that)—after that, I say, you might get some peel by just simply ordering it, and then you can put this recipe for Christmas cake to some real use. (After you get your cake made we'll go into puddings, cookies, then menu plans.)

Emem's 1944 Christmas Cake

(These amounts make about six pounds of cake.)

One pound raisins (I'd say light sultanas if it were peace time), 2 pounds of the mixed red, green cherries and red and green melon rind we can buy in place of peel, 1 pound nuts preferably pecans or blanched almonds, 3 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 cup butter (or if you do not care to spare it use half butter and half lard or shortening), 1 cup granulated sugar, 5 eggs, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ cup orange juice (do not substitute this for it gives the cake an excellent flavor), 1½ tablespoons vanilla. Prepare fruits by flouring them, prepare nuts by chopping or blanching if almonds are used. As much as 1 cup of the flour may be used in flouring the fruits and nuts.

Cream the butter or shortening until it is light and fluffy, and sift in the sugar gradually while creaming. Add the eggs, one at a time, beating for 1 minute, after each addition. Sift the remaining 2 cups flour with the baking powder and salt, and add to creamed mixture alternately with the fruit juice—a third of each at a time. Add vanilla. Then fold in the floured fruit and nuts. Put into 2 loaf pans about 9 x 5 inches, which have been buttered, then lined with buttered brown or parchment paper. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 2¼ to 2½ hours. This cake may be steamed 2 hours and baked one hour at 300 deg. Fahr.

Now the following cake is given here for those ladies who do not have time to make cake now—but when Christmas Eve arrives and they know company is descending on them within a day or two, this cake is a pinch-hitter, for it looks like Christmas cake, tastes like Christmas cake but does not improve with keeping, for it has no butter.

Last-Minute Fruit Cake

One cup sugar, 3 eggs well beaten, 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1½ teaspons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3½ ounces semi-sweet chocolate (or 2 not-too-sweet chocolate bars), 2 cups broken walnuts, 1 cup raisin (or dates), 1 cup sliced candied cherries. Add the sugar gradually to the beaten eggs, while beating with a spoon. Sift dry ingredients together. Cut chocolate into pieces about ½-inch square, and add with the fruits, and nuts to the flour mixture. Fold this into the egg mixture. Pour into greased and paper-lined loaf pan (paper should be greased too), and bake for 1½ hours at 325 deg. Fahr.

The above is a delicious cake and will be adopted by many housewives to use as the one sweet to serve at her teas—all because no butter is needed.

Christmas Cookies next week.

QUESTION: Some time ago I read in your paper an article about the value of soybeans in cooking. I would like to know if you could send me a recipe for making bread with soybean flour.—Thanking you, Leo. C.

Soybean Bread.

ANSWER: Four and one-half cups soybean flour, 8½ cups all-purpose flour, 2¾ cups milk, 2 cakes compressed yeast, 4 tablespoons sugar, 4 teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons fat (butter or lard or shortening). Sift the soybean flour with the wheat flour. Add 1 cup water to the milk, and heat, and add shortening, sugar and salt. Cook to lukewarm. Dissolve the yeast cakes in ½ cup lukewarm water (same temperature as inside of wrist) and when milk mixture is lukewarm too add yeast mixture to it. Then add 6 or 7 cups of the mixed flours and beat thoroughly. Cover and stand in warm place to rise overnight—about 75 deg. Fahr. In the morning add enough flour to make a firm dough—it sometimes does not require the whole 13 cups if weather is dry. Knead on floured board until smooth and elastic to touch. Cover and stand in warm place to rise until treble in bulk. Knead again and shape into loaves and put in greased bread pans. Cover and let rise again until double in bulk. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 50 to 60 minutes.

QUESTION: I came here from Scotland in 1918. I had two magazines sent to a school my husband taught. One was the "Delineator" and the other was "Good Housekeeping," American. In one of those magazines was a cake recipe called "Genoese Pastry." The eggs and sugar were beaten together in top of a double boiler for nearly 20 minutes, then the flour and melted butter were added last. We would make the same cake now in a large mixing bowl with the hot water in a smaller bowl. It was a lovely cake and called for 3 eggs, but I can't remember the quantity of sugar, nor can I remember the amount of flour. You have helped me before—could it be possible that you know the recipe I have in mind.—Mrs. A. B. B.

ANSWER: It was pleasant to hear from you again. I think the recipe you have in mind follows:

Genoese Cake.

One and one-half cups sifted cake flour, 1½ teaspoons calumet baking powder or 3 teaspoons ordinary baking powder, ½ cup butter, 1 cup powdered sugar, ½ teaspoon lemon extract, 4 eggs, well beaten. Sift flour once, measure it, add baking powder to it and sift them together 3 times. Cream the butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream them together until light and fluffy. Add the flavoring. Add the beaten eggs alternately with the flour mixture, a small amount at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Turn into greased pan 8 x 8 x 2 inches, lined with greased paper. Bake in moderate oven of 350 deg. Fahr. for 50 minutes. This is a type of pound cake and is usually served sliced thinly, unfrosted, for afternoon tea.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, November 10

AN EVENTFUL day with some sudden and probably astonishing developments is presaged from the dominant astral indications. The surprise may come with an unforeseen and unpredictable upheaval, uprooting or strange adventure, coming in the midst of great promise of advancement, prosperity and generally personal satisfactions and assurances. This crisis might possibly have to do with social, domestic or affectional relations, while business affairs go on to progress and expansion as indicated. Happily there is assistance from powerful and friendly sources to be counted upon to regulate affairs and avert loss and disappointment. With good judgment, and firm hold on the impulses and emotions, all affairs may prove gratifying.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for an eventful, thrilling and surprising day, although the thrills may cause some commotion, dangers and spectacular reversals of affairs seemingly on a firm foundation. With restrained, well-directed and calm behavior even this sudden upheaval may produce desirable situations and benefits. Refrain from emotional, erratic and impulsive conduct and use reason, calm judgment and there may be promotion, expansion in business and investments, with legal matters satisfactorily composed. Friends in high places may assist. Also there may be romantic or affectional developments, with delightful changes.

A child born on this day should have efficiency and talent to obtain its ambitions, personal and business, despite sudden reversals in spectacular changes. Erratic or emotional performances may be its undoing unless curbed.

FATHER SHOULD INSTRUCT DAUGHTER

WHEN a girl is going to get married, it is her mother who takes her aside and has a heart to heart talk about how to get along with a husband. This is all wrong. It is Papa who should do the advising, for only a man knows what a man wants in his wife and how he wants his wife to treat him. A woman can only guess at it and mostly she guesses wrong.

So it is Father who, on her wedding eve, should take Mary Jane aside, and say: Daughter, I know you love John and that you are sloshing over with good resolutions about being a perfect wife, but you are starting in as a rank amateur on a job that only a woman who has had her fourth divorce could handle successfully right off the bat. So let me erect a few lights for your guidance along the matrimonial pathway.

Don't Expect Romance

First, fold away romance with your wedding veil. Don't expect your husband to keep up the tactics of courtship after marriage. He has caught the bus, so why chase it further? Don't feel hurt that he no longer sends you flowers or brings you candy. The money that he used to put into orchids now goes into the grocery bill. Be thankful he brings home the bacon.

Take your husband as he is. Don't try to make him over. Don't criticize his grammar or his pronunciation or table manners. Let somebody else tell him of his faults. What got you your husband was giving him the glad hand. Keep making the gesture.

Feed the brute. More men marry for a home than women do and they stay put just as long as there is good food on the table and comfortable chairs to sit in. When the good Lord made men with more stomach than heart, He delivered them over to their wives' hands and gave them something to which they could always appeal.

Don't argue. Don't nag. Don't boss. A man gets all the fighting with men during the day that he wants and he desires to come home at night to a wife who will yes-yes him and smooth his fur the right way. Take as much pains to placate your husband as you would your boss if you had a good job that you didn't want to lose.

Be a lover. Men suffer from heart hunger just as much as women do. Never cease showing your affection to your husband and letting him see that he is the centre of the world for you. Nothing salves the wounds the world deals a man as much as does his wife's praise.

Don't let yourself slump. Dress up for your husband. Try to entertain and amuse him. Keep yourself kissable. And if you want your husband to be a fireside companion, make yourself good company.

Of course, daughter, it takes work and worry and sacrifice to be a good wife, but great is the reward of the woman who makes as much effort to keep her husband as she did to get him.

Hatton Property Value First Set At $23,625

A. C. Gregory, valuator for the Chartered Trust and Executors Company, Toronto, said as a witness in this morning's session of the Exchequer Court of Canada, hearing this week the expropriation of the Hatton property of 27.3 acres by Wartime Housing, Limited, that he had appraised the land at $20,000. He added $2,000 as a consideration to the owners for the taking of their property and $1,500 for a farm-house and several small buildings. His total was $23,625.

Mr. Gregory was examined by W. F. Huycke, K.C., representing Wartime Housing, Limited. The basis of his valuation was 132 lots at $115 each.

Previously H. J. McCannan quoted his estimated value of the land at $23,625, computing 125 lots at $175 each.

Allowing depreciation of $100 a lot on the 48 lots comprising the remaining section of the estate, or $4,800, that total named by Mr. McCannan was $28,425. He also said he had valued the entire estate at $43,125.

Wartime Housing's local advisory committee was not in favor of the Hatton site. They considered that more established properties were available, but the company desired a location without any problem of transportation. They decided on the Hatton property because it was comparatively close to C.G.E.-Genelco, Limited.

The pith of T. C. Ephgrave's evidence was a valuation of $24,560, comprising the property value of 136 lots at $160 each; $800 allowance for appropriated farm buildings on the pr[illegible] and $2,000 damage generall[illegible] the adjoining property.

Paris Editor Dies Before Firing Squad

PARIS, Nov. 9 (AP) — Georges Suarez, 48, editor-in-chief of the daily newspaper Aujourd'hui during the Nazi occupation, was executed by a firing squad at the Fort of Montrouge at dawn today as a collaborationist—the first to receive the death penalty.

Suarez was convicted two weeks ago by a four-man civil jury of collusion with the Germans in writing editorials advocating closer collaboration between France and Germany.

Three others of 16 men tried in Paris thus far have received death sentences.

Paper Still Scarce

TORONTO, Nov. 9 — (CP). — John Atkins, administrator of printing, publishing and allied industries for the prices board, said yesterday that despite the revocation of the board order restricting the acquisition and use of printed matter, the print paper supply was still tight and "will be for some months, but it will be adequate."

Hatton Property

150 lots depending on 40 feet or 50 feet frontage.

"I worked out the value of the property on a basis of $66,000."

Mr. Carley—"Do you allow any reduction for putting in sewers and water mains?"

Mr. Gibbs—"No. My contention is that any services which are put in increase the value of property."

His Lordship—"And if these lots were on streets with sewers and water their value would be higher?"

Mr. Gibbs—"Yes."

His Lordship—"How much?"

Mr. Gibbs—"That would be hard to answer. The factor of supply and demand would affect that valuation."

As to the fluidity of sales of lots if the property were subdivided, witness said the volume should be 20 to 30 a year.

His Lordship—"You heard Mr. Hickey say it might take ten years to sell all of them?"

Mr. Gibbs—"Yes."

His Lordship—"What do you say as to that?"

Mr. Gibbs—"I think they could be all sold in less than half that time."

Asked about Wartimes houses effect on Walkerfield House, Mr. Gibbs said he had taken "clients to look at it, but by the mere fact of the Wartime houses being there they wouldn't buy."

Mr. Gibbs estimated that Walkerfield House would have brought $10,000 in 1942. "Today you'd be lucky to get $5,000," he added.

He also estimated that adjoining lots in the remnant property have been depreciated by 50 per cent from the action of Wartime Housing Limited.

As to west end property still available for dwellings, Mr. Gibbs said there was practically nothing left south of Weller, but a few lots north of Weller street to Mount St. Joseph.

To Mr. Huycke witness said that in his opinion Walkerfield House was neither an asset of liability to the Hatton property.

Mr. Huycke's question related, he explained, to the modernity of the residence, "granting that it is a lovely house."

Hilltop Bargain

Hugh Stewart, owner proprietor of Hilltop Stock Farm, Weller street west, and told the court he paid $7,000 for the 111 acres and buildings to Toronto Savings and Loan Company in November 1939. The property is in North Mongahan, adjoining the Hatton estate to the west and north.

"It looked like a property that would suit my business, and I thought there might be a future for lots on the east side of it."

The property was at one time owned by Senator George A. Coxx and later by W. G. Morrow. "It was a big, ramshackle old house, and the barn is a brick building that was in bad condition when I got it."

Mr. Stewart said he offered $7,000 for the property and Toronto Savings and Loan Company accepted.

To Mr. Carley, witness said he recently was offered $14,000 for seven acres in a field on the north side of Weller street, opposite Dr. Dobson's home and extending to Jack Comstock's house. There are fourteen acres in the whole field.

Mr. Carley suggested that Mr. Stewart had not made a bad bargain. Witness replied that a real estate man told him the farm was worth $50,000.

Mr. Justice Thorson, presiding—"Don't give evidence of what some one else said.

Mr. Carley—"What did you do about this offer."

Mr. Stewart—"I didn't accept it. I asked $15,000 and it is now under consideration."

Witness said other offers had been made for individual lots but he was not interested. "I wouldn't consider any offer that was not for a parcel of the land."

"The family offered Wartime Housing Limited for the duration of the war the use of the land they wanted," said Mrs. Edwin Hatton. "All that was expected was some reasonable sum for that use. Our offer was turned down by the housing company and by Kent Hamilton (solicitor) himself on an occasion in Toronto when I repeated it to him."

Mrs. Hatton also said that it would have been much preferable if the housing company had taken the entire estate. The word she had for Wartime Housing's expropriation method was "confiscation." Her opinion that the temporary houses had depreciated the value of the rest of the property was stressed on the positive side.

Percy S. Dallin, 657 Charlotte street west, was called to the stand by Mr. Huycke for evidence relating to purchases by him of property on the south side of the street, opposite the Hatton acres. These lots were 75-foot frontage by 140 feet in depth. Some of the transactions sounded like sacrifice sales. Executors of the W. E. White estate sold a lot for $400 seven years ago to Mr. Dallin. The owner had paid $500.

"A very fair price" was Mr. Dallin's comment on his purchase. A man named Boucher, in Montreal, sold him a lot that was bought for $700. "I had to make three trips to Montreal to see him. He let it go at $270 and I paid some back taxes of $20."

Norman Hatton sold a lot, also on the south side of Charlotte street, to Mr. Dallin for $200. "He had wanted $250," witness said.

W. A. Richardson paid $500 "years ago" for the lot he sold to Mr. Dallin in 1942 for $375. There was a John Flynn lot of 50 feet frontage Mr. Dallin bought for $150 and sold for $300.

Mr. Carley suggested the Boucher lot was bought at a "ridiculous price." Witness explained that the highway level had been raised thirty inches, and requiring many loads of soil on the south side lots to bringing them up to the road level.

He had 250 loads drawn to one part of the land at a cost ranging from $1 to $3 a load. And he also discovered that a sewer service laid by township authority was being paid for by a debenture issue that was reacting on one lot to the amount of $69 a year. When he realized that extraction Mr. Dallin decided to build a house on it.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

HINDSIGHT DOESN'T PAY

HINDSIGHT IS much more accurate than foresight, but it doesn't pay any dividends. One ounce of foresight is worth more to you in Contract Bridge points than 20 tons of hindsight. "If I had only considered that both my trump suit and my side suit might be badly divided in the defenders' hands, I could have made my contract," is a kind of remark we hear—and that we make too often ourselves, all of us.

Appreciably different bidding was done at the other table in a team match, but the same contract reached, and in each case the lead was the club Q, the K being overtaken by the A and the diamond 3 being returned to prevent ruffs. At this table, the diamond A and K were scored quickly, the club 8 ruffed in dummy, and the contract staked on an even break of spades, the A being followed by the K and Q. When West ruffed the Q with the diamond Q, South knew he was beaten, for the spade J was still out as a trick winner.

At the other table, where South also saw that a small slam was certain if both diamonds and spades would break evenly, he played as if he knew both were divided unevenly. Winning the diamond return to the second trick with the A, he ruffed the club 8 with the diamond 8, scored the spade A and K, then led the spade 6, prepared to trump it in dummy. Now it made no difference whether West ruffed this or discarded. The contract was safe. Actually West trumped with the spade Q and returned a heart, which South ruffed. The diamond K settled the outstanding trumps and the spades now set up, since the Q could drop the J on the fourth round.

Net Value Of Hatton Land Placed At $44,500

The Exchequer Court of Canada with Mr. Justice J. F. Thorson presiding resumed Wednesday enquiring into the value of the Hatton property of 27.3 acres expropriated by Wartime Housing Limited in August, 1942.

T. J. Carley, K.C., is counsel for the members of the Hatton family and W. F. Huycke, K.C., for Wartime Housing.

W. J Henry, City Assessor, residing at 531 Homewood avenue, was the first witness. He said he had lived in the west end forty years. Supplying the Court with progressive population figures for Peterborough Mr. Henry quoted 1913-20—20,150; 1930—22,798; 1941—25,703; 1944—28,031. Mr. Justice Thorson asked for complete annual tabulation from 1911 to this year. Mr. Henry retired to get the information.

Henry T. Hickey, building contractor 34 years, said he had purchased from the Hatton estate in 1928 a lot 75 feet on Gilmour street and 110 feet flankage on Albertus avenue for $900.

Mr. Hickey estimated at $44,500 the net value of the 27.3 acres expropriated by Wartime Housing, considered as a potential residential subdivision.

"I placed the value of that land at $1,650 an acre, making a total of $44,550," witness said. "I arrived at that by estimating there would be 130 lots of 50 feet frontage and of a depth from 110 to 118 feet. I concluded that in such a subdivision of the area there would be 120 lots worth $500 each and 10 lots at $250.

The cheaper ones would be at the extreme west side of the property. Those ten lots would be worth $2,500, and the total $62,500.

Mr. Hickey estimated at $1,000 salvage value on frame dwelling-house, henhouse and shed on the property expropriated, increasing the total to $63,500.

On the other side of his account would be cost of developing the subdivision: 5,000 feet of sewer at $2.70 a foot—$13,500; 5,000 feet of suitable roadway, $3,500; sales cost $2,000—total $19,000.

Mr Hickey also took into his computation the severance damage or depreciation to the rest of the Hatton estate. Ten acres on the southwest side of the property were less accessible as a result of expropriation, "very inaccessible," witness described it, and depreciation in value thereby $400.

Damaged $250 Each.

Forty-four lots, 50 feet by 110 to 118 feet, north of Walkerfield House and east of Wartime Housing, "damaged to the extent of $250 each"; total depreciation thereby $11,000. A barn on the property, valued at $1,000; salvage value $600; loss $400. Two-storey brick stable, value $1,000; salvage value $700; loss $300. Wooden silo worth $75; salvage value $25; loss $50. Frame shed, value $300; salvage value $100; loss $200.

Depreciation to Walkerfield House $5,000. "Before Wartime Housing went there that house was worth around $10,000 to $12,000, but the most it would bring today, I estimate, would be $5,000 to $7,000."

Total depreciation Mr. Hickey totalled at $17,350. Add that amount to the previous $44,500 and the total would be $61,850 in value to the estate as potential subdivision and allowance for severance depreciation.

"I don't think you could sell a lot at all, next to Wartime Housing," witness said.

Mr. Justice Thorson: "If the temporary houses were removed the picture would be altered."

Mr. Hickey: "Yes, I would think so."

Mr. Hickey paid $900 in 1928 for a 75-foot lot on Gilmour street at Albertus avenue, from the Hatton estate. He also bought the Denham lot at Charlotte and Albertus for $675 as shown in the deed, but witness said it had been long in his memory that he paid $750 for it.

To Mr. Huycke, witness placed the entire value of the Hatton estate in 1942 at $75,000. Since then property values had increased probably 10 per cent.

Mr. Justice Thorson asked witness how long it might have taken to sell the lots into which the 27.3 acres could have been subdivided. Mr. Hickey supplied that it might have taken ten years.

His Lordship—"Wouldn't that reduce present value of the lots?"

Mr. Hickey—"Yes, I believe it would.

Mr. Hickey—"It might be $100 a lot."

Mr. Huycke—"In other words if the property was subdivided and lots were not sold they would require payment of taxes?"

Mr. Hickey—"Yes."

Mr. Huycke—"What is the market for big old fashioned houses?"

Mr. Hickey—"They sell readily if the price is right."

Mr. Huycke suggested that prices of such houses had to be largely reduced to attract buyers, and in that respect "the market is not good." Witness agreed.

English Shown Bomb Defence

LONDON, Nov. 9 (CP)—For the first time since the buzz-bomb raids began Londoners have seen how the menace was countered through an exhibition at Piccadilly.

Though secret defence weapons, radio-location apparatus, rocket anti-aircraft guns and scale models of the latest jet-propelled fighters were removed by security officials a few hours before the exhibition opened, it still gave civilians a rough idea how the Royal Observer Corps, A.A. batteries and fighter and balloon commands protected them.

Some of the exhibits had been displayed before during war savings drives and wings for victory week but one new one was the "balloon parachute cable," used to cut the wings from flying bombs and controlled by W.A.A.F. girls on the ground.

The device comprises two parachutes attached to a moored balloon and connected by a steel cable. When a buzz-bomb nears the operating W.A.A.F. presses a button, releasing the parachutes so they drift down into the bomb's course.

"The Pains Have Left My Back, Arms and Legs"

Got Relief After Using Few Bottles of Syntona; Also Ended Stomach Gas, Acidity, Dizzy Spells and Tired, Worn - Out Feelings, He Says.

"I am feeling like an entirely different person since taking a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound," said Mr. Thomas Bancroft, a well-known resident of Delaware, Ontario, in a recent statement.

"During the past three or four years my stomach had given me an awful lot of trouble and no matter what medicines I took it kept getting worse. I used to suffer after every meal with sour stomach, gas cramps and heart burn. I'd get sick, dizzy spells with black spots darting before my eyes. Usually these would be followed by a splitting headache. Then rheumatic pains settled in my arms, back and legs. They felt stiff and sore and ached very badly at times. I got so bad I couldn't sleep and was beginning to feel tired and worn out all the time.

"I had been disappointed by so many medicines that I waited a long time before I decided to try Syntona but now I cannot find words to say enough good about it. My stomach is acting just fine. I eat regular meals, enjoy them and have no distress from gas, sourness or heartburn afterwards. I am also free from the dizziness, headaches and spots before my eyes. Since then the aches and pains have left my back, arms and legs. I get sound sleep at night and don't feel tired and worn out all the time like I used to."

Syntona is made from the pure extracts of 12 Herbs, Roots, Barks and Leaves. It acts on stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels and aids in the elimination of excess acids and poisonous waste matter and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy. It is pleasant to take and contains no harsh drugs.

YPU Honor Roll Given Unveiling

MILLBROOK, Nov. 9—(ENS)—A special feature of the Young People's Union meeting Monday evening was the unveiling of the honor roll, containing thirty-three names of members who are serving in the armed forces, and including two, FO. Jack Arundel, R.C.A.F., and L.-Cpl. William Kerr, who have died in the present war.

Following prayer, and while the members stood in silent recognition, Donald Edmunds, whose brother FO Reginald Edmunds, R.C.A.F., is now serving overseas, drew the flag covering the honor roll, and then read the names inscribed. George Ingham played quiet music during the ceremony, and at its close, Jean Burnham, Christian Cultural convener, gave the talk, quoting the words: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend," after the names of Jack Arundel and William Kerr had been read.

Charging the members that they never forget these two boys, and to let their spirit continue to live among them, that they might be worthy of the sacrifice made, Miss Burnham continued: "These boys and girls whose names are inscribed on this honor roll have chosen the Christian way of living. They have seen the vision of service, have sacrificed everything in order to take up the cross and follow in the path their Master trod, and though they are far away from loved ones and kindred, they are not alone nor without God's guidance and comfort, especially in times of distress and suffering."

Closing the service, Mrs. Reginald Edmunds sang: "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow," special prayers were offered for the boys and girls serving King and country, and all joined in the commemoration hymn. A sing-song and recreation period, under the president, Miss Jean Fisher, and Miss Connie Stinson, respectively, concluded the meeting. Announcement being made that the missionary convener, Miss Margaret Smith, will have charge of the next gathering.

More Smoking

OTTAWA, Nov. 9—(CP).—Canadian cigarette consumption now is at the rate of about 1,000 a year for every man, woman and child, a review of the tobacco industry by N. A. MacRae said yesterday. He is technical adviser to the Prices Board.

British M.P.'s Salaries Low

OTTAWA, Nov. 9—(CP)—Canadian members of Parliament, who did their share of grousing about their financial condition at the last Commons session, today were inclined to agree the British M.P.'s position is even more difficult.

Capt. Cecil Poole, British Labor member for Litchfield, said in the British House yesterday that the M.P.'s job was the "most seated of all," and it was impossible for a member to live on £600 sterling ($2,640) a year without being on the borderline of poverty.

Several Canadian members, who receive an annual indemnity of $4,000, said during the session that it cost them money to be members of parliament, after they paid income tax and their expenses when in Ottawa for more than six months each year.

At the conclusion of the last session of parliament Prime Minister Mackenzie King said he would favor action at the next parliament to make the members' indemnity tax-free.

Rocket Defence Impossible Churchill Tells Commons

Travel 3000 Miles An Hour Huns Can't Control Accuracy

Newest Weapon Not As Bad As Robot Bombs

By HENRY B. JAMESON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(AP).—The Germans have been shooting at London with their vaunted V-2 secret weapon for the last few weeks, but, in a military sense, the "flying telegraph pole" has been a complete flop.

Prime Minister Churchill's announcement to-day that V-2 has been in use lifted a corner of the veil on the ghost bombs, Hitler's long-range rockets that fell without warning.

Many of the rockets have fallen in open country and some in the sea. Others have exploded in mid-air scattering fragments far and wide.

The V-2 is a stratosphere rocket that goes 70 miles high. Neutral sources said it weighed up to 15 tons and had a range of more than 250 miles. They also described it as a slender 50-foot rocket trailing flame.

Fantastic Speed.

The rockets travel at such a fantastic speed—between 2,000 and 3,000 miles an hour which is faster than sound—and so high it is impossible to control them, Swedish reports declare.

In a recent story from Stockholm the London Daily Mail correspondent said the Germans now are frantically trying to develop a V-3 atom bomb and are experimenting with a smaller version of V-2 they claim can be shot as far as the United States.

While it still is impossible to give any details of where the rockets have landed or what damage they caused, Stockholm correspondents say the Nazis have admitted "Vergeltungswaffen" No. 2 was a sorry failure as a military weapon because of inaccuracy.

The Daily Mail expressed the opinion that shortages of fuel and disruption of German home industries have prevented the Nazis from launching a colossal assault with their No. 2 "secret weapon."

Sifting of reports from Stockholm and German-inspired rumors from other neutral capitals leads to the belief that the Germans planned originally to unload as much as 6,000 tons of high explosives on London in a 12-hour period.

Each of these rockets, these sources indicate, was intended to weigh about 50 tons, but technical hitches caused a scaling down until a workable model was found. This is probably a projectile weighing 16 tons, but carrying only a ton of high explosive.

German Claims Exaggerated Churchill Reports

By DWIGHT L. PITKIN
Associated Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Nov. 10 — (AP). — Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons to-day the Germans had been firing long-range rocket bombs on widely scattered parts of England for the past few weeks, but declared "the scale of the attacks has not hitherto been significant."

Mr. Churchill termed "highly colored" the accounts of the V-2 "flying telegraph pole" bombardment broadcast by the Germans in the past two days, and said they indicated the Germans were in "desperate need" to give the home front encouragement.

The bombardment with rockets—which arch up to 70 miles in the stratosphere before landing without warning at a speed greater than sound—was described by the Prime Minister as less effective than the robot bombs.

Before the 1st Canadian Army overran launching sites of the winged bombs, the Germans inflicted heavy damage on London and on southern England. The Germans now launch winged bombs from airplanes flying out over the North Sea.

Mr. Churchill said one Dutch island—Walcheren—from which the rockets have been fired, has been captured and said other sites would be overrun by Allied armies.

The Germans said V-2 and the earlier V-1 flying robot bomb were being used against both Paris and Antwerp as well as England and boasted that the vengeance weapons would make the hard-won Belgian port "unsuitable for unloading troops and materials on a major scale." The intact docks of Antwerp are depended upon by Gen. Eisenhower to supply the Allied offensive into Germany.

Casualties here have been light, largely because the warhead of approximately a ton buries itself deeply into the earth when it lands at speeds exceeding 700 miles per hour.

Allies Score New Gains In Metz Area

Industrial Saar Now The Goal Of American Units

By WILLIAM FRYE
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 10 (AP) — The U.S. 3rd Army offensive surged forward steadily today on a bomb-blasted 55-mile arc around Metz, capturing Chateau Salins and gouging out new gains in the wooded hills and muddy, rolling fields along the entire front.

As the drive to encircle Metz and invade Germany's rich industrial basin of the Saar roared into its third day in the wake of a shattering attack by 1,300 heavy bombers, a field dispatch from Reuter News Agency reported Chateau Salins, highway hub and German anchor at the east end of the battle line, had been taken.

In southwestern Holland and on flooded Walcheren Island in the mouth of the Schelde all enemy resistance to Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st army group had ceased. Field reports told of small German groups, drenched and dispirited, surrendering to British units of the 1st Canadian Army.

In a mass assault recalling the heavy-bomber prelude to the St. Lo break-through in Normandy and the whirlwind sweep to the German borders, heavy bombers yesterday rained explosives on German strongpoints along the entire 3rd Army front.

Fortified positions, artillery emplacements, supply concentrations and transportation were pounded hard, and thousands of 100-pound anti-personnel bombs were hurled into the enemy's front-lines. As the heavies completed their runs, escorting fighters buzzed in at a low level and ripped the German troops and transportation columns with vicious gunfire.

Take 9 Towns

Infantry, led on the east flank by tanks, moved in behind the air assault and rolled forward through nine towns and villages. West of Chateau Salins they were in the Bois D'Aulnois, north of the Gremecheny Forest, and driving forward beyond Viviers.

The American 4th Armored Division advanced three more miles beyond Delme for a total gain of 10 miles in the offensive, and crossed heavily - gunned Delme Ridge just northwest of Chateau-Salins.

While an infantry regiment captured Delme Ridge, the 4th Division ranged on to the vicinity of Hannocourt and Fonteney, three

35,000 Japanese Sneak Ashore On Leyte Island

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, PHILIPPINES, Nov. 10.—(AP).—Running a gauntlet of harassing American planes and patrol torpedo boats, 35,000 veteran Japanese troops have joined the sanguinary battle for Leyte, Gen. MacArthur disclosed to-day in an announcement which indicates the battle for the Philippines may be long and hard.

The disclosure that despite all American efforts the Japanese had succeeded in replacing their heavy losses suffered in 22 days of fighting is having a sobering effect on the optimism which followed the comparatively easy initial landing.

Gen. MacArthur has at hand more than enough troops to handle the enemy forces now arrayed against him, but the General made it clear that the advantage gained by the surprise landings on Leyte's east coast has about run its course.

His communique to-day disclosed reinforced Japanese troops broke a four-day stalemate in the battle for the west coast stronghold of Ormoc "with substantial gains on a wide front." Ormoc is in flames as the result of artillery and aerial bombardment and its "usefulness to the enemy as a supply base has been greatly reduced."

Japan's new commander in the Philippines, Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita has boasted he will demand Gen. MacArthur's "unconditional surrender."

American fighter planes were in the sky again after being grounded by a raging typhoon. They attacked and bombed Japanese installations and shipping, destroyed two barges and a coastal vessel, damaged other enemy craft and hammered at truck parks.

A Pet Turtle

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 10 — (CP).—Garbagemen who removed what appeared to be a pail of sand from a dwelling received a hurried call from the householder, who said the pail contained a pet turtle, left in the sand to hibernate. The department was asked to replace the turtle and his sand.

Russian Push May Isolate All Of Budapest

MOSCOW, Nov. 10—(AP).—Russian troops under Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky drove a wedge across the enemy's last direct railway communications between Budapest and northeastern Hungary today after shattering the west bank defences along the Upper Tisza River. A big infantry and armored salient extending westward beyond Mezokeresztes, approximately 70 miles east-northeast of Budapest, curved dangerously toward the rear of German Panzer forces which have been counter-attacking east and southeast of the Hungarian capital in an attempt to prevent it from being outflanked.

A Moscow announcement said the main Budapest-Miskolcz rail line had been severed. The Russian communique said the 2nd Ukrainian Army, advancing on a wide front across the Middle Tisza had captured 50 towns and villages.

There was no official news of Malinovsky's left flank, which has dug into Budapest's southern suburbs, or about the extreme right flank of his army which previously crossed the Upper Tisza in the direction of the southern borders of Czechoslovakia.

The Russian war bulletin said Malinovsky's army since October 6 had killed or captured 142,000 German and Hungarian defenders of Budapest.

Malinovsky's new break-through carried a double threat—the arrival of a powerfully strengthened force to join the siege of the Hungarian capital and the possibility that the Russians might by-pass the city to the north in the direction of Vienna and Bratislava.

Among important places captured were Mezokeresztes, Porcsalo, Komlo and Besebetek, all of which are on communications lines leading north

Peterboro Union Accepts Verdict

TORONTO, Nov. 10 — (CP) — Unanimous acceptance of an agreement reached last Friday at a meeting of officials of three major Canadian packing houses and the United Packinghouse Workers of America (C.I.O.) was voted last night by two locals of the Union, Fred Dowling, Canadian director of the U.P.W.A. announced today.

At meetings held by Local 114 at the Swift Toronto plant and by local 210 at the Peterborough plant of Canada Packers, motions of acceptance were passed unanimously. The agreement granted union security, negotiation of agreements and employer-employee co-operation.

Settlement last week ended possibility of a strike in the packinghouse industry which would have affected some 12,000 workers in plants of the Canada Packers Limited, Swift Canadian Company, and Burns and Company and would have halted shipments of meat overseas.

A statement issued after settlement was reached said the delegates had agreed that standard clauses with respect to maintenance of membership and check-off would be incorporated in a master agreement.

Shipshaw Rivals Boulder Dam

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL—Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Nov. 10—(CP).—Behind a veil of wartime secrecy lies the story of how the output of the power development at Shipshaw, Que.—Canada's greatest—compares with that of Boulder Dam—greatest in the United States. Officials of the Aluminum Company of Canada, owners of the Shipshaw development built last year in the picturesque Saguenay River valley of Northern Quebec, set the project's peak hourly output at 1,346,000 horsepower. United States authorities, for security reasons, declined to give the exact peak output figure for Boulder but said it was more than 1,000,000 horsepower.

However, on the basis of figures released by United States authorities when Shipshaw was nearing completion, Boulder's peak now would be in the neighborhood of 1,835,000 horsepower. At that time it was estimated Shipshaw's ultimate output would be 1,500,000 horsepower.

Prisoners Worked As Slaves In Nazi Underground Plant

By MARGARET ECKER—Canadian Press War Correspondent

THIL, Lorraine, Nov. 10—(CP).—This is a difficult story to write because only an Emile Zola could describe the brooding tragedy of the valley of hopeless people. This valley in the midst of the soot-blackened countryside of industrial Lorraine on the borders of France and Luxemburg was the scene of one of Hitler's most sadistic schemes. Men and women were torn from their homes in Poland, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Greece, France and brought here to work as slaves in an underground factory even Pharoah probably wouldn't have imposed on his pyramid builders.

The road — the road to death for hundreds — winds through lovely wooded hill country scarred by enormous factories, mines, black smoke-stacks, smokeless now, rising like a forest, labyrinths of railroad yards where engines and machines now rust. It passes somber villages of sordid rows of tenement houses from which you catch a choking stench as you pass.

Acre Bombs Made

About 100 metres under ground, below these towns with gardens stretching over eight miles is the former coal mine turned into a factory by the Germans. Here the best machinery from Italy, Sweden, Denmark, Germany, was installed for the assembly of buzz bombs. High on the hillside, camouflaged as wells and farm buildings so cleverly that you hardly glanced at them as you passed, were the launching platforms for the bombs made in the earth below. Fortunately for England these were never completed.

The mine is closed now but army officers who visited it described its unventilated galleries, filled with the best of equipment but with no sanitary

Taxation Plan Annoys Co-ops

REGINA, Nov. 10.—(CP).—W. J. Parker, president of Manitoba pool elevators, yesterday branded the proposed income taxation of savings made by co-operatives as double taxation based upon an antiquated theory of taxation. He suggested a complete overhaul of the basis of taxation.

He told the 20th annual meeting of Saskatchewan Co-operative Producers, Ltd., the taking of savings made by co-operative marketing organizations resulted in every person paying the same rate whether his crop was hailed out or blown out; whether he was a millionaire or a poor man. If the tax were imposed only upon the individual after the savings had been distributed back to the members, he said, it would eliminate the double taxation feature and at the same time remove the "inequitable" feature of taxing individuals who had little or no income.

He accused North West Line Elevators of making representations to Ottawa to have the wheat pools taxed as corporations and said they would be making a much better contribution to the solution of the problem if they recommended that the tax basis be overhauled with a view to eliminating double tax on single income.

750 Bombers Hit Jet Plane Bases

LONDON, Nov. 10 — (CP). — Approximately 750 United States heavy bombers fanned out in several directions over Germany today in attacks on jet plane bases, military transportation facilities, and industrial plants in the Cologne and Frankfurt regions.

The heavies were escorted by about 600 fighters to make up a total force of more than 1,350 planes.

R.A.F. Mosquitos last night raided targets in Germany and in Holland, the Air Ministry announced. One plane was lost.

8th Army Takes Forli Fortress

ROME, Nov. 10.—(AP).— British troops have captured Forli, Po Valley communications centre 38 miles southeast of Bologna on the Bologna-Rimini Highway, Allied Headquarters announced to-day.

Capture of the old fortress city, which has a population of approximately 65,000, was accomplished by a pincer movement. One force moved directly up the Rimini-Bologna highway, while the second advanced up a road from the airfield to the southeast, penetrating into the town.

Other 8th Army troops have loosened Nazi positions in the hills south and southwest of Forli. Approximately 250 prisoners were taken as the town fell.

To the west Polish units of the 8th Army took the commanding feature of Monte Bora and made further gains west of the Montone river.

Snipers were still active in Forli, but leading British troops pushed through the town and reached the ruins of the main bridge over the Montone river on the west. The Germans were holding parts of the west bank of the Montone in strength.

Canadian Tanks Wipe Out Fleet

WITH THE 21ST ARMY GROUP, Nov. 10—(CP Cable).—Canadian tanks and infantry sank a small German fleet—a corvette and three converted landing craft—in Zijpe harbor opposite the western tip of St Philipsland Peninsula which lies between the estuaries of the Maas and the Waal, it was reported yesterday.

The leader of a scout patrol saw men in naval uniform moving about Zijpe harbor and the German flag flying from a mast or conning tower. The Canadian officer asked permission to open fire but this was refused and it took most of the day to convince headquarters that part of the German navy was in the tiny harbor.

The Germans were shelled but they recovered quickly and replied with a hail of fire from 88-mm. guns and smaller calibre weapons. Then the Canadians grouped the supporting tanks behind a dike and gave the Germans a concentrated 10-minut hammering.

The enemy ceased fire and the next day, after a night of silence, a small party of the Canadian patrol crossed in a cutter and found the corvette blazing furiously. The German naval commander was dead.

The final score for the Canadians was four vessels sunk, 20 Germans killed, 80 wounded and several captured.

Reports from correspondents to London newspapers credited men of a Lake Superior regiment with this novel victory and gave an assist to a troop of tanks from a British Columbia regiment. The guns of the tanks silenced the enemy fire.

Germans Threaten More Secret Weapons

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(CP).—German commentator Wilfried Von Oven, in the first German radio reaction to Prime Minister Churchill's V-2 disclosures in Commons, declared to-day the V-2 would not be the last German secret weapon.

Asserting Mr. Churchill "had to admit" the existence of V-2, Von Oven said the Germans never had contended V-2 was a "war-winning weapon." He stressed "an entirely new weapon" had been produced despite "the ordeal of the heaviest warfare unleashed against us and the strain imposed on us in the sixth year of the war."

Unusual Trade Union Act May Pass In Saskatchewan

REGINA, Nov. 10 —(CP)—Saskatchewan's controversial Trade Union Act, fathered by the four-month-old C. C. F. government of Premier T. C. Douglas, appeared today to be well on its way into the Statue Books, in the face of determined attempts both in and out of the House to delay or block passage of legislation that would give workers collective bargaining rights and make it illegal for employers to engage in unfair labor practices.

The Act — variously described by its proponents and opponents as "model legislation for the whole continent," or "discriminatory, coercive and punitive"—was given second reading by a vote of 41 to five in the Legislature last night and now has to run the gamut of third reading debate before it can be made law by Royal assent.

It is the most far-reaching legislation of its kind in Canada—no province has anything to equal it—and it embraces all industry in Saskatchewan other than Dominion-wide or war industries as designated by the Federal government.

The Act is based primarily on the National Labor Relations (Wagner) Act of the United States and the powers of a provincial labor relations board it would establish are modelled particularly after those of the American National Labor Relations Board.

Last night, the Bill survived easily two attempts by the Liberal opposition to shelve it at least temporarily. Earlier in the day, the Saskatchewan Employers' Association, representing about 200 firms in the province, submitted a request to the government to refer the Act to the legislature's law amendment committee and to hold it over until next session. The Law Society of Saskatchewan protested against the powers to be given the Board under the Act.

Queen's Own At Schelde

Made Amphibious Landing In Estuary

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN HOLLAND, Nov. 10 — (CP Cable). — The Queen's Own Rifles, from Toronto, and the Essex Scottish Regiment, from Windsor, Ont., fought in the battle of the Schelde which led to the opening of the port of Antwerp, it was disclosed to-day.

The Queen's Own took part in the Breskens pocket operations on the south side of the estuary and was one of the battalions which passed into the beachhead made in an amphibious landing by Canadian High-land units between Terneuzen and Breskens.

From the beachhead the Queen's Own struck out west and northwest to capture several towns as the Canadian Army swept the Germans back into the Belgian coastal towns of Knocke and Heyst where the last remnants of the German 64th division finally capitulated.

The Essex Scottish fought in the offensive along south Beveland Island on the northern side of the Schelde estuary. With the Royal Regiment and the Royal Highland Light Infantry they were the first troops to cross the causeway leading from the Netherlands mainland to the island.

Coal Supplies Adequate

Weather Favoring Fuel Conservation

OTTAWA, Nov. 10 (CP) — Coal supplies will be adequate to keep every Canadian warm this winter if furnace stokers continue to co-operate in the wartime conservation program, coal control officials said today.

So far this season the men who have been striving to provide assurance that there will not be any empty coal bins have had the weather on their side. Last year, with a comparatively mild winter, Canadian coal consumption reached a record of 47,250,000 tons. The normal pre-war consumption was 30,000,000 tons.

Increased demands during the war period, particularly for industrial purposes, and curtailment of other fuels, such as the diversion of practically all gas in southern Ontario to industries, have complicated the job of providing adequate fuel for domestic purposes.

"If people continue to co-operate in the conservation program and use a percentage of substitute fuel no one will go short," a spokesman said.

Deliveries have been staggered by compulsory restrictions applied this year with consumers required to take their seasons deliveries in three lots. Summer deliveries were made up to Sept. 30.

Maynooth Flier Sees Results Of Own Strafing

BANCROFT, Nov. 10 — (ENS). — Flying Officer Donald Goodwin, D.F.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Goodwin, Maynooth, had an interesting experience recently, when he and another group of Spitfire pilots were shown the filmed result of the strafing work which they had done since the invasion. The pictures were those which their own planes had taken.

The following is a copy of an article appearing in the Canada Weekly, an Army Paper printed in the United Kingdom; which reads as follows:

"Canadian Spitfire pilots last week sat in a darkened mess tent on their advanced airfield in Belgium and watched a film of destruction in which they themselves were the stars.

"They saw their own aircraft pumping thousands of rounds of ammunition into jammed Nazi motor transports and armoured fighting vehicles frantically trying to escape through the Falaise Gap during the hectic days of mid-August.

"Smoking their pipes and cigarettes in comparative comfort, the Canadians saw, from films taken by their own "Spits" what a magnificent job they did, and what fearful havoc they wrought among the Nazi cohorts as they zoomed at lightning speed up and down the enemy columns. Truck after truck, car after car was seen to explode or overturn, or careen off roads into fields and ditches.

Outstanding parts of the film shown to pilots of the wing commanded by W/C. Dal Russell (Montreal), were those taken by the "Spits" flown by F/O. Don Goodwin (Maynooth), the wing's ace low-level fighter, who has more than 100 disabled enemy vehicles to his credit, and other high scorers.

F/O. Donald Goodwin enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in 1940, going overseas in November of 1941. Since 1941 he has spent seven months on the Island of Malta; took part in the softening up period prior to the vast invasion of Sicily. Later he was transferred back to England where he is continuing on operations over Europe.

He has had some hectic experiences which include bailing out four times over land and twice over sea. Although he has completed his flying time he is not content to retire from operations but has asked for an extension and having been granted this he is back into the fight again.

Flying Officer Donald Goodwin recently was awarded the D.F.C., having shot up thirty-five enemy transports in one day's activities. He was home on a month's leave during March and April of this year.

Judgment Reserved In Perfume Theft

Stating that he could see at least one nice point of law in the case, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court Thursday afternoon reserved judgment until next week in the charge against Mrs. Joan Gardner, Montreal, of stealing three bottles of perfume from the McDermid Drug Store.

The crown concluded its evidence shortly after the luncheon recess and Defence Counsel W. J. Arthur Fair at once moved for a dismissal, arguing that the crown had completely failed to make out a case against the accused.

Magistrate Langley dismissed the motion, declaring that in his opinion there was sufficient evidence to have justified sending the case on to a jury.

Mr. Fair then announced that the defence would call no evidence, with the result that after hearing counsel on both sides the Magistrate reserved judgment.

Similar charges against Patrick Watson, Toronto and Prosper Lavinge, Cornwall, and a vagrancy charge against Gerald Kirkey, Cornwall, were also enlarged until next week.

Roosevelt Wins In Michigan

DETROIT, Nov. 10 (AP) — The untangling of a bewildering volume of errors by Wayne Count election precinct workers gave President Roosevelt an apparently safe margin of 17,109 votes today in the race for Michigans 17 electoral college votes for President, but the county's board of canvassers faced long days of work to complete the correction of mistakes.

With only 16 of the States precincts missing and the count complete in all out-state counties, the vote was:

Roosevelt 1,097,606, Thomas E. Dewey, 1,080,497.

E. Cyril Bevan, Democratic national committeeman from Michigan, predicted the President would be found in the complete officials returns to have won the State from Michigan-born Gov. Dewey by 20,000 or more votes.

No additional information regarding the extent or nature of his wound was disclosed in the brief telegram.

The son of Mrs. Josephine Bousfield, Buckhorn, and the late Rev. George J. Bousfield former rector of St. Luke's Anglican Church, Sgt. Bousfield enlisted in April, 1942, with the Prince of Wales Rangers (C. A.)

Norwood Hunter Bags Doe On Opening Day

NORWOOD, Nov. 10 (ENS)—First day of the hunting season reaped dividends for Jack Andrews, one of a party of four Norwood men who went north of Havelock in search of deer. Mr. Andrews brought back a doe weighing about 175 pounds, as a result of his first day of the season at the sport.

Others in the party included Alex Emery, Floyd Emery and Don Baker and the three of them failed to bag their share so far.

High in the hillside is an incinerator. The grey ashes around it are the ashes of human bones. On all sides we were told the same story. There is no reason to doubt it.

The men who became too old and too sick to work were taken if fortunate, up on the hillside, shot in the head by the guards, and their bodies thrown into the fire.

Less fortunate prisoners died less painlessly. They were taken to a spot near the incinerator where disused rails cross a small gully. They were tied to the rails and burned alive.

"We heard screams for miles,'5' the people of Thil, the nearest village, told us.

Last Graduate In Airforce Gone Overseas

OTTAWA, Nov. 10—(CP). — The last aircrew graduate from the big Commonwealth Air Training Plan has gone overseas, but some 10,000 men now in the training stream will complete their courses and join those who have just graduated in a civilian air reserve, a usually well-informed source said last night.

A huge surplus of aircrew built up by the air plan that was ganged on higher casualties than have resulted has brought about this latest decision, which follows reports the air force will be cut by a third January 1 and the training plan agreement will not be extended beyond its March 31 deadline.

The new move of sending trainees and recent graduates back to civilian life will be explained to the men in an official letter now in the course of being prepared, a source said. The men will wear a distinctive button showing they are air force reserves and they will not be subject to military draft regulations.

Meanwhile, a large number of aircrew members on operational training overseas, who may never get a chance of taking part in active service, will be given first opportunity to join the Pacific expedition, which will be raised on a volunteer basis and which may consist of about 15 squadrons, a source said.

He also said it was likely that the civilian reserve, if needed, also might be given a chance to volunteer for Pacific service.

With a third of the air force going to the Pacific and a third being demobilized early in the new year, it was understood the remainder would be used in home establishments and also for European occupational duty, with the possibility of some day being included in an international police force if one finally materializes.

German Claims

German propagandists pulled out all stops; they insisted Mr. Churchill "had to admit" the existence of V-2; that it was not the last secret weapon; they hinted directly that the United States might feel its explosive weight. Mr. Churchill himself said the range might be increased.

He said casualties and damage so far have not been heavy.

The Germans announced two days ago they had been firing the rockets, known as V-2, on London.

Penetrate Ground.

No official statement about the attack had been issued before, Mr. Churchill said, in order not to give information to the enemy.

Mr. Churchill said the rockets contained approximately the same quantity of explosive as the flying bombs, which caused heavy damage in London during the summer, but that the rocket penetrated more deeply before exploding.

"We cannot be certain that the enemy will not be able to increase the range of the rockets," he said. "There is, however, no need to exaggerate the danger," he said. "The scale of the attacks has not hitherto been significant."

Mr. Churchill described the rocket bombardment as another attempt by the enemy to attack the morale of the civil population.

"Some of the rockets have been fired at us from the island of Walcheren (in south-west Holland) which is now in our hands," he said. "And other areas from which rockets have or could be present be fired against this country will doubtless be overrun by our forces in due course."

The rockets caused somewhat heavier damage in the immediate vicinity of the crater but rather less extensive blast around the neighborhood where they landed than the flying bombs, he disclosed.

Defending the government's censorship until now of stories on the rocket bomb, Mr. Churchill declared, "the government have been confirmed in this course by the fact that until two days ago the enemy made no mention of the weapon in communiques. By last Wednesday they made an official announcement followed by a number of highly colored accounts."

"I do not propose to comment on it except to say that the statements in this announcement are a good reflection of what the German government would wish their people to believe and of their desperate need to afford them some encouragement."

Mr. Churchill said: "No reliable or sufficient public warning can in present circumstances be given" against a rocket bomb attack. He pointed out that the speed attained by the missile, which has been described by neutral sources as a "flying telegraph pole," outstrips sound.

The Prime Minister was asked whether the starting place of the rockets was known.

He replied: "Naturally this is a matter upon which much attention is concentrated. Should satisfactory intelligence be received no doubt appropriate measures will be taken."

(German propaganda broadcasts ... sites of the rocket bombs were so well camouflaged it was impossible for the Allies to find them.)

Thieves Surprised

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 10—(CP)—It was lucky for garageman Ed Irwin that he paid an early morning visit to his Deseronto premises. He disturbed thieves who had piled his stock of cigarettes, tires and tubes at a rear door, and were loading their car when he interrupted them. At that they managed to take 3 new tires with them.

from Budapest to Vienna, 140 miles distant.

Field dispatches indicated the new operation employed only about one-third of Malinovsky's total strength. While there was no indication when the other two-thirds might go into action the developing drive was hailed here as the probable beginning of a winter campaign aimed at reducing Budapest and driving into Germany from the south.

A late Budapest broadcast recorded in Bern, Switzerland, said other Soviet units had renewed their attacks in Budapest's southern suburbs, where fierce house-to-house fighting has been reported.

Berlin said other Russian troops had crossed the Danube River at Dunafoldvar, 43 miles south of bomb-battered Budapest.

750 Bombers Hit

Mosquitos of the R.A.F. Fighter Command on moonlight intruder patrols last night shot up several trains, barges and other transport targets in Germany and Holland. One fighter is missing.

Fourteen United States heavy bombers and 19 fighters out of a force of more than 2,000 planes failed to return from yesterday's spectacular attack on German front-line positions in the Metz sector but several of them are reported to have come down safely in France.

There was more new evidence today of the effectiveness of the American technique of "blind" daylight bombing.

A special communique detailed some of the "severe damage" inflicted on one of Germany's largest ball-bearing plants at Schweinfurt October 9 by a Flying Fortress division bombing through a solid cloud cover. It said hits were scored on at least 12 buildings, almost all of which were in the process of reconstruction after previous bombings.

Shipshaw Rivals

Shipshaw was a wartime project, undertaken to provide power needed to produce aluminum for planes vitally needed by the United Nations while Boulder was built in peace.

Has Many Dams.

Shipshaw is a straggling project, with its storage dams located miles from the plant where the power is generated. One of the storage dams was built at Lake Manouan more than 225 miles from the powerhouse and reachable only by air.

A mile long man-made channel, flanked by a series of dams—the highest is 110 feet—guides the water out of the Saguenay River bed to the powerhouse where the waterhead rises some 210 feet.

Before war started the Aluminum Company had more power than it needed for its huge plant at Arvida, Quebec.

Aluminum officials now are trying to picture the post-war demand for the product. One official believed the motor car industry may provide a large market for aluminum. He did not know just how much could be used in a car, but motor companies had not thought of using aluminum in pre-war years because there was not enough of it available on the continent.

Victory Loan Record Appears Likely

OTTAWA, Nov. 10 — (CP) — Total purchases in Canada's Seventh Victory Loan were reported to-day at $1,207,660,650, with the $1,300,000,000 target for the campaign which ends this week within striking distance.

The new total, based on sales up to last night, is $71,000,000 more than the amount purchased at the same stage of the Sixth Loan which yielded $1,400,000,000. Officials said a last-minute drive could establish a new record for the Seventh Loan.

Yesterday's purchases amounted to $88,084,150—$25,000,000 above the purchases in the corresponding day of the previous campaign.

Individual purchasers yesterday registered their biggest day of the loan with a total of $42,890,350. This brought the cumulative total of purchases by individuals to $556,640,700, approximately $81,000,000 more than individuals purchased in the same period of the Sixth Loan.

"To-day's sales should bring up very close to the minimum objectives but a note of caution is in order," an official said. "The totals which should be kept in mind are not the minimum objectives. This loan cannot be considered really over the top until it has exceeded the figures of the Sixth Victory Loan.

Expect Record.

"Individual Canadians still have $90,000,000 to go to reach that figure and the loan as a whole is about $200,000,000 short of the amount purchased six months ago. There is no question but that we are now in striking distance of the largest loan in Canada's history but there can be no letting down in the final two days of canvassing."

The armed forces, with a total of $49,056,550 announced last night, now are gunning for $50,000,000. Their combined total includes army subscriptions for $25,571,650 for 122 per cent of quota, navy $5,698,300 for 118.7 per cent and R. C. A. F. $17,786,600 for 119 per cent.

The Northwest Atlantic Naval Command passed its third objective —$3,300,000—when it reached $3,316,850, and now is after another $20,000. The 18 departments under the captain of destroyers at Halifax now have 123.5 per cent.

1,100 Hun Die In Yugoslavia

LONDON, Nov. 10—(CP)—Yugoslav Partisans wiped out 1,100 Germans in a push toward Krivolak and Gradsko, where the Cherna river joins the Vardar in Southern Serbia, Marshal Tito's broadcast communique said to-day.

Stip, a city on the Bregalnica river, was menaced by the new push, the broadcast said.

In the west, however, the Germans got strong reinforcements into Danilovgrad, in Montenegro, and broke out of Nevesinje to capture Kinfino Selo, in Herzegovina.

Before its fall Chateau-Salins, a sizeable town controlling a network of roads running out to the north-east toward the Saar, was almost encircled by other elements which pushed across the Chateau-Salins-Sarrebourg road.

Take High Hill

Here, Supreme Headquarters said, Morville-Les-Vic, two miles southeast of Chateau-Salins, was reached, and a field dispatch reported that the drive continued to the north to the vicinity of Hampont, three miles northeast of Chateau-Salins.

Nine miles south of Metz, Louvigny was occupied in a three-mile advance beyond Cheminot. Bridgeheads thrown across the Moselle yesterday north of Metz were making progress northeast of Thionville.

Capture of Delme Ridge, a four-mile long mass of 1,300-foot hills, gave the Americans a chance to look down the throats of the Germans for a radius of 10 miles or more and placed American armor within 12 miles of the Metz-Saarbrucken road, main rear communication line for the Metz fortress ring.

To the south, the capture of the village of Deyfosse in the Meurthe Valley northeast of St. Die marked the steady progress of U.S. 7th Army units east of Luneville despite the difficulties of mountain country and the arrival of German reinforcements. Enemy artillery fire was getting heavier in this area, also, but Allied units southwest of St. Die fought their way to the eastern fringe of the Foret Domainia de Champ against stiff resistance.

The Allied communique reported that bitter fighting continued in the Hurtgen Forest U.S. 1st Army sector southeast of Aachen, where field dispatches said a local offensive was in progress. American infantry consolidated and improved positions in the village of Vossenack, and punched out small gains against heavy resistance west of Schmidt and southeast of the town of Hurtgen.

The Chindwin flows into the Irrawaddy river southwest of Mandalay and the new gains open the prospect of a concerted push into the Japanese-held valleys north of that city.

Farther north, in the Chindwin Valley, East African forces have won new ground. In the Irrawaddy Valley, Chinese forces have extended their positions east of the British drive towards Katha.

Japanese Claim Kweilin City

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—(AP)—Japanese broadcasts claimed the capture of Kweilin and Liuchow in China.

The Japanese official news agency Domei said the Chinese 31st Army had "completely surrendered" at noon today in Kweilin, capital of Kwangsi province and defence pivot for southeastern China.

The dispatch, in romanized Japanese to enemy-occupied Asia and recorded by U.S. government monitors, said news of capture was carried in a dispatch from the Kwangsi front. The Chinese have said Kweilin would be "China's Stalingrad."

The Chinese High Command in Chungking said the Japanese claws of a pincers moving on Liuchow from the north and the south-west were 50 miles apart. It was evident that once the gap was closed the Japanese would have a line stretching from the South China Sea to the Great Wall in the north, cutting China in two.

Glengarrians Prominent In Holland Fight

LONDON, Nov. 10—(CP)—Opening of the Schelde Estuary approaches to the key port of Antwerp, vital for major Allied operations against Germany from the front in Holland, was achieved at a heavy cost in British and Canadian casualties, Prime Minister Churchill said today.

In a speech at the Mansion House Mr. Churchill coupled together the fighting in Belgium and Holland with that in Italy, saying: "In these two operations very heavy losses have been sustained, in the greatest proportion by the British and Canadian forces."

But he added, amid applause, that the victory won by forces under Field Marshal Montgomery during one month of bitter fighting north and west of Antwerp soon would place that great Belgian port "at the disposal of the northern flank (of the Allied armies) which will presently move into Germany for the final struggle."

Kill Two for One

Casualty figures for the 1st Canadian Army's Schelde campaign are not available, but it was known even before Mr. Churchill spoke that the Canadian forces suffered heavy losses, particularly in the furious fighting for a bridgehead across the Leopold Canal.

Some officers estimated that the Canadians killed two Germans for every man the Canadians lost, but some units came out of the canal action sadly thinned. There was one estimate that the Canadians killed or wounded 1,500 Germans along the canal during the action which began Oct. 6.

The Regina Rifles, the Winnipeg Rifles, the Canadian Scottish of Victoria, B.C., and a company of the Royal Montreal Regiment of Montreal fought on the Leopold Canal.

To the north of them, the Highland Light Infantry of Galt, Ont., the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders of Cornwall, Ont., the North Nova Scotia Highlanders and later the Queen's Own Rifles of Toronto, the Canadian Scottish and other units, including French-speaking troops, battle from dike to dike until this pocket north of the Leopold Canal was cleared of the enemy.

Savage Fighting

The fighting in the Canadians' tiny Leopold Canal bridgehead at times became as savage as during the fierce struggles around Caen. Battalions were taking a heavy toll from the Germans, but suffering losses themselves.

In the Breskens pocket the Germans had more guns, according to Canadian artillery officers, than they had around Caen. They had had four years to dig in their defenses, and in some places the dikes which the Germans had been driven off looked as though they had been burrowed into by a great host of rabbits. Everywhere the Germans had fortified these earthworks with guns and concrete.

Dewey's Majority Is 15,310 In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 10 (CP) —Gov. Dewey defeated President Roosevelt by 15,310 votes in Ohio, final unofficial returns from the State's 9,306 polling places showed.

The final tabulation gave Dewey 1,588,045 and Mr. Roosevelt 1,572,735.

Sen. Robert A. Taft, Republican, defeated William G. Pickrel by 21,947 on the basis of complete returns. Taft polled 1,494,036.

Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland defeated James Garfield Stewart of Cincinnati by 108,436 votes for Governor.

Board Of Education Reinstates Lt.-Col. R. Bolton Who Is Returning To Civilian Life

Lt.-Col. R. J. Bolton, Officer Commanding the Prince of Wales Rangers (CA) and former principal of Central School, is returning to civilian life in a short time and will be reinstated on the public school staff it was decided at a meeting of the Board of Education, Thursday night.

Lt.-Col. Bolton notified the Board of his impending discharge and pointing out that he had been given leave of absence, was applying for his position, which he hoped to be ready to fill in January. Since he will be coming back in the middle of a school term, his request created a problem and the solution proffered by Inspector K. Wightman was accepted by Board members.

"When these teachers were given leave of absence, it was hoped that they would be discharged at a time which would coincide with the September term. To fit Lt.-Col. Bolton into the school setup in the middle of the school year would require a lot of shifting around which is not desirable. Also, it is not exactly fair to a man who has planned the year's activities for the school to be suddenly thrust aside. I would suggest that he return to the staff and teach in a school, until midsummer, not as principal, but with his salary at the principal's rate. He could be a big help on the staff, and then at the end of the school term, adjustments can be made much more easily."

It was moved by Dr. C. M. Scott and Alex Sollitt that Inspector Wightman's suggestion be adopted.

A letter was received from Mrs. Barbara Fowler, 631 George street, informing the Board that her son, Jimmy, a pupil at Central School, suffered a fractured wrist in a football game on the school grounds, during recess recently, and she requested that the Board pay expenses.

Reports from the principal and other students playing at the time, indicated that the injury was received when two boys dived for the ball, and the Fowler lad fell, injuring his wrist. Students said that there was no unusually rough play and it was a sheer accident. The Board voted that no action be taken, because they felt it was not their responsibility, on the testimony received, and that it had never made a habit of paying expenses in such cases.

Engage Man

W. Rose has been engaged to work in the Repair Department at a salary of $1,900 a year plus cost of living bonus, it was decided on recommendation of the committee on appointments. The supervision committee recommended that Public Liability Insurance be placed on all schools immediately and that the tender of H. J. McCannan, $365.92 a year, be accepted. This was done on a motion by D. V. Canning and Dr. Scott.

Fred L. Finnie was authorized to purchase 12,000 feet of mixed lumber for the repair department and the vocational school, on a motion by Mr. Sollitt and Allan B. Mann.

C. S. Browne, principal of the Collegiate and Vocational School, reported that fluorescent lighting is now available for the public, and requested that this be installed in a small drafting room. He also suggested that there were several classrooms which would benefit from the change in the lighting system.

The Property Committee was given power to act in the matter of changing the lights in the drafting room on a motion of Mr. Canning and Fred Reed.

Praises Life Work

A tribute to the late Dr. H. R. H. Kenner was paid by G. Wilson Craw, chairman of the Board. He emphasized that Dr. Kenner had given faithful service to the Board and to the citizens of Peterborough for many years, and pointed out that it was a record which would not soon be established again. Mr. Craw continued saying it was a rare thing when a man gave 50 years of his life to guiding the young.

"In his death, we have lost a man who contributed a great deal to the city and its people."

On motion of Mr. Sollitt and Mr. Mann, a letter of sympathy is being sent to Mrs. Kenner.

A letter was received from Miss Myra Baird requesting payment of doctor bills for an accident she sustained some time ago in Prince of Wales School when she slipped on a pool of water lying in a corridor. The matter was referred to the supervision committee.

A letter from Mrs. H. T. Rehill, on the executive of the Local Council of Women, recommended to the Board that they set aside one room in each school to be used for pre-school age children from 2 to 5 years, as a nursery school, for children who parents are working.

Inspector Wightman pointed out that with crowded conditions in the schools there were no extra rooms available, and it was felt by some of the Board, that there was no particular need in Peterborough at the present time. On a motion of Mrs. Eva Parnall and Mrs. F. Harris, the secretary was asked to write a letter informing the council that the idea could not be followed.

Attendance Reports

During the month of October, reports showed that in the nine public schools, the average attendance was 3,240 pupils or 93.24 per cent. The following are the averages for the individual schools: Central, 91.88 per cent; King Edward, 92.23; King George, 92.38; Prince of Wales, 94.60; Queen Alexandra, 95.40; Queen Mary, 93.40; Confederation, 94.43; May's, 90.60; Park Hill, 93.88. The pupils are also credited with selling $1,493.80 in War Savings stamps.

A number of teachers were absent during the month. There were 10 on the Public School staff, two of whom were on leave of absence, and five on the Collegiate and Vocational School staff.

The Dental Officer, Dr. S. J. Graham, reported the results of a survey made in four schools, regarding the percentage of students needing treatment. They are: Prince of Wales, 57.5 per cent; Central, 69 per cent; Park Hill, 66.7 per cent and Queen Mary, 54.3 per cent.

John R. Mott, World Traveller To Address Church Conference

An Interchurch Conference on World Missions is to be held in St. Paul's Church, Peterborough on Monday. The speaker is to be John R. Mott, missionary statesman, and religious leader. The conference is being planned by a committee of Peterborough ministers of which Canon W. P. Robertson of St. John's Anglican Church is the chairman; Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist Church, the secretary, and Rev. F. W. Craik of St. James United Church and Rev. W. L. Newton of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Two sessions are being planned one at three in the afternoon and the other at eight in the evening.

Missionary Statesman

No name is more widely known in the religious world, particularly in relation to world-wide missions, than that of Dr. John R. Nott. He is unquestionably recognized, not only in North America but also throughout the world, as the outstanding missionary statesman and religious leader of our day.

From the time of his graduation at Cornell, he has devoted himself unceasingly to projects and movements of world-wide concern. For the first thirty years of its existence, he was chairman of the Student Volunteer Movement. He was the founder and for thirty-three years the leader of the World Student Christian Federation. As chief executive of the foreign division of the Y.M.C.A. and as general secretary of the National Council, he rendered a service of incalculable value. At the present time, he is president of the World's Alliance of Y.M.C.A.'s, with headquarters in Geneva; and honorary chairman of the International Missionary Council with offices in London and New York. He is at the present time chairman of the special committee of the World Y.M.C.A. which carries on the work of War Prisoners' Aid.

Chairman Of The Council

For the past few years, Dr. Mott, as chairman of the International Missionary Council, has been devoting himself to the furthering of certain large undertakings in the realm of international, inter-racial, and interdenominational co-operation.

Some idea of the large world contacts that Dr. Mott has and of the world service he is rendering may be gathered from the fact that during comparatively recent years he has made extensive and important journeys, for the purpose of meeting and counselling with the leaders of all evangelical churches, throughout (1) South and Central Africa (2) China, India, and other countries of the Far East, (3) various countries of the Near East. To this list must be added no less than five trips to Latin America. He is the North American vice-president of the World Council of Churches, of which the Archbishop of Canterbury is the chairman.

$100,000 Daily, Need For Northumberland

COBOURG, Nov. 10 — (ENS). — To put the country over the top a daily "take" of at least $100,000 a day from Thursday is required in Northumberland County, Victory Loan officials said Thursday. Three districts are now over the top, Colborne, Percy township and Brighton village with South Monaghan just a shade from the objective. Late returns will probably put South Monaghan over. The figures compiled Thursday morning showed a total for the county of $1,275,300 or a percentage of 78.89.

Returns for the districts were as follows:

Colborne, $11,719, 157.2 per cent; Percy township, $108,200, 108.20 per cent; South Monaghan township, $29,750, 99.17 per cent; Brighton village, $121,050, 96.8 per cent; Brighton township, $62,000, $88.57 per cent; Haldimand township, $78,500, 82.11 percent; Alnwick township, $18,800, 75.2 per cent; Cobourg, $296,150, 74.03 per cent; Murray township, $72,450, 72.45 per cent; Cramahe township, $60,500, 72.16 per cent; Hastings, $31,650, 70.33 per cent; Hamilton township, $86,500, 61.79 per cent; Campbellford, $119,200, 59.6 per cent; Seymour township, $72,650, 53.81 per cent.

Three Toronto Men To Be Tried For Theft

PORT HOPE, Nov. 10 — (ENS). — Charged with theft of a car from Fred C. Richardson of Cobourg and also with theft of a car in Kingston, Bruce Rodden, James Devlin and Lawrence Banks appeared in court here. Banks elected to trial by judge and was committed for trial and allowed on bail of $2,000. As Banks is a Crown witness against the other two, defence counsel requested that trial of Rodden and Devlin be deferred until after Banks is tried and the magistrate accordingly remanded the two in custody. Banks will be tried this month. All three are from Toronto.

Obituary

JAMES GORDON

COBOURG, Nov. 10 — (ENS). — James Gordon, life-long resident of Cobourg, was buried this morning in St. Michael's Roman Catholic Cemetery, following services at the church. Ill for six months, he passed away at the age of 85 years.

The late Mr. Gordon was employed in the Crossen Car Shops for many years at Cobourg, this plant later becoming the foundry. He was a Conservative in politics, and is survived by his widow, who was Elizabeth Conlin, and three sons, Edward with the U.S. merchant marine, Jack and Henry of Cobourg and a daughter, Agnes, also of Cobourg. Another son, Sergeant Patrick Gordon died in 1919.

Two Girls Warned

COBOURG, Nov. 10 — (ENS). — Two girls from the Training School here, who escaped last week-end and were captured the same night, appeared in police course on vagrancy charges Thursday. The charges were withdrawn and the girls were returned to the school after a stern lecture from Magistrate R. B. Baxter, who warned them that there was an institution to which they could be sent which they would find by no means as pleasant as their present quarters.

Another Churchillian Warning

Once again Mr. Churchill has warned that the greatest efforts will be needed to bring about the defeat of Germany. Speaking at the Lord Mayor's luncheon yesterday he expressed himself thus: "Now we stand on the threshold of Germany and it will take the full exertions of the three great powers, every scrap of strength they can give, to crush down the desperate resistance which we must expect from this military antagonist at last beaten back to his own lair". But in spite of what Mr. Churchill has said, none of the military commanders who predicted the end of the war in Europe before the end of this year — General Montgomery among them—has yet seen fit to take back his words. The fighting will be severe but the fighters are optimistic. What reasons have they for optimism?

• • •

For one thing the clearing of the approaches to Antwerp gives the Anglo-American forces in the West an excellent supply line, and they are reported to be preparing for a very big offensive; Russia is also reported to be ready for a big push in the East. German defences are already spread out and are very thin in some places, and however ferocious their resistance, superior numbers and equipment will tell. The German army might hold out through the winter if the Allied staffs decided to postpone their great assault until next spring. But will they?

• • •

Great ingenuity has been shown since the invasion of Europe began in the matter of supply, and in improvising ports where none had existed before. The European autumn is a wet season, unfavourable for fighting, but with any luck the winter freeze-up should come soon, restoring the usefulness of mobile fighting units. The overcast weather will make it harder for air forces to support our troops, but this will be somewhat offset by the fact that we now have airfields close to the front lines. In October Goering reorganized his air force to meet Allied attacks, but the loss of 208 planes in a single day at Merseburg was a severe blow to the Luftwaffe, and also showed that it had declined sharply in quality. Germany has 61 important industrial centres, and it is estimated that German resistance would become impossible if 50 of them were bombed out of action; already 43 of them have been so destroyed, and the intensification of strategic bombing during the past few weeks shows that the Allies are out to polish off another seven, if not more.

• • •

What will winter mean to Germany? A large-scale slaughter of cattle and swine has been ordered, in order to save feeds, and the shortage of fats, milk and butter has been increased by the loss of the Low Countries and Normandy; the fruits of Spain and the food stocks of the Balkans are now lost to Germany. It looks as though the German people would have to depend more and more on that last melancholy resort of blockaded nations—potatoes. Fuel is an even more serious problem, as transportation inside Germany becomes more difficult. There is no delivery of coal now, and householders have to fetch their own supplies, rarely more than enough for two days at a time.

• • •

It is unwise, as Mr. Churchill has said, to place any hopes upon an uprising of the German people. But a collapse of the German people is possible. At present their morale—if such it may be called—is kept up by the activities of the SS troops. But the SS men not only have to keep things going on the home front; they have to keep up the morale of the fighters on both battle fronts as well. Can they do it? The loss of some SS men in battle is inevitable, and their numbers will decrease at the time when they are desperately needed at home.

• • •

Reports reach us that German civilians resented the defence of Aachen when it had been shown that such a defence was hopeless. Again, we must be very careful not to attach too much importance to estimates of German opinion; the German people long ago ceased to have any effective body of opinion. If they collapse, it will be from weariness and hopelessness, rather than through any coherent and positive feeling that the Reich government has betrayed them into an intolerable position. However, the intangible factor of German morale must always be represented by a question-mark in any estimate of the probable length of the war; it is a factor upon which we cannot reckon, but which might nullify any calculations which we make upon known facts.

Death Of Alexis Carrel

Dr. Alexis Carrel was one of the best-known scientists of the past twenty-five years. It is impossible for laymen to compare the value of his work with that of men who were not so much in the limelight; it is sufficient to say that much that he did was spectacular, and captured the imagination of a public without scientific knowledge which yearns for scientific enlightenment. His success in growing small bits of living tissue in special culture media; his development of a new technique for suturing blood-vessels; his pioneer work in the transplantation of organs; his work on the Carrel-Dakin Solution for wounds; and his work on the so-called 'artificial heart' all attracted attention and fired the imagination. Much of his impressive work was done while he was on the staff of the Rockerfeller Institute for Medical Research in New York. When he retired in 1939 he returned to his native France.

But men like Carrel do not stop work at the age of 66. In 1940 he accepted an appointment as Director of the Foundation For The Study of Human Relations; during the past month there have been rumours that he would have to stand trial as a collaborator with Germany. Without more information it is impossible to say what this charge was based upon; his death from a heart ailment has made the question a purely academic one.

But it seems probable that Carrel was suspected because of a theory which he expressed in his immensely popular book Man The Unknown, published in 1935. In that book Dr. Carrel drew a picture of a scientific Utopia of the future, which would be ruled by an intellectual elite. People who know that they would never find a place in such an elite are always hostile to such views, and perhaps they are right. Carrel's opinion could have been perverted to a support of the German theory of a Master Race, but certainly that was not the opinion which he expressed in his book. It is a great pity that he should have died under suspicion, for his work for mankind was notable. In time we shall be able to discover the truth about his last years, but whatever it may be it will have no effect on the value of his life's work.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Rehabilitation will be a slow business. For instance, it will take the customer several months to become accustomed to being right.

The Japanese have invented what they describe as a "wonderful new food", which is made from decayed wood and starch, fermented and sun-dried. Under various names we have eaten that stuff for breakfast for years.

"It must take a lot of courage to wear one of those strapless evening gowns that fastens at the back with a zipper", says the Kitchener Record. Not necessarily courage; indifference, or a spirit of adventure would do just as well.

The late Mr. Justice Luxmore, of the English High Court bench, was an expert knitter. The Ottawa Citizen's punster supposes that he often gave the prisoner a sock, and kept the court in stitches. We have also heard that he was unequalled at unravelling a knotty problem. And of course he was never taken in by a poor yarn.

Writing of the Archduke Otto of Hapsburg and the former King Carol of Rumania, the Ottawa Journal says, sententiously: "Democracy has no place for reactionary royal lines, or for inherited privilege which cannot adjust itself to new conditions". But will someone please explain what possible pleasure or profit anyone could get out of being royal in these days? Surely kingship ranks with stoking a cargo ship as one of the most undesirable jobs in the modern world.

A Great English Song-Writer

By J. A. WESTRUP

HENRY PURCELL, the great English 17th century composer, obtained little general recognition until 1876, when the Purcell Society was formed for the purpose of bringing out an authoritative and complete edition of his works. Born in Westminster in 1659, son of Henry Purcell, a gentleman of the Chapel Royal, he was admitted a chorister at the Chapel Royal at an early age, and remained there until 1673, when his voice broke.

He studied music under three great masters, the last being the distinguished composer Dr. John Blow, whose influence is apparent in many of Purcell's works.

After leaving the choir, he was for a time Keeper of the King's Instruments, and in 1680 he succeeded Dr. Blow as organist at Westminster Abbey. He then began writing music, and a period of great productivity ensued. His official life was very full, for he was organist at the Chapel Royal and "Composer in Ordinary to the King," in addition to his Abbey post.

IN the latter capacity he composed an anthem for each public event, and the finest of these are "Swifter, Isis, Swifter Flow," and "Fly, Bold Rebellion." He is now acknowledged as a song writer of the first rank, combining imagination and inventive skill with a remarkable feeling for the English language.

English song had already acquired its characteristic accents in the Middle Ages, and the charm of the English madrigal consists not merely in the ingenious part-writing, but also in the subtle handling of English words. Purcell was the first English composer to set the example of having every word sung and not spoken. In his studies he had taken the Italian masters for his models. England did not at once import opera from Italy; but she did borrow the new art of recitative. The accompaniment for such songs was not rigidly prescribed. Any convenient instrument would do—harpsichord, organ, theorbo, guitar or harp. All that was necessary was that the player should know the elements of the new device of figured bass. If necessary a single bass viol could be used to play the bass, and the harmony represented by a two-part skeleton. The really important thing was the vocal line. Fortunately declamatory song, though it made a great impression on composers and demanded great skill from performers, did not kill the simpler style of song in a regular rhythm, which indeed the dance measures of the period helped to keep alive.

BY the time Purcell was fully active as a composer—about 1680—these two types of song were thoroughly familiar. He used either, and sometimes combined both in a single song, on the lines of the Italian solo cantata, with its alternation of recitative and aria. No radical distinction is to be drawn between the songs which Purcell wrote for dramatic productions and those which he intended for private performance. In both we find revealed extraordinary lyrical invention and a gift for declamation. Both demand first-rate singing. Purcell can be sung by amateurs, if they are intelligent, but he is not to be regarded as a composer for amateurs, even though "Dido and Aeneas" was produced in a girls' school. His songs need singers who have mastered the whole art of singing, and they need to be treated as something fresh and vivid.

THE remarkable thing about Purcell's lyrical invention is that it is so often unexpected, and yet unfailingly right. He uses sequence with exquisite effect in "I Attempt From Love's Sickness to Fly." But far more striking is his independence of any structural convention. His melodies flow on and on with the calm assumption that the listener will grasp their content without any of the conventional aids to understanding. A song like "How Blest are Shepherds" in "King Arthur" could never have been produced by following a recipe. It is the child of instinct.

This instinct for melodic shape is so certain that it is independent of the structure of the words. It can override superbly the clumsiness of Tate's libretto to "Dido and Aeneas," and in general so masters the poetic rhythm it is the music we chiefly remember. No one is conscious of the verbal scansion in:

"I attempt from love's sickness to fly in vain,
Since I am myself my own fever and pain."

But everyone is acutely aware of the independent rhythm of Purcell's setting. It is the composer's constant awareness of the exact value of rise and fall, his intuition that here a phrase must be extended, there compressed, that sets Purcell's work on a pinnacle. There is a profound lesson for whom song means something more than a voice-part fitted to a so-called accompaniment.

◇ ◇ ◇

PURCELL showed in his lyrical settings that respect for "just note and accent" was not the sole prerogative of declamatory song. Think once more of "I Attempt from Love's Sickness to Fly"— a song so bewitching that one can never go for long without thinking of it—and notice how Purcell gives value to the significant word "fever," the music rising in the previous bar and the word itself set to a dropping phrase. This is the rhythm of the feminine ending, which occurs so constantly in Italian song. We can imagine how delightful Purcell was, with his keen appreciation both of the Italian style and of the English language, to find a word that was neither a makeshift nor a convention. It was not strictly a feminine ending, because it did not occur at the end of the line; but he could treat it as though it did, and so produced that haunting repetition:

"Since I am myself my own fever,
Since I am myself my own fever and pain."

This scrupulous attention to individual words naturally finds its most intense expression in the declamatory settings. The listener who casually sums up all such settings as "recitative" has little idea of the subtlety of which Purcell is capable. It is true that they involved a number of conventions, derived partly from Italian sources and partly from English imitators of those sources. But where Purcell was completely engrossed in his text, he made the conventions his servants, and the result is a form of musical expression which has no obvious parallel. These declamatory songs, in which the accents of the words are faithfully followed and the sentiment interpreted by a wealth of ornamentation, are a unique product of the fusion of the Italian style with the English language. Here, more than anywhere else, we need fine singing and deep understanding.

FRIEND OR FOE?

Science Needs A Philosophy

(By DOUGLAS WOODRUFF)
(Editor of The English Catholic Journal 'The Tablet')

IT is odd, living so normally in Southern England these days, to read the claims which the Germans are making for their new pilotless planes. Southern English towns in this summer weather go about their business as usual, and perhaps in a few days it will be found, as it was in 1940, a mistake to keep sounding the alert to show that some stray rocket plane is about, and may be expected to explode somewhere.

The Germans, in magnifying beyond recognition the results produced by their new weapon, make themselves a spectacle to the outside world, in order to comfort their public at home. A very few weeks will show the baselessness of the claims that this new invention interferes with the steady unfolding and prosecution of Britain's military plans.

FOR its purpose in the war this invention is not sufficiently clever; but men will do well to ask themselves what it may lead to, later. Any one in middle life can remember the enthusiasm with which, before 1914, both flying and radio were being carried through their experimental stages. It was assumed by everybody that these conquests over nature were wholly to the advantage of mankind. Yet the chief uses to which aviation and wireless have been put are destructive ones, as kinds of warfare, dividing and weakening the nations.

It was much the same story with the invention of printing, five hundred years ago. With what high hopes was that invention hailed; how gladly the Popes blessed it for the enlightenment it would spread! Yet its first result was that great outburst of bitter theological dissensions which resulted in rending the unity of Christendom in the sixteenth century.

That did not mean that printing was a bad thing; and it would be a mistake to write down either flying or radio as totally evil because they unhappily became instruments that could be used by men not fit to be trusted with their power. These inventions contain within themselves, as a rule, the answers to their own aggressive possibilities; but it is a serious reflection, which we in Britain, living on an island, are not slow to realize, that the natural obstacles and defences separating peoples are becoming relatively more and more insignificant and the power of peoples to reach out across them relatively greater. The very success of the Allied landings in Normandy is a measure of the way the English Channel can now be mastered, even in the face of an enemy.

THE development of air-borne troops makes natural frontiers much less important and valuable. The consequence of this concentration on scientific development is to make much more, and not less, relevant discussions on the end and purpose of human life.

From the days of that invention of printing down to the last century, the majority of books written and published were works of divinity. That was even true of the rationalist eighteenth century. But the last century cherished the illusion that interest in the final end of man was a blind alley and a tragic waste of human brainpower. Men of the nineteenth century considered that the sensible and practical thing was to concentrate on the applied sciences, on raising the material level of life, and increasing man's power over nature.

I believe the second half of the last century will, in later generations, be considered to have marked the lowest point reached in human history; and that mainly because of its unintelligent apathy about philosophy and theology. The twentieth century is witnessing a return, powerfully assisted by the awful example of mankind. Men have begun to realize the chaos that lies before them unless a common basis for common life can be found.

Expulsion

The ever-faithful government puppet press is in a rather cruel position these days. What with dissatisfaction over the Zombie situation spreading even to the Dominion cabinet and Prime Minister King making cryptic utterances about "Everything speaks for itself," it is not surprising to find the partisan press referring to the Home Defence troops as Zombies. The lads are simply over-excited.

However the government hacks have learned their lessons well in months past. They are able to mumble them over and over again with variations on themes, even if after manner of Pagliacci, their hearts are breaking.

For example, one dispatch from Ottawa says: "There are unlikely to be any further spontaneous resignations from the cabinet for a matter of days. It is possible, however, there may be expulsions, but failing such, it is likely there will be one additional resignation."

An involved but rather neat way of saying, "Expulsions if necessary, but not necessarily expulsions," don't you think? — Winnipeg Tribune.

Werewolves

It was not, perhaps the happiest of inspirations which led Himmler, himself an admitted monument of human savagery, to liken his new Kolkssturn to werewolves. It is neither an amiable nor an honorific tradition. As with so many other things the Greeks had a word for it, and lycanthropy, or the magic transformation of men into beasts, goes far back into history and spreads widely over Europe, Africa, and Asia.

In Europe the wolf has been the most usual transformation. Sometimes the change is unintended; it comes suddenly on the victim as the result of heinous crimes, and for seven years he must expiate his sin in the shape of a wolf. It is more than seven years since Himmler and his Gestapo took to their own form of lycanthropy and there is still no sign of a return to humanity. More often the wolf shape is adopted or discarded at will, which sounds a good deal more like the Nazis, who are one minute ravening authors of destruction and the next the inspired and appointed custodians of European liberty.

Sometimes the sorcerer achieved the change by applying a magic salve (the doctrine of Blood and Race?) to his forehead; sometimes it was done by assuming a special belt of unholy power (the Nazi armlet of the Crooked Cross?) Our simple forefathers had various methods of dealing with the disorder; blood-letting, prolonged penance, holy water, and the sign of the Cross were all recommended.

"To kneel on one spot for a hundred years" was another way to check any tendency towards these detested transformations. It was rash of Himmler to have reminded us of that remedy.—Manchester Guardian.

Why Call It Aachen?

Aachen is the German name for it. But, in its heyday, it was called Aix la Chapelle. This city which stands (or stood?) on German territory a few miles from the frontier was once the favourite residence of a monarch, whose empire stretched from the Baltic Sea almost to Rome, and from the Oder in the east through France and into Spain. The monarch was Charlemagne, and if we use the name Charlemagne, we should also say Aix la Chapelle. If we call Charlemagne Charles the Great, then his place of residence may be called Aachen, but what the redoubtable old Frankish monarch called it himself, we are not erudite enough to know.

Charlemagne had himself crowned as first head of the Holy Roman Empire and many of his successors in that sometimes formidable and often weak political organism were later crowned there. Hence Goebbels' violent appeal to the German people not to give up this sacred soil. Some thousands of G.I. Joes, however, none of whom ever heard of Charlemagne, much less of the Holy Roman Empire, are now seeing to it that this large area of rubble changes hands. Mr. Goebbels' appeal to the German people to rise against this infamy is having no effect. The German people of the district, those at least who now remain there, are proving themselves docile enough, which is understandable in the presence of gentlemen armed with bazookas and other curious and effective instruments of war. —Winnipeg Free Press.

Masses Said For Orangeman

When the news spread through Penetang that Joseph Hatton was dead there was general mourning.

No man was ever more loved than he in a town which is predominantly Catholic and yet did him the honour of electing him several times as its chief magistrate although he was prominent in the Orange Order. It is probably something unique in Ontario history that an Orangeman should have had three masses said for him in St. Anne's Roman Catholic Church during his last illness.

Joseph Hatton was a little man physically but he had a great heart. A veteran of the last war, he never forgot his comrades and what they had done for Canada and for the cause of human liberty. He was president of the Penetang branch of the Canadian Legion for 14 years, and worked indefatigably to rehabilitate the men of the armed forces. A veteran always had a warm friend in Joseph Hatton.

Not only was he a fine soldier of his earthly King, but he was enlisted early in the service of the King of Kings. For many years he was superintendent of the United Church Sunday School and also was an elder. Any church which was short a preacher for the day always found him willing to fill in.

Joseph Hatton left that part of the world in which he lived and worked better than he found it. God give us more such men.—Midland Free Press.

A Bible Message

Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth: for I am God, and there is none else. (Isa. 45: 22.)

◇ ◇ ◇

So Jesus came again into Cana of Galilee, where he made the water wine. And there was a certain nobleman, whose son was sick at Capernaum. When he heard that Jesus was come out of Judaea into Galilee, he went unto him, and besought him that he would come down, and heal his son: for he was at the point of death.

Then said Jesus unto him, Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe. The nobleman saith unto him, Sir, come down ere my child die.

Jesus saith unto him, Go thy way; thy son liveth. And the man believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and he went his way. And as he was now going down, his servants met him, and told him, saying, Thy son liveth.

Then enquired he of them the hour when he began to amend. And they said unto him, Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him.

So the father knew that it was at the same hour, in the which Jesus said unto him, Thy son liveth: and himself believed, and his whole house. (John 4: 46-53.)

Unconsidered Trifles

After a lesson the gods and goddesses of olden days, the schoolteacher began asking questions.

"Now, who was Bacchus?" he asked.

No reply, and blank faces. So he tried again.

"Now think! Mars was the god of war, Venus was the goddess of love, Bacchus was the god of. . . ." he paused invitingly.

"Bookmakers?" suggested one bright boy.

NEED ACTION ON FORESTS

Ten years ago, people like the late Frank Barnjum, who preached forest conservation, were regarded as cranks and received with tolerant smiles. Our forest resources, we fondly told ourselves, were inexhaustible. It was lunacy to worry about them.

Well, someone has knocked the "in" out of "inexhaustible." Exhaustion is not only possible. It is actually in sight unless we do something to ward it off. So everybody is penitent and everybody is worrying.

But, unfortunately, penitence and worry will not save the forests themselves. Nor will resolutions passed at conventions. It will be necessary to take some action—immediately and drastic action, too.—Vancouver Province.

PROHIBITION AUTOCRATS

Into what depths of insane degradation does this country have to be pushed before its outrageous liquor autocrats snap out of their stupidity? The word "autocrats" is used advisedly.

Certainly the present condition was not brought about democratically. The people had nothing to say in the edicts from Ottawa by which a state of semi-prohibition was enacted or in the regulations from Victoria by which freedom went into perpetual twilight.

This travesty stems directly from the seats of the mighty, to which the responsibility for its results must return. Whatever excuses or reasons were offered originally have long since disappeared. What remains is utter nonsense. —Vancouver Sun.

Influenza Hits Hamilton Football Star Joe Krol

By The Canadian Press

It is still anybody's guess whether Joe Krol, the leading scorer in Ontario football, will take his place in the Hamilton Wildcats backfield against Toronto Balmy Beach in Hamilton tomorrow in the opening game of the Ontario Rugby Football Union's two-game final series. Dr. Stan Perkin, Hamilton club physician, said yesterday the great running, kicking and passing half probably will leave hospital today after a two-day stay. He has been ill with influenza.

Meanwhile cheering news came for followers of the Toronto Navy Bulldogs who meet Hagersville R.C.-A.F. in Toronto in a sudden-death game for the Ontario Armed Services League title. Navy officials said last night their big quarterback, Leading Seaman Annis Stukus, top scorer in the League, will definitely be in the game. Stukus suffered a back injury last week.

While most of the interest centres on the Hamilton game which is expected to draw a crowd of 12,000 fans, Toronto fans looked forward to a rugged battle in the services title game.

Led by Stukus, an able and experienced field general, and with fleet young backfielders like Able Seaman Royal Copeland and Leading Seaman Tom Waldon operating behind a young and husky line, they have a strong team.

Hagersville will be led by a Toronto veteran, FO. Bobby Coulter, who was on the sidelines most of the season because of injuries. Now back in form, he is supported by a strong backfield headed by LAC. Doug Smylie.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Everything is set for a big afternoon of rugby at Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon when Oshawa Collegiate and Peterborough C.V.S. will meet in the final game for the Lake Shore interscholastic senior group championship and P.C.V.S. Seconds will meet Trinity College School juniors in a junior group fixture. The junior game will lead off starting at 1.30 o'clock and while both teams are out of the running the youngsters should stage an interesting battle. The Trinity College School outfit is a smart young squad who beat the Collegiate juniors in Port Hope and the local team would like nothing better than to be able to even it up with a win tomorrow. Regardless of the fact that there is nothing at stake but prestige the two young squads can be counted upon to throw everything they have into the fray and the game should be an exciting exhibition and prove a fitting introduction to the big senior battle which follows.

* * * * * *

As to that struggle it is a natural. It couldn't fail to be with the group championship and the right to continue in the Cossa playdowns hinging on the result. The two teams go into the crucial clash on even terms, each with four wins and one loss. Oshawa have the edge in one respect for they beat the Peterborough squad in the Motor City. On the other hand P.C.V.S. defeated Bowmanville, a feat that the Oshawa squad found it impossible to accomplish, although they certainly made it close holding Mac McIlveen and his pals to a 2 to 1 score. Now everything depends on tomorrow's game and that should bring from both squads their most sparkling football of the season. Reports from Oshawa say that the Oshawa students are a big fast team who can hit the line hard and also take to the air very effectively if their line game shows signs of bogging down. In the Peterborough team they face a squad that has improved steadily and that contains a number of outstanding performers who are liable to pull a long run or a touchdown pass out of their hat at any time. Jack Matthews and Red Outram spark the P.C.V.S. squad and they get a lot of help from the line and from the rest of the backfield. The teams are very evenly matched as their record shows and tomorrow's game should be about the best of the season. It will draw the biggest crowd of the campaign, including the entire student body.

They Deserve Thanks

The action of the Ladies' Softball League is donating $75 to the British War Victims' Fund and a similar amount to the Peterborough Corvette Christmas gift drive puts the crowning touches on a softball season in which both the girls' and the men's loops have made generous contributions to war charities. The men's league played benefit games during the season for the British War Victims' Fund and the Women's Auxiliary to the Navy besides co-operating with the Kinsmen's Milk for Britain fund in staging a most successful exhibition game with Toronto Tip Tops. The girls similarly made possible a visit from the Toronto Sunday Morning Class, raising another substantial donation to the same fund. Then both organizations got in behind the Labor Day celebration in aid of the Auxiliaries to the Navy, Army and Air Force and the softball games arranged for that day formed a big item on the program. The organizations are to be congratulated upon the very material assistance they have rendered to worthwhile efforts. And while we are on the subject of thanks this column should say that we have been asked to express on behalf of both loops their deep appreciation of the co-operation extended to during the season by Ald. Floyd Curtis, chairman of the parks committee and Foreman A. Butcher, both of whom did everything in their power to make conditions right for the leagues at the Bowl and inside Riverside Park.

* * * * * *

Should Be Changed

This column is heartily in accord with the views expressed in the following paragraph by Clayton Browne of the St. Catharines Standard: "Chick Appel of Stratford "has something" in his personal belief that the O.M.H.A. should stand on the principles they first enjoined and not permit the code they are now defeating. This corner agrees with him, that minors are minors and players should not be allowed to shuttle up and down from midget to junior "A." What midget or juvenile is rightly fitted for the present (or future) junior top-grade league? If experienced and cagey ice-wise boys are gathered from all over Canada under one roof, what license have they to revert to juvenile against green native-born boys? That's not excusable, even under "duration" rules, but the slick finger of the O.H.A. is seen behind the curtain. From that, it's only a short hop to chattels of the N.H.L. Many say no boy should be retarded. Quite right, in a sense, as long as it is only sense. A good midget could go juvenile or junior, but all agree the unfairness of boys playing junior "A" and then reverting to juvenile (or even midget) for playoffs. The sooner the O.M.H.A. gets back to the 14-16-18 year levels, the better for the smaller centres. Not only that, but in larger areas, there's little sponsor encouragement if the youngster teams are pitted against rivals stacked with juvenile-junior talent. This may not fit very well, but we can't be hanged for expressing an opinion."

* * * * * *

Making the N.H.L. look more and more like a three-club race Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens slaughtered the New York Rangers and the Chicago Black Hawks respectively last night. The Leafs invaded New York and grabbed off their fifth win by beating the luckless Patrick club 6 to 3 with the Schriner-Bodnar-Carr line in on three of the six goals. At Montreal the Flying Frenchmen ran wild to swamp the Hawks 9 to 2 with Maurice Richard leading the scoring parade with three goals and two assists, Elmer Lach fired two goals and assisted in four others and Toe Blake had one marker and five assists so the powerful line picked up a night's total of 17 points, which is high scoring in any kind of company and any kind of weather. Nearly 12,000 saw the game at Montreal, indicating that the fans are not choosy. So long as the Canadiens are winning they would turn out to see their favorites playing a team from the Old Folks' Home.

He has been a useful workman over a long period....Chicago Black Hawks, without last season's scoring aces are having a hard time getting anywhere. Tired Of It

LONDON, Nov. 10 — (CP). — The court martial of 10 Americas negro soldiers was interrupted yesterday while the judge advocate aroused one of the defendants from a nap. Empress Bowlers Clip 3513 In Three Games

Ken Graham's Empress team and Fashion Craft turned in the best performance in the Men's City League at Duffus last night. The former were 4 to 2 winners and both outfits hammered the maples for over 3500. The Empress had the high single game of 1272 and the Fashion Craft high three of 3568.

Six teams registered sweeps last night, winning 6 to 0. This is the first time this year for that many teams to sweep the card.

Bud Weese led the bowlers with a cross of 826 the only 800 score of the night. Jack Wade's 340 topped the singles followed by R. Bassett 325, H. Mowry 317, R. Lewis 314, W. Weese 312, G. Robertson 305, P. Pryde 301, V. Rose 300.

Jack Wade must be out for some kind of a record in single game scores for he had hit over 300 in a single game every night since the season opened. His consistent rolling is one of the reasons for his Outlaws being in third place.

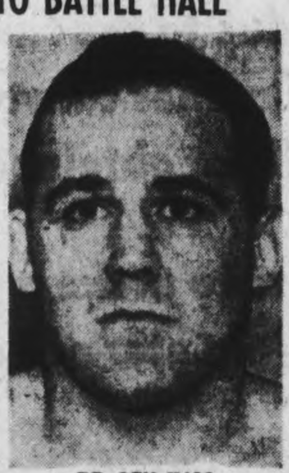
CLASSY SEXTON TO BATTLE HALL



DR. LEN HALL

Dr. Len Hall's clamor about being robbed in his battle with Whipper Watson here Tuesday has not earned him another bout with the champ but it has resulted in the turbulent California getting a match with one of the most popular and smoothest performers in the mat game in the person of Frankie Sexton. "It's about time somebody took that bird in hand," said Sexton when told of the match. They meet at the Brock St. Arena Tuesday night. Two other good bouts will be listed on the card.

Belgians See First Game Of Softball

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY IN BELGIUM, Nov. 10 (CP)—Residents of a little town in Belgium saw a softball game for the first time when a company of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps ran off a sports day on a recent sunny afternoon.

The townsfolk didn't understand what it was all about, but they watched and cheered enthusiastically.

The day included races, a tug-of-war, a horseshoe pitching competition and other games. Cpl. Kenny Reardon of Radville, Sask., former star with Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League, was the individual star. He was a member of the winning relay team. He ran second in the 100-yard dash and he won the rugby throw.

Pte. J. E. Stone, Cranbrook, B.C., won the 100-yard dash, and Ptes. J. Middleton, Toronto, and A. M. Gauthier, Pembroke, Ont., won the horseshoe doubles competition.

The winning relay team included Reardon, Sgt. J. H. Atherton, Toronto, Pte. E. S. White, County Harbor, N.S., and L-Cpl. N. Swirla, Weston, Ont., Pte. A. M. Gauthier, Pembroke, Ont., and Pte. W. H. Walters, Sydney, N.S., combined to win the wheelbarrow race. For the softball game, one team borrowed the sweaters of the local soccer club and called themselves the "Belgians" and the other club named themselves the "Canadians." The "Belgians" won 4-1.

The lineups:

Canadians—Sgt. C. Gray, Toronto, catcher; Pte. R. Bennett, Toronto, pitcher; Pte. D. R. Mason, Alliston, Ont., first base; Cpl. Ken Reardon, Radville, Sask., second base; Pte. T. N. Britton, Mudie Lake, Sask., third base; Spr. I. Napolsky, Halifax, N.S., shortstop; Pte. J. C. Belanger, Toronto, left field; Sgt. W. D. Hannah, Toronto, centre field; Pte. J. M. Freve, Mattawa, Ont.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—(AP)—When Troy, N.Y., high school played Catholic Central for the city football title recently, both tries for points had to be attempted at the opposite end of the field from where the touchdowns were made. . . . The upper part of one goal post was missing and authorities apparently couldn't get pipe to replace it. . . . And When Greenville, S.C., high defeated Porter Military Academy of Charleston, 46-13, Greenville averaged only one yard on punting . . . The victors' single kick was blown back almost to where it started.

Sgt. Walter (The Great) Mails is out of the Marines and hopes to catch on as coach or publicity man with some Pacific Coast League club. . . . The Hamburg, N.Y., trotting track management is considering building a cover over the half-mile oval so racing can go on even when it rains. . . . Coach Jimmy Phelan reports that his daughter saw him herding the St. Mary's (Cal.) football team into a train and asked: "Dad, how many half fares did you buy for this trip?"

Buffalo Bisons, Bears Tied At Top

By The Canadian Press

Buffalo Bisons renewed their first-place deadlock with Hershey Bears on the top of the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League last night when they defeated Providence Reds 4-2.

The Barons held the Caps to a 1-1 tie for the first half of the game with Tony Bukovich scoring for Caps and George Agar for Barons, but after that it was a runaway for the Indianapolis club. Bukovich added another, Pete Leswick also netted two, and Dick Kowcinak, Moose Sherritt and Jack Hewson counted singles.

TORONTO, Nov. 10 — (CP). — Canada hasn't produced many wrestlers of international note, for some reason, but one who has hit the limelight in the world of heave-and-holler is Earl McCreedy. That is the opinion of the noted Strangler Lewis, dubbed by his fond parent Ed, who should know.

The Strangler says McCreedy is not only the best rassler in Canada, but is also one of the best in the world. Lewis aired his opinions on McCreedy and wrestling in general in an interview with Bob Millar of the Winnipeg Free Press the other day.

Strangler thinks that the future of resin-rumpling in Winnipeg is good, and he envisions a mat circuit that would take in the 'Peg, St. Paul, Fargo and Minneapolis in the United States. Possibility of a loop taking in Regina and other Western Canada centres where wrestling has been going great guns recently don't look so bright to the maestro, however, because of the distances involved.

Strangler, for years the top man in the merry-wrestling-go-round, is a promoter now, and is promoting the finest in behemoth battling. He points out that the present-day wrestling indulged in by most modern devotees of the art is nothing like the real thing that was produced in days gone by, in his heyday, for instance.

"The kind of wrestling that includes physically harmful holds, such as eye-gouging and others, is the unorthodox style and cannot be considered good wrestling," the Strangler told Millar. It is all inspired by the promoters to attract the attention of the morbidly-curious. What he likes is the real, honest-to-goodness, gentleman type of wrestling with some science in it.

Oh, the cads:

Jim (Toronto Globe and Mail) Coleman reports that some unsavory customers have been putting things over on the gentlemen of the bookmaking rack—sorry, business—in Toronto. It seems they nave been pulling a variation of the old shell game, with good results so far. In the morning they take in a brief case full of bets, allegedly garnered from war plant workers, but they leave the case locked and conveniently carry the key away with them.

Come evening, and the character would return to collect his winnings and would be properly disturbed to find out the brief case was locked all the time. The bookie, being an honest chappie earning an honest living, would of course offer to pay up on the bets and tell him to open the case. Whereupon our hero would unlock the case and palm in two or three heavy wagers on the horses he knew already had won that afternoon. The bookies have been clipped heavily on two or three occasions, but at last reports were getting confidence-shy.

Toronto Leafs Canadiens Setting Pace

By ERIC SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens continued to set the pace in the National Hockey League last night, the former downing the tail-end Rangers 6-3 at New York and the latter trouncing Chicago Black Hawks 9-2 on home ice

The wins left the standings unchanged with Leafs at the top with 10 points—the result of five successive victories without a defeat. Canadiens hold second position with four wins and one loss—a 4-1 decision to Toronto.

In both last night's games, it was a case of defence cracking under the pressure of two top forward lines — the Schriner-Bodnar-Carr combination of the Leafs and the powerful Lach-Blake-Richard trio of Canadiens.

15,234 Fans

Playing before 15,234 fans in the opening game of the 1944-45 season at Madison Square Gardens, Rangers tried desperately but in pressing, allowed the Leaf snipers to get by their defence.

Carr and Schriner were the only two of Leafs' top line to score but Bodnar assisted each time and also passed to Reg Hamilton, who netted the first goal of the game. Bob Dill evened the count for Rangers before Windy O'Neill and Carr counted to give Toronto a 3-1 lead going into the second period.

Schriner and Davidson drove in the only goals of the sandwich session and in the final period Leafs held off the majority of Ranger attacks although Hank Goldup and Fred Thurier each counted. Babe Pratt, hefty defenceman, scored the final goal of the game for Toronto.

Maurice Richard, one of Canadiens' leading snipers last season, led the parade with three goals and two assists. Elmer Lach netted twice and helped in four others while Toe Blake scored one and assisted in five.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press

Gus Bodnar, Toronto, picked up three assists as the Leafs whipped New York Rangers 6-3 last night, to go into a first-place tie in hockey's Big Seven with his linemate Sweeney Schriner, who scored a goal and an assist. Toe Blake of Canadiens scored once and got five assists as Montreal defeated Chicago, to move up into fifth place among the leaders.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

The light-heavyweight bout between Champion Maxie Rosenbloom and Jimmy Braddock was stopped in the second round at New York 13 years ago tonight when both fighters "laid down." Later Braddock entered heavyweight ranks, won the world's championship in 1935 and lost it in his first defence in June, 1937, to Joe Louis.

Hidden Money

TORONTO, Nov. 10—(CP)—While investigating the death last night of Mrs. Freda Bricks, 50, police said they found $1,203 in bills and a bank book with deposits amounting to $3,900 in kitchen drawers at the rear of her Walton street store. Coroner Julian Loudon attributed death to illuminating gas poisoning.

Hans Gunnarson, who won the Canadian ski-jumping championship at Banff in 1940, was killed in action Nov. 3, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gunnarson of Revelstoke, B.C., have been notified.

Gus Mancuso, venerable New York Giant catcher, was given his outright release by the club yesterday.

J. Sigfrid Edstrom of Stockholm, acting president of the International Olympic committee, told New York reporters yesterday his organization was making tentative plans for resumption of the games in 1948. No country at war may be host to the games.

It will be a natural if Ted Atkinson finishes the racing season as the leading jockey. He's been in the saddle exactly seven years. Yesterday thin Theodore rode three winners to lift his year's aggregate to 259, higher than any title-winning total of the last seven years except for the 287 piled up by the late Earl Dew in 1940.

Here's Fun

Labor Demands Increased Trade

MONTREAL, Nov. 10—(CP)—Independent and unco-ordinated decisions on commercial policy by national governments are likely to make difficult the realization of the objectives of full employment and economic development in the post-war period, according to an international labor study published here Wednesday.

The authors of the study—J. B. Condliffe and Alexander Stevenson—declare that increased world trade is essential to the achievement of the social objectives demanded by the people of the United Nations. But any enlargement of the volume of international investment and the exchange of goods, they add, is independent upon the international integration and co-ordination of national economic and financial policies.

The study says that although the United Nations are adopting "a positive approach" by moving toward the co-ordiantion of national policies through international institutions, the "piecemeal creation of technical bodies in related and over-lapping fields" cannot be sufficient .

Trinity YPU Makes Banquet Plans

OMEMEE, Nov. 10—(ENS).—The weekly meeting of the Young People's Union of Trinity United Church was in charge of Miss Irene Mortson and Donald Grandy, and the program had a missionary theme.

The president, Keith Bradley, conducted the business. Rev. R. M. Patterson was delegated to purchase a book for Harold Brooks, treasurer of the Union, who is in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, having undergone an appendectomy last Saturday. Committees were named to plan the menu and table decorations for the banquet which the young people are serving on November 17 to the Black Lodge.

Quiet music and a call to worship opened the worship period, after which the Scripture lesson taken from the fourth chapter of St. Luke, and a commetnary on the same was read by Miss Katherine Evans, and Miss Irene Mortson led in prayer. A poem, "Launch Out Into the Deep," was read by Miss Doreen Clifford. The topic was given by Mr. Don Grandy, and was entitled "Life-Guard on the Pacific Coast," and was the story of the Mission Hospital at Bella Bella on Campbell Island off the British Columbia coast and of the wonderful work being done by Dr. Darby, who for almost thirty years has skilfully healed not only bodies but minds and souls. Bill Weir led in some singing, and Mrs. Weir led in recreation.

Home and School Association Havelock Guests

HAVELOCK, Nov. 10 — (ENS) — The Campbellford Home and School Association were the guests of the local branch at their November meeting and provided the program for the evening for which their president, Mrs. J. Clarke, presided. It commenced with community singing led by A. Bates.

Principal C. Haig brought greetings on behalf of the Campbellford public school. Mrs. F. G. DeCarroll sang two solos, accompanied at the piano by Mr. Bates; a comic skit, entitled "The Horseless Carriage of 1904," was put with the following taking part: Mr. and Mrs. S. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. D. Myers, Mrs. F. Chapman and C. Stephens.

The guest speaker was Rev. W. J. Lennox, who in keeping with Education Week, spoke on "The Necessity of Giving Every Child the Best Education Possible." He pointed out the greater privileges for children to-day than in the past generation when the trend was to train the student only for the vocation which he had decided to follow. In order that the best results be obtained, the efforts put forth by the school should be backed up by the home. It was only when the two worked in close co-operation that headway could be made.

Teachers Responsible.

Many think the home influence, he saiad, is the most essential. Parents like to feel that they have a great part in determining the future of their child. Many times it is the opposite and it is the teacher who is responsible. Mr. Lennox said he had the highest admiration for the teaching personnel and parents should impress on the children to respect those ho are preparing them for life's conflict.

The majority of failures can be traced back to the home, and what was termed juvenile delinquency he thought should be called home delinquency.

Church Influence.

There was another agency needed to make the system complete and that was the church and the new curriculum which calls for religious teaching in the schools and which he whole-heartedly favored, indicated that the leaders of the government were realising this necessity, he declared.

The president of the local society, Mrs. W. Woodbeck, presided for the opening and closing exercises. A vote of thanks was extended to the visitors on behalf of the Havelock branch by Mrs. R. W. Goheen. The resignation of Mrs. F. Clarke as pianist was received and accepted and Mrs. D. J. Holdcroft was elected to that office. The treasurer, Mrs. C. Taylor, reported $54.06 on hand and was authorized to pay an account of 45c to E. D. Chiles.

150 Guests Attend YPU Shanty Supper

HASTINGS, Nov. 10 — (ENS) — St. Andrew's Presbyterian Sunday School rooms were decorated with tables set with brown paper and candles as lights, when 150 guests and members of the church sat down to supper served in shanty style, sponsored by the young people. After supper, Rev. Mr. Davey acted as master of ceremonies for the following program: Melville Ennis led in community singing, followed with a trio by Mae and Betty McMillan and Helen Whitred; "The Cremation of Sam McGee" was read by Francis Kennedy; a duet by Rita Johnston and Melville Ennis, "Reuben and Rachael"; instrumental by Jack Taylor and Walter Peck; reading by Greta McNaughton; instrumental by Madge Jones; solo by Isabelle Lewis; reading "That Terrible Tommy" by Mrs. Basil Johnston; a duet, "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton," was sung by Mrs. S. Whitred and Mrs. M. Ennis, and an address was given by Dr. W. E. Wilson.

The proceeds of the evening will be used to buy gowns for the choir.

REVEALS "TRICK" — Gaston Madru, photographer for "News of the Day newsreel" demonstrates the trick he used during the German occupation of France as he went about taking pictures of Germans without being discovered. Madru concealed his camera in a market basket on the front of his bike, the trigger attached to a black string running around to his hand. To conceal any possible glitter from the sun on his lens, he filled the rest of the basket with bottles, all of which glittered distractingly. Madru illustrates here his procedure of putting bottles and jars in the basket to conceal his camera.

A Sports and Social evening for members of the 4th (R) Heavy Anti-Aircraft Battery, R.C.A., and their friends, will be held in the Armouries Monday evening, November 20.

SHOOTS DEER

Sighting the animal first while it was running with a herd of cattle, Coleman Guthrie is the proud possessor of a deer which he shot in the barnyard of his mother's farm, just across the road from his own farm, about six miles north of Buckhorn.

TO SPEAK HERE.

Lieut. Muriel Robertson, C.W.A.C., daughter of Canon W. P. Robertson and Mrs. Robertson, will be in Peterborough some time in December to speak before several women's organizations. At the present, Lt. Robertson is in Kingston, after speaking in Ottawa.

HOME FROM CAMP.

Six members of the Prince of Wales Rangers (R) have returned from Camp Borden, where they spent two weeks taking a refresher course in advanced infantry training. The men also studied something about newer types of weapons while there. They are Maj. James P. McGrath, R.S.M. Harold Chate, R.Q.M.S. Frank Leach, O.S.M. G. Miller, C.S.M. Tom Griffen, and O.R.Q.M.S. Clifford Chapman.

GROWING LATE.

Another oddity by Mother Nature has come to light, and this time, those early springtime visitors, pussy-willows, have been found growing near Buckhorn, by G. Butler, 595 Division street, who was deer hunting there. This is another to the growing list of plants who are defying the weather, convention, and every rule in the horticultural book.

BACK TO CAMP.

After an extremely successful tour of Peterborough and surrounding districts playing for Victory Loan shows and parades, the A.11 Band of the 48th Highlanders from Camp Borden, under the direction of Warrant Officer Harry Thompson, will pack its instruments and probably return to the camp Monday. Since it has been on the road for Victory Loan, the band has played as many as eight engagements a day.

NEW RECRUITS.

Five men enlisted in the Prince of Wales Rangers (R) on Tuesday evening, and one enlistment was reported the previous week. They are: Pte. George K. Crocker, 863 Water Street. Pte. Kenneth F. Hopkins, 52 St. James Street; Pte. William R. Sheehy, 366 Simcoe Street; Pte. Edward F. Turner, R.R. 1, Peterborough; Pte. Keith R. Montgomery, Catharine Street, Lakefield; and Pte. Leonard M. Hayes, 109 Perry Street.

MUSIC IN THE AIR.

Peterborough's anti-noise by-law took a beating Thursday evening, when stepped-up amplifiers set on the gates of the training centre carried music and song from the Victory Loan amateur show in the Drill Hall to many sections of the city. Up and down George street, as far north on Water street as Victoria Park, and districts in Ashburnham were covered by the sounds of fun and laughter, coupled with music both sweet, hot and otherwise. One man said that close to Canada Packers, the sounds rebounded off a dwelling place, and he could hear the program as well as in the Drill Hall itself.

BATTERY RECRUIT.

Gnr. Joseph M. Coughlin, of 286 Sherbrooke Place, has enlisted in the 4th (R) Heavy Anti-Aircraft Battery, R.O.A.

GET DEER.

H. Harvey, well known Kingston contractor, arrived in Peterborough Thursday with the deer he bagged while hunting with W. L. Noonan, north of North Bay. Mr. Harvey is building a service station for the Canadian Oil Company in Ashburnham.

BAGS DEER

While hunting about five miles this side of Apsley around nine o'clock Monday morning, Vince Anthony, 322 Water street, bagged a deer, which he saw first some distance off the highway. Archie Wilson, of Apsley, accompanied Mr. Anthony on many hunting trips, but happened to be absent this time.

COLLIDE ON BRIDGE.

When a car skidded on the slippery surface of the Locks bridge during Thursday night's rain an accident resulted that caused damage to two automobiles but fortunately no one was injured. B. Seabrooke, 492 George street, was driving west on Highway 7 and as he reached the bridge another car travelling east and driven by Ralph Buchanan, R.R. 3, Havelock, went into a skid and the two vehicles collided. The damage to Buchanan's machine was estimated at $150; the injury to the other car was not nearly so great. The police report says there were no indications of either drinking or speeding.

Car Impounded For 3 Months

Garfield Emery, garage proprietor, Otonabee Township, was sentenced to seven days' imprisonment by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court today after he had been convicted on a charge of drunken driving on Hallowe'en night.

The magistrate issued an order to the police that it was their duty to impound the accused's car for three months.

Constable Gordon Trennum testified that on the night of October 31 he was on Hallowe'en duty with Constable Harold Bannon of the auxiliary police. The witness said that they were sitting in a car parked off George street between King and Sherbrooke streets and noticed a car coming north that came into the side as if to park, collided with the curb and then with the rear of a parked car further north.

Constable Trennum said that he investigated and that Emery, who was the driver of the car and its sole occupant, was drunk. "He staggered when he got out of the car," said the witness, "and when I asked him to walk a few feet on the road he again staggered." Constable Trennum added that the accused's gait had been unsteady in the police station and that he smelled liquor off his breath.

Special Constable Bannon said that he noticed the accused stagger when he got out of the car on George street, and again as he went into the police station.

Inspector James F. Reid, who was in the police garage when the accused was brought in, swore that Emery had staggered through the garage on his way into the station and that he could smell liquor off the accused's breath.

Emery, called to the witness box by his counsel, W. C. Grant, testified that he had had no supper that day and that he was tired. He said that early in the afternoon he had had two pints of beer and between 3 o'clock and the time he was arrested he had consumed half of the contents of a 12-ounce bottle of liquor. The manner in which he handled his car just before his arrest, he told Crown Attorney C. J. McElderry, K.C., was caused by fatigue and not by what he had to drink.

Magistrate Langley said that there were discrepancies in the police evidence except on the one point of the accused's intoxication, but that on the whole evidence he would have to register a conviction against the accused.

General Canvass Lags Behind In Loan Total

Peterborough boomed past its Seventh Victory Loan minimum objective of $4,600,000 with a surplus margin of $116,450, and was forging this morning on toward the 10 per cent excess proposed by Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of Finance, in his Peterborough address, prior to the opening of the campaign, and elsewhere throughout the county.

The city's industrial employees of the Payroll Savings division with 122.7 per cent of their objective had paced the Peterborough drive from the outset. Their total subscriptions today amounted to $1,104,350 as compared with their quota of $900,000. Factory employees doubled the surplus percentage suggested by Hon. Mr. Ilsley, and the volume of their sustained investments through these weeks, bulked conspicuously in the present tabulation of the Loan placing Peterborough's grand total at 102.53 per cent of the minimum objective of the city and county, that $4,600,000 now thrust into the background.

Chairman's Appeal

"Peterborough has now obtained its minimum objective in this Victory Loan," said Gordon S. Matthews, chairman of the local war finance committee, at noon today. "As citizens we should not be satisfied until the Payroll Savings and General Canvass sections combined exceed their objective by at least 10 per cent. I am hoping this will be accomplished and that there will be no slowing up on the part of all those interested in the success of this Loan until Saturday night when the campaign officially ends."

11 a.m. Summary

The war finance committee announced at 11 o'clock this morning the following divisional totals:—

Rural general canvass:—Objective $625,000; amount secured $545,800; percentage 87.

Mr. Matthews urged that the combined total investment in payroll savings and general canvass be increased by 10 per cent before the campaign comes to its Saturday night ending.

The objective for these groups is $3,200,000; amount secured $3,266,450; percentage 102.08.

Rural Canvass

Rural North Monaghan, the section remaining after annexation, was leading the county division with 131.8 per cent of its objective. The four northern townships, Harvey, Burleigh, Chandos and Anstruther, as a group, were in second place with 122 per cent of their quota. Dummer was third with 122 per cent.

The village of Lakefield was in fourth position with 109 per cent and Havelock fifth with 103 per cent.

Hovering close to the top, almost on the brink of accomplishment, this morning was Belmont-Methuen at 97.6 per cent and Ennismore at 92 per cent.

Other percentages of objective were:—Otonabee at 83.4, or $116,700 of their $140,000 goal.

Douro 68.7 per cent; Norwood 66 per cent; Smith 65.5 per cent; Asphodel 61.1 per cent.

Small Plants Surpass Victory Loan Quotas

CHEX Broadcasting Co.—100 per cent secured; 65 per cent investing.

Sanitary Ice Supply—133 per cent secured; 92 per cent investing.

The annual meeting of the "V and Y" Cribbage Club was held Thursday evening in their new quarters at 408½ George street. It was decided to change the name to the Peterborough Cribbage and Bridge Club as the intention is to add Bridge to the club activities.

Mr. Everett thanked the club for re-election and said this enlargement was just the beginning of a "real live Club" and that he looked forward to a most successful season of cribbage and bridge.

He said he hoped the membership would reach one hundred, and recalled there were 95 members last winter. The club rooms will be open Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturday nights at 7.30 o'clock. The first doubles tournament will be played Tuesday, December 5. New members will be cordially welcomed.

Hatton Family Awarded $39,000 For City Property

Mr. Justice J. T. Thorson awarded $39,000 to the Hatton family for the expropriation in 1942 of 27.3 acres of their property by Wartime Housing Limited at the conclusion this morning of the sittings of the Exchequer Court of Canada which opened here Tuesday morning.

His Lordship allowed $31,500 for the land acquired by the Crown company as a site for temporary houses for the accommodation of the families of workers on wartime production in local factories, plus $7,500 for injurious affection or damages to the remainder of the property still own by the Hatton heirs.

Wartime Housing Limited had offered $23,000 when they began expropriation proceedings in August, 1942, but that sum was not accepted, and the family's contest of the company's action and offer was referred to the Exchequer Court of Canada whose sessions this week were the first in Peterborough in more than forty years.

T. J. Carley, K.C., represented the Hatton interests, and W. F. Huycke, K.C., was counsel for Wartime Housing Limited.

The members of the Hatton family are: Three sons, Walford, Norman and David; two daughters, Miss Margery Hatton and Mrs. D. J. Lawrie; and one daughter-in-law of the late Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hatton, K.C., Mrs. Edwin Hatton.

His Lordship said that the total compensation of $39,000 was equivalent to $6,500 to each of the six defendants "who will be entitled to their costs to be taxed in the usual way." His decision concluded a review of the evidence and citation of precedents extending more than one hour and a quarter.

Mr. Justice Thorson said the information showed that the housing company had offered $23,000 for the land they have occupied with temporary houses, but the owners, in their statement of defense, claimed $71,000.

Twofold Claim

"The defendants have a twofold claim against the Crown arising out of the expropriation. The first is for the value of the property expropriated as at the date of expropriation, and the other is for damages sustained by the defendants as a result of injurious affection of their remaining land," His Lordship said. "It was apparent to me that the defendants were deeply attached to their property which had been acquired by James Campbell, their mother's father, such a long time ago. They had in mind a sentimental value for the property. The court appreciates this attitude of the defendants, but is confined to finding a money value for the exxpropriated property and the amount of money damage for injurious affection relating to the rest of their property."

"The duty of the court is to determine on a sum that will leave the owners of the expropriated property in the same position so far as the sum total of their property is concerned after expropriation as they were before. The form of their property has changed. Money will take the place of land, but the sum total of the property in the form of land and money should be exactly the same as it was prior to expropriation. These principles are established by a long line of authority."

"The defendants are entitled to the market value of their property not only as farm land, but also for the most advantageous use for which it is adapted and to which it could be applied. The evidence is conclusive that the most advantageous use to which the expropriated property could be put was by subdividing into lots and selling them for residential building purposes."

In a reference to the evidence of witnesses on the question of land values, His Lordship said he was impressed by them and felt they were seeking to arrive at a correct conclusion."

The remaining part of "Walkerfield" is the Hatton house and some nine acres to the east and north of it, on Albertus avenue and Weller street.

After reviewing the evidence of the realty experts, mentioning some as too high, others too low, His Lordship said he had determined that potential 130 lots of the 27.3 acres should be placed at $250 for 120 of them and $150 for ten others at the date of expropriation. He said he adopted the layout of Henry T. Hickey. The date of expropriation signified in part that the expropriated property was not provided with roadways, sewer and water services.

His Lordship also allowed the defendants interest on their award at 5 per cent from August 24, 1942, "to this date."

REPORTED MISSING — Mrs. Roy Emery, who lives at 471 Albert street, received word today that her husband, Pte. Roy Emery, is missing in action. The young soldier was wounded in October, slightly, while acting as a sniper with the Algonquin Regiment. He is the son of Carmon Emery, of Havelock.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Quirt, 425 Sheridan street, who have four sons on active service, two of whom have been casualties in the past 1½ years, were notified Thursday that their third son, F. O. John Quirt, is missing following air operations over the Continent.

Christmas Fund Supported By Repeat Gifts

Every well thinking person loves to do some good for other people, and at Christmas time this is very much in evidence by a far wider circle than at any other season of the year. Experience has also shown that the more one engages in this attitude which pays only in dividends of self satisfaction, the more one gets the urge to continue.

To-day's story on behalf of the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund demonstrates this to a considerable degree, for all of the gifts noted in to-day's receipts come from people who have given on quite a number of occasions, giving an added effect to the foregoing statement.

The Omemee L. O. L. through Rev. R. M. Patterson have assisted this fund on a number of occasions, some of which have been of quite substantial proportions, and now another one for $10.00 is recorded, this having been given to the fund representative in that place by V. Williams, their treasurer. Added to the previous assistance to reach the fund through Rev. Patterson, the district covered by him has now given a total of $729.53, a splendid amount for a place of this size and population.

Bracelect Sale Helps.

There is quite some forethought shown when people travel, and bring home something from which to raise money to help the fund. This is what occurred when Mrs. Rufus Payne of Water street visited a brother living in Westwood, New Jersey this summer, who being quite an adept at wood work and carving, gave her some inlaid bracelets in wood work which really could be considered a work of art.

These found a ready sale which could have been enlarged on if more had been available, but at that they provided a donation of $9.00 which is listed to-day, to add to a number of others given by Mrs. Payne from efforts previously held specially to assist this fund. Then to accentuate this desire to repeat in the good work the fund carries on, Mrs. Payne is holding a sale of potted plants all grown by herself, at the farmers' market this Saturday where she will occupy the stall allotted to the fund by the city fathers.

Only two day ago this column reported a gift of $15.00 from the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Church as a whole, so another gift of $5.00 coming to-day from the Tuesday afternoon South-end group, really accentuates the help that this comparatively small group of women have been continuously giving to the fund, which has now reached proportions that total $237.00, a splendid record of which they may justifiably feel proud.

Personal Gifts on Way.

Getting a start towards another list of purely personal gifts came about when Paige Rowell handed the secretary of the fund a donation, and since then another has been added, leading to the hope that a fairly sizeable list of such will shortly be available for this column. Remember, every cent goes for the purpose for which it is given.

Omemee L. O. L., Mr. V. Williams, treasurer, per R. M. Patterson..	10.00
Mrs. Rufus Payne, sale of Bracelets	9.00

Queen Mary Staff Reaches Objective

It was reported this afternoon that the staff of the Queen Mary Public School had gone over the top in the Seventh Victory Loan with 102 per cent. of the objective. Four of Peterborough eleven schools under the Board of Education are now over the top: Queen Mary, Queen Alexandra, May's and Confederation. In each case the objective was set at 15 per cent. of the total salary for the next six months.

The Examiner
FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1944

VICTORY BANNER—Employees of Canadian General Electric Company and Genelco, Limited, fashioned the central figures of their plant emblem of achievement in the Seventh Victory Loan. Their total subscriptions of $544,450 signified 120 per cent. of their $450,000 objective. Progress of that first week's drive was recorded on big announcement boards such as this one overlooking the Park Street Loan. Probably a year hence the staff that bought more than half a million dollars of this Loan may have forgotten the details, but it is an accomplishment which the committee considers well worth remembering after the big boards have gone with their transient glory.

George Alex, who pleaded guilty as a third offender to being drunk was sentenced to three months in the county jail.

Pledge Candidates

BRANDON, Man. Nov. 10 (CP)— M. J. Coldwell, National Leader of the C.C.F., said here last night he wanted to see members of parliament elected who were pledged to the party's policy and no other, and said there could be no compromise on this point with other parties.

H.M.C.S. "UGANDA" CANADA'S FIRST CRUISER—During a brief but impressive ceremony, held recently at an Eastern U.S. Navy yard, the powerful 8,000-ton cruiser "Uganda" was officially transferred from the Royal Navy to the Royal Canadian Navy. The first of two cruisers for Canada's fast-growing Navy, H.M.C.S. "Uganda," shown here, is 549 feet in length, mounts 9 six-inch guns, 6 twenty-one inch torpedo tubes and is equipped with the very latest anti-aircraft armament. "Uganda" has a speed of more than 30 knots, carries a complement of some 800 men, and is entirely Canadian manned. Completed and originally commissioned for the Royal Navy, late in 1942, "Uganda" played an important role in the invasion of Sicily and Italy. Later she moved up the Italian coast in support of the landings at Salerno where she was damaged by enemy aircraft. She subsequently made her way to the United States for refit. (RCN Photo)

Pupils Of Lakefield School Present Special Education Week Program

LAKEFIELD, Nov 10. — (ENS) — Memorial Hall was filled Tuesday afternoon when pupils of the village public and high schools entertained the parents in the observation of education week.

J. W. Redpath, chairman of the High School Board, gave an interesting review of school days in Lakefield sixty years ago, when the local school consisted of four rooms and the subjects taught consisted chiefly of the "three R's" with a "something" of grammar and geography thrown in. At this time as now, there was keen competition in sports between "the Grove" and the village school. The Grove then was known as "Sheldrake School" and had a total of 35 pupils enrolled Mr. Redpath recalled the games played then, the most popular of which was 'shinney on your own side".

Following this address, John Wray's room, Grade 5 and 6 in public school, sang two numbers under the direction of the school music instructor, C. Renaud, entitled, "Huntsman" and "Ho! The Boating." The latter selection a part song, was sung exceptionally well and showed the result of careful training.

An educational film on the migration of birds was shown and Jean Spence and John David Grylls, played a piano duet.

Tells of School Days

Rev. S. A. R. Wood as guest speaker welcomed the new principal H. Fawcett, his wife and daughters Joanne and Gwen. Rev. Mr. Wood held the attention of the children as he told them stories of his school days. He impressed upon his juvenile audience the fact that they have an important role to play if Canada is to become the greatest country in the world.

"Now", said Mr. Wood, "Canada ranks third or fourth, but by the time we older people are walking with canes it will be the greatest, and your children are the ones who will help to make it so. You have a responsibility to repay your parents and teachers, for their care and instruction, which can only be repaid by you all becoming good citizens and doing as much as possible to make your country a better place to live in."

"The Hunters Horn" was then sung by Principal E. Sloan's Room, Grade 7 and 8 of public school, under the supervision of Mr. Renaud and accompanied by Jean Spence, Minerita Hull sang, "Say a Prayer", accompanied by Doreen Kelly, and several more educational films were shown, one a war picture depicting the bombing of Malta, which so heroically withstood the Nazi bombings and whose people were awarded the Cross of St. George, by the King.

The boys' orchestra made up of Owen Bullock, Donnie Hill, Clayton Hutt, John Peel, George Kelly and Herb Knox entertained with a variety of cowboy songs, duets, and solos.

Badae For Greatcoats

HALIFAX, Nov. 10 — (CP) — Active army soldiers will wear the general service badge on their greatcoat sleeves as well as tunics this winter, it was announced from headquarters of Military District No. 6 last night. Previously, the badge was worn only on tunics.

Need Heavy Shells

TORONTO, Nov. 10 — (CP) — Lt.-Col. F. H. Higgins, chief of ordnance, United States Army, said yesterday a shortage of heavy shells had necessitated rationing on the western front, and added it was "most important" that Gen. Eisenhower's men be supplied with all the shells they need.

Deserters Rounded Up

ROME, Nov. 10 — (AP) — Military police have rounded up two gangs, made up in part of deserters from United States and Canadian units and the French Foreign Legion, believed responsible for a wave of holdups and slayings in Rome and Naples, officials announced today.

Germans Evacuate Strumica Valley

LONDON, Nov. 10—(CP)—The German High Command said to-day German forces had evacuated the Strumica Valley in Southern Yugoslavia "according to plan."

The withdrawal apparently was a continuation of the retreat from Greece. The Strumica is a passageway through the mountains between Yugoslavia and Bulgaria.

The Germans declared in a broadcast communique that they had repulsed Allied forces which landed on Melos Island off the Greek southeast coast "after many days of hard fighting." The Germans reported the landing several days ago.

Air Force Crippled

ROME, Nov. 10 —(AP) — Two years of aerial warfare in the Mediterranean area have cost the Germans 11,200 planes and left their airforce impotent in the war in southern Europe, the Allied Air Command announced yesterday.

Red Cross Needs More Workers To Fill Quota

HAVELOCK, Nov. 10 — (ENS) — An appeal for workers of all kinds from Mrs. D. G. MacKenzie, acting chairman, National Women's War Work Committee, was read at the regular meeting of the Havelock-Belmont Red Cross Society. She pointed out that more comforts are required than ever before in Canada's history. For the first time since the outbreak of war there is a whole Canadian Army in the field, and the winter will be long, cold and wet. The Navy grows constantly and needs more woollens if it is to accomplish its tremendous task and the fliers at great heights where cold is intense at all times of the year must be cared for. We must not fail the men in the Services. More civilian clothing is needed, she declared. The flying bombs are still causing desolation in parts of England, and in addition now parts of liberated Europe can be reached with supplies for the first time. The first shipment of Canadian clothing went to France some time ago and arrangements are being made for a further large shipment for Yugoslavia.

Quotas Low.

The letter stated that the appeal was sent at this time as the reports on the progress of quotas for nine months of this year were causing grave concern at national headquarters. It is evident that great numbers of workers are still insisting on making the articles they most like to make, and the appeal to everyone was to take whatever work is the most needed. The articles listed at the close of the appeal showed the Ontario quota and the quota accepted by the branches, leaving 47,940 articles to still be accepted on guotas.

It was moved by Mrs. C. Anderson and Mrs. W. Drew that a copy of this appeal for workers be sent to the secretaries of the various church organizations to be read at their meetings. A copy was also sent to the Belmont Women's Institute.

Order Material.

Moved by Mrs. G. H. Chiles and Mrs. B. Post that Mrs. A. Anderson order sufficient material to make 300 diapers and that the assistance of the Junior Red Cross Society be requested in making same. A communication was also received from Stafford Roberts, Commissioner of the Ontario Division regarding compassionate leave at home and overseas for men and women serving in the forces. It stated an impression prevails that the Red Cross is able to obtain this leave when circumstances arise at the home which in the opinion of the family justify a leave being granted. The Red Cross cannot under any circumstances assist in obtaining leave by service personnel. The serviceman must make application for the leave himself to his commanding officer, and if he is overseas the application must be supported by a doctor's certificate.

Need Cars.

A report from the Blood Donor convener stated that the committee had a number of donors on the list who were having difficulty in getting cars to make the trip to Peterborough, and three donors from Cordova Mines had been sent by train for that reason. On motion by Mrs. L. Colquhoun and Mrs. G. W. Chiles the committee was authorized to go ahead and do what it could. The treasurer was authorized to issue the following cheques: Canadian Pacific Railway Co., three tickets to Peterborough, $4.05; Mrs. F. Watson, flannelette, $3.15. The committee had a busy afternoon commencing the quota recently received to use up the material on hand.

Consider Refusal

TORONTO, Nov. 10 — (CP) — The crown's refusal to supply copies of the evidence for the appeal of William Schmidt, one of four men convicted of the torture murder of Mrs. Viola Jamieson, of Flanders, Ont., will be considered Monday before Chief Justice R. S. Robertson and the Ontario Court of Appeal.

"UGANDA" CAPTAIN—Capt. G. R. Mainguy, O.B.E., R.C.N., of Chemainus, B.C., commanding officer of Canada's new 8,000-ton cruiser, H.M.C.S. Uganda, which played an important role in the invasion of Sicily and Italy and later moved up the Italian coast in support of the landings at Salerno.

Victory Certain Wilson Claims

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Mediterranean, Nov. 10 — (CP-Reuter) —Victory is certain, said Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Allied Supreme Commander in the Mediterranean, in an order of the day marking the second anniversary of the Allied landings in North Africa.

He said: "We rejoice equally in the Allied triumphs on the Western front, on the Eastern front and in the Pacific.

"They're all part of one global war.

"The importance of our share in the war in Europe is as great as ever and will remain so until the end. Victory is certain. Let us see to it that it is not long delayed."

Fairview Y.P.U. Host To Gilmour Society

FAIRVIEW, Nov. 10 — (ENS) — Gilmour B.Y.P.U. were guests of Fairview Y.P.U. at a Hallowe'en party. Following weird and spooky ghost walk, costumes were judged by Mrs. Henry Sharpe, Lorne Reynolds, and Earl Rosborough. Grandma Lillian McGregor received first prize, and Everett Poast, a clown, received the comic prize. A program of games and relays was enjoyed, and these were in charge of Marjorie Galbraith, Olga Wilson, and Carman Bell. Gilmour Young People were in charge of the worship period. John Edmison read the Scripture and Burritt Mann told of the story of one of Paul's missionary journeys.

Lunch was served and a vote of thanks was tendered Fairview by Burritt Mann and responded to by John Lewis.

Quebec To Be Like Eire—Bouchard

TORONTO, Nov. 10—Unless the eyes of the people of Quebec are opened to the aims of the Jacques Cartier Society that Province will find itself with a government like Spain's and a position in Canada comparable to Southern Ireland's in the British Isles, Senator T. D. Bouchard yesterday declared on his arrival in Toronto during a trans-Canada speaking tour.

The short, 63-year-old Liberal stalwart, who came to address the West Toronto Kiwanis Club tonight at Casa Loma, stressed that he does not attack the Church, of which he is a loyal member, when he charges that a group of the clergy in Quebec sponsor and direct the organization which would oust every Protestant and establish a Church-dominated State. Unless the effort of this group, he claims, is exposed, "there will be riots and a condition akin to civil war, except that civil war would be impossible by Quebec's couple of millions against Canada's and the United States' many millions."

Though the already entrenched strength of the "group" is revealed by the swift persecution which overtook him when he was fired from the Quebec Hydro Commission and had his hotel license cancelled, Senator Bouchard believes that he has the common people of Quebec behind him in his efforts to "reveal the dangerous people."

Letters Commend Him

He has been literally flooded, he says, by letters urging him to continue his efforts, and most newspapers have not been "unsympathetic." Furthermore, he points out, he had expressed locally the opinions, which gained so much prominence later in his Senate address, about the group of clergy, "and was elected 25 times in a row mayor of my home town of St. Hyacinthe."

Canadian disunity is desired, Senator Bouchard claims, by the small, powerful group of clergy who would isolate Quebec. Yet, when their objectives are revealed, he, as the revealer, is assailed by that group as a creator of disunity.

His objectives, he insisted, are to show that religion and politics should not become one, but must remain separate, and that assumption of political power by a Church group—or at least domination of the political State by such a group—"can occur in Canada exactly as in Spain or Portugal."

"In Quebec the people know I am a good Catholic," said Senator Bouchard. "At least most of the people do. But here they will carefully seek to create the impression that I am an atheist, a Communist. Thus they would discredit me with you. I was born a Catholic and I will die a Catholic. But I recognize the difference between clergy and religion; between Church, religion and State. I believe that unless their propaganda of hate is revealed and shown for what it is they will turn the minds of too many people in Quebec and we will have riots — we will become the Southern Ireland of Canada."

Many of the clergy, Senator Bouchard said, know he is right and do not endorse the clique which sponsors the Jacques Cartier movement. But they know what persecution can be applied to them; they know their voices can be smothered by the militant, vigorous, vicious group. For this reason, he says, he is willing to "take the blows" to reveal the danger.

Douro Establishes Restricted Area

DOURO, Nov. 10.—A by-law establishing a restricted area in the township of Douro, including all property west of the Trent Canal from Nassau to the city limits was passed at the regular meeting of the Douro council and ordered sent on to the Municipal Board for its approval. In the by-law farm and gardening land were exempted from the restrictions.

On motion of Councillors R. Tedford and A. Coughlin permission was granted J. W. Jones to erect hydro poles on the road allowance between lots 25 and 26 on the west side of highway 28.

The following accounts were ordered paid: Relief accounts—Purity Bread $12.80, Zeller's Stores $6.54, Agnew Surpass Shoe Store $7.35, Mrs. E. Crowe, Armour Road $30.00. General township accounts—J. J. Leahy, relief officer's salary for month of Oct., $4.50, Peterborough Printing Co. tax bills, $7.69, J. W. Pierce, preparing plan and description for restricted area bylaw $40, B. Q. Dench, salary as assessor for 1944 $165. Road accounts—J. Nolan $4; V. Dunford, team, $9, G. Hamilton $1.60, R. Allen $1.20, M. P. Coughlin $50.80, J. Towns $4, Alphonsus Condon, tractor $33.75, township of Dummer, power grader, $20, F. Sharp, gravel, $32.16, J. J. Leahy, gravel, $122.22, R. A. Blythe Co. 2,573 yds. gravel $2,521.54.

The council adjourned to meet December 15th at 1.30 p.m.

Markets Needed For Great Canadian Output

TORONTO, Nov. 10 — (CP) — S. M. Wedd, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, said Thursday that export trade was the "most vital factor" bearing upon the problem of post-war prosperity and post-war jobs for Canadians.

In an address, he said war had developed in Canada an industrial equipment "far beyond anything we had before the war," and that markets must be found to enable the Dominion to turn this new equipment to world account.

No other nation ordinarily derives such a high percentage of its national income from export trade, but while Canada's trade, national expenditure, the people's deposits and banking assets have so greatly expanded, the ordinary lending facilities of banks have been so little in demand that the greater part of the expansion of bank assets was represented in their investment portfolios.

"It is self-evident," said Mr. Wedd "that the anomalies of which I refer arise from causes which must be reversed if Canadians are to prosper in the post-war world.

"We must assume and expect that as rapidly as possible, restrictive policies will be relaxed, that regimentations will be withdrawn as quickly as post-war circumstances allow and that export trade on a world basis wil be freed progressively from quotas, priorities, and encumbering regimentations.

"We must assume that Canada will play its part in an international freeing of individual initiative and enterprise from the fetters clamped upon it by the imperative and arbitrary demands of war."

Tremendous Gains

Since the outbreak of war in 1939 Canada had moved onward from a government expenditure of $553,000,000 a year for all purposes to an economy in which the Dominion Government now was spending more than $5,000,000,000 a year. Canada's productive capacity now was operating in a larger magnitude.

"In the transition from war to peace and afterwards, all of us will have to think and plan and operate to a large extent in terms of this magnitude. We must go forward in the new dimension if the opportunity for remunerative toil is to be provided for all of those who are willing to work. It is obvious that for this nation to contemplate returning to the dimension of 1939 is unthinkable."

Great stimulus could be given the post-war development of trade and employment if business and industry were made reasonably sure of fair profits — profits not unfairly depleted by undue taxation. A scaling down of taxes from the heights of wartime necessity would release accumulated savings for development of enterprise and industry and the creation of jobs.

Mr. Wedd said the democratic world could not suddenly scrap the system of free initiative and look to "a Utopia brought about overnight."

Mothers Enjoy Visiting "Open School"

A large number of mothers took advantage of the "open school" at Prince of Wales school Thursday afternoon, sponsored by the Home and School Association. The open school plan, in observation of Education Week, found great favor with the mothers, who had an opportunity to enter the classrooms while the classes were being carried on, and then have a chat with the teacher about their children's work.

Mrs. G. Hutchinson and Mrs. G. Webb, president and vice-president of the Association, received the guests, who enjoyed tea, served in the kindergarten later in the afternoon. Members of the Grade eight class who assisted in serving were Misses Marilynn Hollingsworth, Joyce Massey, Beverly Kidd, Norma Betts, Lena Macphail and Marilyn Moore, while students from Mr. Windrem's room acted as ushers.

Parents Discuss Problems With Teachers

The King George Home and School Association sponsored a successful "open school" on Thursday afternoon when parents were shown the work of their children and talked over with the teachers individual parent, pupil and teacher problems, after the pupils had been dismissed. The teachers expressed their appreciation for the number of parents showing interest in their children's education and advancement.

After three o'clock, tea was served to parents and teachers. Many new members enrolled and several old members renewed their Home and School pledge at the membership and literature table at the entrance to the tea room, in charge of Mrs. G. L. Hildenbrand. Receiving and welcoming the parents and visitors was Mrs A. G. Stock, president of the Association.

Individual tea tables, attractive with fancy cloths and pretty dishes, and centred with bouquets of pink and yellow 'mums, donated by Mrs. E. Ingall, and marigolds, donated by Mrs. R. Harvey, were ranged around the central tea table.

Pouring tea at the main table, set with a lace cloth centred with a bouquet of wine-colored 'mums donated by Mrs. G. Eason, were Mrs. Ada Craig and Mrs. J. W. Ebbs, past presidents of the Association. Tasty refreshments were served by members of the Association.

Proceeds from the tea will be used to make up a donation for the Memorial Community Centre. Mrs. C. Batchelor and her committee were in charge of the tea. Members were reminded to come and bring their friends to the regular meeting at the school on Tuesday, November 4, at eight o'clock, when J. H. Moebus, guest speaker, will discuss "Vocational Guidance."

Poetry Lecture Feature Of CWL Program

Monsignor F. J. O'Sullivan gave an interesting lecture on 'Poetry' the Hand-maid of religion'. Those taking part were Margaret Amyotte, Mary Garvey, Teresa Roche, Victorine Guerin, Marie Hynes, Donald McGillen, William Duignan, and Jack McConkey. Of special interest were selections from Marjorie Pickthall, the famous Canadian author.

A vote of thanks to Monsignor O'Sullivan was moved by Mrs. Hubert Kennedy and seconded by Mrs. H. Fraser.

Bishop Macdonald commended the work of the League, and praised the talent displayed during the evening's program. Expressed his appreciation of the lecture of the evening, he referred to the recent anniversary in the priesthood celebrated by Monsignor O'Sullivan.

Monsignor O'Brien, Father Gallery, CSSR, Father Killen, Father Lynch and Father Greenan were also present.

Prairie Units Opened Way For Canadians

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN HOLLAND, Nov. 10 (CP Cable).—Two Prairie infantry battalions, the South Saskatchewan Regiment and the Regina Rifle Regiment, took part in the great battle of the Schelde estuary which led to the opening of Antwerp, it was permitted to disclose.

The South Saskatchewans operated on South Beveland Island, on the north side of the estuary and before that in battles fought north of Antwerp to clear the causeway to Beveland and its approaches.

The Regina Riflemen shared in the epic struggle on the Leopold Canal and later took part in attacks from the Breskens area which drove the Germans westward through the Schelde pocket south of the estuary.

Crossed Waterway At Night.

It was the Saskatchewans who made the difficult assault over the ship canal cutting across South Beveland Island in the drive for Walcheren, crossing the waterway at night in canvas and wood boats.

The Germans made several counter-attacks against the narrow bridgehead but the westerners repelled them and next day the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry passed through to continue the attack westward across the island.

While the South Saskatchewans held the bridgehead during the first critical night and day, Royal Canadian Engineers built a bridge over the canal, working under fire for 18 hours without a break.

The successful crossing of this canal was one of the most important jobs in the Beveland offensive. German resistance on the island rapidly disintegrated from then on. Canadians linked up with British forces who had landed on the southeast tip of Beveland and within a few days the island was entirely in our hands.

Must Wait Month For Casualty Lists

OTTAWA, Nov. 10 — (CP) — Canadian Army casualties for the heavy Schelde Estuary fighting, which Prime Minister Churchill said in London to-day had cost heavy Canadian and British losses, won't be available until early in December, Defence Headquarters indicated to-day.

The last casualty figures covered the month of September and were issued November 6. This lag is observed for security reasons, and it is assured October figures—reflecting the heavy Schelde fighting—will be issued about December 8.

Toys Fewer Than Ever At Christmas

By RONALD BARRY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 10 — (CP) — Christmas in the "victory year" is going to be much the same as any other since 1940 for British children, for although the board of trade has announced the trebling of the season's quota of toys, manufacturers say that there will be fewer than ever.

The reason given by manufacturers is that although the treble quota lasts until Jan. 31, few people require toys after Christmas eve and the board has not given them enough time to supply retailers with as many toys and games as they need.

The quality also will be poor, as, although the maximum price of a finished toy is set at $6, the prices of raw materials is not, and such things as wooden toys, "cuddly" and stuffed dolls will be manufactured from odd pieces of timber collected from war factories and waste dumps, card-board, paper and rag scraps.

Toys Held Up.

This year, with the European front demanding all priority supply lines, toys are held up still more. That is why black market goods are finding a ready market from retailers who cannot get enough to fill their windows at Christmas. Any flags and Christmas bunting to be had is old stock labelled "made in Japan."

But even with prospect of few presents this year, the children are slightly appeased with the increase in their holiday week rations by four ounces. It means they will have a pound of sweets this year, plus a pound of oranges, if they arrive in time from North Africa.

Many toy firms say shortage of supplies and labor are other reasons for the production holdup.

"Had the board made up its mind to increase the quota three months ago, we could have got enough material and labor to make sufficient toys to go round," one manufacturer said.

"In our trade we work six months ahead. It takes that time to get the toys made, distributed to the wholesalers and from there get them to the shops."

Life Of Perfect Man Discussed At YPU

HAVELOCK, Nov. 10 — (ENS) — The Christian Fellowship convener, Miss Stella Wilkinson, presided for the program at the regular meeting of the Young People's Society of the United Church, when Principal W. M. Patterson of the public school was the guest speaker for the topic on 'Fellowship', using as his theme the phrase, "Jesus the Man."

He pointed out that Jesus was the perfect man in every way. His body was a perfect specimen of physical fitness and His character and spiritual feelings were very human.

Jerry Melville read an article entitled "For All the Sains"; a solo, "Oh Love That Will Not Let Me Go" was sung by Miss Jacjueline Puffer. A poem, "Not Afraid," written by an unknown Canadian soldier in Italy, was read by Miss Merle McMullen.

The president, Carleton Longmuir presided for the devotional period, when the Scripture lesson was read by Bruce Melville. There were 23 members present. After the close of the meeting games were enjoyed.

JUST FOR WOMEN

By CONNIE NICHOLSON (Society Editor of The Examiner)

Now that icy winds and colder night are upon us, the housewife is taking stock of her bed linens, and getting warm blankets and flannelette sheets out of mothballs, for another season of wear. As is usually the custom, she has generally washed her blankets before putting them away, so that they are fresh and clean and shining.

However, she wonders as she smooths them out, how long will they stay this way? It's true that blankets have a perfect penchant for gathering dust, and soiling quickly, although she tries her best to keep them clean and avoid washing them too often. Everyone has noticed that it's the top edge of blankets and quilts that show soil first, while the rest remains spotless, but it is necessary to launder the whole thing.

Well, your troubles are over Mrs. Housewife! Here's a tip that will protect vulnerable edges and give longer wear. Bind the troublesome edges with pieces of voile, muslin or cheesecloth about sixteen inches wide. It can be secured to the blanket with plain basting or sturdy snap fasteners. If she wants to be fancy, she can make buttons and buttonholes, sewing the buttons to the blanket, and making the holes in the material to be fastened on. A regular dip in the washing for these new edgings, and the binding will keep bright and fresh, and the whole blanket will be saved. Blankets used as comforters at the bottom of the bed can be protected in this manner too, but, for a special touch of glamor, bind these with matching material.

Conservation Tip

Speaking of conserving materials and time, too, here are some ideas about helping precious hard-to-get bed linens to last longer. To lengthen the wear in sheets, vary the folds when ironing them and putting them away, since thin spots generally appear along regular creases.

Remember to remove the sheets carefully from the bed, avoiding putting strain on worn parts. Jerking or pulling roughly often causes little rips and tears on unnoticed projections too.

If the mattress is worn, cover it with an old blanket, which can be covered in turn with a piece of heavy unbleached cotton. This added material makes the bed more comfortable, and also protects sheets and prevents rust or other marks from exposed springs.

Experts have proven that clean sheets and pillowcases actually wear longer, so it's wise to remember to change beds often, giving the linen frequent washings. Before the linens are put in the hot washing water, they should be checked and any stains, especially food or medicine stains should be removed, since the hot water tends to "set" them. Remember too, not to use too much blueing, because it weakens the fibres. As a last tip, always put freshly ironed sheets and pillowcases on the bottom of the pile in the linen closet or chest, so that wear is distributed evenly over the whole supply.

Inventions Help

There comes a time in every woman's life when she must face the facts — and serve a meal of left-overs, to avoid wasting good food, precious in wartime. Practically every homemaker dislikes serving left-overs, because, although she can make them tasty, and impress the family with the need for cleaning out the refrigerator, she still can't persuade them that they "like" them.

However, there's a solution to this problem, and it works on the adage that what people don't know won't hurt them. Therefore, if the family doesn't know they're eating a meal of necessity, they'll probably ask for second helpings and compliment mother on her cooking. There is really no need for her to tell them they're eating anything as prosaic as a left-over.

Here's the recipe. Dice up left-over chicken, ham, veal, or lamb, utilizing unappetising ends which often are tough. Melt tablespoons of butter or margarine in the top of a double boiler over direct heat, and stir in eight tablespoons of flour, and three quarters of a teaspoon of salt and one-eighth of a teaspoon of pepper. Remove from the heat, and add three cups of milk slowly, stirring until well blended. Cook the mixture in the double boiler until the sauce thickens, and add two and one-half cups, approximately, of the cooked diced meat. For an added tang, one half a teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce really gives a connoiseur's touch.

After the meat has been thoroughly heated, pour the hot mixture over tea biscuits or muffins, and serve, piping hot. With a small salad on at the side, or a dish of salad on the table, there's an excellent and nourishing meal, with little expense and bother, and the family won't know the difference.

Norwegians Join Reds

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 — (AP) — Norwegian Army regulars now are fighting alongside the Red Army against the Germans in Norway, foreign minister Trycve Lie of the Royal Norwegian government said yesterday in a broadcast from Moscow reported by the Norwegian Information Service.

Make Small Gains

WITH THE U.S. 3rd ARMY IN FRANCE, Nov. 10—(AP)—Infantry divisions of the U.S. 3rd Army made small gains north of Metz today as other forces to the south continued advances begun yesterday.

DOROTHY DIX . . .

MARRIAGE IS A RISK
Youthful Unions Need Romance Plus Congeniality Base

◇ ◇ ◇

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — A boy friend of mine, who is now in the service, and I have both been disappointed in our love lives. We are 18 years old and have been closely associated ever since our babyhood and have been devoted friends, but never lovers. We are thinking with our common ground and congeniality, it would not be too bad a bet for us to marry. Certainly it would not be a risk. For if we have gotten along so well for the past eighteen years, why couldn't we get along as well for the next fifty?

What is your opinion?

WONDERING.

Common Tastes Essential

ANSWER—Certainly a marriage that is founded on congeniality rests upon a solid base and the husband and wife who have the same politics and religion and taste in cooking are much more likely to get along peaceably together than those who have not an idea, a taste or a habit in common and who can start a fight at the drop of a hat.

So if you were getting on towards middle-age, instead of being mere kids, I would call down blessings on your marriage and expect to attend your Golden Wedding. But at 18, you are too young to be satisfied with just suitability and common sense. You want romance and sentiment and thrills in your marriage and it will be dust and ashes in your teeth if you don't get it.

You are making the common mistake of the very young in thinking things are finished before they really have begun. You think that your hearts are broken and that you will never love again because some teen-ager has played you false, but in a year, or maybe less, you will laugh at your acute attack of calf love and wonder that you ever mistook a passing fancy for the grand passion.

You say that there is no risk in a boy and girl marrying who have gotten along amiably together all through their childhood and adolescence. Why there is absolutely no sure thing in marriage. There is always risk in marriage. You may think you know every hair of a boy or girl's head, every quirk of his or her character, every thought of his or her mind but when you marry him or her, you find you are united to a perfect stranger. That is the chance you have to take in marriage.

And a still worse risk is that if you marry without love, you always are liable to meet someone you do fall in love with and then there are broken hearts and tragedy.

DEAR MISS DIX—My mother wants me to go to college but I want to go to a near-by town and get a job and set up an apartment with another girl, but my mother objects. What do you advise me to do?

H.

◇ ◇ ◇

ANSWER—Listen to your mother. For two adolescent girls to set up an apartment without any older woman to chaperone them and look after them is simply for them to defy fate. They are too ignorant

Holsteins Bring Record Prices

OAKVILLE, Nov. 10—An average price of $1,257 for Canadian consignment sales, a record since 1920, was set Thursday when 75 representatives of Canada's Holstein blue bloods were auctioned off at the second annual all-Canadian Holstein sale. Buyers from both sides of the border paid a total of $94,305.

The annual sales were started last year, when 69 cattle sold set a Canadian record average of $1,037.

Last Year's Price Equalled

Last year's top price of $5,100, brought by a three-year-old heifer, Meadowood Abbekerk Rag Apple, was equalled by a typey young male cousin, three-months-old Glenafton Ray Apple Alert, which went to R. H. McIlquham of Lanark, Ont. It was consigned to J. J. E. McCague of Glenafton Farm, Alliston. Next highest price, brought by the exhortations of the auctioneer, Lorne Franklin of Toronto, was the $4,800 paid by H. J. McFarland of Picton for Montview Artis Pabst Posch. She was consigned by W. A. Hodge, of Montview Farm, St Laurent, Que.

Two other cows brought $4,000 each, but the group with the highest average, $3,04375, were the nine bulls, including the highest price for the sale and the third highest, $4,700, paid by T. E. Stephens of Richmond Hill for Raymondale Dalax, consigned by Senator Donat Raymond of Raymondale Farm, Vaudreuill, Que.

Mostly From Ontario

Cattle present were mostly from Ontario, but there were a few from the West and from Prince Edward Island. The buyers were from Ontario, Quebec, and the States of Massachusetts, New York, Vermont, Michigan and Illinois. Buying about a third of the cattle sold, the Americans bid mainly in the medium-price range.

Glenn L. Bancroft of Flint, Mich., buyer of last year's highest-priced cow, will take home four animals, among them $4,000 Meadowood Lochinvar Helen, consigned by J. E. Chandler of Meadowood Farm, Hudson Heights, Que. Daniel I. Mayne of Rochester bought seven Holsteins totalling $5,800. Hon. George S. Henry made three new acquisitions for his Tormorden farm.

SKINNY YOUTH

Young turkeys do not put on much fat until they are at least 20 weeks old. A good special dinner buy is a tom turkey not much older than five months.

2,400 People Attend Amateur Show

Betty Combes, 17, and her sister, Mabel, 15, of the A. Wander Company, walked off with first prize of $50 in cash, when their sparkling vocal duet of several favorite songs topped the applause meter at the big Victory Loan Amateur Show, held before an audience of 2,400 that packed the Drill Hall in the training centre, Thursday evening. Record crowds swallowed up seating accommodation long before curtain time, and standing room space quickly vanished.

For a comedy song, dance and violin act, Herb Mullens and Robert Barnard, alias Zeke and Rube, of the Peterborough Canoe Company, were awarded second prize of $25.

Third prize of $10 was awarded R. E. Johnston, of the C.G.E. who entertained with a comic monologue and black-face song and dance. Mr. Johnston previously took first prize in the C.G.E.-Genelco elimination contests.

Failed To Appear

Although one act was expected from each of the 23 payroll-deducting industries in Peterborough, several were unable to enter in the contest. To make up for this deficiency, a few of the plants were represented by two or more acts. Before the main show, featuring the finalists for the big cash prizes, a complete show-in-itself, made up of entertainers from the C.G.E.-Genelco, occupied the first portion of the program. To make it more interesting for the "actors", a total of $30 in cash prizes was offered for this show. Playing old time music, dancing, and generally making themselves funny, Ross McMillen, Harlen McMullen, Roy Francis, and Frank Doherty, of the Armature department, won first prize of $15. Second prize of $10 went to the "Dairy Farmers", also known as the Induction Motor Indians, consisting of Len Millard, Wilfred Lunn, Joe Clancy, Sylvia Duignans and Eugene Reynolds. Melodic vocal treatments of "Good-Night Soldier", and "Shine On Harvest Moon", by Evelyn Robinson of the Traffic Department, brought her a third prize of $5. Three door prizes of $5 each were awarded during the evening. Mrs. Jack Allen, 721 Bethune street was the only winner whose name was available.

Lieut. Thomas Mason, now associated with one of the directorates at National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa, was the master of ceremonies of the C.G.E. show. Lieut. Mason, who originally enlisted with the Prince of Wales Rangers (C.A.) when they mobilized here in 1942, urged the audience to buy the Victory bond they can't afford, as it is the "extra" bond bought, that will make the difference between going over the top, and lagging behind.

Under the direction of El Jones, commercial manager of CHEX, and organizer of all the Victory Loan Amateur contests, the huge audience was treated to one of the biggest entertainment festivals seen here for some time. Apart from the amateurs, who presented an entire evening's musical, comedy, and dance revue by themselves, featured performers provided many highlights in fun and music. Russ Titus, formerly of the successful Canadian Army Show, brought down the house with his vocal interpretation of "I'll Get By", and "Sleepy Time Down South". A former member of Major Bowes' Amateur troupe in New York City, Vince Ludlow was another star of the evening, with his portrait of a little girl nervously singing "Mairzy Doates". Band music was offered by the A11 Band of the 48th Highlanders from Camp Borden, under the direction of Warrant Officer Harry Thompson. Music sweet and hot by Hal MacFarlane's Melody Men was another feature that proved immensely popular with the audience.

A Comic Highlight

Entertainment from the amateurs was largely old time music combined with a comedy dance or routine. Among the highlights of the finalists, was a song and dance by Lois McBride of Westclox, who was dressed in a kind of red bathing suit creation, that defied comparison. Her acting of the comic ditty brought gales of laughter from the house.

There was a saxophone solo by Bruce Hall, Brinton Carpet, accompanied by Max Fredenburg at the piano, piano-accordion solos by J. Hodson, of Peterborough Lock; cowboy songs by Cyril Young, of De Laval, accompanied by Leo Gooley on the guitar; a talented piano duet team of Ethelwyn Gibson and Gloria Wilson, of the A. Wander company, and a hilarious comedy solo by E. J. Hotson, of Westclox, who dressed as a woman. He was accompanied by Pianist Mrs. E. Foster.

From the De Laval, the Western Rough Riders opened up with some entertaining musical highlights, featuring old time selections. Backstage they were found to be Ernie Bell, Vern Hiegh, Barbara Hiegh and Jimmy McHenry. Piano accordion and violin selections were offered by George Jurphy and H. Vinette, of the Peterborough Utilities.

Another entry from the DeLaval was the Jack Patton and Hill Billies act, featuring 10-year-old Barbara Patton, step-dancing, Ross McMullen at the piano, Bert Shanks at the banjo, and Gordon Tucker, at the traps. Costumed in colorful Hawaiian garment, Claire Dawson, Elizabeth Milburn and Lila Milburn offered a guitar trio, and an act entitled "Blackout 2" featured Vic Coombes and Jack Marshall.

El. Jones, in a brief address of gratitude to those who helped in any way to make the show such a success, paid tribute to Lieut.-Col. James Turnbull, officer commanding the training centre, for the use of the drill hall; J. K. Hughes Motors, Norm Crowe, C.G.E. Victory Loan Committee, E. Simpson, unit organizer of the Victory Loan, Major William Dalton, head of the Public Relations of the Peterborough Loan, Alene Holt, also of the Public Relations, the Melody Men, W.O. 1 Harry Thompson and Camp Borden Band, Ida Taylor, secretary, Jack Withers of the C.G.E. and amateurs and featured performers.

Bracken Claims King Has Betrayed Trust

OTTAWA, Nov. 10—(CP).—John Bracken, National Progressive Conservative leader, said in a statement last night that Prime Minister Mackenzie King "has betrayed his trust and deceived both the army overseas and the people at home."

His statement following the address in which the Prime Minister Wednesday night supported voluntary overseas service, Mr. Bracken said it was "more than evident now" that Mr. King never did intend to implement his undertakings given to parliament.

The overseas army was in dire need of trained reinforcements and of rest and help. Men must be sent overseas to the entire extent available in Canada, Mr. Bracken said. "This is an immediate national duty."

Since he assumed leadership of the Progressive Conservative party, "we have repeatedly urged that these men be sent overseas to fill the gap which now is so tragically revealed. The past is past. The situation now far transcends any partisan politics. It is of the deepest concern to every Canadian man and woman regardless of political creed."

Withholds Informatiin.

In the gravest hour of the nation's history the people awaited the release of information given to Mr. King by Defence Minister Ralston, who resigned last week after recommending conscription for overseas.

"Mr. King has refused to release the information that Col. Ralston must have anticipated he would," said Mr. Bracken.

Instead of taking the advice of Col. Ralston the Prime Minister had preferred the advice "of one who but a few days ago admitted that he knew nothing about the situation."

(Mr. King said Wednesday night that he had sought the advice of Gen. McNaughton, who succeeded Col. Ralston as Defence Minister, when the latter's recommendation for conscription for overseas was made).

Mr. Bracken said Mr. King had "indulged in the revolting sophistry that the volunteers would not welcome draftees," although he knew that in the 1st Canadian Army were draftees from other countries making up the bulk of the "international force."

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a war wife. My husband and I have had eight years of a married life that has been a heaven on earth but now that he has gone to the front, I am in a panic. I am afraid of the future? Will I be able to have a perfect home again? Am I borrowing trouble?

MRS. H. D. S.

◆ ◆ ◆

ANSWER—I think you are borrowing trouble and that the wise thing is just to live from day to day and keep your mind calm and poised so that you can meet whatever comes None of us can prepare for the future because we do not know what the future will be like.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

FORBEARANCE A VIRTUE

THERE ARE spots in bridge where you must have the nerve to control yourself and refrain from what offhand looks like the natural play. Sometimes you have to duck a particular trick, hoping your partner has a particular card, as otherwise your cause is lost. Careful analysis of the apparent situation can sometimes guide you in just what to do.

North: ♠ 9 6 ♥ A K 7 6 3 ♦ J 7 ♣ 7 5 4 2

West: ♠ K J 8 4 3 ♥ 2 ♦ K 9 4 3 2 ♣ J 10

East: ♠ 10 7 2 ♥ 10 9 8 ♦ Q [illegible] 6 5 ♣ 9 [illegible]

South: ♠ A Q 5 ♥ Q J 5 4 ♦ A 10 ♣ A K Q 6

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♦	Pass
6 ♥

A lot of duplicate pairs got into the heart small slam on this deal, some with South as the declarer, some with North. Some made it, some failed. Most got a club lead to the A, and the ensuing tricks were the heart Q, J and A, club Q, K and 7. Then at the eighth trick came the vital differences. One declarer finessed the spade Q to the K and later lost the setting trick to the diamond K. The others tried a lead-throwing end-play.

One led the diamond 7 to the A on the tenth trick and next the diamond 10, putting West in with the K. A diamond return would have produced a ruff and discard, so West led a spade into South's tenace, enabling him to make the contract.

At one table South tried the same thing, but West had the nerve to play low on the diamond, hoping East had the Q. He did, and returned a spade, setting it.

At another table, the diamond J was led on the eighth trick from North, the Q covering and the A winning. Then West was put in with the K, compelling him to make a return which would give South his contract.

When both sides used the best tactics, the diamond J was led from dummy on the eighth trick to tempt a cover, but East restrained himself and played low. After South used the A and then put forth the 10, West had acumen enough to realize why East had not covered, played low, and let East win the trick with the Q, his spade return beating South.

If East bids 1-Diamond, South 1-Heart, West 2-Diamonds, North 4-Hearts, and a diamond is led, how should South play for his contract?

Savage Battle Raging On Leyte As Japs Land 10,000 More Troops

TWELVE KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK—This photo shows a general view of the scene where an estimated 12 persons were killed and about 75 injured when two baggage cars and five coaches of the west-bound Southern Pacific Challenger were derailed and wrecked three miles west of Colfax, Calif. The entrances to the coaches were smashed closed by the wreck and rescue workers here are cutting their way through in an effort to remove bodies.

Oblivion Near For Hitler Was Unknown Nov. 11, 1918

LONDON, Nov. 11—(CP).—As the First Great War ended 26 years ago this morning, doctors in a military hospital in the German town of Paswalk studied the case of a shell-shocked German corporal and debated whether to send him to a mental institution. They finally released the melancholy corporal as fit, and Adolf Hitler walked out.

At far-flung points elsewhere on the globe, three comparatively unknown men whom destiny had marked to shape the future of the world greeted the end of that war with a firm belief that only peace and prosperity lay ahead. They had never heard of Adolf Hitler.

In London, War Secretary Winston Churchill stood at the window of his room in Whitehall, looking out toward the crowds in Trafalgar Square. Earlier in the war he had served as First Lord of the Admiralty and Minister of Munitions.

In Washington, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Navy Department Under-Secretary, was convalescing from pneumonia.

In Russia, Joseph Stalin was in the process of planning a long-range program of reconstruction for the new Soviet Union—a quiet little man still in the background.

In Germany, Henrich Himmler was trying to get enough gas, to operate his taxi; a newpaperman named Joseph Goebbels was seeking employment; Herman Goering was boasting of his feats as a combat pilot.

Ike Disappointed

Dwight D. Eisehower, the man destined to command all the Allied armies against Hitler a quarter of a century later, was somewhat disappointed when he heard of the Armistice because he had no opportunity to get into combat. At 11 a.m., Nov. 11, 1918, Eisenhower was at Camp Colt, Gettysburg, Pa., commanding a tank training school.

Today, these men who celebrated that peace of 25 years ago are locked in the world's greatest conflict with the corporal who escaped confinement in a mental home.

This week Hitler failed to make his usual broadcast on the biggest Nazi anniversary of all—the anniversary of the Munich beer hall putsch. Stockholm reports say people in Germany believed he is dead. Some reports have hinted he is mentally ill and that a brain specialist was called to Berchtesgaden.

But whatever the truth one fact stands out clearly—Adolf Hitler is sinking fast into the oblivion he knew before 11 a.m. 26 years ago today.

Macdonald Not Resigning Job

HALIFAX, Nov. 11—(CP).—W. C. Macdonald, Liberal member of parliament for Halifax, today affirmed that he still is parliamentary assistant to the Minister of National Defence He described as untrue a report that he had resigned.

Reports were current in Ottawa that Mr. Macdonald had told friends he would not continue in office following the resignation of Col. J. L. Ralston. He described these reports also as untrue.

Storms Fail To Halt Fliers

LONDON, Nov. 11 — (CP). — Snowstorms over Germany failed to check the Allied air offensive today and big formations of bombers were reported hitting again from the west and south after two concentrated attacks on Hannover during the night.

The Nazi radio warning system said bombers were approaching from several westerly directions and that others were heading up over Bavaria.

Hannover was attacked by R.A.F. Mosquitos which flew through snow and sleet and dropped many tons of bombs, including more than thirty 4,000-pounders, on railyards and factories.

Mosquitos also hit other objectives in the Ruhr.

One German plane was destroyed and one R.A.F. fighter was missing.

Several of the 27 United States heavy bombers and seven fighters reported missing in yesterday's attacks in the Cologne and Frankfurt areas wre believed to have landed in France.

A Canadian Spitfire squadron Friday scored nine direct hits on a railway line in Eastern Holland. An R.C.A.N. communique said the hits.

U.S. Firm On Polish Issue

Refuses To Guarantee Specific Settlement

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP) — The United States was understood today to be standing firm on its policy of encouraging Poland and Russia to settle their differences but refusing to guarantee any specific settlement.

This appeared to be the situation as American officials studied the latest request for information and advice presented by the Polish government in London through its Ambassador, John Ciechanowski.

Mr. Chiechanowski called at the State Department late yesterday after making a rush trip here from Chicago where he has been attending the International Aviation Conference

He declined to discuss the purpose of this sudden mission and State Department officials likewise refused to disclose what events might be in the making.

However, recent dispatches from London have said that Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin are pressing the London government of Poland to come to an early agreement on its territorial and political differences with Russia.

American policy to date has been to favor without qualification the reconstitution of a free and independent Polish nation which might become a powerful country in Eastern Europe, to favor a Polish foreign policy friendly to Russia and to refuse to undertake and specific guarantees.

Yanks Gain 6 Miles Beyond Metz

Allies Moving To Encircle Key Fortress City

By WILLIAM FRYE
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 11 — (AP). — Infantry and tanks of the U.S. 3rd Army pushed their four-day-old offensive to new gains today along the 75-mile Lorraine front around Metz.

On the 26th anniversary of the First Great War Armistice at least six battle-hardened divisions punched through moderate and ineffective resistance in their drive to clamp pincers around Metz and strike into Germany through the Saar.

A field dispatch from Reuter News Agency reported that one of Lt.-Gen. Patton's tank columns today was astride the Falquemont road slightly more than 12 miles due east of Metz, cutting one of the main escape routes to the Saar for the enemy's Metz garrison.

Another armored column, said this dispatch, drove forward three miles during the night to reach the vicinity of Haboudang, 23 miles northeast of Nancy.

Use 4 Divisions

Despite German reports of mounting intensity of the battle — one claimed recapture of the strategically important Delme Rridge — the Allied communique disclosed that opposition to the sweeping attack was still light to moderate.

Cutting of the Falquemont highway meant that the 6th Armored Division, veterans of the whirlwind dash across France from St. Lo in Normandy, had advanced six miles during the night in their drive to encircle Metz from the southeast.

The 4th Armored Division also is leading attacks in the sector between Metz and the Rhine-Marne Canal, and at least four infantry divisions are in action — the 5th, 26th, 80th and 90th, the latter in the expanding bridgehead over the Moselle north of Metz.

The German Transocean News Agency broadcast a report that 600 tanks are engaged in the Allied offensive, which is accompanied by a steady artillery barrage.

"The earth of Lorraine is shaking from the hundredfold thunder of countless heavy guns," it said. There was no mention of such an engagement in today's Allied communique.

Gains south and east of Koenigsmacher in the bridgehead north of Metz were reported by the Allied communique, as well as small advances in the area of Maizieres Les Metz.

the Hurtgen Forest area, a German counter-attack was thrown back.

Extensive minefields were encountered by the Americans attempting to drive the fiercely-resisting Germans out of their dug-in positions around Hurtgen. West of Schmidt, however, limited progress was reported as the Americans continued mopping up enemy billboxes.

Allied Position Similar To 1918

LONDON, Nov. 11—(CP Cable)—The position of the western front today was roughly similar to that on Nov. 11, 1918, but today the Allied armies were somewhat farther ahead than on Armistice Day 26 years ago.

In 1918 the Allied line ran east to west through Pont a Mousson, Sedan, Mezieres, Mons and Gent. On the east, or right flank, were the French and Americans, near Sedan. The Canadians and British were on the left-centre, around Mons, and the Belgians were on the extreme left.

Today the front sprawls in an inverted letter "L" running northward to Arnhem where it turns northeast to where the Maas and Waal Rhine empty into the North Sea.

Now the 1st Canadian Army — instead of the Belgians—holds the left flank, with the British on the left-centre and the French and Americans on the right, though the numerical proportions of the two latter groups differs from 1918.

In the last 100 days of the first Great War the Canadian Corps advanced from south of the Somme Aug. 8—Ludendorff's "Black day of the German army"—to Mons on Nov. 11.

Sound Sleeper

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Nov. 11—(AP).—J. C. O'Connell really did have a close shave. While O'Connell slept a burglar entered his room, slit the pillow case under his head with a razor or knife and slipped out a billfold containing $150. The cut within two inches of O'Connel's scalp didn't waken him.

Allied Nations Observe Armistice Day

By The Canadian Press

While the clash of arms reverberated around a world in its sixth year of global conflict, the Allied powers of the First Great War today recalled the Armistice which brought that struggle to an end 26 years ago.

In Canada and in other Allied countries there was a two-minute cessation of activity at 11 a.m. in memory of those who lost their lives in the war of a generation ago.

Canada's principal ceremony was on Parliament Hill in Ottawa, with the Governor-General, the Earl of Athlone, and Prime Minister Mackenzie King taking part.

In London an equerry laid a wreath on the cenotaph in Whitehall early in the day on behalf of the King and Queen. Because of court mourning for the Queen's father, the Earl of Strathmore, the King and Queen were unable to attend a British Legion festival of remembrance at the Albert Hall.

In Paris Prime Minister Churchill laid a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier and reviewed a parade of French forces along the Champs Elysees.

The traditional ceremony at the tomb of the unknown soldier of the First Great War in Arlington National Cemetery, Washington, keyed similar observances throughout the United States.

But in most of the countries which fought against Germany and her Allies in the 1914-18 war, it was a day of continuing work — work to speed the end of this present and greater conflict. The anniversary was observed too on a note of prayer and hope for an enduring and just peace.

Massive Invasion Coming Made Possible By Canadians

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 11 —(CP)—The foundation for a massive invasion of Germany has been laid by the events of the last week, particularly by the clearing of the Schelde estuary and freeing the approaches to Antwerp by the 1st Canadian Army aided by British formations.

In addition to clearing the approaches to Antwerp, this operation swung the left flank of the northern sector of the western front across the Schelde and gave solidity to this portion of the front which runs from the mouth of the Maas (Meuse) River eastward to Arnhem, a front held by British forces on the right and Canadians on the left.

By this push, this short east-to-west section of the western front also became flexible. It could be swung northward on its Arnhem fringe until the whole front faces east and into Germany or the Canadians might be pushed directly to the east and grouped with the British forces for an assault into Germany.

At present the western front is L-shaped from the mouth of the Maas to Arnhem, thence directly south to the Mediterranean. The north-to-south sector is held by British, American and French armies.

The Canadian divisions are still closest to the Schelde, the area they have just cleared in bitter, bloody fighting. Next to them eastward are Polish troops in the Canadian Army and farther eastward are American formations integrated into Lt.-Col. Crerar's command. The Americans hold a section of front between the Polish and British forces.

Need Drying Out

The Canadians probably are in need of a rest and drying out now after a month of day and night fighting in the low lying, dike-divided fields of southwestern Holland's Breskens pocket and attacks along Beveland peninsula or over-the-sea assaults on Walcheren and Beveland.

Theirs has been a hard road. After the tough jobs of liberating Boulogne, Cap Gris Nez and Calais, they received the assignment of

Churchill And Eden Reach Paris

Re-arming French To Aid In War Likely One Subject

LONDON, Nov. 11 — (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden have flown to Paris to confer with Gen. De Gaulle, it was disclosed today.

Accompanied by Mrs. Churchill, Miss Mary Churchill, and government officials they flew to France from an English field Friday afternoon.

News of their trip was held up for security reasons until 11 a.m. (6 a.m., E.D.T.) today — Armistice Day — the hour at which the first Great War Armistice began, Nov. 11, 1918.

Sir Alexander Cadogan, permanent Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, and Nicholas Langford, Mr. Eden's private secretary, were in the group.

A buzzing swarm of Spitfires escorted the transport plane.

The Prime Minister went to Paris at the invitation of Gen. De Gaulle and the French government.

When France Tottered

It was the first time since May 22, 1940, that Mr. Churchill had gone to France on a visit of state. Then he flew to Tours to confer with Premier Paul Reynaud and Gen. Maxime Weygand as the Allies retreated and France tottered.

Mr. Churchill visited Normandy shortly after the invasion.

President Roosevelt is expected to accept an invitation to visit Paris at a later date.

Presence of Foreign Secretary Eden and Sir Alexander Cadogan, Permanent Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, indicated the probability of detailed discussions on a number of other diplomatic and political problems, among them:

1. Allied help in the restoration of France.
2. Elimination of misunderstandings in the potential use of the U.N.R.R.A. to eliminate hunger in metropolitan areas.
3. Exchange of views on post-war treatment of Germany.
4. Use of French forces in the occupation of Germany.
5. Post-war Franco-German borders.
6. French representation on the European advisory commission.

It remained possible Mr. Churchill might extend to Gen. de Gaulle an invitation to sit in on the next conference with Marshal Stalin and President Roosevelt. It is understood he took up this question at both Quebec and Moscow.

10 Enemy Ships Sunk In Fight To Reinforce Island Army

Super-Fortresses Batter Port Of Nanking

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—(AP)—Flying from China bases, a large task force of B-29 Superfortresses today attacked Japanese-occupied Nanking, hitting docks and warehouses.

War Department announcement of the attack followed by a few hours a Japanese claim that "several scores" of American aircraft had appeared over North Kyushu, main Japanese island, at 10 a.m. Saturday (Japanese time).

The War Department communique gave no details of the damage at Nanking, but said that further information would be released as soon as available.

The Superfortresses flew through daylight to accomplish their mission, the War Department said. It was the second major daylight operation by planes of the 20th Air Force within a week, other India-based craft having struck Nov. 5 at installations at Singapore, at the tip of the Malay Peninsula, and at an oil refinery at Pangkalan-Brandon on the north coast of Sumatra.

The claim the American planes had appeared over Kyushu was made by the Japanese Domei Agency in an overseas broadcast.

The broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications commission, was quoted as saying:

"Our air defense units at present are giving a hot reception to the enemy raiders."

Kyushu Island was hit by a strong force of Superfortresses Oct. 25. The area embraces one of the most important aircraft assembly plants in the Japanese home islands.

The War Department today made no mention of any raids other than against Nanking.

Nanking, located 225 miles inland from Shanghai, near where the Yangtze empties into the East China Sea, is the seat of Kiangsu Province and headquarters for a Japanese-controlled puppet government.

War Bond Drive Nears The Top

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—(CP).—Canada's Seventh Victory Loan campaign to-day went into its final day with $11,870,250 required to meet the minimum objective of $1,300,000,000. Officials expressed confidence that the Loan would be over the top by the week-end.

Yesterday's purchases of $80,469,100 brought the total sales at the end of the 17th selling day to $1,288,129,750. Yesterday's sales were about $6,000,000 higher than those on the corresponding day in the Sixth Loan and the new total is about $77,000,000 above the amount reached at the same stage of the previous campaign which, with an objective of $1,200,000,000 yielded $1,400,000,000.

Individual purchasers bought more than half the bonds purchased yesterday with their purchases for the day amounting to $41,110,300. The cumulative total for individual purchases now stands at $597,751,000, which is about $84,000,000 more than the amount subscribed by individuals in the same period of the Sixth Loan.

Officials said they were certain the week-end would put the campaign well past its minimum objective and expectations were that the final total would pass that of the Sixth Loan and set a new record. One of the main reasons for the increase shown so far is that subscriptions from individuals have averaged $241 compared with $221 in the previous Loan.

Finnish Cabinet Resigns Office

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 11 — (AP). — The Swedish newspaper Morgonitidningen said the Finnish cabinet has resigned and Finnish sources here said President von Mannerheim may appoint a new cabinet today.

The aging Dr. Juhu Paasikiivi, known as friendly to Russia, was considered the most likely choice to succeed Ehru Castren, whose government has been criticized for its handling of Russo-Finnish armistice problems.

He Wants Snow

CHICAGO, Nov. 11—(AP).—Pte. Robert S. Corley, 28, who has been stationed in Hawaii, wrote to his friend, Sgt. Leonard Medlowitz at Jackson, Miss., telling him there was one gift he especially wanted for Christmas: A large picture of a snowstorm in Chicago.

Reds Outflank Budapest On Two Sides

MOSCOW, Nov. 11.— (AP).— A wide outflanking movement took shape on two sides of Budapest today while the main Russian forces holding the city under siege clung to their positions in the capital's southern suburbs against desperate German counter-attacks.

One group of Marshal Rodio Y. Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine army edged westward from the wide Tisza river bridgehead capturing additional strong points northeast of Budapest and strengthened their hold on the vital Budapest-Miskolcz railroad.

Other Russian units and Yugoslav Partisan troops of Marshal Tito pushed forward west of the Danube river in a drive up through Southern Hungary aimed at Pecs.

The outflanking movements developed attacks on German and Hungarian positions over a 200-mile front, either end of which can turn into a serious by-passing of Budapest.

Slogging onward in heavy mud, Russian infantry added eight villages and one railway station to the Soviet salient stretching from the upper Tisza river to the base of the Matra mountains, Moscow announced.

The sector where the only essential changes of the entire eastern front were reported in the last 24 hours, was a steadily growing menace to the rear of the German and Hungarian forces still strung out some 40 miles east and north-east of Budapest.

Mezokovesd itself was threatened by the Russians with the capture of Borsodszemere, four miles to the southwest and two miles from the railway which skirts the Matra mountains.

The 2nd Ukrainian army group, capturing 4,100 prisoners in the last 48 hours, raised its total bag of prisoners to more than 46,000 since Oct. 6 when the invasion of Hungary began, Moscow said.

The Soviet bulletin said the Germans were constantly reinforcing their troops on the southern approaches to Budapest in an effort to hold that gateway city on the road to Austria.

BOMB OIL PLANTS

LONDON — United States 8th Air Force bombers and fighters, resuming their attacks against Germany's synthetic oil plants and railroads in the Ruhr, delivered an Armistice Day blow today at Gelsenkirchen and Coblenz.

100,000 Soldiers Locked In Battle In Philippines

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Nov. 11 — (AP). — Japan's do-or-die stand on Leyte has flamed into a savage battle, involving more than 100,000 men, as the enemy poured thousands of fresh troops against the invaders today, after landing them from a 19-ship convoy at a cost of three transports and seven destroyers.

Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, gambling with Japan's dwindling reserves of cargo vessels and escort warships, got reinforcements to Ormoc despite determined attacks spaced over a 24-hour-period by American planes and patrol torpedo boats. A heavy rain squall, prolonging a previous cover of darkness, favored the operation.

The reinforcements, which reasonably might exceed 10,000, buttressed 35,000 other enemy troops of three fresh divisions moved in on western Leyte to replace 35,000 casualties already inflicted by four American divisions.

The biggest and most crucial land engagement since Gen. MacArthur returned to the Philippines Oct. 20 is developing. Both sides are well equipped and backed by heavy artillery.

In Ormoc Bay

The enemy convoy of four 5,000-ton transports and 15 destroyers — the Japanese frequently use destroyers for troop-carrying as well as escort duty — was spotted by U.S. airmen Thursday afternoon as it entered Ormoc Bay.

Fighters dive-bombed with 1,000-pound explosives. Medium bombers went in at low level. The U.S. fliers were in small force but left a transport smoking before breaking off.

Thursday night, patrol torpedo boats darted in and out of destroyer searchlight paths, slipped by geysers churned up by five-inch guns and succeeded in sinking a war-

8th Army Units Gain Steadily

ROME, Nov. 11—(CP). — British 8th Army troops have made further progress north of the fallen town of Forli, vital road centre near Italy's east coast, today's Allied communique reported.

This was the only important ground activity mentioned in the bulletin. It said activity along the Allied 5th Army front was confined to patrolling.

The 8th Army smashed into strong German tank and infantry defences along a canal running from the northwest corner of Forli.

Snow has fallen over both the 5th and 8th Army fronts to a depth of nine inches in some places and on the 8th Army front heavy drifts interrupted communications in the hills.

Southwest of Forli the Germans have taken up positions along the Montone River. Castrocaro, about five miles southwest of Forli, has been evacuated by the enemy but he is holding tenaciously in the hills to the west.

On the Allied 5th Army front due south of Bologna Indian troops scored an advance in occupying Monte Budrialto, 2,200-foot feature east of the Faenza road.

Expect More Resignations

Rumors Indicate "Conscription Party" Mooted

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—(CP).—The close of the seventh Victory Loan campaign to-day has revived rumors on Parliament Hill that further resignations from the Federal Cabinet may be expected at any time.

When former Defence Minister Ralston resigned a week ago, there were reports that Finance Minister Ilsley and Navy Minister Macdonald would follow him.

In cabinet meetings after the resignation of Col. Ralston other ministers laid stress on the critical situation facing Canada, particularly in the midst of the Victory Loan campaign.

At any rate there were no further resignations at that time, although Mr. Ilsley and Mr. Macdonald were believed to be strong supporters of Col. Ralston's stand.

Meantime, Parliament Hill is exercised over reports that efforts are being made to create a "conscription party." While Col. Ralston's name is mentioned in this connection, those in close touch with him say he is determined to retire from politics altogether at the end of this Parliament.

Another name linked with a possible conscription party is that of Murdoch A. MacPherson of Regina, unsuccessful candidate for the leadership of the Progressive-Conservative party two years ago.

A majority of the cabinet are believed to be in accord with the position taken by Prime Minister Mackenzie King in his broadcast speech Wednesday night in which he maintained his belief in the voluntary overseas service policy for the present.

Career Planning Vital Part School Program

Problems of adjustments are behind the large number of students who leave school around the entrance grade, only to be forced into the laboring class, with their lack of education always a millstone, declared J. H. Moebus, head of the Career Planning division of the Collegiate, before an open meeting of teachers' organizations at the Y.W.C.A., Friday evening.

Based on factual reports on conditions in schools at London, Ontario, out of every hundred children who enter public school, only 62 pass the entrance, 54 go to a secondary school, 12 reach grade 12, and three go on to a university, he said. They do not drop out of school, he said, because they have no ability to learn, but rather, a problem of many adjustments, which can be helped by a system of organized vocational guidance, or "career planning." Clashes with teachers or fellow pupils are often major causes for a student to leave school, Mr. Moebus pointed out, or a case of not being able to make an adjustment to school rules.

"The sad part about this fact is that businessmen for a large part, judge our schools not by the finished product, but by those students who drop out before their education is nearly finished," he said. There are undoubtedly a large number of students who are not making the progress of which they are capable, Mr. Moebus said, and teachers are having very busy times with the extra large numbers of students in classrooms, with the result individual attention to a child can not be as complete as formerly. Some students feel neglected about this, he added.

Program Needed

In a broad outline of the work being done along the line of career planning in Peterborough Collegiate, Mr. Moebus said that is one reason why a scheme of organized vocational guidance is needed in schools now. If students were enabled through interviews or counsels with teachers to look ahead, far enough to see the advisability of remaining in school, or choosing a suitable occupation then setting a course to attain it, then this number of students who drop out of school will be greatly decreased.

Children left to themselves, he said, in many cases will make immature choices of occupations. Girls, as an example, who have no aptitude for the work a nurse must do, became infatuated with a dream of themselves in a crisp white uniform, carrying a glass of water to a handsome young patient. Disappointment and failure are in store usually if this happens. That students need help in finding a choice for vocations, is amply illustrated in another school record. Approximately 50 per cent of grade nine classes have no idea of what work they wish to follow,...and in grade 13, the last grade of high school, the percentage is approximately the same.

Student Adjustment

In reporting the work of career planning, Mr. Moebus emphasized that it is not the routine of giving a few tests, then blueprinting a line of action for every student; it is not the placement work that has been done in the past, placing students in business through the heads of the school, although this will be part of the plan; and finally, career planning is not carried on in some schools even though these schools claim it is: when it is not organized, much of its value is lost, and the child becomes confused.

Vocational guidance is student adjustment, he said, with a main three-fold purpose: To assist each pupil in choosing a vocation, and preparing a program to attain that goal; to assist the student to make the difficult transfer into occupational life; and to assist pupils to make the transfer from public to secondary schools. Other reasons loom up as equally important.

How is this to be done? Mr. Moebus said that a study of the individual pupil is the first important task. Then, provide him with occupational information. The student must be counselled as he tries to fit himself into a proper vocation. Added to this, is the task of assisting the individual to find employment after his school career is over, in his chosen work. Additional work is done along this line, the speaker said.

Mr. Moebus told the meeting that to be happy in vocation is the main ingredient in living a full life. "The vocation is the watershed down which all one's life flows," he said. "It is beyond a daubt, an important subject."

Ethel Garbutt thanked the speaker, and he was introduced by C. S. Browne. R. Scrutton was the chairman, and two musical selections were sung by a group of students from Queen Alexandra school, grades five and six, under the direction of Miss F. Rahmel and Mrs. J. Telford

British Subs Bag 45 Japs

LONDON, Nov. 11—(CP).—British submarines sank 45 Japanese vessels in Far Eastern waters in recent weeks, an Admiralty communique announced today.

Several supply ships were sunk and at least 14 others damaged, a communique said.

A submarine chaser and three landing craft were other victims.

A large supply ship, which was sunk by a torpedo, was intercepted while under escort near Padang, off the west coast of Sumatra.

The British submarines scored torpedo hits on a medium supply ship entering Port Blair in the Andaman Islands, while a similar vessel was believed to have exploded after a torpedo attack in the Malacca Straits, the communique said.

Other sinkings occurred off Sabang, where the Royal Navy submarines fought a brisk gun battle with a Japanese convoy of 12 small supply ships. In another action in the same area an enemy minesweeper was sunk.

Oakes' Murder Now Year Old

NASSAU, Bahamas, Nov. 11 — (CP).—A year has passed since Alfred de Marigny was acquitted of the slaying of the millionaire Sir Harry Oakes, Canadian mining magnate, yet the most intriguing murder mystery of the decade remains unsolved.

It was on November 11, 1943, that a Bahamas Supreme Court jury voted, nine to three, to free the debonair De Marigny, Sir Harry's son-in-law.

Since then there have been no arrests, and police have given no indication that they have picked up the trail, long since grown cold, of the killer who bludgeoned and burned Sir Harry to death the night of July 7, 1943, while a fierce thunderstorm battered the baronet's seaside villa, Westbourne.

However, the Duke of Windsor, Governor of the Bahamas, insisted in a recent interview that "the case is still open, and will be until police catch the man who did it."

"There's no thought of giving up," the Duke emphasized, "and they hope some day to catch the man."

Asked whether new clues had been discovered the Duke replied:

"No, none that I have heard of, but you can rest assured that anything that comes up will be scrutinized most carefully."

Many Diseased Cats Reported In City

Reports of many diseased cats prowling the streets and lanes of the city have been received and the Peterborough Humane Society is anxious that anyone who sees a cat and fearing it to be diseased should report the same to the inspector. Such cats are a menace to the city for they infect children.

A warning has also been issued by the society about the use of rifles in the city and outside. Many children have been noticed carrying rifles, and it is pointed out a special permit is necessary.

All dogs are required to wear tags and those without tags will henceforth be picked up as strays. During the past few weeks several cases of delivery horses improperly shod has been drawn to the attention of the inspector, and also that delivery drivers still persist in driving their horses with nose bags on.

Even In Retreat British Troops Terrify Huns, Says Phil Turner

Although the Germans enjoyed vastly superior equipment in the heroic Arnhem stand, they failed to follow up their advantages and press home the attack with hand to hand fighting, such was their respect for the fighting quality of British troops, reported Lieut. Phil Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Turner, 548 Gilmour street, and Lieut. W. A. (Doc) Harvie, the two uninjured Canadian officers to escape the bloody trap. Their stories were told in a copyright story in the Star Weekly, written by Allan A. Michie.

"My trip over," said Turner, "was uneventful, but once we got to Arnhem we ran into trouble. Due to the confusion caused by so many gliders littering the ground, my Horsa landed about three miles from the place where we were supposed to touch down. As we assembled after alighting, the Germans opened fire on us with rifles from fairly long range. We took cover and returned their fire, and shortly afterwards the Germans beat it.

"My platoon was supposed to provide a rear guard for the whole battalion, which was slowly moving from west to east toward Arnhem, giving protection to a convoy of ammunition which we had to get through to the boys in the town so, without knowing the exact location of my company or the rest of the battalion, I led my men back towards Arnhem, keeping a watchful eye on our rear. By dusk, Jerry snipers had caught up with us, so the platoon took cover in buildings along the side of the road and returned the fire all that evening of D plus one. So far, the fighting wasn't so bad. The Jerries hadn't closed in enough to use their multiple mortars, which caused many casualties later on, and from all appearances, it looked as if the Arnhem battle was going definitely our way. Anyhow, we were convinced that at any hour we would hear the British Second Army's guns coming up from Nijmegen and see the first tanks nosing up to the Neder Rhine. Little did we dream what the next few days held in store for us."

Difficult Movement

"During the night of D plus one," Turner went on, "we continued back along the road, and as the platoon halted in preparation for a brush with the Jerries, the rest of my company joined me. We dug in and stood to all night and before the first light of D plus two, while still doing a rear-guard job, began backing up toward Arnhem bridge. The whole company was walking behind the transport column with 'Doc's' jeeps just ahead of us. Several times we were halted while the forward elements shot their way through Germans blocking the column, and once we were held up for two hours while a pocket of Jerries was cleared out from a German barracks dominating the road.

"Apparently our intelligence learned that the Germans were coming up in strength on our flank for an attack on the road, so my whole company was ordered to occupy high ground in the woods overlooking it. If there were many Germans in the woods, they must have scrammed when they saw us coming, because in a short time we had cleared out the stragglers and dug slit trenches. Then, from some distance away, the Germans opened up with multiple mortars, which the boys call 'moaning minnies,' probably Jerry's most effective weapon. There was little we could do but put our heads down and trust to luck, but the Germans, as usual, were reluctant to follow up the mortaring with an infantry attack. Instead, they sent two Tiger tanks into the woods after us, which came crashing through the trees, firing as they came.

"With no anti-tank weapons, and with many boys cut down by flying shrapnel, we were ordered to retreat. We pulled out along the road until we came to a country church, reorganized out badly cut up company and dug in. There we were to stay until ordered to evacuate."

"While the Tigers were rampaging about the woods," said Harvie, "the Germans moved up their mortars and opened fire on the transport column on the road. It didn't take long for them to make a complete mess of most of the column. The jeeps were ordered back, and some made it, but in a matter of minutes most of them were blazing and ammunition was exploding in all directions. Three of my jeeps, with Vickers machineguns, were hit, and in the confusion, a fourth disappeared. Later, I discovered it had joined another Vickers platoon holding out at the church where Phil was, but I couldn't get through to it. I checked with the boys and learned I was separated from all except eight men of my platoon."

Many Casualties

"My first job when we got dug in around the church," Turner explained, "was to collect my platoon, but many of them had been wounded or killed. I finally rounded up 30 men from my company and helped the company commander place them around the church. I dug a slit trench about 100 yards from the church, which we planned to use as an outpost, covering the road.

"So far, we were not too badly off for food. We each carried 48-hour rations and in the excitement of the first day's fighting hadn't eaten much, but on the third day after landing we were reduced to half rations and on the fourth we had none. From then on we subsisted on vegetables which we dug up in the vicinity of the church. Most of us were punch drunk from lack of sleep, however, for we'd been standing to almost constantly since we hopped out of our Horsa.

"On D plus three, and on most days thereafter, those wonderful R.A.F. boys, flying unarmed Dakotas, tried to get through to us to drop supplies, but because our lines and those of the Germans were seldom more than 100 yards apart, naturally many canisters fell into the Jerry positions. It was agonizing to lie in our slit trenches and see panniers of food, ammunition and medical supplies fall just 200 or 300 yards away from us, right into the Jerry lines. Some, of course, dropped in behind our positions, but whenever we tried to go out and pick up canisters lying in no man's land between the lines, the Germans opened up on us with mortars. After a few such experiences, we decided it was better to go hungry than be killed.

Took Turns Sleeping

"After D plus three, my recollection of events becomes hazy, for one day was very much like another. The Germans kept infiltrating our lines, and occasionally snipers would pop up behind us and we'd detail a couple of men to clean them up. Constant guard was maintained and when things were quiet, some of the men would snatch a wink of sleep, while others forced themselves to remain awake."

Didn't Budge An Inch

"It wasn't until about 5 o'clock on Monday afternoon," said Turner, "a few hours before the evacuation began, that 'Doc' found me. During a lull in the Jerry mortaring, he came down the road to the church where my boys were still holding out. We hadn't retreated an inch from our original stand. That was only because the German troops opposing us had no desire to close in for hand-to-hand fighting. If we

Armored Car Bags 300 Nazis

By SEAGHAN MAYNES
Reuter War Correspondent

WITH THE 21ST ARMY GROUP, Holland, Nov. 11 — (CP. Reuter). — Sgt. Ross Bell, 23, of Winnipeg, claimed today he and the men of an armored reconnaissance car under his command killed and wounded 300 Germans within half an hour in close-range combat near Rouen last summer.

This is the story he told:

His armored reconnaissance car, of the 12th Manitoba Dragoons, literally ran into 100 Germans marching along a narrow sunken road near Rouen last August.

The appearance of a charging armored car only 40 yards away with its machine guns blazing put the Germans into a panic. Front ranks crumpled under a hail of bullets and some of the Germans tried to climb the high banks of the road.

The car roared into the columns, shearing away the men on the banks and running down every man on the road. The road was thickly littered with dead and dying.

Bell saw a big German horse-drawn artillery column a few minutes later approaching the crossroads and immediately pounced. The column was three-quarters of a mile long and Germans were crammed into carts.

"We let them have it and there was immediate chaos," said Bell. "The horses went down in a screaming, plunging mass and we poured machine-gun fire into the Germans struggling to get out of the carts. . .

"Germans were falling everywhere to our guns and everything was a great panicky jumble. We just kept on raking them, some of their machine-guns were firing on us without effect. . . .

"Then we rant out of ammunition and I yelled to the crew: 'Let's get to hell out of here.' We had cut down about 300 Germans and had fired well over 5,000 rounds."

The armored car raced through to its own lines six miles back.

Unusual Birth Case Reported In North

LASSARE, Que., Nov. 11—(CP)—A 5½-pound girl was "doing very well" in hospital in this northern Quebec region today, following birth by a Caesarean operation half an hour after the mother had died.

Dr. Gustave Gheault of Lasarre described the operation last Saturday as "the first known successful operation of its kind in the Abitibi and Temiscamingue districts." The child started to breathe 20 minutes after birth folowing artificial respiration, Dr. Gheault said.

The mother, Mrs. Alphonse Rouleau, 38, died late Saturday afternoon.

Bilingual Society Planned By Group

TORONTO, Nov. 11 — (CP). — Plans for a "powerful bilingual society" to strengthen the bonds between French and English-speaking Canadians were announced yesterday by Maurice d'Hont, on behalf of Senator T. D. Bouchard, now on an Ontario speaking tour.

Mr. d'Hont is secretary to the Senator who created a sensation last June by charging in the Senate that the Jacques Cartier Order in Quebec was plotting to set up an independent French State.

The Senator has already received much support for his projected movement and plans to launch it officially in the New Year, said Mr. d'Hont.

2 Houses Burned At Millbrook

MILLBROOK, Nov. 11.—(ENS).—A fire of unknown origin, which broke out at 3.45 this morning, destroyed two frame houses at the east end of the village, one belonging to Rev. Edgar Russell, a retired Baptist minister living alone, and the other belonged to Ernest J. Powell of the local Hydro staff

It is believed the fire began in the woodshed, back of Mr. Russell's home, but when he was awakened, the house was already burning. Firemen responded to the call promptly, and when they ran out of chemicals, lack of water hampered their efforts, because the houses were situated so far from the creeks. But after the arrival of a unit from the Peterborough station, extra hose made it possible to bring water from the King street creek.

Most of the Russell furniture and all belongings to Powell's was saved. Trees had to be cut down and hauled away in order to save another large frame house next to Powell's, belonging to Mrs. Robert Gibson. Only the fact that the wind was in the north prevented more disastrous consequences. Both houses carried insurance.

Mr. Powell had been away all week on a deer hunt, and will arrive home to-day. Mrs. Powell and her little daughter, Nancy, have been spending the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Armstrong in Cavan. Following the fire, Mr. Russell was taken to the home of his niece, Mrs. Will Kennedy, south of Millbrook.

Pupils Place Wreath On War Memorial

NORWOOD, Nov. 11 — (ENS). — The High School Cadets and girls of the school marched in a body to the Cenotaph on Friday afternoon and placed a wreath on the memorial. In the Public School, Grades 5, 6, 7 and 8 had moving pictures of the last war shown by Rev. E. E. Pugsley, and "O God, Our Help in Ages Past" and "O Canada" were sung by the pupils. "In Flanders Fields" was recited by Barbara Cuthbertson and "The Soldier" was recited by Jackie Stackhouse. Grades 1, 2, 3 and 4 met in Miss Carter's Room and Rev. Mr. Homer spoke to the pupils. Poppies were distributed.

Eggs Decline Early Then Climb Again

TORONTO, Nov. 11. — During the early part of the current week prices on Toronto egg markets took a two to three cent dip. After a short period of fluctuations a firmer trend was evident and quotations returned to last week's levels with spot price for Grade A large showing from 48 to 49 cents a dozen. There was a brisk demand yesterday and markets were firm under light receipts.

First-grade butter was reported to be clearing readily as receipts continued light. A lack of interest was still prevalent for the under grades. Western butter was being cleared locally with light offerings at 35 cents.

clearing the Breskens pocket. Sometimes they advanced knee deep in mud or waist deep in water through flooded lands about towns the Germans had garrisoned and fortified with men, guns and concrete.

Conditions were the worst the western front had seen in this war. The area was low lying and damp to start with. Autumn rains made it worse. The Canadians had to fight rain and mud and cold and the Germans, too.

Canadian infantrymen became tough-looking crews. For nights and days they were advancing from one foxhole dug in a dike to the next one. They became muddy, wet, dirty and tired. Most times they ate when they could from compo rations and brewed up tea for themselves by dikes when opportunity offered, one company relieving another when the going got too long-drawn-out.

Against the wet and cold inhospitable Scheldt lands the men wore anything they could to keep warm and thatched their slit trenches with captured German groundsheets and straw, always providing they stayed long enough in any slit trench to make such an effort worthwhile.

Annual Banquet For Travellers Held In Cobourg

COBOURG, Nov. 11—Travellers from all over Eastern Ontario, representing nationally-known industries and supply houses, members of the Travellers' Hotstove Club, held their second annual banquet Thursday night at the Baltimore Hotel. Grant Norton of Toronto, presided as chairman. About 175 travellers and merchants enjoyed a banquet of wild duck.

At the head table were Mayor Jack Burnet of Cobourg, Mayor H. Rollins of Belleville; President Grant Norton; secretary, Walter Fowler of Belleville; past president, Jack Singer of Toronto; Bert Moore of Toronto, toastmaster; L. Hendricks of Campbellford; treasurer, Bill Green of Belleville; Carl Maynard, president of the Western Ontario Hot Air Club. The Hot Air Club is another travellers' organization.

"Greetings to all of you on this our second anniversary banquet," declared the chairman in his opening remarks. "This club has made great strides in the past few months and will continue to do so if every members assists to achieve its purpose. To those who are not members of our club and who enquire as to what they get out of it, I say just exactly what you put into it. You get out of the club the satisfaction and pleasure of doing something to help the other fellow. Our main thought now is of the boys overseas, fighting for you and me and making it possible for you and me to enjoy ourselves here tonight. It is asking a very small amount to request that you assist in every possible to send our boys cigarettes over there.

"When this war is over, there'll be plenty of opportunities for this club to extend its work but until the world returns to peace let us work hard and together to achieve our purpose. The majority of you men are salesmen, trained in salesmanship, which is the power to convince. Have you convinced yourself that the world has drifted too far away from God—too far from religion? Do you pray to God that this war will soon end? I am sure that those of us with boys over there pray. We have men in this room with brothers and sons over there fighting. Many have paid the supreme sacrifice. Men, let us not forget to ask for God's help and to return this world to peaceful living.

"Many of our club members, being travelling salesmen, are interested in salesmanship. Salesmanship is the ability to manipulate another man's mind so as to persuade him to think as you do, feel as you feel and act as you would have him act. Salesmanship not only covers the work done by the man behind the counter, the one who goes from door to door, from office to office or city to city, but it enters into all the activities of the selling end of business. It does more than that. Its roots permeate every department of the factory and go away back and are deeply embedded in the subsoil of the producer," Mr. Norton declared.

Salesmen Educators

"A travelling salesman is an educator," the speaker continued. "He teaches the merchant the best methods of selling goods and in that way he helps the retailer and they enjoy a mutual profit. The commercial traveller who does this will have little trouble in holding his trade. Who wants to quit dealing with a salesman who dispenses business-getting ideas free of charge. Your job is an important one. It is easier to make things than to sell them. The wheels of industry depend on you men to sell merchandise, to prevent bottlenecks in the factory and warehouse, to keep the wheels of industry moving to prevent unemployment."

He closed with an appeal for cooperation, particularly after the war in helping the returned man get back on the road again, picking up the work of his sales territory where he left off.

Present Trophy

During the evening a trophy from the Eastern Ontario Travellers' Association was presented to Grant Norton. Flowers were also presented to Mrs. Walter Mackie, wife of the proprietor of the Baltimore Hotel, in appreciation of many things which had been done by the management to make the evening a pleasant one.

The gathering observed a memoriam while P. Brown of Peterborough, recited a prayer for the men overseas, those who had fallen and those who were still fighting.

Mayor Jacket Burnet of Cobourg in welcoming the travellers, aptly termed them "ambassadors of commerce." Prior to extending his official civic welcome, Mayor Burnet, who is a grocer, said that he had been waiting for this opportunity for 40 years.

"For 40 years I have been waiting for this opportunity. As a retailer I have for 40 years had to listen to you fellows when you came in to sell me something, so this time you are going to have to sit there and listen to me for a change," the mayor declared.

Mayor Burnet said that the retail trade perhaps had come to look on the traveller as a nuisance but that it had taken a war with all its accompanying shortages to make the merchant appreciate that the traveller was genuinely interested in the retailer. Their efforts to distribute fairly, available merchandise during the war had made merchants realize the fine qualities of the travelling salesman, the mayor declared.

Go Good Work

Mayor Rollins of Belleville said that like the mayor of Cobourg, he was also a merchant and he realized that the traveller was a goodwill ambassador between manufacturer and retailer with a great work to do.

During the evening, Charlie Beatty of the British Hotel, who celebrated his 72nd birthday on the date of the banquet, was presented with a gift. He is the advance agent of the Travellers' Hotstove League.

The balance of the evening was devoted to drawing for a great variety of valuable prizes, enlivened with entertainment provided by the travellers themselves. The special draw for the Kenwood blankets, donated by Judd Kennedy was won by C. P. Ralls of Cobourg. Proceeds are for cigarettes for overseas.

A Japanese air cover of more than 20 planes was routed. At least 16 were shot down, possibly five more. By noon U.S. medium bombers sank three transports and six destroyers. The enemy had achieved sizeable landings.

The action ended late yesterday when the convoy remnants fled west toward Cebu. The attack cost four bombers and four fighters.

Lack Of Interest Shown In Hockey

COBOURG, Nov. 11 — (ENS). — Efforts to form a men's hockey team on Friday night produced no results when only a few appeared for the meeting. It is planned to put in a team with Port Hope and Bewdley, but it was apparent from the poor atttendance at the meeting that a little promotion will have to be made to stir up enough interest to get a larger turnout at a later meeting. It is felt that there is enough of the old-timers and some of the younger ones who have graduated from the juvenile ranks to get a team going. It may be that a sponsor may have to be lined up before a start can be made.

Replying on behalf of Mrs. Stinson and himself, Mr. Stinson said he was delighted to have the members of the county executive as guests, and expressed regret that on account of his health and medical advice he had to give up the idea of being a candidate for the riding nomination. At the same time he said he felt condident the Progressive Conservative candidate would be the next member of Parliament for Durham.

Some of those who are expected to be proposed for the nomination are: R. K. Earle of Cavan; Forbes Hyland of Darlington; Norman Green, Cartwright; T. A. Reid of Clarke township; George James of Bowmanville; E. P. Saunders, Port Hope; and Flying Officer Geo[illegible] Lewis, RCAF, Port Hope.

Hope Northumberland To Reach Loan Quota

COBOURG, Nov. 11 — (ENS). — Indications are that Northumberland County will go over the top in the Victory Loan campaign of which the objective is $1,625,000. Figures on Friday morning showed that five municipalities were past their objective, the latest ones being Brighton Village and Brighton Township. Cobourg went over its objective on Friday night, a climb from 89 per cent in the morning. The percentages on Friday morning were: Colborne 157.33, South Monaghan 110, Percy 109.2, Brighton Village 105.4, Brighton Township 102.43; total for the county, $1,422,600, 87.54.

Christians Must Prepare For Day When Wars to Cease

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Nov. 12 is Isaiah 2:2-4, 9:6, 7; Matt. 5:43-48; Romans 13:1-7; the Golden Text being Matt. 5:9, "Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall be called sons of God.")

◇ ◇ ◇

THE FIRST reference in our lesson is to Isaiah, where the prophet says that in the last days the house of the Lord shall be established in the top of the mountains, and that all the nations shall flock to it.

And the nations shall be judged and some rebuked, and "they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

What can we do to be ready when this wonderful day comes? Further Isaiah prophesies. "For unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given; and the government shall be upon His shoulder, and His name shall be called Wonderful. Counsellor, The Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace.

"Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon His Kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of Hosts will perform this."

Fight Necessary

At present, while we are in the midst of a great war to liberate enslaved people, we must fight. Bestiality, cruelty unspeakable have been visited upon defenseless men, women and children, and we must fight to stamp it out, with God's help.

If we cannot go to battle for the right, we can suppress any feelings we may have of racial superiority; we must realize that such emotions are unchristian, and that as God loves all His people, we must acknowledge that all are our brothers, nourished by the same sun, helped by the same beneficent rain—which falls on the just and the unjust. We must try to understand peoples of other nations and races, seeing that their problems are our problems, and that peace can only come when there is mercy and justice to all on earth.

Jesus tells us that we shall love even those who are unkind to us.

"Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy. But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them that despitefully use you, and persecute you.

"That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven; for He maketh His sun to rise on the evil and the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust.'

That tells us very clearly what we—even little children—can be taught to do. Have you an enemy? Has any one been hateful to you? Don't fight, with words or fists. Try to see if your conduct has been correct; if you are in any way to blame. If you find you are even in a small measure at fault, make amends, and even if your attitude is not at first appreciated, hold your temper. Pray to be shown how to love that person, to understand why he or she is your enemy, and to win him over.

What Reward Have Ye?

As Jesus asked, "If ye love them which love you, what reward have ye? do not even the publicans the same?

"And if ye [illegible] your brethren only, what d[illegible] more than others?"

These things may seem a small and even unimportant beginning to world peace, but if we could train everyone to act so, every one even in our own country, it would have a wonderful influence. If even one Sunday School really practised Jesus' commandment, the effect would be marvellous.

We have so much to be thankful for in our country. If we obey the laws of the land, we have nothing to fear, and the laws are not harsh or unjust. St. Paul told the Romans, "Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God."

"Whosoever therefore resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God."

"For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to evil. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? do that which is good, and thou shalt have praise of the same."

Value of the Christian Life

By REV. E. R. JAMES.

They brought forth the sick into the streets that at least the shadow of Peter passing by might overshadow some of them.—Acts 5, 15.

Where there is darkness there is no shadow. Light casts a shadow. The Lord Jesus said: "I am the light of the world."

Because Simon had obeyed the call and followed Jesus he became Peter, the rock man. He is filled with the light of the Lord Jesus and men recognize that "he has been with Jesus." These simple, plain people feel instinctively that the Light passing through "Peter passing by" will bring a blessing upon all upon whom it may fall. What a testimony to the reality of Christianity in those Apostolic days.

More than nineteen centuries have passed by and many would scorn such a thought in these days Yet a Boston newspaper man calmly writes: "Everything looked black on Newspaper Row; but Bishop Philip Brooks passed by and all was well." The passing by of a man of God brought courage and light to despondent men. Do you get a glimpse of the inward meaning of this startling statement? Is your mind open to the deeper truth?

A high class Hindoo is cooking his dinner. Your shadow falls upon it. He calmly casts it into the gutter. His philosophy teaches that your shadow has defiled his food because your character passes into the shadow. Does a shadow bring a blessing or a curse? A good man enters your home Instinctively you feel that his presence is a blessing. On the other hand the presence of an evil man with the tongue of a viper spreads its horrible influence. It corrupts.

Why did the people of that far-off day feel thus about Simon the fisherman? One day Simon came face to face with the Christ, Who prophesied that he would be Peter, the rock man, if he followed Him. He did so. Slowly the Master Sculptor let the angel out of him and men recognized the beauty, the strength and compassion of the Christ in Simon Peter. As a spiritual teacher reminds us Simon went into the inner room of his life and saw upon the throne, "I: ME; MINE.' He tore it down and put into its place JESUS CHRIST. Then the power flowed into him and men recognized that a spiritual power possessed him and they brought their sick if haply some of that power might fall upon them.

Simon Peter had received "Blood Transfusion." The very Life of the Son of God passed into him. Truly he could say: "The life that I now live I live by the faith of the Son of God Who loved me and gave Himself for me."

"Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, to-day and for ever." He stands before you and offers you the same gift. If you accept His offer His Spirit will fill your heart and mind and transform your character. His own Spirit will flow into your life that others might be helped. That flow of spiritual life is not to be dammed up in you. You are to be the channel through which it passes that others might place themselves in the shadow of your influence and personality.

Jesus Christ came to reveal God Himself. "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father" is His tremendous claim. God in the Person of Jesus Christ looked into the eyes of men. They saw God visible in the Carpenter.

To-day when He abides in you and you in Him men will see God and will be fascinated by His beauty and Goodness. They will desire to come into touch and contact with you. They will speak of your influence to their friends. This strange statement that the "Shadow of Peter passing by" will become true in your own life.

HE THAT DWELLETH IN THE SECRET PLACE OF THE MOST HIGH SHALL ABIDE IN THE SHADOW OF THE ALMIGHTY."—

The Book of Remembrance

On a specially constructed stand at the front of George Street United Church rests "The Book of Remembrance." This book contains the names of about 200 men and women from the congregation who have joined Canada's armed forces. The name, date of enlistment, rank and history has been entered in old English type hand lettered by Arthur Burrows, who has spent many hours on this work. The book is bound in tan leather, hand tooled by a friend of the congregation and is a most beautiful volume.

On Sunday Dr. James Semple, the newly inducted pastor, plans to make this book the focal point of the morning service with special attention to the names of those who have made the supreme sacrifice.

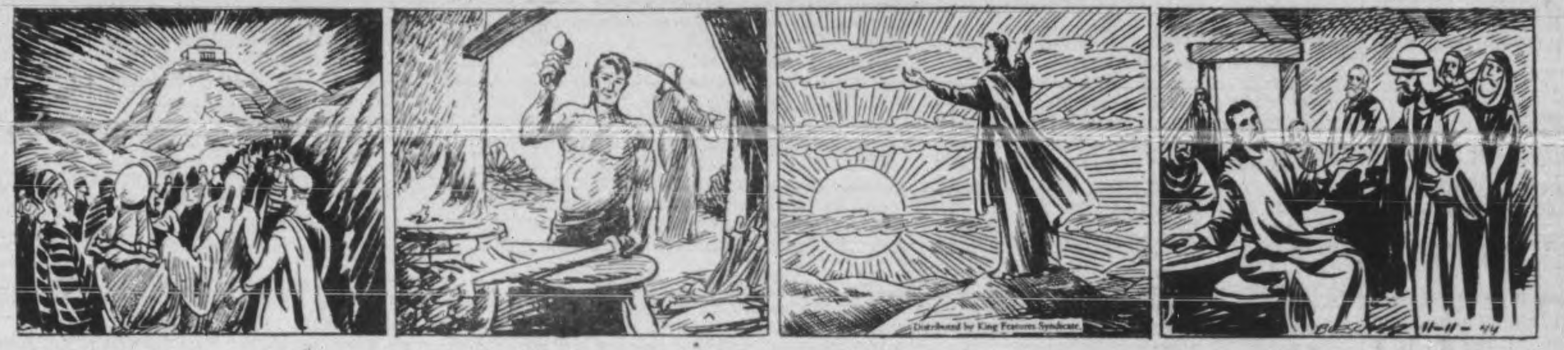
Scripture—Isaiah 2:2-4; 9-6, 7; Matt. 5:43-48; Romans 13:1-7



It shall come to pass . . . that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it."

God shall judge among the nations and rebuke many, and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; and there shall be no more war.

Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon His shoulder; and His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Prince of Peace.

Revising Our Tax System

A resolution was passed at the annual meeting of the Dominion Association of Chartered Accountants in Toronto recently, which asked the Dominion government to appoint a Royal Commission to investigate the whole structure of Canada's taxation; it was also moved that if it proved "that such a commission be not considered desirable at this time, the appointment of a standing committee of the House of Commons or the Senate" be contemplated for the same purpose. We hope that the government will consider this suggestion carefully, for we think that it is timely.

• • •

Anybody who has looked at the structure of our system of taxation knows that it is a rambling and jerry-built edifice, rather than a well-planned and efficient unity. We have not had time during the war to plan our taxation as carefully as was desirable; we have had to improvise, and to concentrate on ends rather than means. The job of raising money has been done well, but it would not be a good thing to allow the present system to persist during the years of peace until it becomes a regular part of our financial system.

• • •

Revision is needed, and the Chartered Accountants know better than most of us where the changes should come. They have had unusual opportunities to see how the present system affects business and the individual taxpayer as well. They know how the excess profits tax has worked against comparatively small businesses which have had their base profit estimated upon lean years, and who have thus been debarred from establishing themselves firmly during a period of large profits. This is only one of the inequities of the present system; there are many others, and the Chartered Accountants have discussed them thoroughly.

• • •

After this war we shall not be able to return to pre-war levels of taxation. We shall have to go on with heavy taxes for many years, in order to carry out the plans which are already in the making for social betterment, as well as to pay the inevitable residual charges of a great war. Taxes will fall from their present great height, of course, for such taxation as we bear now could not be maintained except under the unusual circumstances which war brings, but taxes will continue to be high for a long time. Are they going to be continued with all their present inequalities?

• • •

In spite of the optimism of many leaders of government and of business, it is impossible for us to say what the position of Canada may be in five years, or ten years after the war. It may be good, or it may be bad. But even if unusually good times are coming, we shall not be justified in perpetuating inequities in our system of taxation. Again we repeat that our tax-system took its present form at a time when the chief need was to get money as quickly as possible. That is war. But in peace we may expect that the necessity to get money will be governed by the desire to get it in an entirely just way, and in such a way that Canadian business is not put in an unsafe position if bad times should come. The recommendation of the Accountants has great merit, and we hope to see it carefully weighed by the government.

What's In a Name?

Since the war began, an average of about 250,000 children have been born in Canada each year, and presumably they have all been given names; what these names are we have no way of knowing, but we think that an investigation might reveal some interesting, if entirely useless, facts. In 1943 there were three million babies more in the U.S.A., and it seems that a majority of them were called Mary and John; there are six million Marys and four million Johns, all told, in the U.S.A. And twenty million American men are named either John, James, Charles, George or William. Are Canadians more original and venturesome in this matter of names? We should like to know.

There are fashions in names just as there are fashions in clothes, and they are quite as hard to account for. Why, for instance, is Michael such a popular name at present when Adam is comparatively rare? Both are Hebrew names, and both have much to commend them. Why is Michael, the name of one archangel, preferred to Raphael, the name of another? Why are restrained and sober girls' names, such as Anna and Susan, supplanting the more kittenish names of twenty years ago? There is a field for some interesting psychological research in this matter of names.

Some parents, of course, use more imagination than discretion in naming their young. What will become of those American twins who, a few days ago, were christened Thomas Dewey and John Bricker Vizzo? What will Invasia Mae Renfrow and Dee Day Edwards think of their parents in another twenty years? We are by no means sure that scores of English boys named Winston will appreciate the honour that has been conferred on them when they reach years of discretion.

It is among the coloured population of the United States that the most peculiar names are likely to be found, for these people are rich in imagination and not greatly inhibited by education. In The American Language H. L. Mencken gives a number of choice examples of Afro-American nomenclature. Such names as Alimenta and Dozine are not unusual, and one girl is reported to have been christened Utensil Yvonne Johnston. Why Utensil? Because the sound of the word is beautiful, quite apart from its sense. A Frenchman once said that 'cellar-door' was the most beautiful word in English, and as far as pure sound goes he may be right. Nor must we neglect the case of another Negro who was named Psm. C. Johnson, because his mother's favourite piece of devotional reading was the Hundredth Psalm!

Naming a child is a heavy responsibility, in which the background, taste and conservatism or imagination of parents is revealed. But one thing is understood: the child, when it reaches adult life, is not likely to care much for the name it has been given. In a just world every citizen would choose his own name upon coming of age.

Pot And Kettle

A number of book-reviews in the U.S.A. have excited themselves greatly over Noel Coward's new book, Middle East Diary, in which the well-known playwright and actor tells of his experiences on a long journey which he made to entertain troops in that theatre of war. The reason for the uproar is that Mr. Coward has allowed himself to say a few snippy things about American troops, whom he also praises warmly in other parts of his book. But as every critic knows, a few words of disparagement will outweigh many chapters of praise, and some of the more easily insulted American journalists are after Mr. Coward's blood.

This is too bad, because Anglo-American relations are not helped by such squabbles. The British peoples and the U.S.A. are on excellent terms, but not on such good terms that unfavourable criticism is passed between them freely. Noel Coward is certainly not guiltless in this matter; specifically, he suggested that some American soldiers made a great deal of fuss about minor wounds, which is tactless, even if it is true. But his criticism is no more unpalatable than that, for instance, which Cecil Brown, the American war correspondent, made against British troops and British administration in the East, before his country entered the war.

Any discussion of the rights and wrongs of what Coward says in his book is likely to degenerate into a pot-and-kettle squabble. For every instance of unwise criticism made by an Englishman of Americans, it is possible to bring up an equally barbed comment about the English made by a writer from the U.S.A. This is not the time for such petty jangling, and it is too bad that Coward's book has caused so much heated comment.

NOTE AND COMMENT

If you have your victory flags all ready for use you might be wise to drop a few mothballs among them.

The U.S. election may also be recalled as the Big Man with the Little Dog, against the Little Man with the Big Dog.

Diary Of A Sleepy Man

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Fall cleaning is going on in my house, with strange effect. When I am taking a bath, men appear at the window to wash it or put on the storm sash, acknowledging my presence with a slight nod; there are no curtains anywhere, so that I have to undress in the dark; when I go into the cellar to look at the furnace, complete strangers pass me without a word, headed for the coal bin. Last week a woman whom I have never seen before walked in the door, fell down a cold air vent (which had been opened for cleaning) and has not been seen since, and unless the house becomes stuffy I am not going to look for her....But today, being a day of rest, I enjoyed comparative peace, and burnt up a lot of autumn leaves, which left a very fine ash, like that of a cigar. I filled an ash-can with this and heaved it out to the street, for the morrow's collection. I hoped that a passer-by would comment on the nature of my ash, so that I could tell him that I was a very heavy smoker, and watch his face, but no one did.

◇ ◇ ◇

MONDAY: Received a pleasant letter from O.A.L. who likes this diary, thereby proving herself to be a person of acute and discerning intellect. The only people who do not like it, I find, are dull-witted and churlish folk who were disappointed in love, or lost all their money in the Depression, and have never smiled since.... This evening to see "The Seventh Cross," which has created a great to-do as a pro-German film. I saw nothing pro-German about it. But I was annoyed by the scenes which represented a dead man speaking out of a bank of clouds in a low, slow voice, like somebody reading an oculist's letter-chart. For some reason Hollywood always represents the dead as existing in a condition of semi-stupor....I was also amazed by Spencer Tracy's amour with the beautiful chambermaid; in my time I have stopped in dozens of hotels, and I have yet to see a chambermaid who was not over fifty, and a combination of Gorgon and Medusa. Tracy, I notice, has technique all his own in love scenes; he reaches for the heroine as though he were not absolutely sure that she was present, then grabs her like a sack of potatoes, stares intently at one of her ears, and scrapes his beard across her cheek...."If that is love, I'm a Dutchman," I said to my companion; "Ach so Mynheer Marchbanks"? she replied.

TUESDAY: Hallowe'en today, and this evening I was visited by the usual rabble of spirits and elves, to whom I made propitiatory offerings of peanuts. I was also visited by a big goblin in the garb of an Army chaplain; when I opened the door I thought he was the genuine article, and was about to run screaming into the farthest recesses of my cellar, but then I realized that he was a Hallowe'en phantasm, so I gave him some nuts and pushed him down the steps.... Did some work, and then went to bed with a volume of "Six Stories of the Supernatural" which I have been cherishing for some time, as a special treat for myself. However, I had not read many pages before I fell asleep, suffering acute discomfort, because my storm windows were put on today, and the stuffiness of my bedroom was unbearable. At last I dragged myself upward into consciousness, climbed out on the roof of the verandah in my pyjamas, and took the window off. Back to bed, and collapsed into oblivion.

WEDNESDAY: Was talking to a man this evening who was interested in my remark that I doubted the statement that more Bibles were sold than any other book. He thought that more copies of the New York Telephone Directory were distributed than Holy Writ. He has seen this directory in the process of printing, and assures me that it is an awesome spectacle. In the storage rooms a man may walk for a mile through avenues of high-piled Directories, as solid as stone walls; the sound of the footsteps, and the voice are deadened to a ghostly whisper by the acres of paper. There is nothing on earth like it, save perhaps the inmost chambers of the Great Pyramid....Was in the basement of a building in which many women live, this evening, and saw festoons of their washing hanging out to dry, including several pairs of stays. This gave me an idea: instead of the old-fashioned canvas and rubber stays, which have to be washed and dried laboriously, I shall introduce to the post-war world Marchbanks' Patent Celluloid Stays, which can be easily cleansed by wiping with a dampened cloth. The idea come to me while I was washing my celluloid collar before going to bed.

◇ ◇ ◇

THURSDAY: Received a curious telephone call from a friend of mine, who wanted to know who invented the water-closet; he has had one in his house for years, but has only recently become curious about it. The answer is that it was first devised by the Elizabethan nobleman, Sir John Harington, who in 1596 described his invention in a jolly book called "The Metamorphosis of Ajax"; it contained full directions for building a w.c., and Harington suggested that fish be kept in the water reservoir to keep it clean....Now observe: the water closet was invented in 1596, but it has only been in general use for about 30 years. Mankind is amazingly slow to recognize a good idea. Harington told the world about his invention, which he was certain would mitigate the plague, and what did the world do? It condemned him as a man whose mind dwelt on filth. Thus the very name of this great benefactor of mankind is known to about one person in 5,000, whereas the inventor of the zip-fastener was given an L.L.D. by the University of Upsala . What a world!

◇ ◇ ◇

FRIDAY: Was talking to a very successful business man who told me that if he had his life to live over again he would choose to be a railway engine-driver or a cathedral organist. This reminds me of my cousin, little Gobemouches Marchbanks who, as a child, wanted to be either an organist or a garbageman. Organists are always admired as fellows of great puissance, for when they let loose with the big pipes they can bring down walls and shatter windows. Next to an air-raid, an organ is the noisiest thing in the world....One of the greatest moments of my childhood was when an organist stepped on the pedals during a sermon; he had forgotten to turn off the power, and the thing roared like a pride of angry lions. The clergyman was cut short in the full flood of his discourse, and never got up full steam for the rest of the morning. I think that he feared that some unconscious blasphemy in his sermon had called down a Divine rebuke. As for the organist, he lost weight visibly for the remainder of the service.

◇ ◇ ◇

SATURDAY: A rainy day, so I did not have to force myself out-of-doors in order to rake up leaves. Instead I went to sleep, and awoke much refreshed about four o'clock. There was a time when I never needed sleep; now I seem to need it after every meal except breakfast. I suppose that this will grow upon me until I am one of those strange old men who are never really awake. Sleep has always overtaken me at inopportune times. Several years ago I was one of a group of eight people listening to Professor Ralph Flenley talk most interestingly about the French Revolution. All of a sudden I gave a leap in my chair, and realized that I had been dreaming—about Greta Garbo, I recall — and that Prof. Flenley was looking at me with a gimlet eye. "Always listen best with my eyes closed" I mumbled, foolishly. He gave a short snort and continued about Robespierre. I don't think he believed me, but what was I to say? It occurred to me later that "Concentration always makes me jump" would have been a good remark.

"YEAR OF THE BIG WIND"

Prefabricated Dwellings in Britain

(By DIANA MARTIN)

"HOMES for Heroes", the slogan of the peacemakers of 1918, has been resurrected in Britain. But with a difference. Today the British Government, while still at war, has already made detailed plans for peacetime housing.

Under a gigantic program of reconstruction that will revolutionize British housing, 4,000,000 new homes will be built in the decade following the end of the war; at least a quarter of a million prefabricated factory-made houses are to be constructed immediately. They will be of a well-planned comfort previously undreamed of by the average Briton.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE causes of the housing crisis are fourfold. First, many of the homes, both old and newly built, that existed in Britain five years ago have since been reduced to rubble. Air raids and robot bombs have destroyed or damaged a quarter of all the separate dwellings in England and Wales. In the London area alone nearly a million houses await repair, and 107,000 must be entirely rebuilt; and there are shattered hospitals, schools and churches by the score.

Secondly, the time lag caused by five years of war has to be made up. Since two-thirds of the builders are in the forces, or employed on military construction, there has been little or no new building or repair-work since 1939.

Thirdly, the Government is determined to sweep away the evils of slums, over-crowding and medieval plumbing once and for all.

Fourthly, there has been a large increase in the marriages and birth rates during the war years, making still more urgent the demand for new homes. Stupendous efforts are being made to complete the repair of bombed houses by the end of this year. All available workmen have been mobilized; all other building work has been virtually stopped. These gangs of builders are working desperately, seven days a week and often far from home, in an effort to make at least a part of each of the bombed houses habitable before really cold weather comes.

PREFABRICATED, factory-made houses, fully furnished and ready for use, will be supplied by the Government to tide over the immediate post-war emergency. A sample standardized house of pressed steel has been designed by the Minister of Works—Lord Portal—and his advisers; houses of three other types have been exhibited by private manufacturers.

The Government has now decided to use all these four types of emergency house, so as to avoid a bottle-neck in production. Materials used include pressed steel, foam slag — a by-product from blast furnaces that is fire-resistant and quickly constructed; concrete; wood; asbestos sheets; plaster board; and wood-wool blocks, to keep out heat in summer, cold in winter, and noise all the year round.

Plants that can be quickly adapted for the purpose are being assigned for their production, materials are being earmarked, and sites chosen, as though the whole scheme were an extension of the war program. "Portal" houses can, it is thought, be produced at the rate of one every three minutes.

THESE emergency houses, which will be provided, paid for and owned by the Government, will be operated and rented by local authorities, probably at about $2 a week. They will cost approximately $2,200 each manufactured, delivered and erected, with water, gas and electricity installed. When they have served their purpose, they will be scrapped.

Returned veterans, bombed-out families for whom there is no other accommodation, and newly-married couples will be given priority in their allotment.

"I have given my word", said Churchill, "that, so far as it lies in my power, the soldiers when they return from the war, and those who have been bombed out and made to double up with other families, shall be retsored to houses of their own at the earliest possible moment". And, later: "I have every hope and a firm resolve that several hundred thousand of our young men will be able to marry several hundred thousand of our young women and make their own four years' plan".

PREFABRICATED houses consist of a living-room, two bedrooms, kitchen, bathroom, toilet and storage shed all contained in an area of about 616 sq. feet. They have roomy closets and fitted furniture, which will be mass-produced to reduce costs. A refrigerator, clothes-washing boiler, electric or gas stove, and efficient heating apparatus, included as landlord's fixtures, make them far superior to the ordinary British cottage.

During construction, the Government arranged for 12 young housewives to see and criticize the "Portal" house. Several alterations and labour-saving devices that they suggested have been incorporated in the final model, including a hot rail for drying purposes, and a special washing machine. A prototype was then exhibited to the public; 30,000 people inspected and criticized it and further modifications were made. Later, a bombed-out family of four lived in it and liked it.

These prefabricated houses are not an alternative to permanent dwellings; the alternative lies between prefabricated houses and no houses at all. Prefabrication is the only means of securing what might almost be called instantaneous building.

The building of permanent houses may start in 1945. Before launching this vast program, the Government was determined to find out just what the people wanted, and how best to give effect to their wishes.

THE Housing Manual, 1944, published by the Government for the guidance of local authorities, outlines the probable apearance of the towns of the future. Spacious garden towns, made up of all types of dwellings, are one of the chief aims of British town planning. No area will be reserved for a single social class.

All the houses in the new communities are to be laid out within easy reach of shops and cultural and entertainment centers, and are to have safe routes to schools and playing fields. Density, instead of being regulated by the number of dwellings per acre as before, will be based on the number of people to be accommodated.

Clumps of trees, hedges and banks will be preserved to beautify the new communities, and there will be much new planting. Houses built around grassy lawns, cul-de-sacs, curving roads, and terraces and crescents fronting onto open stretches will give interest and variety. Country cottages will be as well equipped as those of the towns.

MOST of the town houses are likely to be two storeys high, with three bedrooms and a garden. Three main types are contemplated. First, houses in which the kitchen and living rooms are combined, with a scullery containing a sink and a boiler, and possibly with a small sitting-room; second, houses with a large living-room and a separate kitchen, suitable for cooking and laundry only; and, third, the dining-kitchen type, in which the kitchen would be big enough for six people to eat in, and there is a separate living-room. There would also be small apartments for those who preferred them.

Old people will probably have their own quarters in the new communities. The Housing Manual suggests small self-contained dwellings, grouped together, with a sunny, bay-windowed common room, a laundry, a spare room for visitors and a place for a nurse. Good thermal insulation, fire places in the bedrooms and hand-rails to the baths would be essential features. These dwellings should have an interesting view and be within easy reach of churches and shops.

Moreover, the Manual continues: "The dwellings should not be segregated, as old people like to have contact with younger generations."

Such, briefly, are the proposals for rebuilding in Britain. Summing them up the former Minister of Health said: "In carrying out our post-war program we must see that the houses are built on well-planned estates and are such as can be made into homes in the truest sense of the word...."

A Bible Message

Trust in the Lord, and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed...

A little that a righteous man hath is better than the riches of many wicked....

The Lord knoweth the days of the upright: and their inheritance shall be for ever. (Ps. 37: 3, 16, 18.)

◇ ◇ ◇

Blessed is the man whom thou choosest, and causest to approach unto thee, that he may dwell in thy courts: we shall be satisfied with the goodness of thy house, even of thy holy temple. (Ps. 65: 4.)

◇ ◇ ◇

For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father.

The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God. And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ. (Rom. 8: 14-17.)

Unconsidered Trifles

One of the club members was telling some friends about some of his experiences when he had been working out East.

"I was in an earthquake, too," he said. "Most extraordinary thing you ever saw. The hotel rocked on its foundations; cups and saucers were flung all over the place...."

At this point the meek-looking little man in the corner suddenly turned pale.

"Great Scott!" he cried. "That reminds me—I've never posted that letter my wife gave me two days ago!"

An old farming couple had two evacuees billeted on them. They were "holy terrors" and at times the old people were at their wits' end to know what to do with them.

One day the cat disappeared, and after searching high and low for it, the old lady asked the evacuees if they had seen it.

"Yes, we drowned it," was the prompt reply; "and we don't like your old man either."

◇ ◇ ◇

There was a loud knock at the door, and when Mrs. Brown opened it, she found her neighbour, looking very angry.

"That boy of yours", she stormed, "has just thrown this brick through my window".

Mrs. Brown beamed.

"Really!" she exclaimed, "how interesting. I wonder if you will let me keep the brick? We're trying to keep all the little mementoes of his youthful pranks; they'll be so interesting when he grows up".

Letter To The Editor

TWO QUESTIONS

Sir,—That was certainly a thought-provoking story by your columnist (R. J. Deachman) entitled "Working for Unemployment" and dealing with the naive proposal put forward by Mr. Percy Bengough, president of the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada, i.e., "...to reduce the working week to five days of six hours each, a 30-hour working week, without any reduction in the weekly pay envelope!"

As you well know, the average worker "down on the farm" is only about one-third way through his "working week" at that 30-hour level. I wonder what kind of Canadians we expect to deliberately choose "Agriculture" for their way of living, while urban workers enjoy the sweets of a 30-hour week?

It would be interesting and illuminating to get further data on the above employment problem. I would like to put the following open questions, in this matter, to the two authorities above referred to:

(1) Mr. Bengough: "How do you think agriculture would fare, under a 30-hour week in Canadian mines, mills and factories?"

(2) Mr. Deachman: "Do you think it is desirable to have the married woman on the nation's pay-rolls, while homes decay?"

WALTER P. DAVISSON.

Catherine Corkery Nuptials Solemnized at St. Peter's

A pretty wedding of wide interest took place in St. Peter's Cathedral this morning, when Mary Catherine Corkery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Richard Corkery, Gilmour street, became the bride of James Anthony Maloney, of Renfew, son of Dr. Martin James Maloney and Mrs. Maloney, Eganville, Ontario. Rev. Henry Maloney, brother of the groom, performed the marriage ceremony, and the nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. Vincent J. Corkery, uncle of the bride.

Miss Marion Best, A.T.C.M., was at the organ, and accompanied Miss Geraldine Collins when she sang Millard's "Ave Maria" during the signing of the register. The church was decorated with pink roses, and white and pink 'mums.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a floor-length gown of white Duchess satin, with full skirt falling into a train lined with ice-blue satin. The fitted bodice was made with a Sweetheart neckline, and long Bishop sleeves. Her veil of tulle illusion net fell in soft folds from a Juliet cap, made with lace from her mother's wedding gown, and trimmed with blue ostrich tips, and she carried a bouquet of Butterfly roses, gardenias and adiantum fern.

The bride was attended by her two sisters, Mrs. James F. Dunn, of Ottawa, as matron of honor, and Mrs. John F. Brown of Baltimore, Maryland, as bridesmaid. They were frocked alike in becoming ice-blue damask, with floor-length full skirts, their gowns made on similar lines to the bride's. Each wore a matching Normandy cap, and carried a Colonial bouquet of pink Rapture roses.

Arthur Maloney, brother of the groom, was his best man, and the ushers were James J. Lyons, Dr. Robert A. Starrs, Lieut. James F. Dunn, all of Ottawa, and E. F. Sheehy, of Peterborough.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received the guests in a powder blue crepe ensemble, a matching ostrich plume hat, and a corsage of Dream roses, The groom's mother, also receiving, wore blue crepe, with matching hat, and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses.

For a wedding trip by 'plane to New York and Montreal, the bride chose a blue wool crepe frock, blue coat trimmed with mink furs, and brown accessories. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Maloney will make their home in Renfrew.

WAR SETS GIRLS FREE TO POP THE QUESTION

Woman Who Gets the Man She Wants Will Try to Please Him

WELL, anyway, no matter what this present war does, or fails to do, it has set women free to pop the question. And that, in the slang of the say is, somethin'. For the right to vote is a poor thing compared to the right to pick out one's husband and the father of one's children, to say nothing of being able to select a companion to whom one can listen for the next thirty or forty years without yawning in his face.

Yet this privilege is one that tradition always has denied to women, although it was obvious to the meanest intelligence that they were the ones who needed it most, because every wife is about ten times as much married to her husband as he is to her and it is therefore that much more important that she should get her heart's desire than he should get his.

But in spite of this fact which, as the French say, "leaps at the eyes," men have preempted the sole right to do the picking in marriage and, no matter how much a woman was in love with a man nor how sure she was that she would be just the kind of a wife he needed, all she could do was to put on her prettiest frock and get a new hair-do and sit around and look willing. Custom forbade her to go out and get what she wanted in a husband. She had to take what was offered her. Her sole power in marriage was the veto power.

Naturally enough women have torn their hair over this injustice, but there didn't seem much that they could do about it, for they not only got themselves talked about if they showed too openly that they were on the husband hunt, but it frightened the men so that they fled from them like startled deer.

The situation seemed, indeed, hopeless, with the old maid crop piling up, year after year, and millions of women sitting around hoping and praying and waiting for the proposal that never came, and statisticians going into a blue funk over the falling marriage rate. And nobody knowing how to deal with the problem.

War Offered Opportunity

Then came the war, and for once women's intuition lived up to its reputation. They had a hunch, or maybe it was their Guardian Angel who whispered it to them that this was their opportunity and to go to it, to strike for an equal liberty with men in courtship. Everybody was sloshing over with sentiment. All the old inhibitions were swept away. Men were softened down into putty by the thought of leaving home and going away to dangerous adventures, and they had a pathetic childlike craving to feel that they were leaving some girl behind them who would weep over their going, and miss them, and who would spend her time waiting for their return.

It was a natural, one might say, and the girls have made the most of it. They haven't let concealment prey on their damasked cheeks. They have realized that time was short and they had to work fast, so when they fancied a boy they just up and told him right out in meeting about how much they loved him, and how grand and wonderful they thought him, and how it was breaking their hearts even to think about being parted from him for the duration, and what about marrying before he left? Just giving him the line that men have used since time runneth not to the contrary when wooing the girl they wanted.

Wedding Bells Work Overtime

And it has worked. For what lad can behold a pretty girl weeping for him without drying her tears on his breast? And what argument can he use about putting off a wedding when she assures him that she has a good job and is perfectly capable not only of supporting herself but a husband, should the necessity arise? None. And that is why the wedding bells are working overtime in every community. The women have done it!

For my part, I am all for the sentimental reformation that would give women a fifty-fifty opportunity of selecting their mates, and I am sure that there will be more and happier marriages now that women have scrapped the old taboo that kept them from popping the question. For women are wiser in matters of the heart than men are, and they will look more at what is inside of a man's head than what's outside of it, and regard his past performances more than his present promises, before they offer him a life partnership. The woman college graduate won't pick out a nitwit for a mate, as so many intellectual men do. Nor will the widow with seven small children select a 19-year-old boy as a suitable stepfather for them, as middle-aged widowers pick out little debutantes to mother their broods.

And, above all, the woman who gets the man she wants for a husband will be a good wife who is always on her tiptoes trying to please him. A lot of the nagging and complaining and sloppy housekeeping is due to their having had to marry their opportunity instead of their preference. But never again. The war has made them free to pop the question.

Club Doings Y.W.C.A.

The week following the second Sunday of November is World Fellowship Week in the Y.W.C.A.

During this period the members of the 'Y' turn their attention to the work of the Association as it concerns not only their own particular city or town but the world in general. Before the War the 'Y' was active in 52 countries and the organization has remained in 50 of these countries though working underground in many of them. As soon as a city or country is liberated the 'Y' is among the first agencies to bring aid to the citizens.

This work is under direct control of the World's Council and the funds with which it is carried on are raised by an annual assessment of 10 cents per member which is collected during the World Fellowship week.

Each individual Association is responsible for the way in which it observes World Fellowship Week. Betty H. McLeod Wed In Gown Of Slipper Satin

Bethany Tabernacle, decorated with ferns, was the setting for the wedding this afternoon of Elizabeth (Betty) Harper McLeod, when she became the bride of James Albert Size of Windsor. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. MacLeod and the late Alexander McLeod, 73 Kent street, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Size of Windsor.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Douglas MacQueen, the bride was becomingly gowned in floor-length heavy white slipper satin, on long torso lines, with full skirt falling into a train, the hem finished with a saw-tooth edge. The fitted bodice, was made with a yoke of suede lace, and long fitted Bishop sleeves. Her long tulle veil from a Dutch cap of suede lace, and she wore her mother's pearls, and carried a cascade bouquet of Rapture roses and bouvardia.

She was attended by her sisters, Mrs. Douglas MacQueen, as matron of honor, and Miss Jean McLeod, as bridesmaid. They were frocked alike in Robin's egg blue pebble crepe, made with fitted bodice, long sleeves, and a long gathered skirt, trimmed with self frills. Each wore a hat of Robin's egg blue, trimmed with rose buds, and a chin veil, and carried a cascade bouquet of pink poms and cream Johanna Hill roses.

Jack Size, of London, was best man, and the ushers were Allan Stevens and Bramwell Reed.

At the reception, held at the Empress Hotel, the bride's mother received the guests in a gown of brown figured pussy willow crepe, with brown feather trimmed hat, and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses. The groom's mother, also receiving, was in black silk crepe, with matching hat and accessories, and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Size left for a wedding trip by motor, the bride travelling in a turquoise wool dressmaker suit, with brown accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. On their return, they will live in Windsor.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nof. 11.—(AP). — Columbia's Lou Little, for our money one of the smartest football coaches in the business, looks for a new type of football offence to come out of wartime experiments with different formations.

Alphabet Soup.

Little's suggestion is that the offence of the future will combine the best features of the "T" formation and the single wing or "Z".... The successful "T," according to Chic Meehan, who ought to know something about the game, requires a quarterback who can pass and a full-back who can run wide as well as plunge....The "Z," of course, is more of a power formation, requiring husky operatives.... Some coaches, including Michigan's Fritz Krisler and Colgate's Andy Kerr, have been mixing the two with fair success this season. Herb Kopf's "Q-T" isn't a new variation and now comes Gharlie Bachman of Michigan State with the "X-Z" formation....The "X" is supposed to represent a factor of uncertainty whether the full-back will hit what Bachman thinks is a defensive weak spot at centre or just fake it.... With all those lettered formations to choose from, the next big problem for the coach to solve is what to do about the alumnus who draws a seat in in row ZZ behind the goal post.

Oshawa Collegiate and P.C.V.S. meet in the final game in the senior interscholastic group at Riverside Park this afternoon in the second half of a double-header so that there will be ample time to take in the fixture after this edition reaches you for the kickoff in the senior game is expected at around 3.15 o'clock. It should be the most exciting football struggle of the campaign, staged between two powerful and well-balanced collegiate squads, with a group championship depending upon the result. Both clubs report their teams in good shape, despite a few injuries that are not expected to keep any of the stars out of action. Both have been drilled hard all this week despite rainy weather and slippery gridirons and they have put the final polish on their plays. Now they hope to see them click this afternoon and win for them the highest honors in the group and the right to enter the Cosa playcowns, starting with a game with the Bay of Quinte winners in the semi-finals next Saturday.

* * * * * *

Earl Hancock who writes Collegiate football for the Oshawa Times-Gazette in an article which starts off with the statement All roads lead to Peterborough Saturday. The Liftlock City is to be the scene of the greatest football clash of the season" and then continues with the following 'dope' on the Oshawa team: "The O.C.V.I. squad is in tip-top shape with the exception of a few bruises here and there. Chiefly one to Doug McColm, starry centre secondary. If McColm is forced out with his badly bruised arm, then Gene Wales, right end, will move to the snap-back position which he played so well last year. Hanna will take Wales' place at end, and Don Fleming will be back at his old position at the left end of the line. Fresh from their 41-0 triumph over Lindsay last week, the Oshawa lads are rarin' to go. They have their passing attack all set for the big show and plungers like Joyce and Lindsay are ready to tear that Peterborough line to shreds. Coach Doug Waugh has had the boys out practicing faithfully, and they're confident they can 'bring home the bacon.' Of course they'll need lots of support to do it, so should get your jalopy all gassed up (if you've got any coupons left) and hit the trail for Peterborough on Saturday."

* * * * * *

Light On The Horizon

There may be some action on the hockey front this winter after all, if the Peterborough hockey club can obtain a bye and enter the playdowns. At least there is a strong current of opinion among players and executives that something along that line might be better than another season without any hockey. The whole thing will be threshed out at the annual meeting of the club next week and this column understands that it is quite possible the decision may be to go ahead if the O.H.A. will accept the Peterborough entry for competition when the playoffs arrive. The fact is that it seems a shame to see it going to waste. Still available are Goalie Ray Harding, defence players, Leslie Burton and Johnny Godfrey, and forwards Honey Tompkins, Bun Kingdon, Art Heal, Eddie Starr Ned Vitarelli, Jack Jopling and Doug Mortimer, a real start for a real team and with the possibility that the Military Training Centre my bob up with a player or two to round out the outfit.

* * * * * *

George Campbell in the Oshawa Times Gazette pays the following tribute to Red Tilson, former junior star who has been killed in action overseas: "Oshawa Generals have had some great Juniors in their time but none more popular and few more skilful than the likeable red-head. 'Red' liked to work, he played hard but he played clean. He never swung a mean stick or foot or elbow. When, and it was very seldom, he decided to retaliate, he doffed his gloves and used the old-fashioned method. He rarely got a penalty once playoff time rolled around. His fighting spirit and will-to-win, as great as any we ever knew, often weeks lifted the Generals to a victory when defeat was threatening. Two weeks ago yesterday, somewhere in Holland, 'Red' Tilson gave his life for his country, home of the game he loved, 'the world's fastest sport.' He was slated to return to the N.H.L. ranks, according to reports. 'Red' himself told us, one night in Montreal, that he was coming back to Oshawa to help win the Allan Cup. We'll never see that fiery-thatched head of his again, bobbing up and down as he poke-checked rivals silly or tricked them with his own brilliant stick-handling. 'Red' lived as he played, he took the bumps and came up smiling always. Here in Oshawa, the fans roared when he went into action. Away from home, his brilliant and clean play earned him more praise and cheers than is usually accorded a visiting player and a rival. On sport pages throughout the Dominion, his death has been regretfully told. Throughout the length and breadth of this Dominion the memories of other Canadian sons who, too, have paid the supreme sacrifice will be sorrowfully but proudly ever remembered by families and loved ones. Here in Oshawa, 'Red' was one of Oshawa's great 'hockey family,' the 'Generals,' and here he will ever be remembered. Adios, 'Red'!"

The two Empress teams appear at the top of the City Five Pin League list after this week's bowling with Chris Graham's crew topping the 16-club loop with 38 points and son Ken's outfit tied with Freeman's for second spot with 34 points each. In fourth place is the Outlaw five with 32 and tied for fifth are three clubs, Sunocos, Ramblers and Cleanrites while the last team in the first division is the Fashion-Craft entry with 26. This week saw five teams come through with a clean sweep, the largest number to perform the feat since the schedule opened. There are a lot of classy bowlers scattered among the 16 clubs and the season has already produced some sensational performances. There will undoubtedly be more before the championship is decided.

"Clark Griffith probably summed up conditions correctly when he termed it the work of a nut when Dutch Leonard, Washington pitcher, was contacted by phone on the morning of the final American League game in Detroit, and asked to toss the contest and in return he would be given several thousand dollars," says Bill Gaynon in the Niagara Falls Gazette. As Griff points out, professional gamblers do not work that way, and as Leonard went out and beat the Tigers, the entire matter should be dropped. The affair follows closely on the heels of a radio broadcaster going away off the deep end and predicting a big scandal in the ranks of St. Louis Browns. The air speeler who made this crack was forced to retract when his prediction that the Browns were not levelling due to the smallness of their park, as a Detroit or Yank win would have made more dough for players and others concerned with the series take. The St. Louis conquest and Leonard's victory over Detroit, were great things for ball, but regardless of the numerous proofs that reveal the sport's honesty, there will continue to be rumors about shady happenings, as those manufacturing such tales, are the type who never want to think that anything in sport is above board, and the better thinking citizen is smart enough not to waste any time worrying over such outrageous sayings."

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Toronto Leafs and Montreal Canadiens should dish out about the best hockey game of the season in Toronto tonight....Incidentally the Leafs are getting a good test this week-end for they invade Detroit tomorrow night for their first clash of the campaign against the Red Wings who are always tough to beat before their home town fans....Turk Broda is overseas and recently played goal for a Canadian army team against an All-Star team in a game in England....St. Louis and Indianapolis had a hot battle last night with Goose Hewson formerly of Oshawa tieing up the game for the Capitals with a last period goal to make the final count 2-2....Winners of this afternoon's Collegiate senior game are due to meet the Bay of Quinte winners in a sudden death game next Saturday....Annual meeting of Peterborough Hockey Club has been called for next Wednesday at the Duffus' Board room.

Gillman, work convener, reported 15 donations valued at $7.75 and the following articles shipped: 30 garments to the Children's Aid, 28 garments to survivors' bundles, 9 quilts and 25 pairs of pyjamas.

Mrs. J. W. Ridpath reported that the nursing class would continue their practice period commencing Thursday night.

Post-war Work.

Mrs. W. W. Leonard gave a brief report on post-war planning, and the suggestion was made that the nursing class sponsor a lecture dealing with post-war work in the near future. Mrs. Ridpath, past president, was appointed to lay the wreath on the Cenotaph on Remembrance Day, and the secretary Miss Irene Madill read a special appeal to Canadian women for more help on behalf of the Red Cross. The Army, Navy and Air Force are larger than ever before, and the supplies turned in by the branches are diminishing, also more civilian relief clothing is in demand. Lakefield women are urgently asked to offer their services to sew or knit for the Red Cross.

Toronto Faces Tough Game With Canadiens

By ERIC SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The pace-setting Toronto Maple Leafs face their toughest assignment of the young 1944-45 National Hockey League campaign when they play hosts to Montreal Canadiens, last year's champions, to-night.

The match promises to be a test of strength for both and one which the Flying Frenchmen will go all out to win. The meeting will be the second this season of the two, Leafs having won the initial game 4-1 at Montreal.

In the other game to-night, Detroit Red Wings clash with Lester Patrick's Rangers at New York. On Sunday, the Wings tangle with Toronto at Detroit and Canadiens take on the Black Hawks at Chicago.

Despite Leafs' five-game winning drive, neither Coach Hap Day nor his club members is anticipating an easy time this week-end.

Many things have to be taken into consideration for to-night's encounter. A win for Toronto would send them four points ahead of Canadiens, who have won four of their five starts.

Further, both boast of at least one powerful line. Toronto's crack trio of Schriner-Bodnar-Carr currently lead individual point-getters and so far have caused opposing teams plenty of trouble. On the other hand, Canadiens' Richard-Lach-Blake combination, which led the Flying Frenchmen to victory last season, appears to have come into its own and the three snipers also are well up in the point-getting column.

There have been no pre-game predictions from either club. Toronto's rookie netminder, Frank McCool, who at present is the leading custodian in the league, will tend the nets to-night with Bill Durnan, last year's Vezina winner, between the posts for Montreal.

HAMILTON, Nov. 11 — (CP). — Dr. Angelo Patri of New York, child psychologist and educationist, said yesterday Frank Sinatra "would be doing a public service to parents and children of this continent if he would stop singing." Interviewed on arriving to address two meetings in connection with Education Week, Dr. Patri said "hysteria to the point of swooning is definitely harmful."

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Nov. 11 — (CP). — Strange study in contrasts was provided in a recent Montreal dispatch that wrestling and basketball referees were asking higher fees for their services. The grappling game, next to hockey probably is the best-paying sport in the Montreal area, while the least said about basketball's financial condition the better.

The wrestling officials want more money just on the general principle of the thing, figuring they should get all they can for risking their lives and limbs in a ring full of charging huskies. Frequently the referee comes out of the match more bruised and blackened than the wrestlers themselves — but of course it's usually all in fun.

The basketball refs asked to have their fees boosted one lone dollar from the present figure of $2.50 a game, but the governing officials say they can't afford to pay even that, because their attendance has fallen off so. When you figure that, even at a very nominal charge of 10 cents each it would take only an extra 10 customers to pay the referee his extra greenback, it doesn't say much for the size of the crowds that turn out to see the game.

Wanted: Santa Claus:

The big three of the National Hockey League, Toronto, Canadiens and Detroit, might do well to distribute some of their excess strength among the other three squads to balance up the league and make for more interesting games, comments Doug (Windsor Star) Vaughan. An example of the excess baggage the trible alliance is retaining is Paul Bibeault of Canadiens. He was acclaimed as the league's second-best goalie (some said best) with Leafs last year, but now he is cooling his heels on the bench.

Here to there:

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association will bestow a life membership on past president George Dudley of Midland, Ont., Bunny Morganson reports in the Toronto Telegram......That new 10-team hockey loop in the Western United States, reportedly is having a tough time getting enough players, and scouts are scouring Western Canada. Onlookers thought at the beginning it was an ambitious project.....Harry (Calgary Alberta) Scott says Sweeney Schriner must have some nice bonus clauses in his contract to make the old boy kick up his heels the way he has been doing so far this season.

Bermuda Boy Wins At Trinity

PORT HOPE, Nov. 11 — H. C. D. Cox of Bermuda won the 48th annual Oxford Cup Cross Country race at Trinity College School today, finishing the three and a half miles in 24.54 minutes.

He was closely followed by Ernest Howard of Toronto. The Brent House team managed to win by the narrow of three points, 29-26.

The others finished in the following order: W. M. Cox, Bermuda; P. C. Stratford, Sarnia; J. C. Barber, Bermuda; F. A. Barrow, Quebec; J. G. Gibson, Hamilton; J. B. Austin, Chapleau; G. F. Day, Mexico; K. C. Lambert, Oakville.

The best recorded time for the race is 22.30, made by the late Lieutenant J. O. Combe, in 1930. This race is considered to be the oldest annual cross country race in Canada.

American City Applauds Peterboro Arena

With its campaign to collect funds for the community centre now successfuly completed, Peterborough has taken the lead in making definite plans for the erection of "living memorials, not only in Canada, but also in the United States."

An editorial page column in the Illinois Decatur Review, calls attention to the fact that in many localities in the United States, the idea of erecting health and recreational centres as monuments to those who pay the supreme sacrifice in the service of their country, is becoming more and more popular. The article goes on to point out that in Canada Peterborough has taken the lead in planning a memorial community centre.

This is an excellent example of how the news of intelligent projects gets around. Although in the United States, along with community centres, parks, athletic fields, and other ideas are being toyed with, by far the most popular is the conception of an auditorium, ice rink, and combination sports and culture palace. For instance, in Toledo, O., a public auditorium is being considered, with space inside for public offices and club rooms for veterans.

Muskegan County, Michigan, is planning a civic and recreation centre, and auditorium, as its war memorial. Louisville, Ky., is considering a county memorial park, and Edgerton, Wis., plans a memorial hall costing $75,000.

Peterborough's aggressiveness toward reaching the goal of erecting such a centre, has been the guiding light in the attempts of other cities and towns.

Friday's Result
Indianapolis ... 2 St. Louis ... 2

NO GREENHORN — Harold Green, rising young welterweight of New York, ascends another step in the fistic ladder of fame by recording a decision over Rocky Graziano, undefeated this year. Green has engaged in 19 matches without a defeat since he was discharged from the army.

Capitals In Tie With St. Louis Team

By The Canadian Press.

Jack Hewson's third-period goal lifted Indianapolis Capitals into a 2-2 deadlock with St. Louis Flyers in the only American Hockey League game played last night and set the Caps within three points of the league-leading Pittsburg Hornets.

Winkie Smith started the St. Louis score sheet with an early first-period goal and Hewson provided the equalizer for that one. The game continued without further score until late in the second period when Orville Smith renewed the St. Louis lead. Hewson added his second goal of the night midway through the final frame. Billy Kendall drew assits on both St. Louis goals.

McDaniels Trims Sammy Angott

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 — (CP). — Jim McDaniels of Los Angeles climbed higher in the welterweight ranks last night by outpointing the veteran Sammy Angott in a slam-bang 10-round fight at Madison Square Garden.

The youthful Californian came close to being the first scrapper ever to kayo the ring-wise former lightweight titleholder from Washington, Pa. In the seventh he caught Angott flush on the jaw with a hard right. Angott fell into the ropes where his cunning foiled all of McDaniels' efforts to whip over the finishing wallop.

While McDaniels outsped the veteran, it was by no means a one-sided affair. Angott easily won the first two rounds giving McDaniels a bloody nose, then outslugged the Pacific youth in a furious ninth that made McDaniels retreat.

Angott weighed 144½ to 144¼ for McDaniels.

Cornwall Team Captures Lead

CORNWALL, Nov. 11 — (CP). — Cornwall Cookies moved into the lead of the Interprovincial Hockey League last night with a 5-3 overtime victory over Shawinigan Falls Cataracts. The two points collected lifted the Cookies out of a deadlock for first place with the idle Valleyfield Braves.

Coach Lex Cook introduced four new players to the Cornwall fans, Marks, Bourcier, Kelly and Marshall. Marks featured his debut with a second-period goal.

Johnny Carracher was the star of the game scoring three of the Cornwall tallies while the other goal came from Desroches.

Lupien scored twice for Shawinigan Falls and McIntyre added the third.

Aviation Talks Reveal Sharp Variation

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, Nov. 11—(CP)—Prospects of a permanent International Aviation Agreement covering technical and operating standards, allocation of routes and freedom of the air emerging from the international differences between national points of view remained sharp.

It is likely, however, that an agreement of more limited scope will emerge and, if the bigger thing is not attained, the conference may make some general declaration designed to facilitate conclusion of a wider agreement later.

The more limited agreement would cover technical matters, such as rules of the air, methods of landing, operating of airports and customs procedure.

It would also create an international body on an interim basis with consultative powers and with instructions to draft a permanent agreement for submission to a later conference.

Discussion of the merits of control favored by the United Kingdom and Canada as well as some European and other British Commonwealth States and lack of control as favored by the United States and, it is believed, most Latin-American States, went on at a lively pace yesterday.

The fact none of the British Commonwealth countries has yet submitted international route proposals is the subject of much comment among the United States representatives and observers.

They are wondering whether these route proposals which the United States is encouraging all countries to put in are being held back in some sort of bargaining move with a view to getting the United States to make concessions on its opposition to an international authority to allocate routes, frequencies and rates.

Lewis Urges Co-operation Between Press And Radio

TORONTO, Nov. 11 — (CP) — Richard G. Lewis, publisher of the Canadian Broadcaster, said to-day in a luncheon address to the Association of Canadian Advertisers that "it is about time that press and radio forgot that they are enemies in to-day's battle for advertising and concentrated on combining their resources as allies in to-morrow's battle for freedom."

A potential threat to freedom of the press exists in the licensing system which accompanies paper control, said Mr. Lewis. Just last week restrictions on use of paper were relaxed but the licensing system remains in force. "In other words, press control, and it was with the press that paper control started, is outlasting commercial control."

"I am not suggesting that our present benevolent government is going to use its wartime paper rationing machine to suspend publications of any organs which may dare to disagree with its policies. What I do suggest is that there is at least a possibility that the present administration may not last forever, that it might be succeeded by a government that is not so benevolent and which could, if it so desired, take advantage of the setup which has already been established for it as a wartime measure...."

Broadcasting came under government control with the establishment of the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission in 1931 and the control remained when the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation was formed in 1936. The CBC now is thriving as probably the greatest competitor newspapers and other periodicals ever had.

"Eleven of Canada's 95 broadcasting stations belong to the government, or as the CBC would rather phrase it, to the people of Canada, and I think it is 47 of these privately-owned stations which regularly take CBC feeds as basic stations of one or other of the CBC's two national networks."

Government Control.

Actual operation of the CBC is in the hands of a group of capable radio men, over whom is a Board of Governors. "This CBC performs the amphibious functions both of regulating the private stations in acordance with the Broadcasting Act and also of being in the broad-competition with.....the private stations, who are required to get the CBC's recommendation before their licences are renewed by the Department of Transport each year."

"To-day you can only buy a national radio network from the CBC. In other words, the government's radio system.....not only controls what may go out over the national networks, but also what may not go out."

Radio still subsists largely on the revenues it receives from advertising and "to this extent at least, continues to function in the manner of its older brother, the press."

"Whether the years that lie ahead will see the younger medium recapture some of the liberties—lost liberties—I believe are its right, or whether the future will give us a press forced to operate under similar controls, depends.....on whether these two great media can see their way to burying the hatchet.. ...and to co-operating in helping industry in general to secure for itself and for Canada the freedom of thought and action which all of us....believe to be our most sacred right."

Press Control Blamed As War Cause

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—(AP)—A positive program with adequate enforcement machinery to assure unfettered flow of news and information around the world is urged by Ken Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, in an article in the current issue of Life Magazine.

The article describes what was termed the former world news monopoly of the European news agencies and the controlled press of the totalitarian countries, and asserts the aggressor countries could not have driven their people to war without systematic perversion of the news.

"A heavy duty rests upon the Allied peoples," Mr. Cooper concludes. "If they are not convinced that the adoption of free-news principles is their responsibility, then once again, the next war is their war."

Mr. Cooper cites the recent action of the United States Congress in unanimously endorsing the idea of world-wide freedom of news and suggests that if the British parliament followed the example of Congress it would "help enormously" to promote the unhampered flow of free news.

He writes that the peace negotiations, "on the positive side," should guarantee "equal access to news wherever it occurs or wherever it is disclosed.

"On the negative side there should be two provisions: one that forbids the intentional transmission of propaganda from one country to another; and a second that forbids peacetime censorship in any form.

Show No Preference

"And in no country should there be preferential transmission rates whether by radio or telegraph or telephone; for it is as easy to stop news at its source by putting prohibitive prices on wordage as by outright censorship. It is obvious that radio news involves similar problems that will require similar answers."

To enforce the plan, Mr. Cooper writes "one important step would be to give diplomatic immunities to news correspondents working abroad—independently, however, of any diplomatic missions.

"These immunities would mean, in effect, the right to report news without a hindrance and protection against being expelled—should a correspondent become persona non grata—except by the officials of his own country.

"Besides this, each correspondent should be guaranteed access to all the governmental news that the foreign country makes available to its own newspapermen; and each correspondent should have equal chance to transmit his copy."

Buzzing backstage in diplomatic circles is a worrying reveration over the ultimate danger of war in South America. Consternation grows, as Argentine rushes armament, building planes day and night. She could bomb Santiago, capital of Chile, from Mendoza, just across the Andes in 40 minutes, while it would take five hours for Chile to attack Buenos Aires from the air. The unrest is real in Chile, as the Socialist, Communist and Conservative parties, usually vigorously divergent, are united on the fear that Argentine Fascists, looking for a means to keep themselves in power as Hitler did, will make a Czechoslovakia out of Chile. Other Latin Americans are divided: Paraguay, Peru and Bolivia, dotted area on the map above, are Argentine sympathizers, while Brazil, vertical lined area, officially is not.

Expect 10,000 Recruits From Centres

OTTAWA, Nov. 11—(CP)—Reinforcement officers today were making the rounds in National Defence Headquarters and home war establishments throughout Canada carrying out Defence Minister McNaughton's accelerated plan to send non-combatant staffs to the reinforcement stream.

No official figures were available, but it has been estimated that 1,000 high category men will be found at N.D.H.Q. here and another 6,000 to 8,000 will be combed out of establishments in other parts of the country.

Besides this number it has been estimated that at least 5,000 combat troops can be re-mustered from home ordnance, service corps, engineers, artillery and armored corps establishments.

At N.D.H.Q. it was said that the first potential infantry reinforcements — the need for which was stressed Wednesday night by Prime Minister Mackenzie King—have already gone to training camps for refresher courses.

6 Weeks' Brush-Up.

No one would estimate how long it would be before these troops would be on their way overseas, but one source said: "It shouldn't take longer than six weeks to get them back into shape—you must remember that they've all had the basic infantry course and some of them have brushed up on this in brief training periods."

He said that only in case of "extreme essentiality" would medically fit combat potential be left on their jobs to await replacements. The remannder will be sent to refresher camps "almost immediately."

Another source said that while he could produce no recruiting figures yet he understood there had been a marked increase in the number of draftees "going active" since Gen. McNaughton made his appeal at Arnprior, Ont., last Sunday.

"I can't give you any figures but I can assure you if they are released they will show an increase for this week over last — why three Zombie clerks right on this floor volunteered yesterday."

Welfare League Donates $150 To Aid British War Victims Fund

Humanity in general and the community in particular owes much to all people who work that good may accrue to those in need, first of all within their own district, and then for the needs of others who are farther afield.

The Junior Welfare League of this city are a group of 25 ladies who have been doing a welfare work that has been a real asset for quite a number of years, which had as its prime object in the days prior to the war, the supplying of cod liver oil and milk to the babies of parents unfortunately situated, besides the giving of assistance in various other ways, thus assisting them to a far better chance in the days to come, to face the responsibilities that good citizenship entails upon all its people.

Since the war began, this group has extended its activities to quite some extent to take a goodly part in a number of various assists all pertaining to a successful prosecution as such, the call of Empire service in the first place being very manifest from the fact that nine of the members husbands are on active service, one of whom has paid the supreme sacrifice, added to which may be mentioned that another three have sons acting in the same capacity, which is also shared by two of the members themselves who have donned the King's uniform themselves for the same purpose.

In order to raise funds for the extra services they wished to render, this group has for the past four years held what has been known as a Thrift Shop, wherein almost every variety conceivable in wearable goods and household articles of any value at all, were gathered together from the attics and storage places in various homes, these being sold to best advantage in a four day sale conducted by the members themselves.

After having held three previous sales in this manner, it was not without some disposition to doubt the success on a similar scale of a 4th effort of like nature, that they commenced on the one held most recently, which not only proved as good, but even went one further to record it as the best ever yet to be held.

The success attained on this occasion is all the more remarkable when one considers that the offerings this time were individually of less saleable value, there being nothing that sold over the $10.00 mark, and a very large number of sales were made at only a nickel and a dime, which would require a very large volume to make up the over $300.00 that was sold in the first day that the sale was held.

The gathering together of all these materials and the sale itself was concentrated into the space of two weeks, to which H. A. Morrow rendered valuable assistance by making a store available as a contribution to the cause for that period of time.

The officers of this group are Mrs. D. A. McTavish, president; Mrs. W. B. Gordon, vice-president; and Mrs. J. D. Anderson, all of whom together with the other active members are to be congratulated on the success attained, which enabled them to make a gift of $150.00 towards the special donations to give Christmas cheer, now being raised by the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund.

This gift is the fourth to be received from them, as two of $100.00 each, and the other for the same amount as reported today were previously given from the other successful sales held prior to the one of most recent vintage, all of which incites the writer to add, long may their good work continue to be blessed in such a fruitful manner for the good purposes for which they have labored.

Brief reports concerning the social side of the gathering were made by Dick Raine, John Comstock, and Ernie Bartlett, and were made up chiefly of humorous antedates, and also concerned the difficulties John Troke met, in attempting to make the French citizens understand his French.

RETURNS TO CANADA—LAW. Phyllis Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Harris, 478 Donegal street, who has been overseas with the RCAF, Women's Division, for 15 months, arrived home this morning. She has been serving as a postal clerk and was formerly employed at the C.G.E.

Overseas Story Told To Club

An intimate slant on army life overseas both during the great Nazi air blitz and after, was brought to members of the Friday Night Club at its weekly meeting, by Hon.-Capt. J. L. Hodgson, an army padre, who returned home from overseas several months ago. One of the highlights of his address to the club was the passing on of the high tributes paid Canadian soldiers, by ranking Allied officers.

Capt. Hodgson, who enlisted as a combatant in the early part of the war, has spent more than four years in the army, the greater portion of it in England. Because of his service with Canadians, he was able to convey to the members many vivid incidents of life overseas.

Three new members were accepted into the club, Henry Kelley, Pte. R. E. Glover, and G. McHathie. Jack Sackville, president welcomed the new members and Art Northcott introduced three visitors, including Rod Reed and Robert Cauley, former members of the club now in the armed forces, and John Rutherford.

Mr. Sackville pointed out that Ladies' Night is November 17, and asked each member to bring friends to the gathering. Music and a sing-song was under the direction of D. Graham and Jim Shields.

Bob Sutherland Killed Overseas

L.-SGT. R. SUTHERLAND

L.-St. Robert J. G. Sutherland, whose wife lives at 450B Mark Street, has been reported killed in action in Holland November 1, while serving with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders. He has been overseas since July, 1941.

Only a short time ago, L.-Sgt. Sutherland was listed as wounded while fighting in France. At that time, he received a bullet wound in the upper lip and nose. He survived that, however, and continued to fight for his country, only to fall later on the doorstep of Germany itself.

He enlisted in 1940, and was previously employed in the shipping department of the Quaker Oats Company. He has three children, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Sutherland, McGill Street.

Pte. Ross Copeland Killed In Holland

Mr. and Mrs. John Copeland, 135 Durham Street West, Lindsay, have been notified of the death of their only son, Pte. Ross Copeland, in Holland on October 13.

In a letter received recently, the soldier described the fighting to be hard and he remarked that for several days before writing the letter he had not been able to even take his shoes off, let alone get any rest.

Pte. Copeland enlisted with a Signal Corps in Vancouver, and went overseas in July, when he transferred to an infantry unit.

Cameron Clark Chosen Best Speaker

Cameron Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Clark of Smith township, was the winner of the competition in public speaking at the Co-Op Hall Friday night under the sponsorship of the Farm Young People's Club of the county. His subject was "Building a New World for the Postwar Period".

Second honors went to Patricia Staples, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Staples of Springville. "Rural Recreation" was her subject.

The other contestants were Alan Drummond, Otonabee, on the subject "A program for the County Federation of Agriculture", Keith Lowes of Emily, speaking on "Ontario Hydro", and Roger Hanbidge of Fairmount, Cavan, on "The Rural Church".

Cameron Clark will be the Peterborough club's representative in the provincial finals December 5 at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, under the auspices of the Farm Young People of the province. Judges were Mrs. J. G. Wharry, R. L. Hale, English master at the Collegiate Institute and Q. S. McKinney of the Normal School staff.

Winner of the contest for amateur talent in entertaining were in order Leahy Brothers of Douro, four instruments, in their number "Victorious Legion"; Eunice Moncrief, Lindsay Highway, piano solo, Waltz in A flat by Chopin; Janet McIntosh, Springville, reading "Minding the Baby".

Vocal solo Raymond Kelk, Springville, "My Buddy"; vocal solo by Miss Joy Preston, "Linden Lea" and "Annie Laurie"; and vocal solo by Miss iVola Neals, Springville "Going My Way".

May Go Too

Lorne Reynolds, president of the Club, was chairman of the meeting which was largely attended. There is no provincial contest in entertainment features but it is likely some of the Peterborough club's accomplished members will take part in the program at the Toronto meeting, among them the Leahy Brothers and Miss Moncrief. It is expected that a special C.P.R. coach may be obtained for the convenience of the members going to the provincial meetings.

Incidentally the whole company was delighted to welcome Charles E. Moore of Smith who was able to be out again after months of illness. He was called upon for a speech, and in responding he told the young people they were making greater use of their abilities than was possible a generation and two ago. Mr. Moore congratulated the young people on the practice and work they are putting into their special studies, and pointed out that the club was now able to provide from its own membership a most interesting variety and quality of vocal and instrumental music, recitations and so on.

Mr. Moore has been one of the most ardent sponsors of the Farm Young People's movement in this district, and quite obviously takes a special pride in the club membership and believes that it should receive every encouragement.

Veterans Young And Old Mourn Comrades Who Died In Two Wars

Veterans of that other war against Germany, designated tentatively by history as the Great War, reformed their ranks again this morning for the parade of Remembrance Day, commemorating the twenty-sixth anniversary of the signing of the Armistice at the eleventh hour of Nov. 11, 1918.

The remustering today of the men who had wrested victory from the Huns on the farr off battle fields, especially in France and Flanders, on the sea and in the air, recalled comrades who had fallen in the fight and others for whom death delayed its inevitable call into the years between, and until recent months and weeks for a few of those missing from this morning's ceremony. It was another annual reunion of respect and revivifying of memories of personalities and faces and also of association and deeds together as boots beat their old rhythm again on the hard pavement and hush descended upon the familiar scene around the War Memorial, shrine of Peterborough men's great sacrifice in Confederation Square.

Impressive Scene

Fire Chief George Gimblett, president of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion, marched again at the head of that numerous company of veterans of the last war, with a group of younger torch-bearers who have been through recent years of fighting, together with members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Legion and troops from the local Training Centre.

The parade route and the Eleventh Hour program followed the precedent order, the sounding of the Last Post and Reveille, the end and the beginning of the soldier's day extended as symbolism of life's limits, followed by a featured address for the occasion by Rev. Captain John H. Hodgson, returned Padre in the present war, and the placing of wreaths on the War Memorial.

Captain Hodgson prefaced his address with a text as follows:

"And they shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." Isaiah 2:4.

"This was the vision of the prophet Isaiah nearly 3,000 years ago... a vision of the ideal civilization that is coming, that is to be. And today we remember the fine men and women who have gone forth from our midst to offer their all, even life itself, that this dream shall yet come true. May God in His wisdom hasten that day!

"There will be heroes in that day, even as we honor the heroes of our day, but let us remember that there will then be a new heroism...scope for the fullest display of bravery and for the development of finest manhood and womanhood in the pursuit of the arts of peace.

This new heroism will be for those to achieve who have iron in their blood and granite in their natures.

"In the vision of Isaiah, the cannons are not to be left to rust away. They are to be converted. Their strength is to be transfigured. After the Franco-Prussian war, many of the cannon-balls were melted down and recast as church bells. A manufacturer in Birmingham, England, tells of turning the empty shell cases used in the Boer War into dinner-gongs and the armaments manufactured for use in the Great War were in many cases made over into all kinds of useful articles. And we now know that the same thing will come true when this terrible struggle is over.

"That is the idea of Isaiah's vision War steel is not to be wasted, but no longer, please God, will it be used in spreading devastation over the face of the earth! It is to be the instrument of a new and better service, and the emphasis changed from the taking of life to its preservation.

"We who gather here today, have had a very clear picture of the waste and extravagance of war and its horrors. Dean Inge, who visited these shores some years ago, at

General Canvass In City Goes Over Top

The general canvass in the City of Peterborough today joined the other sections in the 7th Victory Loan in going over the top thus leaving only the canvass among the rural area of the county to yet obtain the objective.

In sweeping over the top the general canvass with one day yet to go reported $1,772,800 or 105.8 per cent of the objective, and the total general and employee canvass was rapidly nearing its 10 per cent over all objective as asked by the Minister of Finance Hon. J. L. Ilsley with only $45,600 required.

Payroll savings added two more points on purchases of $21,250. This group which consists of the employees of 23 of the city's industries were given an objective of $900,000 which is a little better than 15 per cent of their pay for the next six months. In answering the challenge thrown them by Mr. Ilsley when he was here they subscribed 125-36 per cent of their objective to top all groups in the Victory Loan.

The county stands at $573,400 or 91.7 per cent of the $625,000 objective with eight of the municipalities over the top. North Monaghan still has the lead with 131.8 per cent of its objective; the northern townships Chandos, Harvey, Burleigh and Anstruther are in second place with 116.4 per cent; Dummer is in fourth right behind Lakefield with 109.1 per cent; Belmont and Methuen are in fifth place with 107.6 with a total of $26,900 and Havelock is also over with 103.7 per cent of objective.

Asphodel reported 87.6 per cent, Ennismore 92 per cent, Smith 73.1 per cent, Otonabee 83.4, Douro 72.4 and Norwood 66 per cent.

With the general canvass in Peterborough exceeding its objective which had been increased $125,000 over the 6th Victory Loan the Peterborough War Finance Committee was loud in its praise of the splendid job done by the canvassers. Several canvassers were taken ill during the campaign and the others jumped in and helped finish up their territory and the result was that a grand showing has been made by all.

On Friday special names also produced another $50,000 to make the total $1,500,000 or 107.1 per cent of the objective.

Victory Loan headquarters had every hope this morning that rural Peterborough would reach its objective today but it was also felt that several of the municipalities might have difficulty in reaching theirs.

Compared with the same day in the 6th Victory Loan the totals stood today at general canvass city of Peterborough: 6th loan $1,471,500 and 7th loan $1,772,800.

Rural Canvass: 6th loan $509,050 and 7th loan $573,400.

Payroll Savings: 6th loan $1,010,650 and 7th loan $1,128,200.

Special Names: 6th loan $1,440,000 and 7th loan $1,500,000.

GOING OVER TOP

Cavan and Manvers townships were showing 96 per cent of their Victory Bond objectives on Thursday. The farmers of Cavan are being asked for $120,000 in Bond investment and Manvers $80,000.

De Laval Given 7th Loan Flag

The flag of the Seventh Victory Loan was raised at the De Laval plant Friday afternoon, the final act in the employee's Bond drive. Their objective was $45,000 and they subscribed for $56,000 or 122 p.c. with 94 p.c. of the staff participating.

The Honor Certificate of the National War Finance committee was presented by Bill Reid to Cecil G. Upper, and the Victory Flag was received by Orme Cruikshanks, as representing the staff. Certificates of recognition, an attractive souvenir for the salesmen, were presented by A. L. Stedham of headquarters.

Flag raisings are the final official gesture in the Victory Loan campaign, but the ultimate act of all is simply "hanging on" to those Bonds just as long as each and everyone can; parting with them only for some actual necessity; and on the other hand stowing them away in security as a reserve of buying power for after the war.

One of the C.G.E. salesmen reported that Ian McRae distributed the recognition certificates at the big plant; one for each man and woman of the Bond sales staff with a handshake and warm thanks for helping C.G.E.-Genelco up to that total of $544,450.

Purse Snatcher Attacks Woman

Mrs. J. Lashmar, 431 Stewart street, was attacked and robbed by a young man who snatched and made off with her purse on Brock street Friday night.

Mrs. Lashmar was walking west on Brock street between Bethune and Stewart streets shortly after 9 o'clock when she met a youth walking east. As the two met Mrs. Lashmar told police the youth stopped in front of her and asked her to hand over her purse.

She refused and the man repeated the command "Hand it over or I'll shoot."

Mrs. Lashmar did not obey the order whereupon the young man suddenly tripped her and threw her to the ground, grabbed her purse and took to his heels west on Brock street. The purse contained $4 in cash and a cheque for $10.

Police scoured the city in cruisers looking for the assailant but found no one answering the description.

Veterans

time congratulated this continent upon the fact that our wealth could be turned to the exploitation of our immense natural resources, while Europe must spend the most of its income in supporting great war machines. Since those words were spoken, we too, have had a taste of what it means to bend all our efforts towards the building up of new and more frightful engines of war.

"In the city of Paris, in front of the famous "Hotel des Invalides," there used to stand a big, railway car; and across its broad side were the words, "The car in which the armistice was signed, November 11th, 1918." Because it was the most historic railway car in the world, and the symbol of their defeat in the Great War, the Germans stole it away and used it to conclude therein the so-called armistice between France and themselves, during the present war.

"Armistice Day began when the Great War leaders, grave and worn, and holding the happiness of mankind in their hands, signed that memorable pact in 1918.

"In 1921, hundreds of war dead were brought back to be re-interred in their native soil, and in the same year, many nations adopted the plan of burying an unknown soldier in their greatest shrines.

"The two-minute silence of Remembrance Day has become an acknowledged fact in many parts of the world, and thoughtful men and women everywhere are uniting to perpetuate the lessons, not only of the Great War, but of the present titanic struggle.

"And what throbs of joy and thankfulness will fill every heart when peace comes again. No matter when the present war ends, there will always be a Time of Remembrance for us, and it will be born in joy and gladness over the passing of war's bitter curse.

"And so we gather here, today, to re-dedicate ourselves to the unfinished task...the ushering-in of a day when wars shall be no more, and the nations of mankind shall indeed beat their weapons of carnal warfare into the implements of peace.

"Away up in the Andes Mountains of South America, on the boundary line between two great nations, there stands a statue of the Christ. It was made from old melted-down cannon and [illegible] ed there at the conclusion [illegible] was hoped to be lasting peace between the two nations. Let me remind you of the inscription thereon:—

"Sooner shall these mountains crumble into dust than the people of these two nations break the peace which they have sworn at the feet of Christ the Redeemer."

"Dr. Van Dyke has succeeded in capturing the spirit of this movement and the vision of Isaiah in the following poem:—

"Christ of the Andes," Christ of Everywhere,
Great Lover of the hills, the open air,
And patient Lover of impatient men
Who blindly strive and sin and strive again,
Thou Living Word, larger than any creed,
Thou Love Divine, uttered in human need—
Oh, teach the world, warring and wandering still,
The Way of Peace, the footpath of Good Will. Amen.

Says Phil Turner

had had their advantages in mortar fire plus tanks, we could have easily pushed them away back behind Arnhem. They relied on saturating us with shells and bullets. Even at night they'd send up scores of Very lights and then pour streams of machine-gun tracer bullets over our heads until dawn. Occasionally they'd lob long-range rifle grenades into our positions, just to keep us on the jump.

"Some of the Jerries were admittedly cheeky devils. One night one of them crept right into our positions and opened fire with a light machine-gun just 25 yards from my slit trench. Before I could reply, one of my sergeants got him with a grenade. On other night, a German sniper passed through our outposts and parked himself in a house 25 yards behind us. In the morning light he opened up on us, but before he'd done much damage, we had exterminated him. German SS troops resorted to their usual tricks. They donned uniforms taken from dead or captured British and Polish soldiers and tried to infiltrate our positions. One daring Jerry in a Polish uniform, who knew the correct password, even walked up to one of our company sections and coolly asked in a foreign accent, which the boys then thought was Polish, how many Bren guns they had. He then walked calmly back in the direction of the German positions before our startled gunners could open fire.

Discover Retreat

"Around about suppertime on the Monday—which, of course, meant nothing to us as we'd had nothing to eat for several days—the sergeant-major crawled into my slit trench and said Major Cain wanted to see me, so I reported at the stable where Cain had his headquarters, and was given the details of evacuation. At that time, the scheme for getting out, which we branded 'Operation Berlin,' was only provisional, but at dusk a runner came to me and confirmed the plan. Going from group to group, I briefed my men and from then until about midnight we stood to, expecting Jerry to attack. For the past two or three days we'd heard British Second Army guns on the south side of the Neder Rhine and that evening they laid down concentrated fire on Jerry positions to make them think we were about to make a large counter-attack.

"Just after midnight, having wrapped our shoes in bits of blankets and parachutes to muffle the noise we began our withdrawal, each man holding on to the jacket of the man in front. Our actual movement towards the river was fairly uneventful, or at least quiet, in comparison to the din we had endured for eight days. It wasn't until almost 3 o'clock Tuesday morning, when we were about 150 yards from the river's edge that the Germans opened up. Mortars began firing around us, but they were probably hit-and-miss shots, as Jerry began to realize that we were withdrawing. With the mortar shells came thousands of tracer bullets, most of them passing high overhead. This was done largely to intimidate our men, but they produced the opposite result for as long as they were high, we knew there wasn't any danger in walking upright.

"Holding on to each other, most of us reached the river bank without trouble, but the Germans obviously got wise to our withdrawal about then, and began lobbing over mortar shells about three to five minutes apart. The men scattered and hugged the ground while awaiting embarkation, and in this confusion, I lost the bulk of my platoon. When we reached the other side, only four of my men and myself had shown up."

Great Fighters

"I went out some hours earlier than Phil and long before Jerry had any idea we were going, so what was left of my platoon—eight men and myself attached to the improvised company of Major Cain — reached the river bank without any trouble," Harvie recalled.

"Down at the river's edge rough shapes of assault boats showed up, and after the walking wounded were loaded we inched across the mud flats and waded into the water up to our knees.

"Alongside one of the boats, a Canadian soldier attached to the company of engineers that did the bulk of the evacuation job grabbed me under the shoulders and heaved me aboard. 'Come on there,' he said, 'it isn't very healthy out here.'

"The rest of our story is pleasant. On the far bank we were given hot tea with rum, and a blanket around the shoulders, and then we started walking towards the medical station south of the river where we were loaded on trucks and driven down the Nijmegen-Eindhoven corridor. After fighting eight or nine days in the Battle of Arnhem there's only one thing we'd like the world to know. And that is, that in the opinion of two Canadians the British Tommy is the finest fighter in the world."

Sailors On Leave Give Blood To Keep Plasma Supplies Going

The men in the services are all aware of the great work of blood plasma, and many Peterborough boys, when home on leave, appear at the Blood Donors Clinic to make their contribution, two sailors were present this week, Sto. 1 Robert D. Jones, who gave his second donation, and CPO. Cecil Bell, who made his first.

The attendance which in the past three weeks has been stepped up some, slid back with 62 donors appearing on Monday and 66 on Wednesday. Red Cross officials have explained that the need for more plasma is still in a critical stage.

Post War Work Topic At WMS

SPRINGVILLE, Nov. 11—(ENS) —Mrs. Melville H. Johnston was hostess to the W.M.S. for the November meeting. Owing to the absence of the president, Mrs. J. F. Everson presided and also took charge of the worship period. Thoughts concerning Christianity to-day, "Have we relied too much on material advance?" were given by Mrs. Everson. She pointed out that the chief concern ought to be the fullest development of personal lives and to look toward a kingdom of righteousness and goodwill. The worship service was closed with prayer by Mrs. Dunford.

Mrs. C. Veenman invited the society to her home for the December meeting, when Mrs. Murray's group will be in charge of the program. The thankoffering service to be held in the church on Sunday evening, November 12, was announced, and the guest speaker will be Mrs. Gray of Garden Hill. The secretary was instructed to send a card to Mrs. A. Sanderson of Peterborough, conveying to her the sympathy of the society in the passing of her husband, a former elder of the Springville Church.

Mrs. George Whitfield took charge of the program. The chapter of the study book about the islands of the Pacific was dealt with. Mrs. Whitfield spoke of the size of the islands and the intensity of the bombing which had taken place there. Mrs. M. H. Johnston showed their respective positions and the importance of each. She explained the annexation of Hawaii by the United States and Mrs. A. Bidgood spoke of the origin of the natives of these islands. The coming of the missionaries was dealt with by Mrs. H. Rowan, and Mrs. J. Whitfield told of the result of the missionary enterprise in the Fiji Islands. Mrs. G. Whitfield, in summarizing the chapter, spoke of the future work of missionaries in the post-war world.

Stole Two Legs

CHICAGO, Nov. 11 — (AP) — A thief took two artificial legs from W. H. Swinburn's automobile, but if he returns Swinburn says he will fit them for free — provided he needs them. Swinburn, reporting the theft to police, said a few months ago he made a similar offer when one artificial leg was stolen from his car. The culprit showed up and, Swinburn said, he attached the leg without charge. That's his business.

STRIPPING OUT SUITS

PLAYING at a trump contract, it frequently can pay to strip out all cards of two side suits from both your hand and the dummy before you play either the third side suit or the trumps. If you have to lose the lead to the opponents then in either that remaining side suit or trumps, the defenders must return either one of those two into whatever tenaces you have, or else one of the suits of which you are now divested, giving you a chance for a ruff and discard.

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♦	1 ♥	2 ♦	4 ♥

As soon as West led the diamond 3 and South saw the situation facing him, he realized that East was quite likely to have the important honors sitting over North's major suit kings, especially since East had opened the bidding while vulnerable. So he decided to protect himself against losing four tricks in the majors.

Doing that necessitated his eliminating the minor suits from both of his own holdings. Winning the diamond lead with the A, he led the club 6 to the Q, ruffed the diamond 8 with the heart 3, overtook the club K with the A, scored the diamond K and and then led the club 5, which he ruffed with the heart 7, East discarding a diamond. Then he led the heart J, playing low from the dummy.

East's goose was cooked. The best he could do was win that trick with the Q and two more with his heart A and spade A. But he couldn't help making the rest of the dummy's cards good, since a diamond return would bring a ruff and discard. If East had decided not to discard on the club 5, and had ruffed with his heart Q, he would have been end-played just the ... but a trick earlier.

Your Week-End Question

What is the most important situation in which the partner of the opening leader should refuse to cover an honor played from the dummy on the first trick?

World Business Must Be Expanded Fully

By THOMAS HAGENBUCH
Associated Press Staff Writer

RYE, N.Y., Nov. 11—(AP)—World business after the war must be expanded "on a basis of non-discrimination and of freedom from excessive barriers and restraints," President Roosevelt said Friday in a message to the opening session of the International Business Conference.

"The necessary expansion can be achieved only as nations and their citizens work together cooperatively toward understanding each others' problems and taking effective and mutually advantageous measures for solving these problems," the president said in extending greetings to some 300 business men from 50 countries, including Canada, who will meet here for 10 days to discuss various aspects of world trade.

The president said that by exchanging information and by "frank and friendly discussion in a spirit of mutual helpfulness," businessmen from all countries can help to replace the "war-distorted economy of the world with the new and better structure which is necessary to the maintenance of world prosperity and security."

Planning Course

The President's message was read by Eliot Wadsworth, chairman of the American section of the International Chamber of Commerce, one of the four organizations sponsoring the conference. The other three are the National Association of Manufacturers, the National Foreign Trade Council and the United States Chamber of Commerce.

In a welcoming address, Wadsworth said the delegates are not expected to conclude their deliberations with a set of resolutions, but when the conference is over "these businessmen will have a general idea of what their counterparts in other countries will want when the war ends and international trade can move again.

"They will be in a position to give advice and counsel to their governments, which inevitably will play an important part in the post war international economic and trade picture."

Eric Johnston, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, told the delegates:

"The world of tomorrow must not be a restricted world of high walls, high suspicions and high animosities. We have tried that system and it does not work. It will be a world of competition, to be sure, but this competition must be constructive and not destructive."

25,000 Hail Return Of FDR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—(AP)—President Roosevelt returned to Washington Friday to receive the capital's congratulations on his fourth-term victory.

The city roped off its streets, turned out its brass bands and let the kids out of school to welcome the President back to the White House—where he has spent nearly one-fifth of his life.

Mr. Roosevelt assured thousands assembled to welcome him that he was "very happy" to be back.

With Vice-president Wallace and Vice-pres. elect Truman riding with him in an open car, Mr. Roosevelt arrived at the Christopher Columbus statue adjacent to the Union Station at 9.04 a.m., E.D.T. He had come in by train from his Hyde Park esta[illegible] about 40 minutes earlier.

A night-long rain almost stopped as the President paused to wave to the crowd and speak briefly into radio microphones.

As the parade swung south toward the Capitol and headed along Constitution and Pennsylvania avenues to the White House, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzen estimated at least 25,000 men, women and children were gathered in the immediate vicinity of the station. Many additional thousands were packed tightly along the curb along the parade route.

A roar of welcome swelled up as the President's car emerged from the station and well-wishers held up banners carrying such messages as "In 44 we need you more," "You won here, let's win over there," "You're back and we're back of you," and "U.S.A.-F.D.R."

Sign painters started slapping "welcome champ!" on canvas banners as soon as election results made it evident that Mr. Roosevelt will be doing business at the same stand until 1949. Bright bunting went up on street-light standards along the parade route, and flags of all the United Nations came out of storage.

Doris Duke Plans Annual Settlement For Cromwell

RENO, Nev., Nov. 11 — (AP). — Heiress Doris Duke, seeking to validate her December divorce from James H. R. Cromwell, testified by deposition on Friday she was prepared at the time of their separation in 1940 to set up a trust fund for the former U.S. Minister to Canada.

"But," she added, "his demands were so exorbitant that I refused to meet them and I will not be frightened into meeting them."

The statement was read into the divorce court records as the tobacco heiress attempted to attest her bona-fide Nevada residence and to force Mr. Cromwell's New Jersey Chancery Court counter proceedings into the Reno action. The New Jersey Court has ruled she is a resident of that state.

Mrs. Cromwell testified she discussed with Cromwell a $7,000,000 settlement plan, but "there was never any mention made to me of philanthropies or public work."

For Cromwell Alone.

"The plan was entirely for Mr. Cromwell's personal benefit to give him $110,000 a year or more if possible. This entire portion of his testimony, including all the malicious insinuations, is utterly false."

"I cannot say I am surprised that Mr. Cromwell would thus falsely testify," she added, "as he had prior to and at the time of my separation repeatedly made false charges that I was unfaithful to him....And had threatened that if I did not accede to his wishes in regard to settlements he would make these false charges public; and by this testimony was only carrying out that threat."

She denied that John Monroe who allegedly accompanied her on a West Coast trip, was responsoble for their separation.

"It was Mr. Cromwell's conduct and that alone that caused the separation."

Their separation, she asserted, she attempted to keep quiet in the interests of Cromwell's political campaign. Cromwell, appointed U. S. Minister to Canada January 1940, resigned the following May 22 to campaign for the United States Senate.

Witnesses challenged the testimony in New Jersey of an apartment house doorman, Frank Cadwell, who declared he had seen Mrs. Cromwell at her mother's New York apartment between September 16 and November 16, 1943, and during Christmas-time.

One of the witnesses Joseph Mosconi, captain of the Reno Fire Department, said he gave her 30 first-aid lessons, starting September 27, and that he saw her on Christmas Eve. He added she then was considering buying a Washoe Valley farm, or trading it for her present home.

4 Nobel Prizes Are Awarded

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 11—(AP)—Four Nobel prizes each worth approximately $29,000 were awarded yesterday, two of them in physics going to scientists now in the United States, one in chemistry to a Hungarian now in Stockholm and one in literature to a 71-year-old Danish novelist and poet.

The prizes and winners:

1944 Literature — Johannes V. Jensen of Copenhagen.

1944 Physics—Insidor Isaac Rabi of Columbia University, New York.

1943 Physics—Otto Stern of Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh.

1943 Chemistry—Georg Hevesy of Stockholm.

The committee reserved the 1944 prize in chemistry for possible award next year. The peace prize, which has not been awarded since 1938, previously had been abandoned for this year.

Four awards in medicine, the 1944 and 1943 prizes each being shared by two persons, were announced two weeks ago for a quartet of scientists in the United States.

GOLDEN, Colo., Nov. 11—(AP). — John G. Vivian, father of John C. Vivian, who was re-elected Colorado Governor, lost a hat election day. The elder Vivian spent election day at his home polling place in the Golden fire station. He hung his hat on a fire truck. The truck went out to a fire. Vivian hasn't seen the hat since.

President Faces Tough Job In Fourth Term

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—(AP)—President Roosevelt and the new Democratic-controlled Congress inherited from the 1944 elections today an opportunity for the greatest teamwork job in American history.

The votes of 45,000,000 Americans gave him and his party a working margin of at least 55 in the House and 19 in the Senate. They also gave the party 25 of the 48 governorships.

Ahead lies the dual challenge for the President and the 79th Congress to wind up the war and write a peace that will last

The President faces:

The impending conference with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin; the Chinese problem enlarged by removal of Gen. Stilwell at Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek's personal request; decisions on the makeup of the new cabinet, provided any changes would be contemplated; a number of major appointments likely to be made momentarily

The retiring Congress meeting next week has some work to do but the spotlight henceforth is on the new one that convenes in January.

This 79th Congress must appropriate the final funds of war, equip the President with special wartime powers that are due soon to expire, renew anti-inflation and other economic controls, act on taxes and other domestic matters. Principally, though, it will be the "Peace" Congress

Whatever Mr. Roosevelt and his colleagues work out for the peace must go before the U.S Senate and only a two-thirds majority there will sanction it. That will require some Republican votes. State Secretary Hull has not ignored the Republicans in the Senate and has taken them into his confidence, as well as the Democrats, in frequent discussion of progress of peace plans

Millbrook St. Andrew's WMS Studies Far East

MILLBROOK, Nov. 11 — (ENS)—Mrs. J. Albert Brown was hostess for the November meeting of the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's church, held at her home, Tupper street, on Wednesday afternoon, with over thirty present, and Miss Mary Widdis' group responsible for the program.

Mrs. J. McKnight was in the chair, and led in the worship service, the theme being "Consecration to the Kingdom," with the hostess reading a poem, "Do we thank our Father?" and the leader taking the prayers. Mrs. J. Rowland brought the message on temperance, and Mrs. F. J. Smith that on stewardship, the latter emphasizing thta the Dominion Board is making an appeal for $100,000 extra in the current year.

Miss Hetherington played softly while the offering was being received and dedicated, and the president, Mrs. A. L. Sisco, took charge of the business, a report from the secretary, Mrs. Ross Edmunds, showing that $34 in thankoffering was received at the October meeting, a total of $42.05 being the receipts. More thankoffering came in on Wednesday, and the president appealed for donation of a quilt top, which when completed could be sold and thus add to the funds. Mrs. Sisco also earnestly urged any who could to come to the Red Cross rooms on Tuesday afternoons and help, since workers are needed, and a special invitation was extended to the women to attend the Boneka Bible class, the Sunday school to begin meeting at 12 noon on Sunday, November 12 .

The chapter in the study book on the church in Malaya and the Dutch East Indies was covered by Miss E. L. Hetherington. She said the thousands of islands in the Netherlands East Indies stretching over more than 3,000 miles, had a population of seventy million, of whom one and one-half million are Chinese, and only one-quarter million are of European descent. That the white race must discard its arrogant assumption of superiority and realize that all races are equal in the sight and plan of the Father, was stressed with the closing words: "The ground at the foot of the cross is level." The hostess, and Miss Widdis, served candy during the social hour, and the December meeting will be under C group, Mrs. P. Stinson convener.

Reserve Officer Can't Resign Over Triviality

OTTAWA, Nov. 11—(CP)—While Maj.-Gen. F. R. Phelan, director-general of the Reserve Army, remained silent today on protests received from Reserve Army officers over the government's reinforcement policy, a reserve army official said officers could apply for retirement, but they would have to produce something better than "I'm sore at the government" to have their applications granted.

Under normal procedure reserve officers cannot "just up and resign," he said. They must first apply for retirement, giving reasons of health or essentiality to other duties.

"Then applications are considered on their merits and a decision is given, but officers can't just resign because they're sore at government policy," he said. "That's politics and we don't go in for politics in the army—reserve or otherwise."

The officer said that only "a very small percentage" of the Reserve Army's 5,000 officers and 75,000 men across Canada "seem to have decided to try to resign" in protest over the government's reinforcement stand.

The Reserve Army was in a slightly different position than home defence troops because "the Reservists are committed to serve anywhere in an emergency."

It's Engineered to stand up!

CONVOYED by their protecting self-propelled Bofors Guns, Allied supply columns move faster and in greater safety along invasion roads. Mounted as a unit on its Canadian-built Ford chassis, this new weapon has a road speed as high as forty miles an hour. At the first sign of strafing planes or enemy tanks, the gun crew leap into instant action and let loose a stream of deadly two-pound shells, 120 to the minute!

Ford products are doing an outstanding job on the home front, too. On gigantic war-born construction projects, for instance, Ford Trucks are preferred for their great hauling power—their easy manoeuvrability in mud, sand and snow—above all, for the enduring dependability of the Ford V-8 Engine.

This power plant asks for no coddling, needs no nursing when the going is tough. Smoothly and silently it takes the grades in its stride. It's engineered to stand the gaff . . . to do a great job dependably and on mighty meagre rations of gasoline and oil.

Ralston Says Conscription Badly Needed

Infantry Casualties Above Estimates Could Use Draftees

OTTAWA, Nov. 13 (CP)—Col. J. Ralston last night gave the first glimpse of his recent report to the cabinet urging that home defence draftees be sent to the overseas reinforcement stream immediately.

Today, he continued answering letters from hundreds of persons who told him they supported his stand and he prepared to start a vacation. It was reliably learned that he was not interested in a reported move to form a political coalition of conscriptionists.

It was his report that created a cabinet crisis following the colonel's return from a battlefront tour. And when he found his recommendation was not to be accepted and he could get no assurance the government was committed to this policy he tendered his resignation "as requested by the prime minister."

The colonel had been silent on his resignation and last week had issued a brief statement indicating it was up to Prime Minister Mackenzie King to give the "details."

Since that time Mr. King had given a radio speech to the nation and Col. Ralston said in a statement last night he felt the prime minister's summary of his report to the cabinet "is not sufficient complete."

Needed Now

"What is particularly important," he said, "is that the summary gives no indication of the necessity of

Bombers Level Fuel Centres

LONDON, Nov. 13.—(CP).—Heavy Allied attacks on German synthetic oil plants have seriously curtailed production of fuel for robot bombs and V-2 rockets, the Air Ministry announced to-day.

Reconnaissance photographs of large sections of the Ruhr where the enemy has been manufacturing synthetic fuel show factories either destroyed or heavily damaged. Fuel consumption of the vengeance weapons — particularly V-2—is believed enormous.

Each rocket burns an estimated 2,500 gallons of fuel a minute, so that in a five minute flight from their launching sites they use 12,- gallons—to deliver between one and two tons of explosive.

Since Nov. 1 approximately 10,000 British, Canadian and American bombers have participated in attacks on the oil plants. The attacks were temporarily halted by bad weather during the week-end, giving Germany its first raid-free Sunday in many weeks.

German industrial and military targets have been blasted with 638,880 tons of explosives through Oct. 31 by American heavy bombers of the 8th and 15th Air Forces, the U.S. strategic air forces in Europe said yesterday in a summary.

Germany felt the weight of 330,000 tons.

Since the 8th Air Force began operations from Britain in August, 1942, and the 15th from Italy in November, 1943, the fighters and bombers have destroyed 15,210 enemy planes, getting 12,640 in the air and the rest on the ground.

Combined American losses were 708 bombers and 2,449 fighters, the report said.

THE HUNTING IS GOOD IN ITALY—An American Doughboy stands guard over three German soldiers who seem to have had enough war to last them for the rest of their lives. The fighting in Italy is as hard now as it was when the invasion of that country first was undertaken. Allied progress is slow, but sure.

Fight War Compensation Bill

By JOHN DAUPHINEE—Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 13—(CP).—The Wartime Coalition Government has weathered one of its most serious inter-party storms by piloting safely through the Commons its contentious bill to provide machinery for the re-development of war-damaged areas and slum clearance. The fight was not over the principle of "the town and country planning bill," a $2,500,000,000 measure, but over three specific clauses setting out the amount of compensation to be paid the owners of land and buildings compulsory acquired by local planning authorities.

At one stage an open revolt against the Government by private members of all parties threatened. Even the Cabinet itself disagreed for a time over the compensation policy. On a formal division, 54 back-benchers — mostly Conservatives—voted against the Government and in favor of an increase in compensation rates.

Question Land Values.

Provision for the right use of land has been termed "an essential requirement of the Government's program of post-war reconstruction." In a White Paper on the subject the administration spoke particularly of waste of good agricultural land, traffic congestion in

Allies Abandon Liuchow Base

CHUNGKING, Nov. 13 (AP)—The United States air base at Liuchow has been destroyed and evacuated, Allied headquarters announced late today.

The Japanese in Kwangsi province appeared on the verge of meeting from north and east to provide a continuous land route from Canton to Manchuria.

Chinese reports on the Japanese drive in Kwangsi were grave.

A Chinese communique said yesterday that the northerly enemy column had captured Licheng, 19 miles northwest of Liuchow on the railway leading to Kweichow province.

At the same time another Japanese force was reported to have seized Laipin, 45 miles south of Liuchow, and driven on 20 miles to the north. Still a third enemy column reached the outskirts of Chienkiang, 55 miles southwest of Lichow on the highway leading to the old provincial capital of Yungning (Hanning).

Churchill Urges Frenchmen To Unite Behind Gen. De Gaulle

PARIS, Nov. 13.—(AP).—Sweeping agreements giving France a key role in post-war Europe and looking toward her future security were quickly reached in talks between Prime Minister Churchill and Gen. de Gaulle during the British Prime Minister's visit to Paris, it was reported reliably today.

Concurrent with France's admission to a seat on the European Advisory Commission the British and French statesmen agreed that French forces should participate in the military occupation of a defeated Germany alongside British, American and Russian contingents.

Frenchmen have from Prime Minister Churchill the assurance that Great Britain desires to see France possessed of a powerful army and united under the government of Gen. de Gaulle.

Speaking in French before a cheering assemblage yesterday in the Hotel De Ville, Mr. Churchill said the Germans might be beaten within the next six months.

"We don't want to prolong the war merely to give your army the opportunities it desires," he added, "but we hope as much of the French Army as possible will be able to engage in the final battles."

Mr. Churchill visualized a powerful and well-equipped French army as an aid in re-establishing stability in Europe, and a United France as a help in "protecting us from a repetition of German aggression."

He declared that "fortunately you have at this moment at your head an incontestably able chief," adding with a smile that he had had "some slight differences" with him from time to time.

Then he added in great earnestness: "But rally to him so that

Great Blast Shakes North Bay

Believe Meteorite Caused Mystery Explosion

NORTH BAY, Nov. 13—(CP).—An explosion followed by a blinding flash shook the entire North Bay district at 4.23 a.m., EDT, today, and was believed to have been caused when a giant meteorite struck the ground somewhere in the vicinity. The flash was so bright, it was seen in Ottawa early this morning, Dr. R. Meldrum Stewart, Dominion astronomer, said.

Early reports indicated the explosion may have been caused by an earthquake, but Dominion Observatory reports said their seismograph gave no sign of any earthquake disturbance.

At Callander, Ont., six miles from here, two distinct blasts were heard by persons awake at the time. Others were wakened by the first explosion said it was followed by a more subdued blast. Railway employees in Northern Ontario reported a blinding light flash which was immediately followed by an explosion.

Shakes Building.

Firemen sleeping in the North Bay fire station awoke with a start as the building was badly shaken by the explosion. Railway employees in this city who saw the flash said they believed the blast occurred near Lake Nipissing, but other reports concerning location of the disturbance were conflicting.

Railway employees aboard the Canadian Pacific Railway Trans-Continental train travelling west said they thought the blast occurred in the region around Bonfield, east of here. However, residents of Bonfield claimed the explosion seemed to be in the direction of North Bay.

E. A. Lavery, of North Bay, who was using the telephone at the time, reported a deafening roar came over the wires when the blast took place.

Rumors of an airplane crash as well as of a "V-2 bomb" circulated in this city early today. The first was dispelled when a check with North Bay airport revealed no plane accidents.

Reds Boost Attack On Budapest

LONDON, Nov. 13 (CP) — The Red Army, already in the southern outskirts of Budapest, increased its pressure on the besieged Danube river capital today with the capture of Monor, 14 miles to the southeast and the seizure of enemy positions within 30 miles to the east.

A broadcast Moscow communique announced the fall of Monor, which meant the Russians had swept the Germans from nearly all of the 50-mile Budapest - Szolnok railway, drove 11 miles through Tapiogyorgye and Tapioszele and captured Farmos, 30 miles from Budapest, the communique disclosed.

Dispatches from Moscow said today that furious counter-attacks by German and Hungarian troops failed to dislodge Soviet spearheads from their positions in the southern suburbs of Budapest.

Meanwhile a communique from Marshal Tito's headquarters said his troops were storming Skoplje, a city of 65,000 in southern Yugoslavia on the Belgrade-Athens railway, and an important German position protecting the southern corridor and through which some of the 100,000 enemy troops threatened with entrapment have been fleeing from the Southern Balkans.

Both Berlin broadcasts and the Tito bulletin asserted that large numbers of Russian troops were surging across the Danube river near Apatin in Northern Yugoslavia, moving westward to flank the Hungarian capital and also to head off the German retreat from the south.

Churchill Attacked?

LONDON, Nov. 13.—(CP).—An enemy radio station, broadcasting in French, claimed to-day an unsuccessful attempt had been made on the lives of Prime Minister Churchill and Gen. de Gaulle, head of the Provisional French government, during the former's visit to Paris.

The broadcast was recorded by the BBC but lacked verification from any other source.

The assassination attempt, the broadcast said, was made by a number of "armed individuals" when Mr. Churchill and De Gaulle were riding down the Champs Elysees together. The police succeeded in arresting 30 men, the enemy station added.

The broadcast originated from a new station known as Henri-Robert, which officials here believe is located not too far from Berlin. Little is known about it so far, however, except that it broadcasts in French and comes in clearly.

Hitler Believed To Be Seriously Ill

LONDON, Nov. 13 (AP)—A report was received in London today from a person whose information usually is reliable that Hitler was under the care of four doctors last week and that his strange proclamation of yesterday commemorating the Munich beer cellar putsch may have been written by somebody else.

The doctors were named as Professor Morrell, Hitler's permanent medical adviser, Doctor Zabel, the attending physician regularly attached to his staff, Professor Horster, an outstanding brain specialist who treated Field Marshal Rommel before he died, and Professor Sauerbruch, one of Germany's most prominent surgeons.

Sauerbruch operated on Hitler about eight years ago for what he called a non-malignant growth in the Fuehrer's throat. A person close to German affairs said Sauerbruch at one time, and possibly even today, was known among his intimates as strongly anti-Nazi. He expressed surprise that the surgeon had been called in.

From Mein Kampf

The same source said he had spotted six passages in Hitler's "fight to the death" proclamation yesterday that had been taken from the Fuehrer's book, Mein Kampf, and others that clearly came from some of his old speeches. He expressed belief the proclamation had been written by someone other than the man who gave the excuse that he was "too busy" to come to the microphone.

The proclamation yesterday was read by Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo chief.

Always cautious about commenting on Hitler rumors in the past, official British sources asserted flatly that the proclamation had a phoney ring."

American Spearheads Gain Several Miles Shape Pincers Around City

New Bridgehead On Moselle Expanded Threaten Railway Centres Huns Admit Thionville Penetrated

By WILLIAM FRYE—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 13—(AP).—The United States 3rd Army expanded a new bridgehead across the Moselle River north of Metz today, threatening the Germans' only usable railway connecting the fortress city with the Saar and developing a pincers grip on the enemy-held part of Thionville. The German high command reported American troops had succeeded in "penetrating into Thionville."

Armored spearhead swinging around Metz from the south punched forward on a 20-mile front 17 miles south of the Saar border.

One of these wedges by-passed the stronghold of Dieuze on its south flank and fanned out behind Morhange on its north flank. This wedge was reported to have reached Bermering, three miles east of Morhange, where French and German troops fought in one of the first big battles of the First Great War, and reached Lidrezing, five miles north of Dieuze, where flood waters loosed by Allied dam bombings protected the American right flank.

To the south the 7th Army, fighting on a 15-mile front east of Rambervillers and Bruyeres, captured villages only a mile west of St. Die in the entrance to a Vosges Pass, and but 33 miles from the Rhine.

Destroy Canals

Southeast of Metz the Germans were reported in front line dispatches to be pulling out men and materials before the 3rd Army's encircling threat, but they were destroying dams on canals and rivers to the northeast of the city and holding tight.

Front reports said they were pulling guns out of Metz itself, but supreme headquarters believed it unlikely a real evacuation was underway.

Only two railways remained to the Germans out of Metz. The southern arm of Lt.-Gen. Patton's army was within two miles of the southern line running northeast through Boulay to the Saar and close enough to interdict daylight traffic.

The second line running northeast to the Saar apparently was the target of the new thrust across the Moselle south of Thionville, an important fortress town already menaced by American bridgeheads to the north.

The part of Thionville west of the Moselle already was in American hands.

Field dispatches reported enemy troops were retreating toward the Saar along the highways still uncut, but already threatened, east of Metz in a corridor less than 15 miles wide between the converging American attacks.

South of Metz, infantry fought through increasingly bitter enemy defences to the vicinity of Coin Sur Deille, five miles south of the city. To the east armor-led columns were across the Nied river between Lemud and Herny, 15 miles ahead of

Victory Loan Over Top By 102 Millions

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—(CP).—Canada's Seventh Victory Loan has gone over the top with a bang, latest figures showing subscriptions of $1,402,956,100 against the minimum objective of $1,300,000,000, and the final total is expetced to approach $1,500,000,000.

National headquarters announced Sunday that Saturday's purchases of $114,826,350, one of the largest single day's totals ever recorded, boosted the Loan $102,956,000 over the minimum quota.

They added that many "millions of dollars" of purchasers still remained to be recorded and it was "obvious" that the final figure would not be far short of the $1,500,000,000 mark. Further reports, based on delayed figures, will be issued Wednesday and Saturday.

The total to date is approximately $110,000,000 higher than the final figure for the Sixth Loan last spring, when the objective was $1,200,000,000. The objective of this three-week campaign—$1,300,000,000—was the largest amount ever sought through public borrowings in Canadian history.

Saturday's total of $114,826,350 included approximately $15,000,000 purchased by the armed forces overseas and in Newfoundland, which had not been included in the original objective of $1,300,000,000 because overseas returns were carried in a separate account.

Individual Canadians purchased $71,432,050 Saturday, bringing their total to $669,183,050, approximately $106,000,000 more than their final figure in the Sixth Loan. The number of applications to date also was higher, totalling 2,793,895 against 2,571,238 six months ago.

Finance Minister Ilsley issued a statement describing the over-subscription as a "magnificent achievement."

British Pound Tirpitz Again

LONDON, Nov. 13 (CP) — The German battleship Tirpitz was attacked again Sunday morning by a force of 32 R.A.F. Lancasters and hits were scored on it with 12,000-pound "earthquake" bombs, the Air Ministry announced today.

The aircraft landed away from base. The Air Ministry added that details of the attack will be issued as soon as interrogation of the crews and examination of the photographs are completed.

The crippled "white elephant" of the Germany navy was caught in the Tromsoe fjord along the north coast of Norway, not far from where it was attacked by a similar force two weeks ago.

F.D.R.'s Prestige Increased

Roosevelt Victory Dissipated Fear Of Peace

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 — (CP). — Removal of some of the most obstructive isolationists in last week's congressional election and approval of President Roosevelt for another four-year term has dissipated much of the fear that the peace to come would be lost through a repetition of the Senate action which destroyed the hopes of the League of Nations in 1920.

This is the conclusion of foremost American analysts from study of the results of the voting, and they foresee swift and harmonious action by Great Britain, the United State's and Russia now that the President's authority to speak has been so strongly supported by his people.

Two conclusions are drawn from the election results:

1. That President Roosevelt may go to his next international conference with reasonable assurance that his commitments will be approved by Congress.

2. That the fear of Senate refusal to approve American participation in a world organization for peace now may be dismissed.

The first of these conclusions means that the Roosevelt prestige at future conference, always great, will be greater, and his authority to speak unquestioned.

And the second is expected to encourage all the United Nations to enter wholeheartedly into the final negotiations on the League for peace and security which are expected to open somewhere in the United States early in 1945.

Patton's Army Spearpoints Allied Push

Eisenhower Keeps Huns Guessing With Series Of Stiff Blows

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Developments on the western front indicate Lt.-Gen. Patton again has been assigned one of those tough pioneering jobs which he does so well — this time to strike the real opening blow of the all-out Allied offensive against the Rhine defences.

This isn't to say that Patton necessarily has been chosen as spearhead of the big drive. That will be decided later in accordance with developments, and it may be that his task will be to run interference for another army which is carrying the ball.

However, the U.S. 3rd Army's thus far successful offensive in the strategic Metz sector bears the earmarks of being the curtain raiser.

Patton's thrust about both sides of the powerful Metz fortifications towards the great Saar Valley industrial region strikes me as being the first of several attacks which we may expect to be mounted along the extended Allied front at intervals. If this is what's under way we shall have a fresh demonstration of tactics which have served the world's generals for centuries.

The idea is that you hit your enemy a hard blow at an important point. Then when he withdraws forces from another sector to reinforce the spot attacked, you slam him in the zone just weakened. If he calls on some other spot for help, you hit him there as well. Finally when one of these enemy defences begins to cave, you pile in heavy reinforcements in an effort to break through there.

Lack Manpower

Of course the success of these tactics on the western front depends on the Allies having vastly superior striking power, as fortunately they have in all categories. However, we shouldn't delude ourselves that this advantage will make things easy, because the Germans are making a grim last-ditch stand, and while they're woefully weak in man-power and in all other departments, they have the advantage of the strong Siegfried and Rhine fortifications.

The Germans know what's happening to them but they haven't sufficient strength to stage counter-drives to keep Gen. Eisenhower off balance. They've to depend largely on the Siegfried Line and that wide, swift river which in itself is a most formidable barrier.

What the Nazis don't know is where Eisenhower intends to stage the break-through along his 450-mile front.

It could be on the extreme northern wing where British and Canadian forces ostensibly are set to outflank the Nazi battleline and sweep into the Ruhr and on to Berlin over wide-open spaces.

All things considered, observers rather expect the main Allied attack to come on the north. A highly important reason is that the great port of Antwerp lies directly behind that northern front. One of Eisenhower's pressing problems is to maintain the vast stream of supplies necessary for a grand offensive. Antwerp is likely to be his mainstay.

Boy 9, Six Days In Box

Weak And Emaciated When Discovered

LONG BEACH Calif., Nov. 13 — (AP). — Weak and emaciated but "in surprisingly good condition," a nine-year-old boy was found in a tool compartment of an abandoned automobile trailer yesterday after six days of confinement without food or water, police said.

The boy, David Bourbonnais, was the object of a city-wide search after his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Bourbonnais, reported him missing six days ago.

A. B. Pearson, juvenile officer, reported an occupant of a federal housing trailer camp near the Bourbonnais home heard a noise in the rear of an abandoned trailer yesterday. He found the boy curled up inside, somewhat wet from a leaky roof but able to talk rationally.

Pearson said David told officers a big boy whom he had not seen before had locked him in the compartment last Sunday in what David thought at first was a joke. He said he could recognize the boy and added:

"I'll dunk his head in the sump when I find him."

Unable to stand unaided, David was taken to hospital, where a navy physician said his condition was "surprisingly good" considering his experience.

Allies Gain 3 Miles Along Leyte

Carrier Planes Wipe Out 8,000 In Convoy

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Nov. 13—(AP)—A 2,200-foot peak overlooking the bloody Ormoc corridor battleground was in American hands today as the Liberators tightened their squeeze on probably 45,000 bitterly-resisting Japanese in the climactic fight for Leyte Island.

While Ormoc itself was dealt an effective, 62-ton bombing infantry units driving south toward that last enemy reinforcement port gained three miles at one point to capture strategic Mount Catabaran yesterday.

Along the main Carigara Bay-Ormoc Road, the main column aided by strong tank and air support made "good progress against heavy opposition," Gen. MacArthur reported today.

Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita's reinforced troops continued their attempt to break the American pressure, but a headquarters spokesman said the invaders still held both the initiative and the preponderance of numbers.

No more enemy reinforcements were reported landed at Ormoc, where the Japanese lost six destroyers, four transports, 13 planes and most of 8,000 troops Saturday as American carrier planes wiped out a convoy. It was believed Yamashita had upwards of 45,000 troops in the Ormoc area, however.

To the southeast, Cavalry troops were meeting increasing resistance on the Mount Pina saddle. Tanks and mortar fire helped eradicate enemy pockets on both sides of the ridge.

Bombing of smoking Ormoc by heavy bombers caused "extensive destruction," MacArthur reported. The port on Leyte's west coast has been hit repeatedly by American bombers and fighters to prevent effective reinforcement of the large cities and impairment of health standards as some of the things to be overcome.

In its original form the Act provided that for five years the amount to be paid as compensation for reduced value of land and buildings as a result of planning programs would be determined on the basis of value at March 31, 1939. Additional sums might be payable in respect of small residential properties which were owner-occupied, and for agricultural land and buildings.

There was an immediate furore.

Lord Latham, a prominent member of the Labor party and leader of the London County Council, said the bill was unsatisfactory in that "property interests are to be preserved to the detriment of the public interest." He and others charged that land speculators would profit under the compensation clauses; that 1939 prices would in many cases be too high. The Association of Municipal Corporations criticized the measure on similar grounds.

Promise Amendments

On the other side of the fence were many Conservatives. Their argument was that 1939 prices were too low and that land-owners should be given the benefit of wartime increases in real estate prices. They contended that additional payments should be payable not only on small homes and farms but on large homes, shops, factories and other buildings.

The bill got second reading only after the government promised amendments in committee stage. They met the objections of the Tory Reform Group by providing for a 30-per-cent increase in compensation in individual cases, over and above the 1939 level, on virtually all types of property. Labor members decided to accept the bill as a step in the right direction rather than fight it and hold up planning activities indefinitely.

But a die-hard group of Conservative back-benchers refused to give in. They introduced an amendment to make 1944 price levels the basis for compensation payments but on formal division they rounded up only 58 votes against 324.

France remains united, indivisible."

"Unity! Unity!" was Mr. Churchill's parting advice in commenting that France could not afford anything which would upset her national life at the moment when all the nation's force must be thrown into the post-war reconstruction period.

This advice was given, he said, so that France might not only help defeat Germany but help "protect us from a repetition of German aggression."

"This is the moment for France to take her place among the other great powers," he told the assemblage of notables, and as he again emphasized the necessity of unity he looked squarely at the leader of the National Resistance Council.

sending additional infantry reinforcements at the earliest possible moment." Casualties for all branches of the army were lower than estimated; casualties for the infantry were higher.

He made no mention of the announced policy of his successor — Gen. McNaughton—that the voluntary system of recruiting for overseas was to be continued. But he declared that untrained men enlisted now could not be ready for battle until June whereas 8,000 sufficiently trained draftees could be in the battle areas by Jan. 15.

It was true there were just about enough infantry reinforcements in the battle areas to bring units up to strength but there was not a sufficient backlog from which to meet any unexpected increase in casualties in a particular engagement.

Pools Depleted

He found the pools "so depleted as not to ensure the prompt replacement of casualties." The estimates of casualties were made on the basis of experience already gained and on the probable intensity of activity up to January.

In making estimates, full allowances were made for volunteer infantry reinforcements which could be counted on, and he realized that "the need which had arisen could not be met by enlisting untrained men. In the ordinary course, an untrained man enlisted now would not be ready for battle until next June."

The best forecasts were that by the end of December "a considerable aggregate shortage infantry would have developed. For the following months the forecast was that the aggregate infantry shortage would progressively increase month by month in the new year."

He could not agree with the alternative that he felt was apparent —of reducing commitments or breaking up formations. And it appeared "clear" that enough volunteers could not be made available to meet the needs.

So he came to the conclusion that the only "practical relief for the urgent situation" was conscription for overseas of the drafted men.

The best estimate was that it would take about two months to get the first 8,000 sufficiently-trained draftees overseas.

"This first 8,000," he said, "would not have assisted during November or December in providing the pools I have spoken of, but it would have reassured our infantry units in the field that we are determined to back them up; it would have made up the December shortage soon after Jan. 1; it would have re-established the pools is the battle areas."

Another 8,000 partially-trained home defence infantrymen could be ready to reach the battle areas early in February. These, with the volunteers which would become available during February and the following months, would, it was calculated, see the army through to June with "some margin."

The Prime Minister had mentioned a total of 42,000 draftees as being suitable material for the infantry. Col. Ralston said that with the first 16,000 dispatched as he had outlined "we could be remustering and training as infantry 26,000 to be available if required."

Service Honors Canon F. Scott

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 13—(CP).—Civilians from all walks of life, veterans of the last war and members of the armed forces in this war gathered at St. Paul's Cathedral on Sunday to pay tribute to the memory of Canon Frederick George Scott, C.M.V., D.S.O., Canada's beloved padre in the last war and noted poet. The death of Canon Scott last January was mourned throughout Canada.

The Rt. Rev. Robert John Renison, M.A., D.D., Bishop of Moosonee and close friend of Canon Scott for many years, gave the memorial address.

Bishop Renison eulogized the kindly chaplain of the First Great War as a man who, to the last day of his life, was loved by all men.

Brilliant And Beloved.

"His voice was listened to by all—his voice was that of a wayside Christ," Bishop Renison said. "I had the pleasure of knowing him intimately, as a brilliant and beloved rector of a church, as a man interested in military life, and a poet whose works have been widely read.

"Canon Scott had a simplicity that was divine, and he was never happier than when sitting in the trenches of France with the men in the ranks. Thirty years ago, when the Canadian Corps went into the mud holes of France, men turned to him for friendly counsel and Divine guidance. He had the ability to gather men around him wherever he went."

Finds Son's Body.

The speaker told how Canon Scott, after learning of the death of his son in Regina Trench, went fearlessly into the battlefield and found his body. Heedless of the roar and destruction of battle, the padre donned his surplice and read the burial service over the boy's body.

"He became the most beloved person of the First Great War," Bishop Renison continued. "After the war we had the idea there would be no more war. We thought we were rising from that great sacrifice to an era of peace and prosperity. During these years, Canon Scott was a Christian voice throughout Canada."

Among those assisting in the service were Rev. Dr. J. Y. MacKinnon, Lt.-Col. C. K. Nicoll, Senior Protestant Padre, M.D. 1, and Rev. C. W. Foreman.

Narrow Path Way For Christian People

The "after church" service in the Centre Theatre, held under the auspices of the Peterborough Christian Business Men's Committee, had as guest speaker Sunday evening Rev. E. L. Simmonds, M.A., B.D., curate of the Church of the Messiah, Toronto.

A large audience was present to listen to his message, which was based on Matthew 7, "Enter ye in at the straight gate, for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat. Because straight is the gate and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life and few there be that find it."

The speaker began by stating that he knew that these words were true, first because Jesus said them and second because he had found them to be true in his own experience. Assuming that this audience was typical of most church services, he was sure that there were many there who, like himself, had once been on the broad way, but were now in the narrow way. To them he pointed out the fact that they stood at the cross roads, and it was their duty and his to point the way to those who were travelling along several other texts which laid the responsibility of warning others on those who had left the broad way and were travelling along the narrow way that leads to everlasting life.

"Son of man I have made you a watchman to stand and warn others." That is one of the primary responsibilities of a Christian. How narrow is the way that we are of take. Most people have a horror of being called narrowminded but Jesus Himself in the true sense was narrowminded. Referring to the prayer of the Pharisee who said I thank thee God that I am not an extortioner, and adulterer or an unjust man, I fast twice a week and I pay tithes of all I possess. To most people it would seem that the Pharisee had set a fairly high standard of conduct. Not many of our church members themselves could say that they followed out their church duties as thoroughly as he did but Jesus said 'except your righteousness exceeds that of the Scribes and Pharisees ye cannot see the Kingdom of Heaven.' So there must be some righteousness. In Romans 10-3 Paul writes: 'For they being ignorant of God's righteousness and going about to establish their own righteousness have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God.' This is the righteousness that exceeds that of the Scribes and Pharisees the righteousness of faith through our Saviour Jesus Christ.

The Salvation Army Ladies' Quartette who were to sing were unable to be present but a substitute, Mrs. M. J. Shadgett, also of the Salvation Army sang three well known hymns.

Next Sunday the speaker will be Rev. Albert Stoll of Hamilton and the special music will be by Miss Mary Jeffery, violinist, of Toronto.

Like a Meteor.

OTTAWA, Nov. 13—(CP).—Dominion Observatory officials today said that reports of a blinding flash in the North Bay, Ont., district early this morning pointed to a meteor and not to some bomb device as suggested by persons recalling German robot weapons.

Dr. R. Meldrum Stewart, Dominion astronomer, said it was possible that a meteor flash would be so bright that it would be seen for 200 miles. The flash was seen at Ottawa, nearly that distance from North Bay.

The explosion of the meteor entering the earth atmosphere, and white hot with the friction of air, could be heard for a considerable distance, on the basis of reports of similar occurrences in the past. Meteors travel at several miles a second, and usually disintegrate before they strike the earth.

Dr. Stewart said the available information on the North Bay occurrence indicated the meteor was one of the largest seen recently.

Hundreds of tiny meteorites strike the earth daily, ranging upwards from the size of a pinhead. There was the possibility that the North Bay meteor had completely disintegrated and never reached the earth. Meteorites do so.

Five Cars Involved In Traffic Smashup

A taxi cab owned and driven by Patrick Allen was badly damaged in a traffic accident at Charlotte and Reid streets Saturday afternoon in which five cars were involved.

Allen was driving east on Charlotte street and at the Reid street intersection his car and another automobile driven south on Reid street by H. Fisk, R.R. 5, Colborne, came into collision. The Allen taxi was upset and rolled along Charlotte street to collide with a parked car in front of the Clinic and after the crash the Fisk machine continued along Reid street and crashed into the back of an automobile parked on the south side of Reid street and that in turn was pushed forward against another car parked further south.

No one was hurt but all the cars were damaged, the taxi suffering the most.

their positions when the offensive began five days ago.

North of Chateau Salis, other units had cleared the enemy out of the Chateau Salins Forest, entered the villages of Chateau Brehain, Oron and Dalhain. Northeast of these positions, the 4th armored division had thrust a slender wedge to the vicinity of Rodalbe, due north of Ieueze,, and had repulsed enemy counter-attacks from Morchingen.

Growing Soft

Despite this counter-thrust, German opposition along the entire front east of Pont a Moussin was still spotty, and—except immediately south of Metz — growing softer. North of Metz, the resistance became more determined, and American troops were fighting to regain the ground lost to a counter-attack in the Koenigsmacher bridgehead over the Moselle.

A few miles farther south, a new bridgehead was thrown across the Moselle at Uckange, four miles south of Thionville, and a field dispatch said it was being reinforced heavily and rapidly.

The Germans, in their radio reports, finally admitted today the loss of Koenigsmacher itself, but claimed they were subjecting the Moselle bridgeheads to heavy artillery fire.

A Transocean report broadcast by Berlin, asserted the Koeniksmacher bridgehead still was compressed in a small area.

In the U.S. 7th Army's front east of Bruyeres in the Vosges foothills, the Allied communique reported small advances, including the capture of the villages of Le Bolle and Les Noitrasses, immediately west of St. Die, and of Lachapelle, southeast of Bruyeres.

There was no report of action from the British-Canadian Netherlands sector, where the 21st Army group still held its positions along the south bank of the Maas (Meuse) river, or from the U.S. 1st Army front near Aachen.

Bad weather restricted air operations along the western front.

As 3rd Army tanks sought to close the gap between forward units forming the tips of pincers thrusting about Metz, the Germans were reported to have begun a withdrawal from that fortress.

Long enemy columns, including many horsedrawn vehicles, have been seen moving eastward from Metz along two highroads. The Germans were believed also to be attempting to tow some of the big guns from the city.

It was not clear whether the enemy retreat included all the forces in the Metz area or only specialized units and equipment. A withdrawal of only a limited number of troops apparently would indicate that the Germans were leaving a sacrifice garrison in the city itself.

Bagpipes Steal Show In Paris

PARIS, Nov. 13—(CP)—The band of a Canadian regiment skirling down the Champs Elysee in their kilts stole the show during the gigantic Armistic Day celebrations Saturday—and it was a big show to steal.

The Paris crowds had been wildly acclaimed Prime Minister Churchill and Gen. de Gaulle and it would have seemed that people, especially the thousands of young students who several times nearly caused riots with their enthusiasm, had no voices left for more shouting.

But when the Canadian Scots appeared at the tricolor-draped Arc de Triomphe a roar of greeting rolled along the flag-bedecked boulevard.

"As far as I could see the Canadians got the biggest ovation of any troops marching in the parade during the whole hour it was on," said Sgt. Ted Bolton of Toronto, who led the contingent. "The French people sure seem to like the kilts and bagpipes."

Capt. Bud Hoffman of Montreal was officer in charge of the the Canadians as they marched before Mr. Churchill, Gen. de Gaulle and the assemblage of diplomats, Government officials and high-ranking officers.

At the front of the Canadian group was a Canadian Provost Corps unit under Sgt.-Maj. E. T. Harding of London, Ont., followed by members of the Canadian military staff in Paris. The Canadians were the only Dominion army represented in the parade which included men of the R.A.F. and Royal Navy and the French and American armies.

Burma Troops Gain 10 Miles

KANDY, Ceylon, Nov. 13—(CP-Reuter). — Troops of the 5th Indian Division in the Chin Hills have cleared the stockades, two strong points on the road east from Tiddim, and have pushed on to within 10 miles of Kalemyo, vital Japanese defence point controlling the main route north from Tamu to Celewa, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters reported today.

In the Kabaw Valley East African forces advancing on Kalemyo through the Kabaw and Kale Valleys are shelling the town.

Heavy fighting was under way north of Bhamo, eastern defence hinge of the Japanese line barring the Allied advance into Central Burma.

Increasing Japanese resistance is being met by the British 36th Division driving south along the railway corridor, seven miles north of Naba Junction, where the Myitkyina-Rangoon railway curves west to Indaw and then south to Mandalay.

V-2 Weapon In Use On West Front

LONDON, Nov. 13 (AP) — The German V-2 rocket bomb, described as a 13½ ton wingless projectile which cuts through space at a maximum speed of 3,500 miles an hour has been falling in allied sectors in Belgium and France as well as in Britain, front dspatches permitted through army censorship said Saturday night.

A number of these new vengeance weapons, which cannot be heard coming because they are faster than sound, have fallen in one U.S. army sector, and the rate has increased at various intervals, said a despatch from Associated Press correspondent Austin Bealmear. The censor deleted the origin of the despatch.

Eeriest Weapon

In another despatch from which the censor had also deleted the dateline, Canadian Press correspondent Ross Munro, in describing this "eeriest weapon yet produced in the war," said the Germans had been bombarding an Allied sector in Belgium."

Just where the bombs have fallen Munro was not allowed to say, but the missile was termed poor in accuracy.

The new German reprisal weapon was described by the correspondents as being about 46 feet long and 5 feet wide, and less effective than V-1, the robot bomb first used against England.

The warhead contained almost a ton of explosives, and the fuel used to propel it weighs nine tons. It is shot from concrete ramps almost vertically, reaches a height of 20 miles before beginning a great arc toward its intended target. At the height of the arc it is 55 miles from the earth and attains a velocity of 5,000 feet per second, or approximately 3,500 miles an hour.

Although you can't hear the projectile until after it has struck the earth and set off its ton of explosives, Bealmear said its descent from the heavens at night resembles a ball of fire.

Digs Huge Crater.

Allied experts were quoted as saying that V-2 was not as effective in destructive power as the V-1 because of the huge crater it makes, reducing the blast. The robot bomb digs hardly any crater, going off on contact with maximum blasting effect.

The V-2 also is a much more complicated and expensive weapon than the robot bomb, a product which takes an immense amount of machining. The warhead is not encased in heavy metal and there is no shrapnel effect, Munro's dispatch said.

Field dispatches have reported the use of V-2 rockets in the battle zone, but correspondents indicated they were too inaccurate to have military value. V-1 robots have also been used at the front and against several captured cities in Belgium, France and Holland. Rockets fired at troops were reported to have been slightly smaller than those used against England.

At least 36 persons have been killed or badly injured by the V-2 bombardment of Britain, a check of casualties in reported incidents showed.

"With some help from the federal and provincial governments," said Clayton Hodgson at a loan campaign rally last week we shall have more than $100,000 to spend on roads, and sidewalks, schools or any other post-war project. "The municipality of Dysart has taken the last dollar we can afford to buy this bond, and I ask every man, woman and child to dig down and help. The interest is greater than the banks pay."

PIONEER TRAVEL

A faint reminder of the value of steamboat transport in the Rice Lake and Peterborough area in pioneer days is sounded in the following item quoted from the Cobourg Star of May 4, 1836: "The steamboat 'Northumberland' is now lying on her beam ends near the landing place at Sully, Rice Lake. This is unfortunate as it will take some time to get her in trim; and the back country roads offer no inviting advantages in lieu of the means of transport thus suspended."

PTE. FLOYD ALTON

Pte. Floyd Alton Prisoner Of War

Cheering news is that contained in a telegram received by Mrs. H. Alton, 448 Mark street, Saturday night, informing her that her son, Pte. Floyd Alton, after being reported missing in action in France during August, is now listed as being a prisoner of war, presumably in Germany. This is the first news received here concerning Pte. Alton's whereabouts, since August 8, when he was listed as missing.

He was serving with the Black Watch regiment, the unit now famous for its July 25 stand against the Nazis on the ridge above May-Sur-Orne, in France.

An Examiner carrier boy since he was nine years old, Floyd Alton was born and raised in Peterborough, working his way up through the merchandise and retail business, to his post of manager of Mason's store at George and Antrim streets, which he held previous to enlisting in April, 1942. Joining the Prince of Wales Rangers, (C.A.), he became a sergeant before long, but in an effort to go overseas, reverted to a corporal in the Fusiliers. Later, he finally gave up his stripes to go overseas in the early part of June.

A brother Gnr. Keith Alton, is now serving overseas with the Canadian armed forces.

Toronto Man Gets Month Term

Patrick Watson, Toronto, was sentenced to a month's imprisonment in the county jail by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning after a charge against him of stealing a toilet set from the Elliott Drug Store was reduced to attempted theft of the article.

"It is lucky for you that you were caught when you were," said His Worship to Watson after reading the accused's record. "As a result the charge has been reduced to attempted theft."

Crown evidence was that Watson had the toilet set under his coat when accosted by Norman Elliott, proprietor of the store who took the article away from him.

No evidence was offered by W. J. Arthur Fair, defence counsel.

Magistrate Langley said that there had been a guilty intent on the part of the accused but that he had not succeeded in getting out of the store so that it was an attempt, rather than the actual committing of the theft.

Gene Bovin Dies In Battle; Former Athlete

Mrs. Joseph Bovin, Oshawa, has received word that her son, Pte. Eugene Bovin, well-known in Peterborough lacrosse circles as a star with the local team for a number of seasons, has been killed in action while fighting with the Canadian forces in Holland.

"Shine" or "Gene" Bovin was a popular player on several Peterborough lacrosse teams, when the game was played in Brock St. Rink, and was known as one of the cleverest goal-scorers who ever wore a local uniform. His passing will be regretted by many Peterborough friends.

Referring to his death in action the Oshawa Times-Gazette says:

"Shine" Bovin as he was popularly known in this community, where he had lived since about 1926, was particularly well-known to members of Oshawa's sporting fraternity and also throughout the Province, wherever Lacrosse is payed, as an outstanding member of Oshawa's Junior, Intermediate and Senior lacrosse teams. He was also prominent in softball circles, in the days of the Church League, back around 1933 and '34.

Born in Quebec, in 1910, he received his early education at Deseronto and after moving to Oshawa, was employed at General Motors, in later years as a welder. Besides his sporting activities, he was a member of St. Gregory's Roman Cotholic church.

"Shine" enlisted as a driver in April of 1943 and after receiving training at Newmarket and Brampton, was later transferred to another unit in the Canadian Army and he went overseas in July of this year. From England he was sent to France about October 15, and went with his unit the Regina Rifles, to Belgium and thence to Holland. His latest letter to his mother arrived just Thursday morning and was dated October 24.

Legion Men Attend Service At S.A. Temple

Major H. Newman, of Toronto, an ex-serviceman, and former chaplain of the Ex-Servicemen's Association of Toronto and District, was the guest speaker at the Salvation Army Temple, Sunday, and he delivered a message with a special Remembrance Day significance to more than 125 Peterborough veterans, who marched to the church in the annual church parade the Sunday after Remembrance Day. Major Newman was accompanied to Peterborough by his wife, and both are former missionaries in Japan and Korea. Mrs. Newman pronounced the prayer at the beginning of the service.

In welcoming Major and Mrs. Newman to the Temple, Major John C. Wood, Commanding Officer, expressed his appreciation of their wholehearted interest in the work and accomplishments of the newly-opened Uptown Recreation Centre.

Court Frees Alleged Shop-Lifter

"I do not want anyone to think for one moment that I believe that the accused is innocent. The fact remains that the Crown has not produced enough evidence for a conviction," said Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in Police Court this morning in dismissing a charge against Mrs. Joan Gardner, Montreal, of stealing three bottles of perfume from the McDermid Drug Store.

In his judgment His Worship said that a great deal of evidence had been given to show much suspicious conduct on the part of the accused, particularly on the night of Friday, November 3. However, in connection with the three bottles of perfume she was accused of taking, it had not been proven that one of the bottles was stolen property because it could not be identified and in the case of another bottle the accused was not proven to have had it. As for the third bottle found in a hotel room which the accused was said to have occupied with a man, there was no evidence of exclusive possession.

Magistrate Langley paid a tribute to the evidence given by Chester C. Mowry, one of the Crown witnesses.

"His testimony was treated somewhat severely in cross-examination," said His Worship. "I feel that his evidence was given in a manner that was most satisfactory to me and that he was playing the part of a good citizen in his interest in the matter. He did his duty as a citizen."

A vagrancy charge against Mrs. Gardner was also dismissed when the Crown offered no evidence. The court then proceeded with a shop-lifting charge against Patrick Watson of Toronto.

Six District Soldiers Reported Casualties

Six men from the Peterborough district have been reported casualties while on active service with Canada's armed forces overseas, according to an official announcement by the Department of National Defence, today.

L-Cpl. Albert Ernest Corbett, son of Mrs. Grace E. Corbett, 59 Sherbourne street, Port Hope, was listed as missing, while on active service with an Eastern Ontario Regiment.

With an Eastern Canadian Regiment, Pte. Clarence George Brown, son of Mrs. Vera Brown, 4 Blooms Grove avenue, Port Hope, was reported as being dangerously wounded. Cpl. Robert B. Waudby, son of Mrs. Hazel C. McIlmoyle, RR 2 Lakefield, was reported wounded in action also while with an Eastern Ontario unit.

Two soldiers from this district were reported slightly wounded. They are Pte. Morley Burton Berry, whose brother Arthur, lives at Corbyville, and L-Cpl. Lyle William Horsley, son of Mrs. Hazel A. Horsey, Haliburton.

Smaller Groups Do Well In Loan

Employees of Loblaws Groceterias subscribed 130 p.c. of their quota of Victory Bonds with every member of the staff investing. They are listed in the group payroll section of the Peterborough campaigners, and their response placed them well up in the final reports rom their division.

Staff of Grant and Loucks invested to the extent of 105 p.c. of their allotment with 100 p.c. buying Bonds.

Nicholls Hospital staff 111 p.c. of their quota and 57 p.c. investing. Most of the members of the staff are nurses in training, and the result was regarded at headquarters as a fine response to the Loan appeal.

Confederation school staff 107 p.c. of objective and 83 p.c. subscribing.

Harold Coleman's staff took 100 p.c. of thier objective with 71 p.c. investing.

"In order to put his objective of $55,000 over the top for the village of Lakefield, Chas. H. Hunter, Victory Loan salesman for that community, was out early the other morning in an endeavor to secure his last few thousand dollars. He came across a local citizen who was a grandfather and before Mr. Hunter had concluded his interview he had written this man a $50 bond for each of his seven grandchildren and also a sizeable bond each for his wife and himself."

Unpaid Taxes Reduced To $600 Sum

Unpaid taxes at October 31 last on the rolls up to the end of 1941 were less than 600 as compared with $15,609 at October 31, 1939, City Treasurer M. E. Shaver informed the Examiner to-day.

These amounts are classed as delinquent taxes, and they apply to the rolls which have been returned to the treasury office from City Clerk Outram.

Municipal land taxes are either paid in cash by the owner or if they are neglected and left to accumulate in the treasury account, the day comes when this amount approximates the values of the property which is eventually put up for sale.

Such properties may then be redeemed by the owners, they may be bought in the usual way of auctions by other citizens or Mr. Shaver, as the municipality's representative, may bid on them. Properties thereby fall into the lap of the city and are available to buyers. Many city-owned lots have been sold this year to prospective house-builders.

The contrast of $600 against $15,609, was the feature which Mr. Shaver remarked should be of interest to the members of the council and ratepayers generally.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 13—(AP)—Gracie Fields, the Lancashire lassie who has picked up a few brickbats along with bouquets for her war entertaining activities, is getting ready to stick her neck out again—all over the world.

"Yes, it's true," she said, "I'm planning another tour. Six months this time, and I'm hoping to visit all the war theatres around the world."

She was undismayed, she said, by the occasional criticisms levelled at her. "Ye have to expect 'em," she observed cheerfully, "even when ye're doin' the best ye can."

Purse Snatcher Attacks Woman Breaks Shoulder

Attacked by a purse-snatcher near the eastern end of Hunter Street bridge shortly after 9 o'clock Sunday night, Mrs. Eva Stevenson, 227 Armour Road is in St. Joseph's Hospital suffering from a fractured left shoulder, and cuts on the forehead and knee sustained when she was thrown to the pavement by her assailant.

Mrs. Stevenson, accompanied by Miss Mabel McKinley, was walking east and had just crossed the bridge when she was overtaken by a tall man. As he was about to pass the two the man seized Mrs. Stevenson and threw her down, at the same time grabbing for her purse.

The woman screamed for help but held on to the purse and the assailant ran down through the softball bowl and across the James Stevenson Park and escaped.

Archie Menzies, former member of the police department arrived on the scene a moment or two afterward in his car and took up the chase but the attacker disappeared. Constable C. J. McGillen was close to the spot in a police cruiser but was also unsuccessful in locating the assailant. Other police also scoured the district without any result.

Madoc Miner Killed By Block Of Rock

MADOC, Nov. 13 (ENS)—When a large section of rock fell upon him from above, 31-year-old Albert Lalonde of Madoc, was instantly killed while working at the Reliance Fluorspar Mine near Madoc Friday evening.

Lalonde entered the mine after he and a fellow employee, Tom Lindale, had set off a blast to release a block of rock. After the blast fumes had subsided the pair entered lower shaft tunnels when suddenly a large section of rock, weighing well over seven tons, fell upon Lalonde killing him instantly. Lindale escaped without being struck, however. The matter was investigated by Provincial Constable J. J. Hatch and an inquest held before Coroner Dr. Eagleson at Madoc Saturday morning. The proceedings were enlarged after identification was established.

Just a Mob

WITH U.S. 1st ARMY IN GERMANY, Nov. 13 — (AP) — Henrich Himmler's efforts to created a so-called Volkssturm, or peoples army—a mere mob of guerillas which the Germans are trying to cover with the rules of ordinary warfare by calling it an army—have not resulted in any considerable armed forces. This conclusion was drawn today from all available sources which indicate in fact that the volkssturmers have never been given guns.

Christmas Fund Gets $25 From B'nai B'rith

To certain extent, all fraternal groups subsist on the fellowship that is found within their own immediate circle, but they who would justify their existence in a public sense, must of necessity branch out to do some worthwhile work outside of their own circle, this in itself enlarging their sphere of influence that has continued to find increasing favour with all well thinking people.

This is one of the predominant reasons why service clubs during the past decade or more have come very much to the front, and they who have thrived the best have been those who really carried their service for others in general to its greatest heights.

During the past four years, many fraternal organizations have displayed a real helpfulness to other people in difficulties, by giving practical support this city and district's own fund to assist the sufferers from enemy air raid attacks over Britain, which latterly has included damage from a more devatating type of warfare through the robot or flying bomb.

Among these, the B'nai B'rith Peterborough Lodge No. 1392 have had a place, their helpfulness appearing on more than one occasion in this column on behalf of the fund. To-day another of their gifts in an amount of $25 appears which was forwarded by their secretary Syd Goldstone, with a letter particularly designating their gifts as being for the special Christmas fund now being raised, and expressing a wish for every success in this effort to help the unfortunate bomb victims in the Mother country.

Honor Neighbors Memory.

The Grim Reaper has been exacting a heavy toll in that section of London Street which lays between George and Aylmer streets in recent months, the most latest to answer the final summons being the late Pete Wallace, who as a neighbour and citizen was highly esteemed by all who knew him.

At the time of his passing this was outwardly sympbolized by practically all in the near vicinity joining together to send a floral tribute of their tokens of sympathy, and when the accounts for this were settled, it was found that more money had been subscribed than was needed, so to-day with a portion added by the woman who undertook the leadership in this, another five dollars is given to honor his memory in perhaps the way he would best have wished, to go on its message of cheer to those who have been stricken in the British Isles.

The list of personal donations mentioned in this report three days ago has now grown from two to seven already on hand, and with it is hoped a few more additions, will appear in a list of purely personal gifts in the very near future.

7th Victory Loan Exceeds $5 Million Mark

Joining hands once more in unity of effort, Peterborough city and county responded to the Seventh Victory Loan with a grand total of $5,130,700 as compiled at headquarters up to 11 o'clock this morning.

"The general canvass in the city and county, with the payroll savings section, exceeded their aggregate total by 12 per cent," G. S. Matthews, chairman of the local war finance committee, informed the Examiner. "The Hon. Mr. Ilsley, Minister of Finance, asked for 10 per cent more than the minimum objective, and these groups comprising the great body of investors did more than was asked of them. That fact speaks eloquently of the success of this Loan in our own city and county."

The city general canvass and the county general canvass "went over the top" at the week-end, following Payroll Savings of the industrial division which had been coasting along during most of the third week with all but odds and ends of their work completed.

Mr. Matthews said it was unikely that a final report would be available until Wednesday.

Mortals And Immortals Is Lesson-Subject

"Mortals and Immortals" was the subject of the Lesson Sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, including First Church of Christ Scientist, on Sunday. The Golden Text was: "As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy; and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly." (1 Corinthians 15:48). Selections from the Bible included the following from 1 Corinthians 15:22: "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" included the following: "Mortal man is the antipode of immortal man in origin, in existence, and in his relation to God."

Peterborough Shows Its Mettle

The City and County of Peterborough have every right to congratulate themselves on the result of the Seventh Victory Loan Canvass which has just been completed. We have done well in previous Loans, but we have never made such a good showing in every department of the canvass. The demand made upon this area was not a light one, but we met it, and exceeded it; we gave the Minister of Finance the ten per cent. above the minimum objective which he asked for; and we did it without much fuss or wasted effort. We may fittingly take pride in what we have achieved.

A word of special praise must be said for the people who organized and carried out the Payroll Canvass, and the people who subscribed to it. The objective for this canvass is an exact 15 per cent. of the total payroll of workers of all kinds in this city; that is a big levy, and in many cases a subscription to the Loan means real sacrifice; in every case it means sacrifice of some kind, for there are few people working in this city who could not use their full pay for their own purposes. But the Payroll Canvass was oversubscribed by a greater margin than any other portion of the Loan.

These Victory Loans are a not inconsiderable part of the war effort, for money is the sinew of war, and as soon as we cease to foot our bills we shall be headed for trouble. The Victory Loans are also intended to check inflation in Canada, and they have done so to a remarkable extent. When the war began Canada decided to make a stand against inflation, and to do everything possible to pay for the war as expenses arose. This policy has meant scraping and pinching in some ways, but it has saved us from the desperate scraping and pinching which inflation brings. Lending money to the government to carry on the war is not a particularly heroic ough area have shown hard work and resolution. The people of the Peterborough area has shown hard work and resolution of the best kind in the seventh Canvass, and we may compliment ourselves upon it.

Mr. Deeds Makes Up His Mind

We always laugh a lot when actors take to politics, as so many of them have been doing during the election in the U.S.; actors, in our experience, are emotional fellows whose convictions, while sincere, are subject to rapid changes. But the public is always interested in actors, and is always ready to credit them with the thoughts and minds of the parts they play.

Take the case of Gary Cooper, for instance. Mr. Cooper is known to the public as a handsome, soft-voiced, shy man who wouldn't say Boo to a goose, but who would step right up to a crook and punch him in the jaw. On the screen Mr. Cooper is a valiant champion of Old Glory, Motherhood, Childhood, Girlhood and Clean Government. What he may be like in private life, we do not know; perhaps he is quite the opposite of his screen character. But there are millions of people who love him, because they think that he is just like themselves, or just like the man they want to marry. Obviously Mr. Cooper is a great catch for any political party.

The Republican Party got him, and published an advertisement which purported to be a message to his fellow-countrymen, straight from the great, honest heart of Gary Cooper. His picture was at the top of the ad., looking honest, sweet and puzzled, as Mr. Cooper always looks on the screen. The message was written in the fuddled, murky English which Mr. Cooper uses as Mr. Deeds and Joe Doakes: "For my own self, here's how I came to my own conclusion, and here's what it is", he says. And what do you think his conclusion was? That he was going to vote for Dewey!

Of course this gave Mr. Cooper sorrow. Sorrow is part of his screen stock-in-trade. He has always voted for Roosevelt before. But he was talking to a friend of his, a cobbler, and the two of them—the simple actor and the simple cobbler—agree that they did not like the company President Roosevelt was keeping. So the two of them rushed away and confided their great thought to the Republican National Committee of New York City, which confided the great news to the Times, at the usual advertisement rates.

Spattering The Hero

Many wise men have said that fame is not worth having; fame is the tribute which small men pay to great ones, and if the small men change their minds the fame disappears. When the breath of the mob is warm upon its hero's neck he is famous; if he does something which displeases the mob, he is at once infamous. We have often expressed our nauseated disgust at the treatment which is given to eminent men in Canada's political life, and as we watch what is happening to General McNaughton our disgust increases. He was a hero a month ago, but now, to a section of the press, he is a butt for gibes and strictures.

We say a section of the press, because most reputable Canadian journals have assumed that General McNaughton, who presumably knew what he was doing in 1940, has not become entirely incompetent in 1944. This is as it should be, for most of General McNaughton's popularity in this country was created by the press, and the press should give him a chance to show what he is about in his new position as Minister of Defence. When the war broke out, General McNaughton was unknown to most Canadians; only his professional colleagues and the scientific world knew of his abilities. It was the press which made his name and his face familiar in every Canadian home. The press should not turn savagely upon him now.

But we find one Ontario paper asking this question:

> "Is ex-Commander McNaughton, now Defence Minister, making a tragic miscalculation of the temper of the Canadian people who sent their sons to his Army"?

Since when did it become 'his army'? And another paper says:

> "General McNaughton is lending his good name to an unworthy political trick—and that trick has already been exposed. Bitter regret will be Minister McNaughton's pay-off".

This is wishful thinking, born of political frustration rather than any genuine concern for the country's best interests. Another paper makes this prediction:

> "It is suggested that General McNaughton will soon go overseas to visit the forces. There he will hear the same sort of sentiments as were dinned into the ears of his predecessor. The question then will be whether he will come back persuaded to the same course as that taken by Colonel Ralston, or will resist the direct demands of the soldiers and thus complete the alienation of their trust".

Since when has a commander been guided by "the direct demands of the soldiers"? An army is not conducted on these parliamentary lines. And another paper writes of him thus:

> "Robinson Crusoe's 'Good Man Friday' had nothing on Mackenzie King's 'Handy Andy'."

In the eyes of this journal General McNaughton has committed the unpardonable sin: he has lent his support to the Prime Minister, who, as everybody knows, wants to wreck the Dominion and lose the war. In the eyes of some of our Ontario editors, Mr. King is a greater enemy than Hitler.

The problem which General McNaughton has been called upon to solve is one which not one citizen in a thousand understands fully. It is a problem which he, as a soldier, understands very well. It is a military and not a political problem. Should we not give him at least a fortnight in which to show what he means to do about it?

NOTE AND COMMENT

A scientist tells us that the ordinary earthworm has a voice. Not only can it turn; it can also talk back.

Scientists foresee that it will soon be possible to grow peanuts in Toronto. Meanwhile it continues to produce its bumper crop of small potatoes.

A physician says that the best remedy for insomnia is a drink of whisky every fifteen minutes. This carries on the modern custom of giving new and elegant names to things; what used to be called a 'bender' is now 'insomnia therapy'.

General Eisenhower will not allow his men to fraternize with the enemy, and a soldier who is caught drinking in an inn in Germany is fined $65. This makes the cost of refreshment almost as high as it is in Canada.

Farming News and Views

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

AT the time of writing, November 6th, conditions in parts of Ontario are not very promising for the coming year. I find that a great many farmers in Peel County have been unable to do any fall ploughing. If some of the stiff clay in part of that county could be turned up, even roughly, it would be ready to benefit from winter frosts, but the land is as hard as cement and not only is a tractor powerless to pull a plough through it, but the plough would be pulled to pieces in the effort. It will take a lot of rain, days of it, to bring this soil into a condition in which it can be cultivated, and when we get this far into November, it will be only a very exceptional Fall that will enable farmers to catch up with their work. Everybody I meet in the city is enthusiastic about the weather and hoping it will last, but I am bound to say it is very provoking to listen to them, and I sometimes wonder if people who live in cities are as selfish as they seem, when they glory in weather that is fine for holidays, but a heavy handicap to people who are producing food.

⋄ ⋄ ⋄

I MOTORED from Ottawa East to Hawkesbury on the first of November and the prospects are not very bright. That clay, some of it white, looks very forbidding. There has been a very light crop of hay along the Ottawa Valley there and winter feed is going to be very scarce and expensive. I crossed the Ottawa to Grenville and called at "Arnoldwold Farms," owned by Gilbert E. Arnold. He has a great many horses, perhaps twelve or fifteen hundred, and hay is about as scarce as on the Sahara Desert. Arnold is not new in the horse business and he will take care of them. He had some hay shipped in from Guelph recently. It cost him some $14.00 per ton where purchased and worked out at $20.60 per ton landed at Grenville station, which is right by his farm. Gilbert says it is out of the ordinary for them to be hay hungry, as not only do they usually have a good crop in his district but that part of Quebec has always got hay to sell and there are usually American buyers in that country after hay, but this year it is not there. Gilbert Arnold has been a successful breeder and importer of Belgian and Percheron horses, and has now a few Belgian stallions that are fine types of draughters. This has been a very dry year throughout the Ottawa district, and corn for ensilage is not half a crop. Not only are the dairy farmers suffering for pasture but if they are going to winter all their cattle it will be at quite a stiff cost for feed.

⋄ ⋄ ⋄

FALL WHEAT east of Toronto is looking well. It has a good green top, and it has hidden the soil from the sun so it still seems to have reserve moisture enough to keep it going. Pasture fields where eaten off don't look very well, but there seems to be meadows, probably permanent pastures, that are giving cattle good grazing. Along the east side of York County, and in Ontario County, fall ploughing is well forward and farmers will be up with their work. Anyone who has roots could not have asked for better weather for lifting them and a good many farmers were at this job, and getting on with it.

THE price of turnips for table consumption seems to have dropped. Last year turnips sold at about 36c for a bushel of 50 lbs., while this year the price offered in Wellington County is only 18c and in Grey some 23½c. If you buy a turnip in Toronto it costs you 4c per lb., which would be $2.00 per bushel. The retail price is at least twice what it should be, but when a housewife buys on turnip it isn't a very large expenditure so she makes no complaint. Some farmers have had a yield of from 700 to 1,000 bushels per acre, so the price doesn't need to be too large to make it profitable, as turnips are a splendid crop for cleaning land, and leave the soil in a good condition of tilth.

My idea about growing turnips for sale is to always keep in mind the second market for them, to feed them on the farm. I would only sow turnips that I could use conveniently for feed, to be marked for table use if the price was well worthwhile. Turnips will condition young cattle better than anything you can feed. Mangels are preferred for dairy cows and brood sows, but for young cattle and any cattle you are fattening, good swede turnips have a place all their own. I would seed turnips only to be sold when they were too high priced to feed, then they would be a cash crop, but I would have little regret about having to feed them.

ONTARIO potatoes have a good chance to come into their own this year. Prince Edward Island potatoes gained a good foothold in this province for their quality and grading. This year, however, they do not appear to be as good. I don't know if screens have been reduced in size but there are an abundance of "marbles," as far as size is concerned. A careful grading and marketing of Ontario potatoes this year would win some customers back. I wonder if it will be done.

⋄ ⋄ ⋄

THE Midland Agricultural College, in Nottinghamshire, England, has a larger registration of students this autumn than it can accommodate. The Notts County Education Committee is likely to establish one or two more Agricultural Schools to provide technical and practical instruction in agriculture and horticulture, and it has been decided, as a result, that the college will take care of the degree and diploma students. English farmers are very keen about agricultural education. England is well farmed.

⋄ ⋄ ⋄

BRITAIN has not been able to take all the apples from Canada this year that had been intended. The trouble is a matter of exchange, as we have not been able to get enough British goods shipped to Canada. Farmers here are interested in the British market for apples, and other farm products, and it is quite plain that as war industries change to peace production, there are many things we will want from Britain. Nothing has been scarcer than a good pocket knife in Canada for two or three years and every farmers wants and needs one. When Sheffield knives replace the trash now offered for sale the purchasers will be numerous. Scotch tweeds and English worsteds will be welcomed also and this is only mentioning one or two items for which we will be pleased to trade apples etc. for, when British industries are again turning out useful products.

THE NAZI HOME GUARD HAS POSSIBILITIES —By Thomas

Prime Minister King Clears the Air

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

THE radio address made by Prime Minister Mackenzie King Wednesday evening cleared up several misconceptions about the draftee army and the reinforcement situation generally. A careful study of the speech as reported in this newspaper yesterday should convince most Canadians that the present stand of Mr. King and General McNaughton on the question of conscription for overseas service is thoroughly justified.

Mr. King's breakdown of the draftee army was perhaps the most significant part of the address. The Prime Minister pointed out that, although there are 68,000 men enrolled as draftees, more than 9,000 of these are on extended leave on compassionate or other grounds. Of the remainder, only 42,000 are considered suitable for overseas service, and of these 16,000 have been at least partly trained as infantry reinforcements. Half that number, 8,000, are sufficiently trained to be ready to go into combat at an early date. So instead of the 70,000 men so glibly referred to by Government critics, there are only 8,000 draftees who would be of any use overseas at the present time.

Another figure which should confound the critics is that which lists the draftees from Quebec at 23,000, and the French-speaking draftees from all Canada at 25,000. The critics most clamorous in demanding conscription have incessantly pointed to Quebec as the chief source of the draftee army's personnel. Now that official figures show that a good deal less than half the men in that army are from Quebec, there should be fewer attempts to make political capital by stirring up sectional strife.

It is to be hoped that the men of the draftee army who are suitable for overseas service will respond to Mr. King's plea to volunteer for general service. The eight thousand who are well enough trained for combat would form an immensely valuable reinforcement reserve if they were to volunteer, while their value overseas as conscripts would be dubious.

Another set of figures, published yesterday in The Financial Post, draw attention to an angle of the manpower problem which has had relatively little discussion to date. The Financial post points out that in planning for five Canadian divisions overseas, we may have undertaken more than we can carry out. It will be recalled that Canada was unable to maintain five divisions in the First Great War, and that the fifth was finally broken up to reinforce the other four.

In order to assist appraisal of what the Dominion is trying to do and is doing, in this war, The Financial Post offers some interesting comparisons. It first points out that Canada's population has increased by roughly 60 per cent between the two wars, and then gives the following figures. The first column shows four facts about the last war effort. The second column increases those figures by 60 per cent, and the third gives current figures for this war.

	Last War	60% Added	This War (more than)
Navy	6,823	10,916	90,000
Air	21,169	33,870	204,000
Army	454,585	727,336	470,000
War supply	$1,069 mil.	$1,710 mil.	$10,743 mil.*

*Including financial aid to Britain.

Those few figures represent an amazing achievement for a country of some 12,000,000-odd people. The exceptional enlargement of air and naval services offsets the lower army figure to bring the total almost into line with the population increase—and the latter, admittedly, is a rough estimate. And it should not not be forgotten for a moment that this magnificent record was made under a system of voluntary service. It is the sincere conviction of the Prime Minister and General McNaughton that the same system is still capable of supplying the reinforcements which will be needed in the future, and this newspaper believes that they should be given an opportunity to prove their point. Surely a system which has produced enlistments so nearly in accord with population increase as those noted above will justify the confidence expressed in it by Mr. King and his new Minister of National Defence.

Elm Menaced

From the Quebec Department of Lands and Forests comes word that the dreaded Dutch elm disease has been discovered for the first time in Canada. It has affected some elms in Richelieu County in Quebec.

A general warning has gone out from the department, with the invitation to make use of the services of the division of forest pathology of the department. This branch of the forest service will make laboratory tests of suspect branches of elm trees. Where other action is demanded the department will take the necessary steps to treat the infested areas, together with other means to repress the disease.

The elm is one of the most beautiful and graceful landmarks of this part of the country. It would be a tragedy if the blight should become so widespread as to demand the destruction of millions of the trees. This has happened in the Eastern United States where the trouble first disclosed itself in 1930. Since that time more than 5 million elms have had to be cut down and burnt.

A microspopic fungus is the cause of the trouble. Its presence may be suspected when the leaves of the elm wither and drop in the summer. Brown streaks just below the bark and discolored sap wood are other danger signals. Obviously the warning will have to go out again next summer so that vigilance may be kept up.

Ontario as the neighbour of Quebec and a province having a fair share of the landscape graced by the elm, should be just as watchful as Quebec must be for any further outbreaks of the trouble.—Ottawa Citizen.

The Nobel Prizes

A conflict of world-wide scope made it necessary to postpone awards which had been made for forty years, in accordance with the terms of Alfred Nobel's will. Now comes the good news that prizes in medicine for 1943 and 1944 go to four distinguished research scientists in this country and that three of these are Americans. Whether or not there will be prizes in physics, chemistry and literature remains to be seen. That medicine has been recognized is a hopeful sign.

That the work done in this field is the first to receive attention was to be expected. To be sure, the awards made this year are for researches conducted long before the outbreak of war, yet it is in medicine that the greatest progress has been recorded in the last decade, if by medicine we mean, as this year's awards indicate, discoveries that are of direct benefit to physicians and their patients, even though they were made in chemistry. Progress in physics during the same period is less marked, not that the atom-smashers, measurers of cosmic rays and students of the stars have been idle, but that as the clouds of war began to gather in the late Thirties the best physicists in Europe were already acting as consultants for their Governments.

It is noteworthy that this year's prizes in medicine are awarded for determinations and measurements which demand the finest equipment and the highest skill. Such work is less spectacular than that which gave us the sulfa drugs and penicillin, but hardly less important. Nor is it an accident that the members of the staff of the Rockefeller Institute have probably received more Nobel prizes since they were instituted than those of any other research laboratory in this country.

At present the right to nominate candidates for Nobel prizes in science lies with laureates in physics, chemistry, physiology and medicine, the faculties of Scandinavian and Finnish universities, scientists selected by The Royal Academy of Science of Stockholm and the Caroline Medico-Surgical Institute, the one dominating physics and chemistry and the other physiology and medicine. That the prize-awarding committees reach decisions which have met with general approval is an indication of objectivity. Yet the method of appraising research results could be improved. Perhaps it would be simpler to leave the selection of names to the leading scientific bodies of each country, such as the Royal Society in England, the French Academy of Sciences, and the National Academy of Sciences here. In this fashion it might be possible to reward outstanding achievements earlier than has been the general practice in the past.—New York Times.

Part of the U.S. Election Show

A highly entertaining part of the American presidential election is the odd assortment of actors, songsters, authors and "intellectuals" who have joined in it, waging a war of their own. Thus we read of a big Madison Square rally complete with Broadway stars, including Frank Sinatra, the maestro of swoon; tap-dancer Bill Robinson, and singers Ethel Merman and Jan Kiepura.

Second only to the actors are the writing boys and gals—some of them from the top drawer. There is, to begin with, Clare Boothe Luce, a sort of Aimee Semple McPherson for the Republicans, beautiful as an angel to look at, and with a tongue that drips poison. So worried were the Democrats about Clare that they went all the way to California to dig up a gal named Ghagan to offset her "it," and now Gahagan, an operatic singer whose husband is a movie producer, is doing her stuff in New York and showing that she's got everything that Clare's got, and perhaps something to boot. At any rate when Ganagan met Boothe at a Forum she didn't come off second best by a long shot.

Clare, by the way, has been under a pretty withering barrage. When, the other night, she made a bitter attack on the President, up came Quentin Reynolds to remind everybody that "another President of the United States once suffered at the hands of a Booth"—which was pretty rough; and up also came the suave-tongued Clifton Fadiman (of Information Please) to describe Clare as something (we forget what) turned out by Bergdorf and Goodman. Orson Welles, too, has been in the thick of the battle.

All in all, it is a pretty entertaining spectacle they are putting on; an odd part of American democracy at work. If any be inclined to sneer at it, let us remember that bouquets and brickbats thrown by actors and authors and intellectuals are not nearly as bad as hand grenades thrown by Fascists.—Ottawa Journal.

A Bible Message

For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.... For we that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened: not for that we would be unclothed, but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life. Now he that hath wrought us for the selfsame thing is God, who also hath given unto us the earnest of the Spirit.

Therefore we are always confident, knowing that, whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord: (for we walk by faith, not by sight:) we are confident, I say, and willing rather to be absent from the body and to be present with the Lord. (II Cor. 5: 1, 4-8.)

For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality....

O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?

The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. (I Cor. 15: 33, 55-57.)

Unconsidered Trifles

Two hermits lived on adjoining islands. Although each was aware of the other's existence, neither paid the other a visit for more than twenty years.

One day, however, the taller hermit called on his brother recluse. They chatted for some fifteen minutes, and then the visitor left.

Some ten years later, the taller hermit once more knocked on his neighbour's door. The shorter hermit opened the door and saw his friend standing there.

"Hullo, old man," he greeted him. "Forget something?"

EDUCATING THE BOCHE

We, as foreigners, as conquerors and invaders, can direct that education in Germany but we cannot give it. That is a business for Germans.

As there are few Germans of the present generation competent to give it, our duty is to select and train teachers from the new generation.

That will take time, perhaps a very long time, but it is the only way, and until it is done, until those teachers have brought to maturity a generation of Germans who seem fit to be brought once more into full and free and equal association with other nations, I think it will be folly to loosen our grip on Germany. — London Express.

Letter To The Editor

WHO ARE THEY?

Sir,—Would you be so kind as to let me know the patriotic citizens, who are sponsoring Senator Bouchard's coming to Peterborough, to speak on the 11th instant?

I think the organization is known as the Unity League, and it would be interesting to know whether these gentlemen are patriots or politicians.

Yours truly,

Legion Demands Action On Reinforcements

A resolution in full support of the action taken by the Dominion Command of the Canadian Legion in submitting to Prime Minister Mackenzie King a memorandum calling for the sending overseas, as essential reinforcements, of all fully-trained personnel, called up under the provisions of the N.R.M. Act, was unanimously approved by members of the Peterborough Branch 52, at its annual Remembrance Day celebration and dinner, held in the Legion Hall, Saturday evening. The memorandum submitted to the Prime Minister by the Dominion Command, also set forth the strong views of its members, as to the immediate necessity for total mobilization of the nations resources. Shortly after it was approved by a standing vote, E. H. Simpson, president of the Lakefield Branch, endorsed the resolution on behalf of his branch.

Copies of the resolution, which was moved by Harold Scott, M.P.P., and seconded by Robert Hotrum, first vice-president of the Branch 52, were sent to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Gen. A. McNaughton, Minister of National Defence, and Alex. Walker, president of the Dominion Command of the Canadian Legion.

The text of the resolution is: "Resolved, that this Branch 52 supports unanimously the action by the Dominion Command in submitting to Prime Minister Mackenzie King a memorandum setting forth the strong views of its membership as to the immediate necessity for total mobilization of our nation's resources and requesting that the Government of the Dominion take immediate steps to act on the mandate of the plebiscite and invoke the provisions of the N.R.M.A., and send all fully-trained personnel overseas immediately as essential re-inforcements. We believe that even at this late date, this action should be taken to maintain a reasonable amount of unity in our own country, and to re-establish Canadian prestige in other countries of our Allies."

Theme of Speech

Announcement of the resolution by George Gimblett, president of Branch 52, followed a stirring address by Hon. Capt. John L. Hodgson, a returned army padre of this war, who told a cheering audience of veterans that "the providing of fully-trained and adequate re-inforcements for the fighting fronts is our care, and we shall not cease to agitate until the conscience of the Canadian people is aroused on this issue."

Capt. Hodgson, who enlisted early in the war as a combatant, and was made a padre in 1942, said, "I hope and pray that before you go home, you will have gone on record as requesting and demanding that our government...send overseas re-inforcements in this country, that are needed today."

Future relationships and rehabilitation back home in Canada, he said, are the prominent subjects of conversation among Canadian armed forces members overseas. All are deeply interested in rehabilitation plans, he said, "to spike a rumor to the contrary," and are looking forward to being participants. "One of the highlights of my work since I joined the chaplaincy is conducting the padre's hour. The gang feels that it can 'blow off steam,' and many interesting discussions are held, chiefly on rehabilitation subjects," he said.

Need Blood Donors

"We must remember that the rehabilitation of the returned veteran is our most important duty after the full prosecution of the war effort," Capt. Hodgson declared. The providing of a proper atmosphere for this work is an important part of the program, along with the work of the blood donors,' he pointed out. "As a cross-section of public opinion, we have an important part in making it a success."

According to Capt. Hodgson, soldiers returning home from this war are finding a royal welcome at the Canadian Legion. He urged that these veterans be "put into harness, and made feel they are a real part of this great organization."

Giving a picture he gleaned at first hand, he said the Canadians have kept up their morale to a very great extent, and have kept their spirits high. He reminded the Legionaires that the Canadians have had to sit tight for a long while, and take all that the Axis powers had to dish out. But now, they are dishing it out, and what a glorious chapter of the world history is at present being written by Canadians.

"For us gathered here at this banquet, this is the day of days. We are called upon to remember the departed,...'at the going down of the sun, and in the morning, we will remember them and ever uphold the significance of another remembrance day'."

We are called upon to take thought and care for the living veterans and their dependants, he said, citing Poppy Day as an example of the work done in their interests.

"And so, as we pay tribute to the fine men and women who have already given their lives that freedom might not perish from the earth, let us resolve to live for those who are still fighting the battle of civilization so magnificently, today. Let them know we are theirs to command, not only today, but in the future, and until the end of life itself." The speaker was introduced by Mr. Hotrum.

Mr. Gimblett, president, thanked the members of the 48th Highlanders' Band from Camp Borden, who provided music for the entertainment of the celebration. He urged that each member of the Branch 52 bring in new members now, as there is a campaign in operation to increase membership.

In loving remembrance of fallen comrades, the lights were lowered and a one minute silence observed, while trumpeter Pte. S. Mitchell, of the Training Centre, sounded the Last Post and Reveille. Before this, a toast to the fallen soldiers was proposed by Louis Fildes. Previous to the dinner, Rev. W. A. Filer pronounced grace.

Among the guests who attended were; Ian FcRae, Alderman W. Ovens, bringing greetings from the City of Peterborough, Mel Morrow, president of the Red Patch Club, Capt. D. A. Loomis, M.C., E.D., Rev. W. A. Filer, Weldon Fanning and Gordon K. Fraser.

A portion of the program was broadcast over the facilities of CHEX, and entertainment for the entire evening was under the direction of F. P. Burke.

Church Honors Boys Who Died On Battlefield

HAVELOCK, Nov. 13 — (ENS). — The United Church was filled Sunday morning when a memorial service conducted by the minister, Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, was held to honor the memory of Pte. R. Dafoe, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Dafoe of Belmont township, who died from wounds on September 16, received on active service with the 48th Highlanders in Italy. Rev. J. W. Hicks of Cordova Mines and Rev. S. A. Kemp of Havelock, assisted in the service.

The local war veterans and the 149th Squadron Havelock Air Cadets, marched to the church in tribute to the memory of this young soldier and three others connected with the church who have died in this conflict.

Read Out Names

The Union Jack and the Canadian ensigns were draped at half mast on each side of the choir loft, another large Union Jack was draped in front of the pulpit as a background for a table on which were arranged memorial wreaths and a cross made for the occasion by Gordon Young, a Great War Veteran. Nurse Edna L. Rogers, whose sister Lieut. N. S. Ruby Rogers has seen active service in England, Africa, Italy, France and is now in Belgium, and brother FO. R. W. Rogers at present an instructor in Scotland after service in Africa, read the names of the fallen heroes, as V. A. D. Jennie Southward of World War No. 1, placed a small flag on the cross for each of the following names:

Tice Post, Keith Pollock, Foster Keene and William Dafoe.

The "Last Post" was sounded by three buglers of Campbellford. Walter Lowe of the Northumberland Regiment and two of his pupils Joseph Clark and Norman Runyans. They also sounded the "Reveille" following a two minutes silence.

Belmont WI Has Quilting Party

HAVELOCK, Nov. 13 (ENS)—The November meeting of the Belmont Women's Institute took the form of an all-day quilting party, with two quilts on the program, one an order and the other for Red Cross purposes. In order to take care of the rush of work in this line of activity another all-day quilting has been arranged for November 16, when a pot luck dinner will be served. A quilt lining was donated by Mrs. R. Wrightly.

A course in kid glove making will be held at the home of Mrs. William Smith in Havelock, November 22, 23, 24, with Miss Hopkins of Toronto in charge.

During the afternoon the Institute was favored with a visit from the 7th Victory Loan Canvasser for Belmont township, E. J. Leeson, from whom the Society purchased a bond.

A communication was read from the Red Cross appealing for more workers to fill the quota for Ontario, and hostesses for the meeting were Miss Iva Smith, Mrs. R. Anderson, Mrs. J. Roe and Mrs. L. Keene

The KIDS ARE CERTAINLY TOUGH ON SHOES!

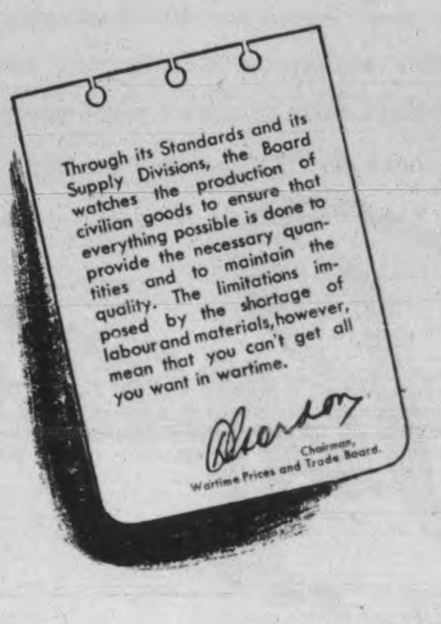
1,300,000 MORE PAIRS

OF CHILDREN'S SHOES LAST YEAR

In the last twelve months Canadian manufacturers made for Canadian children about 25% more shoes than in 1939—a fine job—done by the organization and direction of production by this Board's Footwear Administration and the co-operation of manufacturers. And this was accomplished while they were making many more essential type shoes for war workers, who wear out their shoes faster than they do in their normal employment.

THE DISAPPEARING ACT OF RUBBER-SOLE SHOES

In normal times most young Canadians got at least one pair of rubber soled, canvas-top shoes a year. But natural rubber supplies fell into enemy hands, and the manufacture of rubber footwear was drastically curtailed. We're now using reclaimed and synthetic rubber in these shoes—there have been more of them this year and there will be more next year. Leather-soled shoes have had to be used in place of this rubber-soled footwear but shoes made of leather need more care than running shoes. When they don't get it they wear out more quickly; when they get wet they must be dried slowly, away from direct heat—and they should be greased also. It's not always a case of poor quality; it's poor care.



LEATHER GOES TO WAR

You've got to have good strong leather for children's shoes but the soldiers are taking most of ours for their boots. For these leathers, a substantial portion of the hides came from South America and other countries. War cut down these imports and there have been difficulties in getting enough of these and our own hides tanned into leather due to shortage of workers. The production of high grade leather shoes has, however, been maintained at the highest level consistent with the labour and materials available. While shoe factories have been working overtime, factory capacity for civilian shoes cannot be expanded in wartime and it's not possible to change plants from the manufacture of one type of shoe to another,—for instance, from women's to children's. The processes, the machines and the lasts are different.

TURNING HIDES INTO SHOES

There are very large war uses of leather—for instance, in footwear. A soldier requires four pairs of shoes in the first year of his service and about three pairs per year thereafter. But what is more important, he needs to have his shoes re-soled four or five times a year. His shoes are of the highest quality leathers obtainable, leaving the other grades of leather for civilian use. Airmen need leather for jackets and mitts. War factories need leather for belting and farmers need leather for harness. Leather — the best leathers — has gone to war.

Grove Defeats U.C.C. 9 to 3

Playing their best football of the season on Saturday, the Grove I's rolled to a nine-three victory over Upper Canada College III's, after being defeated in Toronto last week by a score of 8-1. The Grove attack was sparked by the driving plunges of Smart and Roy, aided by the steady blocking of the line.

In the first quarter the Grove, starting from their own 30 yard line, moved the ball deep into Upper Canada territory where Reeve kicked it over the line for a point. Upper Canada driving back, came dangerously close to scoring several times, but were staved off by the Grove's steady defensive play and hard tackling. The Grove finally got the ball and marched the length of the field with a plunging and passing attack to score a touchdown in the closing minutes of the first half, the convert being blocked.

At the opening of the second half the Grove team received and once again carried the ball down the field only to be stopped within scoring distance. An attempted placement went wide for a point. Upper Canada then launched a determined plunging attack and led by Pritchard and Cork plunged through to the Grove 15 yard line where Davidson kicked a drop kick for their only tally. The Grove came charging back with a long run by Sinclair; Reeve kicked it over for another single from the ten yards line. Following this Upper Canada faded rapidly and lost possession of the ball on their own 30 yard line, Reeve having intercepted a pass on the Grove 25 yard line and running it to the Upper Canada 30. The Grove then kicked another single making the final score 9-3.

By FRED D. CRAIG

Peterborough C.V.S. are to be congratulated upon their success in winning the senior Lake Shore interscholastic group in their return to organized football after an absence of several seasons. Coach Bev. Goulding's squad grabbed off the title Saturday by defeating Oshawa Collegiate 5 points to 2 in a hard fought battle, making their record for the season five wins as against one defeat. Winning the group has been no easy task, for with the exception of Lindsay, the opposition has been strong. Bowmanville had a good club and the Peterborough students had two tough arguments before winning 8 to 6 here and 7 to 1 in Bowmanville. Then came the Oshawa series, with Coach Doug Waugh's Motor City twelve handing P.C.V.S. their only defeat of the schedule in Oshawa 13 to 7. Fortunately for Peterborough the Oshawa team had lost its opening game of the season in Bowmanville 2 to 1 and that loss balanced the victory won over P.C.V.S. so that the group championship hinged on the result of Saturday's game here. And faced with that challenge the P.C.V.S. squad was good enough to come through with a win that sent them into the Cossa playdowns.

* * * * * *

Heard several folk say after Saturday's game that the winners were a bit lucky. That is a matter of opinion. It is true that the short forward passing of the Oshawa team and some effective plunging enabled the losers to reel off considerably more yardage from scrimmage than was credited to the P.C.V.S. But it is also true that when the visitors hit pay dirt their gains vanished and they were unable to punch through for a major score. On top of that they fumbled more than the winners and their errors beat them, for it was a dropped ball in a line play that gave Peterborough a chance to win the game in the last three minutes by a perfect field goal from the toe of Red Outram. Oshawa had an opportunity for a similar score near the end of the first half when they were in perfect position to kick a placement, tried one and failed. In other words the Peterborough youngsters cashed in on their opening while the visitors foozled their chance. You can hardly call that luck. The truth is that the P.C.V.S. squad facing a big powerful team that showed a lot of class, stayed in there and battled all the way down the stretch, and when the opening came to win the argument came through like champions. They deserve all kinds of credit for the determination they showed for a team with less heart would probably have curled up long before the finish.

Two Football Upsets

The football finals Saturday produced two upsets. In the Service League finals the Toronto Navy Bull Dogs knocked off the Hagersville R.C.A.F. squad 20 to 1 and in the first game of the O.R.F.U. senior playoffs the Hamilton Wildcats won 13 to 4 over Balmy Beach. In the Service League battle the R.C.A.F. team were favored to win but the Navy with Annis Stukus pacing the attack came through with a cleancut victory. Les Ascott starred at middle wing for the winners and Mick Magee was at end for Hagersville. As for the O.R.F.U. battle in Hamilton it looks as if the rest of the Wildcats had got a bit stirred up with the repeated newspaper statements that their team consisted principally of Joe Krol for they played without Mister Football and also without Abe Zvonkin and in spite of the absence of those stars made the best showing they have registered against the Bammies in three games this season. It has been stated time after time that minus Krol the Cats were only an ordinary football squad but they were a lot more than that Saturday and as a result they will carry a nine-point lead into Toronto with them when they meet Balmy Beach this Saturday in the second game. It looks like a big margin for the powerful Bammies to overcome.

* * * * * *

Speaking of Hamilton Mike Rodden in the Kingston Whig-Standard pays this tribute to one of the greatest outside wings in the history of Canadian football, Jimmy Simpson of the Wild Cats. Says Br'er Rodden: "Great athletes come and go but Jimmy Simpson, the 'Pride of Scotland' goes on forever. He has been in senior football for many seasons and yet when all-star teams are selected 'Sir James' is always knocking at the door. Jimmy is only a little fellow and as such might be regarded as a poor target for forward passers to shoot at and yet he does manage by adroitness and cleverness to shine in this important department. It was just 16 years ago that Jimmy Simpson made his first appearance in senior football and it was his initial appearance in that sport. A native of Scotland Jimmy had come to Canada at an early age but had participated in baseball only as a pastime. He was as fast as a whippet and it was plain to see that he possessed athletic sense so his pals decided that he might make good in football. When he reported to the Tigers and asked for a trial he showed such eagerness to learn that he was placed in the care of the great "Cap" Fear, by many regarded as having been the best outside wing of all time. Fear's history parallels that of Simpson in that he was born in England and yet was good enough to catch a place with the Toronto Argonaut seniors the first season he ever played Canadian football. I was coach of the Tigers in that era and I can say that I never knew of any player who developed as fast as Simpson did. In no time at all he exhibited such all-round effectiveness that he was given a regular assignment with Fear as his partner and together they made history."

Two Streaks Stopped

Two streaks were snapped off over the week-end in the N.H.L. The winning parade of the Toronto Maple Leafs was stopped at Detroit Sunday night after the Leafs had reeled off six straight wins and the losing run of the New York Rangers terminated Saturday night when the Young Men of Manhattan defeated Detroit Red Wings 5 to 2. Rangers had the best record in the loop in the Saturday-Sunday games for after their victory over the Wings they played the Boston Bruins to a tie Sunday night to pick up three points. The tie also made Boston's total for the season three and as a result the Chicago Black Hawks who were beaten 4 to 2 by the Canadiens last night have dropped into the cellar. 14,839 Fans saw the Leafs outscore Canadiens 3 to 1 Saturday in a game in which the Schriner-Carr-Bodnar line monopolized all the Toronto scoring. Peterborough fans who saw the tussle say that it was a close argument and that the Canadiens had a lot of the play. Bodnar scored two of the Toronto goals and the third came from the stick of Sweeney Schriner. Buddy O'Connor was the successful Canadien marksman.

In the game at Detroit Sunday night it was a tight argument until the Red Wings came through with two goals in the last period to take the verdict. Detroit went ahead in the first period on a goal by Jud McAtee, only to have Toronto tie it and the same thing happened in the second session when Rookie Wochy scored. However there was no comeback in the final session when Quackenbush put the Wings ahead and Ted Lindsay potted the clincher. Bill Calladine was not in the Boston lineup last night as the Bruins and Rangers played a 5-5 tie. Bill Cowley had two goals and an assist, his pair of markers coming late in the game to save the situation for the Bruins after Rangers had set up a two goal lead going home. Four of the New York goals were fired by rookies, Demarco, Dill, Atanas and Thurier, while the veteran Phil Watson was the gunner for the fifth.

TORONTO, Nov. 13 — (CP). — Harold Wagner of Waterloo Saturday was elected president of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association. A. A. Langford, of London, Ont., honorary secretary-treasurer for 14 years, asked to be relieved of his duties and was appointed honorary life president.

It was announced that so far this year the association has raised $20,000 for war services.

Week-end Stars

By The Canadian Press.

Goalie Frank McCool, Toronto—who held the Montreal Canadiens scoreless until the closing minutes of play as Leafs handed them a 3-1 defeat on Saturday.

Rookie Walter Atanas, New York—who scored two goals and one assist as Rangers defeated Detroit Red Wings 5-2 on Saturday for their first win of the season.

Bill Cowley, Boston, whose two third-period goals on Sunday put Bruins into a 5-5 tie with New York Rangers.

NO NYLONS NEEDED—There's been lots of talk in Hollywood about this glamour girl and that having the most appealing limbs, so co-workers of Ann Jeffreys decided to show you their idea of top honors in this field. Ann certainly seems to bear out their contention.

Trinity Wins

Trinity College School seconds showed a little too much drive and punch for P.C.V.S. seconds in a junior interscholastic group game at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon

The game, played as a curtain-raiser to the Oshawa-Peterborough senior battle, was a good exhibition of junior football.

Trinity won the argument 8 points to 1 with all the scoring done in the first half. They had the edge in the first period and although they could not cross the Peterborough goal line Pearson put them in front with two kicks for singles.

The Port Hope school team went further in front in the second period. A neat forward pass by quarterback French to Bird set the scene for the major score and Lawson ripped over for a touchdown which French converted. McKee kicked a single for P.C.V.S.'s only point before the period ended

There was no scoring in the last two periods with the play for the most part in the centre area.

The teams:

T.C.S. Seconds—Flying wing, Jarvis; halves, O'Grady, Pearson, Lawson; quarter, French; snap, Fisher; inside wings, Grier, McDougall; middles, Fennell, Main; outsides, Bird, Hawke; alternates, Kirkpatrick, Dobell, Austin, Mahaffey, Bowles, Wigle, Main, Armour.

P.C.V.S. Seconds — Flying wing, McKee; halves, Doughty, Thompson, Menzies; quarter, Borland; snap, Green; inside wings, Addyman, Prise; middles, Rush, Bond; outsides, McDougall, Martin; alternates, Moyles, McIntyre, G. Braund, Beavis, Lech.

P.C.V.S. Wins Lakeshore Title Defeating Oshawa Seniors 4 to 2

Capt. Red Outram's perfect field goal three minutes before the end of the struggle provided the margin by which P.C.V.S. defeated Oshawa Collegiate at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon by 4 points to 2 and gave the Peterborough students the championship of the Lake Shore senior interscholastic group.

It was a great finish to a tense, dogged battle. P.C.V.S. led at half time by 1 to 0, Oshawa took the lead in the third period with two singles, and as the last quarter rapidly passed that slender margin looked big enough to win the argument.

A long punt by Jack Matthews paved the way for the P.C.V.S. win. A few minutes before it looked as if the homesters had missed the boat when they failed to cash in on a chance to kick over the Oshawa line to tie up the game. They were driven back and their opportunity seemed to have vanished until Matthews got away a beautiful 45-yard punt over the opposition goal line. The visitors succeeded in running the ball out but they lost possession on a fumble on the second play afterward and the stage was set for their downfall.

The ball was on Oshawa's 10-yard line. Matthews was stopped on two plays but on the second he ran the ball over in front of the goal posts. P.C.V.S. had to decide whether to take a sure single with a punt to the dead line or gamble on a placement. They elected to try for a win instead of a draw and Outram standing on the 15-yard-line coolly kicked the ball squarely between the uprights for the three points that spelled victory. The P.C.V.S. line held tightly on the play, giving their kicker perfect protection.

Tough Opposition

It was quite a ball game. Oshawa, a big rugged team with a hard charging line, had a considerable margin in gains from scrimmage, both on plunges and on a short forward passing attack that had P.C.V.S. puzzled but in spite of that superiority the Motor City crew failed to cash in. Something went

Hamilton Beats Beaches Without Krol

By The Canadian Press

The Dominion champion Hamilton Wildcats demonstrated Saturday that they can play winning football even without Joe Krol, their high-scoring triple-threat halfback. With Krol absent because of illness, the Wildcats whipped Toronto Balmy Beach 13-4 before 11,000 fans in Hamilton to take a long stride to their second successive Ontario Rugby Football Union title. It was the first game of the title series.

In Toronto, the Navy Bulldogs became the first team to win the championship of the recently-organized Ontario Armed Services Football League by scoring a surprise 20-1 triumph over the favored Hagersville R.C.A.F. Flying Tigers in a sudden-death title game.

The Wildcats' win gives them a nine-point margin for the second game of the home-and-home points-to-count title series in Toronto next Saturday. They also missed Lineman Abe Zvonkin because of an injury he suffered in a wrestling match in Brantford Friday night.

Miller Stars.

Gordon Miller, in the Royal Canadian Navy two years, filled Krol's position and started Hamilton on the trail to victory with a single point when Earl Selkirk was rouged on one of his kicks in the second quarter. Mel Lawson followed that up with a touchdown which Joe Capriotti converted before Beaches scored with a field goal by Ross (Red) McKelvey.

Miller was rouged on a Selkirk kick in the third quarter but in the fourth the Wildcats came up with an inspired offensive which produced another six points—a single by Jack Brown and an unconverted touchdown by hard-plunging Paul Miocinovich.

Leading Seaman Annis Stukus, leading scorer in the Services League this season, went on a point-getting rampage in the Toronto game with two touchdowns, two converts and a field goal for 15 points. The other Navy points came on a touchdown by Patrolman Al French who grabbed the ball on the bounce when Sgt. Joe Richman fumbled a kick and then went 20 yards for a touchdown. FO. Bill Douglas accounted for the Hagersville single, OS. Jim O'Brien being rouged on one of his kicks.

Stukus, who got 11 points in the final quarter of the Toronto game, had able assistance in ground-gaining from youthful OS. Royal Copeland and OS. Tom Waldon on the halfline and a hard-hitting line led by Stoker Les Ascott and Leading Seaman Hank McMahon.

At Kingston the Ottawa Trojans of the O.R.F.U. defeated Queen's University team 12-5 in an exhibition game. It was the first defeat of the season for the University team which had won the Kingston city title.

TORONTO, Nov. 13 — (CP). — Where are the Canadians of the Old Brigade, who are giving way before the onslaught of the foreign-born in the junior Ontario world, wonders Fred Craig in the Peterborough Examiner. Line-ups of some of the teams sound like the Irish of Notre Dame....While admitting it's a good sign to see that second and third generation Canadians are fitting into our Canadian sport life as well, Fred would like to know if the "descendants of older Canadians are developing into a generation of jitterbugs and drug store cowboys."

On the house:

A wrestler with the thirst-provoking handle of Tom Collins appeared in a mat card with burly Abe Zvonkin at Brantford, Ont. That prompted Al (Brantford Expositor) Rose to suggest it might not be the first time a Tom Collins appeared in the Dufferin and Haldimand Rifles Armories, where the bout was held.

Brave man:

Keeping that northland feud over girl hockeyists alive, Vic (Timmins Free Press) Copps, a sturdy bachelor, intimates that only the fear of the missus keeps Ralph Adams of the North Bay Nugget plugging for the girls' constitutional rights to play hockey if they want to. A rugged individualist Mr. Copps says women are all right in their place, but in hockey uniforms, no.

Incidentally:

The three Chin brothers, being seasoned and done to a turn in Port Colborne for Toronto Maple Leafs, are reported showing plenty of class with the junior squad....The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association kissed and made up with the obstreperous Quebec Senior Hockey League in solemn conclave at Ottawa, reports Lloyd McGowan in the Montreal Star.....Sgt. A. G. (Scotty) Kennedy, owner of the 37-cents filly, Omar's Gift, is having the time of his life these days inspecting the European race tracks, whenever he has time to spare from his fighting duties.

Red Wings Defeat Toronto Leafs Break 6-Game Winning Streak

By ERIC SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Early season predictions that almost anything could happen in the 1944-45 National Hockey League campaign were born out during the week-end when the three top teams each won and lost a game and Lester Patrick's lowly New York Rangers jumped out of the basement position.

More than 40,000 spectators witnessed five top-notch games, highlighted by the defeat of the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs and a win—their first since last Jan. 22—and a draw by Rangers.

The Leafs downed the Stanley Cup champions, Montreal Canadiens 3-1 on home ice Saturday night for their sixth successive victory, but were handed a 4-2 beating by Detroit Red Wings at the border city Sunday. Canadiens partly made up for their loss by winning 4-2 from Chicago Black Hawks on the latter's home ice Sunday.

In the only other Saturday night contest, Rangers defeated Detroit Red Wings 5-2 for the first victory this year in five starts. The Patrickmen then played to a 5-5 tie with Boston Bruins Sunday to send them into a fourth-place tie with Boston, each with three points.

Hawks in Cellar

Chicago's loss dropped the Hawks into the cellar.

Toronto's victory over Canadiens saw much of the credit going to their rookie netminder, 26-year-old Frank McCool, who played a sensational game. Veteran Dave (Sweeney) Schriner's master workmanship however, and polished offensive continuity of the Leafs paved the way for goals. Gus Bodnar, centre on Toronto's top line of Bodnar-Schriner-Carr, netted the only goal of the first period and drove in one other puck in the final session. Schriner whipped in the other goal and got an assist on Bodnar's second tally. Less than three minutes before the final whistle Buddy O'Connor backhanded a shot behind McCool to rob the Leaf custodian of a shutout.

Detroit's victory over Toronto came after a rough and hard-fought game in which 12 penalties, six to each team, were handed out. The Wings checked the Bodnar-Schriner-Carr combination to a standstill, and while Detroit never trailed, Leafs came from behind twice to tie the score. Rookie Jud McAtee sank the first goal of the game before MelHill netted for Toronto. Steve Wochy of Fort William sent the Redshirts ahead again, but Babe Pratt got the equalizer before Bill Quackenbush and Ted Lindsay netted again for the Wings.

Crowd of 14,000.

Playing before more than 14,000 fans on Saturday, Rangers had the edge over Detroit from the start to finish. Walter Atanas, rookie from Hamilton, Ontario, netted once in the opening period and added another just before the final whistle to take scoring honors. Veteran Ott Heller, Phil Watson, and Bob Dill got the others. Mud Bruneteau and Flash Hollett netted for Detroit.

The Blueshirts continued their smart play on Sunday until late in the third period when the Bruin pressure paid off with three quick goals, two of them by Cowley, to tie the count. Rangers were ahead 4-2 at the start of the final session and Bob Dill made it 5-2 before Rookie Gino Rossini scored for Boston, and as followed in quick succession by Cowley. Fred Thurier, Watson, Atanas, and Ab Demarco got the other Ranger goals. Bill Cupulo and Herbie Cain netted the others for Boston.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.— (AP).— For the first time in 24 years of basketball coaching at Western Michigan College, Herbert W. Read hasn't a single veteran on his squad....Last year he started with 14 lettermen and only lost to one Collegiate rival.

Orders Is Orders.

When fiery George Stallings managed the Rochester Internationals back in 1925, a rookie pitcher, Jerry Mallett (later a Texas League manager) came up to bat in a tight spot...."Think you can hit this guy." Stallings asked .... "Sure," replied Mallett, who then whiffed on three pitches....Stallings blew up. "Get out of this ball park," he ordered. "Go and burn up that uniform. You're no ball player."....Overwhelmed by the torrent of words, Mallett did just what Stallings ordered and set fire to his moneky suit....Warned to steer clear of Stallings, the youngster hid in his room all the next day and finally, after repeated knocks went unanswered, the door was forced open....In strode Stallings, waving a sheaf of bills.."But Mr. Stallings, I burned the uniform," Mallett wailed...."Here's $50," replied the manager, handing him the money. "I've told that to 19,000 ball players and you're the first one who either had the courage or was dumb enough to do it."

Capitals Stall Hershey Bears

By The Canadian Press

Indianapolis Capitals put a sudden end last night to Hershey Bears' winning stride in the American Hockey League by netting five goals in 10½ minutes in the third period of a scheduled game that yielded a 5-1 victory for the Caps.

Thus Indianapolis moved within a single point of the western division leadership now held by Pittsburgh. The Bears retain the leadership in the eastern division, a position into which they moved back Saturday after white-washing Buffalo Bisons 6-0. Buffalo made up for it however, with a 5-2 victory last night over Pittsburgh.

Providence Reds, coming from behind twice, gained a 3-3 tie with Cleveland Barons. It was the second tie in four home games this season for the Reds whose only victory was scored at Cleveland.

Saturday night, Cleveland Barons defeated Pittsburgh Hornets, league leaders, 2-1 before a crowd of 9,525 largest of the season gathered at Cleveland. The game was featured by a tussle in which one spectator got excited and drew a punch in the mouth from one of the Hornet players. Another fan was ejected for throwing a chair in the general direction of the ice.

Trapper Fights Big Bear In Rowboat

FRESNO, Calif., Nov. 13 AP).—A scarred trapper told today how he battled a big black bear in a rowboat while halfway across Huntington Lake.

The trapper, John Vistak, wanted to bring the bear back alive to cage at a public camp. He knocked it unconscious, tied it, pulled a gunny sack over its head, loaded it in a rowboat and started back across the lake.

When the boat reached the middle of the lake—a good half mile from either shore—the animal worked loose from its bonds, shook the sack off its head, and gave Vistak a disapproving glance.

Action began immediately.

Round one was about even, with Vistak and the bear sparring for an opening.

Round two went to the bear, which caught Vistak a slashing blow on the hand with a huge paw. Vistak retired to his end of the boat.

Round three saw the finish of the fight. Vistak stunned the animal with blows from an oar.

Despite his injured hand, Vistak agained tied the bear, this time more securely, and took it ashore.

The animal was put in the cage and Vistak said he was through giving boat rides to bears.

DRIVE FOR RICH SAAR BASIN—The Nazis see, as the opening blows of an all-out offensive of the Allies in Western Europe, the new drives started by Gen. Patton's Third Army which penetrated Nazi defences in the Metz area, and the companion punch to Hurtgen south of Aachen. The rich Saar basin lies between the pincer jaws of the new drives.

Rev. J. F. Everson was chairman for the evening, and the following program was enjoyed: Solos by Raymond Kelk and Viola Neals, reading by Jean Fairbairn, duet by Joy Preston and Bernard Preston, and community singing led by S. S. Staples.

Mr. and Mrs. Cathcart were then asked to come to the front of the church and Clifford Johnston read an address. A knee-hole desk was presented by Cecil Neals and Harvey Clifford. Congratulatory addresses were given by Rev. Mr. Everson, Melville H. Johnston, superintendent of the Sunday School, and Sidney Fairbairn, clerk of the session of the United Church. All present were invited to the basement where the members of the Young People's Society served refreshments.

ArmyNewspaper Carries Only Factual Record

BRUSSELS, Nov. 13—(CP Cable) —In an editorial entitled "politics has no place in the army," Maple Leaf, Canadian Army daily on the western front, said yesterday:

"Political developments in Canada have been the subject of discussion and speculation by Canadians everywhere during recent weeks. Although the issues involved may be of particular interest to the Canadian Army, we must not take our eye of the ball. Our job at present overseas is to get on with fighting the war.

"Not that Canadian soldiers should not take an interest in the affairs of their country. But the fact remains that if we are to operate as an efficient fighting team there can be no room for political issues within our ranks.

"Maple Leaf in the past few days has published in its news columns facts about political events in Canada. Maple Leaf is a troops' newspaper. Its object is to provide news for the troops' information from home and the battlefront, and some entertainment. There is room here for timely discussion also, but not for political opinions.

A Healthy Sign

"That Canadian soldiers overseas think about the affairs of their country is only too evident in letters received by Maple Leaf. It is a most healthy sign and Maple Leaf hopes this same interest will continue when we are back again on civvy street. Meanwhile the present issue must be decided by our government at home, not over here.

"Regardless of religious or political beliefs or of province, the Canadian formations now overseas have shown the finest example of united action in the history of our country. The purpose of their unity has been to beat the German — politics will have to wait.

"There never at any time has been any official military or political editorial direction given to Maple Leaf. Its editorial policy rests entirely with its own editorial staff. Under these circumstances a factual record of events only will be published in Maple Leaf.

"Any opinion, forecasts or speculation on domestic political issues are out."

The editorial was signed with the initials of Lt.-Col. Richard S. Malone, editor-in-chief of the paper and head of the Canadian Army Public Relations unit on the western front.

Maple Leaf also carried yesterday a message to the troops issued by Col. R. L. Ralston on his resignation as Canadian Defence Minister, and Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton on his succession to that post.

The statement, issued under authority of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, said "in consequence of which the number of United Nations' merchant vessels sunk by German submarines during the month was also the lowest of any month of the entire war."

Airwomen Enjoy Music, Pets

By KATHLEEN REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A WEST COAST R.C.A.F. PATROL BASE, Nov. 13 — (CP). — Cpl. R. K. Morrison, former newspaperman from Chilliwack, B.C., thinks the recent arrival of a group of airwomen to this remote West Coast station may be responsible for the remarkable interest in good music which airmen here have suddenly developed.

"You know it's amazing how attendance at the weekly music appreciation hour has practically doubled itself since the girls came a month ago," Cpl. Morrison said.

The Chilliwack airman has donated his valuable collection of records to the station record library. Once a week he lectures on music appreciation to interested airmen and women.

Joy Monica Hollamby, former munitions inspector in a war plant at Hamilton, Ont., and now one of the WOGS (wireless ground operators) up here, plans on being one of the first WDs to join the staff of The Victory, the station's monthly newspaper.

"I've had poetry published in several newspapers in Canada — who knows, maybe I'll get some in The Victory," she said.

This summer LAW. Doreen Drysdale of Stony Mountain, Man., took a special R.C.A.F. Instructor's course in leathercraft and plastics. During the long winter evenings ahead she will teach the airmen and WDs how to many everything from pocketbooks to necklaces, leather belts and ash-trays.

Fawn is Popular

Security regulations deem that many a spot is out-of-bounds to airmen and WDs up here, but never to Kuana, a six-months-old fawn which airman found lost in the bush several weeks ago. Kauna has become such an important personage that she now is pictured on the station crest.

Actually Kuana wasn't the first deer to make her home here. There was another Kuana, whose death several months ago, when she became entangled in a high tension wire, gained Dominion-wide newspaper publicity. Now in a grass-covered grave overlooking the harbor where R.C.A.F. seaplanes roar back and forth all day long, Kuana I lies buried. A white picket-fence and tombstone mark the spot and airmen here still pay respect to her memory.

Dogs are the most popular mascots around this post — and there are several of them. The airwomen have their "Laddie," a big collie-police pup.

Official head of the WDs is Wing Officer Tupper, Section Officer Dorothy Gratton-Smith's own eight-weeks-old spaniel which she brought from Victoria. Lately WO. Tupper was confined to barracks because of illness. However she wasn't lonely — at least one or two WDs looked in every day, just to see how "Tupper" was getting along.

HAVELOCK, Nov. 13.— (ENS).— Mrs. C. H. Roberts was hostess for the November meeting of the W.M.S. of the United church, when sixteen members were in attendance, the president, Mrs. G. W. Chiles, presiding.

Freeman and Mrs. T. J. Gall led in prayer and Mrs. S. J. W. Clarke gave a reading entitled "You Can Find It Wherever a Child is Scared or Hungry."

Girl Ferry Pilot Is Qualified To Fly Many Types Of Planes

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press War Correspondent

PARIS, Nov. 13—(CP)—The American daughter of a Canadian, who has been writing history in the sky for the past few years, made history again when she was one of the first two Air Transport Auxiliary women pilots to come to France.

First Officer Peggy Lennox, of the blond curls and glowing cheeks who look like an artist's conception of a girl pilot, is the daughter of William J. Lennox, once of Belleville, now living in Florida.

Peggy isn't always the gay, carefree girl she looks. She's a young woman who knew what she wanted and worked hard to get it. Today as a ferry pilot of Spitfires, Mosquitos, Bostons and Mustangs, qualified to fly 52 types of aircrafts, with 2,000 flying hours in her log book, she is one of those who proved there is a place for women in the air.

Her war effort, as a member of the British air transport corps, with a rank equivalent to flight-lieutenant, is ferrying planes from factories to air fields, from airfield to airfield, throughout the United Kingdom.

She's done even more than that, and some of the American pilots who fly fighters and bombers over Germany were taught to fly first in the United States by Peggy when she was an instructor at Dallas, Tex. and Rhode Island.

Like all women who fly, or want to fly, the sky road has been bumpy, and for a long time she struggled toward a job like the one she now does.

Her home town was Chicago but she attended art school in Cleveland. In Cleveland she became an art teacher, but teaching wasn't much in Peggy's line and flying was. With just about the first money she earned, she started taking flying lessons, at $25 an hour.

Flying Expensive

"And once I started to fly, that ruined me for everything else," she said. That was in 1929, however, and when the market crashed there wasn't much money for such expensive hobbies.

Finally she got herself a job with a firm who did aeronautical research, the Smith Company, which first brought out the controllable pitch propellor. Peggy got in flying hours in tests on her company's inventions. She was in Washington doing research on the interior combustible aircraft engine in 1935 when the company went out of business.

The young girl then went to New York. Life was a bit hilly for the next few years. To keep eating Peggy modelled clothes for a Fifth Avenue shop, sold toys in a department store, demonstrated cosmetics, and went to a girls' camp as instructor in riding, tennis and golf, sports she was proficient in. Finally she ended up on Life Magazine, a reader of unsolicited manuscripts.

Her flying interfered with her work and in 1940 she found a post as insructor at flying field at Providence, R.I. She became one of the first women instructors in America. She was turned down as instructor at another field, "because she wouldn't be good for the morale of the cadets," the directors told her.

She taught at Dallas, Tex. before she joined the A.T.A. Since June, 1942, she's been in England ferrying fighters and medium bombers, in all kinds of temperamental English weather.

King Requested Ralston To Quit

OTTAWA, Nov. 13 (CP)—Col. J. L. Ralston, in a statement last night on his reinforcement views, revealed that Prime Minister Mackenzie King had asked for his resignation.

He quoted a section of Mr. King's Wednesday speech in which the prime minister said he realized that unless the colonel's views were accepted his resignation would follow.

Col. Ralston said last night: "On this point, it is quite true that I had stated that I would have to resign if my recommendation (that drafted men be sent overseas) were not accepted."

He had understood government policy to be that if the draftees were needed overseas and volunteers were not available the draftees would be sent.

"My recommendation was not accepted, nor could I get any assurance that the government as a whole considered that the prime minister's speeches committed the government to this course.

"Under these conditions, and as requested by the prime minister, I at once tendered my resignation as minister of national defence."

When he announced Gen. McNaughton had succeeded Col. Ralston, Mr. King told newsmen the colonel's resignation had been a verbal one.

Care for the Wounded and Ill —
CANADA'S TREATMENT AND PENSION POLICY

Canada's men and women who have volunteered to serve have done it in the realization that war demands a grim toll. They have known that in offering their lives to their country they have faced the possibility perhaps of coming back disabled, perhaps with health impaired, and perhaps needing long periods of treatment. Canada has recognized this and its responsibility to those who suffer injury or illness, and wide-spread treatment and pension provisions are now in effect and operating.

CONTINUING TREATMENT
For those requiring treatment at the time of their discharge there are special provisions. If treatment is commenced within thirty days, it will be continued as long as required; pay and allowances of rank are payable for at least a year if necessary, but if the disability is found to be pensionable, such payments can be continued beyond that if treatment will improve the condition.

TREATMENT PROTECTION AFTER DISCHARGE
If commencing within a year of discharge or within a year after continuing treatment ceases, every ex-service man or woman may receive in Canada free hospitalization and treatment for any disability within that year except if due to misconduct. Allowances are payable up to $50 monthly if single and $70 if married plus additional amounts for children.
Those who have served outside Canada, who have limited means and are not entitled to treatment from some other source, may be given hospitalization without allowances at any time in Canada for remedial non-service-related conditions.

TREATMENT FOR PENSIONERS
If ex-service men or women are suffereing from a pensionable war disability, not only are they eligible for all the above treatment benefits, but they are also entitled to treatment at any time or in any country for the pensioned condition. While undergoing such treatment they receive hospital allowance at the applicable 100 per cent pension rate less $15 per month, if an in-patient.

THE PENSION POLICY
The basic principle in awarding disability pensions is that they are awarded as compensation for loss suffered. Pensions in Canada are administered by an independent commission, all members being ex-service men. The commission determines the percentage of disability and the rates of pension are fixed by the Pension Act.

THOSE ELIGIBLE
Generally, any ex-service man or woman who served overseas and who, on discharge, suffers from a disability as a result of that service and not the result of their own improper conduct, are eligible for war disability pension. Where service has been entirely rendered in Canada, the disability, in order to be pensionable, must arise out of or be directly connected with military service. However, provision is made whereby pensions may be awarded to ex-service men or women with service in Canada only, if they incur serious disability which is not so related to service, and they are in necessitous circumstances.

AMOUNT OF PENSION
The rates of pension for all ranks up to and including Sub-Lieutenant (Navy), Lieutenant (Army), and Flying Officer (Air), are the same. The 100 per cent pension rates are $900 for the man, $300 for his wife, with allowances for children. If a man's disability is assessed at 25 per cent, he receives in pension 25 per cent of the 100 per cent rate.

WIDOWS' PENSIONS
The rates of pensions for widows and children of all ranks up to and including Sub-Lieutenant (Navy), Lieutenant (Army), and Flying Officer (Air), are: Widow $720, first child $180, second child $144, each subsequent child $120.

PARENTS
A dependent parent may be pensioned at the rate for a widow or such lesser rate as may be deemed necessary by the commission to provide maintenance.

TO ESTABLISH ELIGIBILITY
The documents of all service personnel discharged for medical reasons are forwarded to the pension commission by his service. If pension entitlement is conceded, pension is awarded after a medical examination to assess percentage of disability. However, if the ruling is not satisfactory, the ex-service man or woman is given every opportunity to present his or her claim and provision is made for a final personal hearing before an appeal board sitting in the applicant's district.
If an ex-service man or woman who has been discharged for medical reasons does not hear from the commission within a reasonable length of time following his or her discharge, he or she may write to the commission's nearest district office, requesting information.

VETERANS' BUREAUS
The services of veterans' bureaus are available to assist all ex-service personnel to prepare their claims for pension. Pensions advocates, attached to veterans' bureaus, give expert independent advice and assistance in the preparation of claims and their presentation before the commission.

Veterans' welfare officers are stationed in key centres throughout Canada. They are the friends of ex-service men and women. It is their duty to advise and assist all ex-service personnel with their re-establishment problems. If there is anything about the rehabilitation programme which you do not understand consult your nearest veterans' welfare officer.

Need Of Faith Emphasized To St. Paul's WMS

A stirring challenge and a test of faith was presented to members of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian church by Mrs. Moynan, of Toronto, guest speaker at their Thankoffering meeting.

A record attendance was present, a tribute to the special speaker, who is the daughter of the late Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Goforth, for many years the church's most revered missionaries to China. She was introduced by Mrs. H. Morgan.

Mrs. Moynan took as her topic, the words from the 27th chapter of Acts' gospel, "I Believe in God." Of men and women of faith there are many mentioned in the Bible, but in this present age there is a tendency to disbelieve the sayings in God's Word," the speaker said, and dealt with her subject under five different headings.

"God, the Holy Spirit, is to be our guide in all things" was her first topic, and she questioned "If this is true, why is it so seldom mentioned? Of "Christ's second coming," her second point, she said: "To those who love, His appearing will be seen, but many do not believe because they do not understand." Other sub-topics were: "If you do not forgive others, God will not forgive you"; and "Do we believe, as the Bible teaches, that those who believe are saved, and those who do not will be destroyed.' The fifth was, "Faith in God is the most needed thing in the life of our children."

Qualifying her last heading, Mrs. Moynan said, "Faith in God enables one to do things needed to be done, I can thank my parents for my great belief in God's love, since the vital thing is to be able to pass on one's faith to one's children." She explained that this life was first a test, and stressed prayer as a duty.

The speaker recounted many of her parents' experiences in their work in North China. Their escape from death by famine and scourge was a mute testimony to their faith and trust in God. In each place in North China where they lived and performed an aggressive christian work, there is now a church.

The appreciation of the meeting for the address was voiced by Miss Lillian Esplen, who said it was a great tribute to the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Goforth.

A solo was sung by Mrs. Ford Turner, entitled 'Morning, Noon and Evening.'

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP

Our little chat today will be about new styles for the coming winter. Draped skirts are very much in the limelight but not as they have been shown before They are much different and certainly very smart, especially for the tall, thin person. The draping in many of this season's style successes drops to the knees, giving to the silhouette a slim waist line, and a fuller, softer skirtline. A Paris designer has used this lower front draping to give a flattering effect in a Linden tea, green crepe afternoon frock. The swirled fullness with flat, diagonal fold is repeated on one shoulder. A high crowned hat, tinted to match the green of the dress, has a cloud of bronze veiling swathing the hat and draped down one side. This is one of the newest and smartest combination of colors shown for winter

Another fashion which has come back this season is the tiered dress, with the halter top. This style has such a refreshingly new look but it must only be worn by the tall girl. This style is shown to great advantage in a plum-colored crepe with the luxurious "shirt" of plum and silver-stripped lame. Worn with this outstanding costume is a high-flying hat of dubonnet felt, sparkling with metallic-tipped, ostrich feather pom-poms, which mirror the ensemble's rich colors.

This is certainly a season of colors. Even if the hat or dress is black, it must have a bright color trimming to be up to the minute. Keep this in mind when you go shopping for your winter wardrobe. No matter if its a tailored suit, an afternoon dress or an evening dress, get the bright shades and you will be sure you have chosen right. With a suit wear a bright blouse, hat, gloves, and carry a bright-colored purse. Wear a bright dress under a fur coat, with a bright hat, for it is surely a winter of brilliant colors.

Marjorie Fry Wed At St. Paul's

St. Paul's Presbyterian church simply decorated with ferns and yellow mums was the setting for a pretty wedding at 2:30 o'clock Saturday for Marjorie Evelyn Fry, only daughter of Mrs. Fry and the late Samuel Fry, Reid street and Grant Woodrow Clark only son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Clarke of Springville.

Rev. W. L. Newton officiated. The wedding music was played by Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O. and during the signing of the register he played "I Love Thee".

The bride, given in marriage by her brother Leonard Fry of Toronto was lovely in a floor length gown of white brocaded satin, with a sweetheart neckline and a tuxedo front. Her finger-tip veil was held in place by a Sweetheart coronet and she carried a shower bouquet of red roses and bouvardia.

Miss Hazel Mahood, the bride's only attendant, was frocked in a floor-length gown of turquoise taffeta and she carried a bouquet of pink roses. Courtland Lillico was groomsman and the ushers were Lewis Fry, brother of the bride and Clarke Whittington, nephew of the groom. After the ceremony a reception was held at Hooper's Palm Room where the bride's mother received wearing a gown of black crepe with sequin trimming, and black accessories. She wore a corsage of red roses. The groom's sister Mrs. V. Whittington who also received, wore a blue tailored suit with blue accessories and a silver fox fur.

P.C.V.S. Wins

wrong with their attack whenever they moved well into Peterborough territory and their mid-field ground-gaining, for the most part went for nothing. The closest the visitors came to a touchdown was late in the first period when Dell got away a beautiful long pass that was dropped on the Peterborough goal line. Had that one clicked the Waugh-coached squad would be making arrangements to play the Bay of Quinte winners this Saturday.

On top of their failure to keep a sustained attack going when in pay dirt territory, Oshawa beat themselves by fumbles and also by a couple of unnecessary roughplay penalties.

P.C.V.S. outplayed over much of the journey on plays from scrimmage never stopped trying and their determination was finally rewarded when they cashed in on an Oshawa fumble to register the field goal that made them group champions.

Matthews In Limelight

Jack Matthews, in spite of a cracked rib sustained in the Bowmanville fixture a week before, played a whale of a game for the winners. He made most of their gains through the line, kicked splendidly and did the bulk of the forward passing. He was in on about every play. Red Outram, of course, was the hero of the occasion with his game-winning goal from the field and on top of that played good rugby throughout. Jack Sisson caught well in the safety spot although the deadly down-field tackling of the Oshawa ends gave him little chance to run the ball back. Up in front the line gave a good account of itself against a forward wall that had a decided edge in size.

For Oshawa Dell kicked splendidly and also shone with some effective forward passing. Bird at quarter also starred as a pitcher, his flat passes over the line gaining much ground for the loosers. Seeley, Lindsay and Joyce were the Oshawa plungers and they reeled off a number of gains.

Oshawa Collgiate: Flying wing, Reddock; halves, Wallace, Dell, Seeley; quarter, Bird; snap, McCohn; inside wings, Chant, Brown; middles, Joyce, Lindsay; outsides, Fleming, Wales; alternates, Hanna, Kerr, Mozewsky, Panke, Anderson, Gilbert, Rundle, Patte.

Referee, Gordie Young, Peterborough; Umpire—Campbell, Toronto.

There was no score in the hard-fought first period and most of the action ranged between the quarter lines. P.C.V.S. had an early opening to score when they recovered an Oshawa fumble in pay dirt territory but the visitors' line tightened and when the homesters had to kick Jack Matthews kick was partially blocked and Oshawa recovered and ran the ball out. Then the Motor City team started to threaten with a short forward passing game that clicked. Bird threw two in succession to Dell for 10-yard gains and Dell tossed a 20-yarder to Reddock. However the Oshawa attack bogged down again at that stage and the Petes recovered on a fumble to stop the advance.

Early in the second quarter P.C.V.S. got a break when Dell dropped the ball as he went to kick from his 35-yard-line. He made a quick recovery but got a bad kick away and the Petes were within striking distance. They could not make much headway through the line but Matthews booted to the dead line for the first point of the game.

Oshawa Start March

Oshawa fought back hard and started a march that threatened to wind up in a touchdown. Seeley tossed a long forward to Reddock for a big gain and then hit the P.C.V.S. line twice for yards. However the homesters defence tightened in the shadows of their goal posts and the visitors were eventually forced to kick. They elected to try a placement and Joyce's attempt saw the ball driven into his own line and the visitors had lost a chance to tie up the game.

The Peterborough team kicked off against the wind at the beginning of the third period but Oshawa launched an offensive that soon carried the play down into the local end of the field. Joyce and Seeley plunged for yards and Bird got away for 25 yards more on a fake plunge. Oshawa then failed to click on two successive forward passes and Dell kicked over for a single to tie up the game.

P.C.V.S. fumbled on the first play after this point and Oshawa were again in pay dirt territory. After a plunge had been stopped and a forward pass failed Dell booted a long one over the P.C.V.S. goal line to put the visitors in front 2 to 1.

Play was still in Peterborough territory but Oshawa came to their assistance by earning two rough-play penalties that carried the ball to midfield, and a long kick by Matthews transferred activities to the Oshawa end of the field. On the last play of the quarter a bad snap nearly proved costly for Oshawa but they recovered the ball on their own two yard line and play started their in the fourth quarter.

Oshawa, with their backs to the wall, elected a forward passing game from their own goal line to get out of danger and the strategy worked. Bird tossed two in succession for good gains and the situation was saved for the time being when Dell got a good kick away. Play was in midfield for some time but P.C.V.S. finally got a break on a loose ball. They failed to gain however and had to kick but Matthews' punt was short of the goal line. Oshawa forward passes clicked again to relieve the pressure but Matthews picked up a loose ball on an Oshawa extension and then threw a forward to Outram for a gain. Matthews' long kick over the Oshawa line looked good for a rouge but Oshawa ran it out 10 yards. Then P.C.V.S. got the break that won the game. Oshawa elected to plunge the ball away from their line and lost it on a fumble. P.C.V.S. failed to gain on two plays but on the third down Outram kicked a field goal from squarely in front of the uprights and the ball game was won. In the short time left Oshawa tried forwards on every play but had no luck.

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

WIFE'S PAST DISTURBS HUSBAND

DEAR MISS DIX—I am married to a girl in whom I have lost all faith. Before we were married I thought she was the sweetest person in the world, but soon after we were married she told me about a number of boys she had gone with, and from her stories I gathered that she was quite boy-crazy.

She is very gay and has the most wonderful knack for making friends. Do you think a girl of 22 could have half a dozen love affairs and two engagements and still stay nice and sweet?. She says that all of her affairs were innocent, but I can't help wondering. We have often spoken of divorce, but both of us are opposed to it, and deep in my heart I think I still love her. Do all girls crave popularity?

DOUBTFUL.

It's Common Strategy With Wives

ANSWER—Of course, they do. A girl guages her success by the number of dates she has, and in her desire to be thought a man-killer she often inflates the number of perfectly marvellous men she could have married.

So take your wife's stories about her conquests with a grain of salt. She thinks she makes herself more desirable to you by bragging about how crazy the boys were about her, and that she makes you a little jealous by pretending that she was in love with some of them. It is common strategy with wives. So just tell her that since you are the last one she loved it doesn't matter who the first one was, and that you are not interested in hearing about the others.

If your wife were more sophisticated, she would know that the silliest thing that a woman can do is to tell her husband anything about her former sweethearts. So forget all about the divorce business. If your wife is pretty and sweet and easy to get along with and you love her, that is all that counts. Marriage should wipe the slate clean for both husband and wife. It should be the beginning, really and truly, of a new life, with no post mortems.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am 28 years old and am engaged to a girl who told me she was 24. After a year of great happiness I have found out that she is 32. I still regard her as very sweet and wonderful, but am not as certain of our future happiness as I have been up to now, since I found out that she deceived me about her age, and I do not know whether to go on with the marriage or not. What do you think?

EDGAR.

Compatibility Means More Than Age

ANSWER—Four years' difference in age should not make you give up the girl who suits you in every other respect. It isn't as if you were a mere boy who didn't know his own mind. You are a mature man whose tastes are not likely to change, and I have no doubt the woman will make you a most satisfactory wife. Perhaps, she will be all the more anxious to please because she will feel that she will always have to put her best foot foremost to keep young and attractive looking in order to prevent your eyes from wandering off after young girls.

Don't think that you can't trust her because she lied to you about her age. Practically all women do that, and it is one of the tarradiddles which the Recording Angel doesn't even bother to chalk up against them.

DEAR MISS DIX—My girl wears glasses when she works, but when she goes out on a date she leaves them off and goes blinking and stumbling around. Can you suggest anything I could do or say to make her realize that she is so much more attractive with her spectacles than without them?

H. M. W.

ANSWER— Dorothy Parker once wrote a witty little verse in which she said that men didn't make passes at girls in glasses, and unfortunately a lot of girls took it seriously. They think that glasses make them look older, or owlish, or schoolmarmish, or something, and so they leave them off and go blindly around in the hope that they are being glamorous when they are only being stupid and clumsy.

If you will tell your girl just how you feel about it, she will keep her specs on and be eternally grateful to you for making it possible for her to see.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, November 14

A PARTICULARLY active and exciting day, with matters stimulated to a very high tempo, is read from the ruling astrological symbols. New and very important projects may be attacked with force, skill, ingenuity and determination, especially since they may be definitely designed to place the fortunes, finances, possessions and future solidarity and contentment on an established and enduring base. Work confidently, with decisiveness and all available resources and with the ready support of well-organized plans and institutions or authorities to this end, but be sensible with expenditures and physical outlay. Good fortune as well as a probability of a worthwhile gift or inheritance may be in sight.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of well-organized plans and propositions to work with enterprise, sagacity and determination toward making a sound, enduring and secure future, with solid comforts and contentment. Bold plans and purposes should be constructively engineered, with skill and ingenuity to attract the generous support of those in high places. These might also be disposed to such generosities as large gifts, bequests or other means of furthering worthy objectives. eB wise with expenditures or personal extravagances, also impetuous moves.

A child born on this day should possess many skills, practical talents and ideas for a sound and pleasant future, even against obstacles. Its bravery and energy may attract gifts or capital from influential sources.

Public School Men Hear K. O. Birkin

The Peterborough Local of the Ontario Men's Public School Teachers Federation held their monthly meeting at Hooper's Lunch Room, with over twenty members in attendance. R. Scrutton, the president took charge of the business part. The Secretary R. Rutherford, read some communications from the Provincial Executive. A letter was read from A. Mowat, thanking the members for the honour they had conferred upon him in electing him honorary-president of the organization.

C. D. Munro introduced K. O. Birkin, of the Peterborough Normal staff. Mr. Birkin spoke on teacher training. As Mr. Birkin has had several years experience in teacher training and also a number of years as Inspector of Public Schools his address proved to be very interesting and was well received by all present. Mr. Kerr moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Birkin, which was heartily responded to by all.

It was decided that the next meeting should be held on January 11, 1945. The singing of the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close.

War Dead Are Honored In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 13 (ENS) —The Remembrance Day service sponsored by Campbellford Branch 103 of the Canadian Legion B.E.S.L. was conducted at the Cenotaph Sunday at 3 p.m. It memorialized all those from Campbellford, Warkworth and the townships of Seymour and Percy who fell in the Great War and those who have fallen in World War No. 2.

Led by the Midland Regiment Band, the veterans, soldiers, sailors, airmen and Campbellford High School Cadets formed the procession at the Armouries and proceeded to the Cenotaph. The order of service there was the prayer of approach and the Lord's Prayer by Rev. G. N. Maxwell, the placing of the wreaths on the Cenotaph. The reading by Mayor Long of the names of those who have paid the supreme sacrifice in this war and the placing of the crosses.

The names are: Mac Atkinson, George Armstrong, John Baker, Robert O. Blake, W. F. H. Baker, Charles Buchner, Angus Donald, Charles Dunn, James Farrell, Willis Greaves, G. N. Goudy, Raymond Kelly, Aylmer Haig, Eric Ingram, Arthur Lambert, Douglas Milne, Francis Oliver, Arthur Rowe, William Runions, Harold Taylor, L. O. Williams.

"O Canada" was then sung, followed by the Scripture reading by Rev. B. Babcock and Captain Jarrett. The prayer of thanksgiving and intercession was made by Rev. H. Byrant. The guest speaker, Hon. Major the Rev. Canon P. J. Dykes was introduced by Major J. M. Bygott.

In speaking to one of the largest gatherings of recent years, Canon Dykes quoted General Smuts as saying that the present war is a continuance of the last Great War, the armistice was simply a cessation of hostilities. He spoke of the great advantages that cost us so dearly. Remembrance Day brings home to us the thoughts of those who paid the price. Two minutes silence must be changed to deeds. Our aim must be to win the war, grasp the vision of the greater world to be and to fight to win the peace.

The Benediction was pronounced by Rev. J. O. Ralston, followed by the Last Post, two minutes silence, Reveille, and the National Anthem.

fices know the cost of victory and the victory was not possible without the cost. Victory today is nearer because the cost is being paid. It is being paid by family after family, son after son, daughter after daughter. Pte. Dafoe he said was found as one who was courageous and willing to defend the freedom cherished so much in democracy, and this freedom will not die as long as there are men who are willing to give their all.

"We dare not forget the cost that has been paid and he stressed the necessity for each individual to rededicate themselves to God's service and to the task of making this a better world so that they may not die in vain.

Remembrance Service

In the evening the regular "Remembrance" service was held when Miss Rogers read the eighty names inscribed on the church Honor Roll, four of whom have paid the supreme Sacrifice and three have been honorably discharged. The roll shows the following personnel, 58 Army, 13 Air Force, 5 Navy, 2 C.W.A.C. and 2 Nursing Sisters.

Mr. Wilkinson used the text — "Thou wilt keep Him in perfect peace, Whose mind is stayed on thee: because He trusteth thee."

He spoke on the noble stand the church had taken against Naziism and its doctrine of hate and dwelt on the prayer life of the soldiers under the leadership of their padres.

"They are praying for health and strength and victory in God's own time. They are not only praying but fighting for their ideals" and he wondered if they would be disappointed when they came back and saw how few are praying on the home front. Until individuals are courageous enough to take their stand, week by week as witnesses for Christ, and until the nations of the world are ready to witness for Him there can be no peace.

Mr. Wilkinson stated that the average life in the army was 20¼ years and he pointed out the debt the people at home owe to the flower of the youth.

NEEDED MORE LATER ON

It is when using up your own honor early would build up in the dummy an entry which could be employed later by the declarer for the vital purpose of bringing in the established cards of a long suit.
